Advances Bring Troops Within 16 Miles of Rome

Heavy Fighting Now Going On at Edges Of Cisterna and Campoleone

CANADIANS ACTIVE

(By WES GALLAGHER)
(A.P., War Correspondent)

Algiers, Feb. 1 (AP) — British and American troops bursting forward in a big offensive from their invasion beachhead have struck to the outskirts of Campoleone, sixteen miles southeast of Rome, and also to the edge of Cisterna, communications town on the Appian Way 14 miles northwest of Anzio, headquarters announced today.

Campoleone is 15 miles from the invasion port of Anzio.

American troops attacking on the main front north of Cassino have hammered out new gains meanwhile, and seized 250 prisoners from the German 44th. Infantry Division.

A field dispatch said the German defences in the corridor northwest of Cassino were beginning to crumble.

Enemy Well Dug In.

U.S. units striking northeast of Anzio have reached within half a mile of Cisterna, a key rail and road junction and large air base. They found the Germans well dug in on the border of the city, and resisting strongly.

British forces pushing northward carried ahead in a co-ordinated assault to the edge of Campoleone.

The twin attacks were the first big offensive since the landings.

An Allied officer said the Nazis brought troops from the area north of Rome to meet the Allied blows. But the navy said that Allied landings of reinforcements and supplies were proceeding on schedule, under favorable conditions.

Attack at Tollo

On the 8th Army front, Canadians attacking in clear weather with strong tank and artillery support advanced against heavy German opposition from dug-in positions on the approaches to Tollo. German fighter planes twice were repulsed in raids on Allied positions in the Orsogna area.

American heavy bombers reached into Austria seeking to destroy German air strength, pounding the air base at Klagenfurt. The four-engined bombers also smashed at fields at Aviano and Udine in northern Italy. Berlin said extensive fires were started.

Eighteen Nazi planes fell to Allied sharpshooters during the day. The weather limited Allied operations to 800 sorties, under the number they have been flying in widespread activities. Four Allied ships were lost.

80 Planes Destroyed on Ground

Photographs showed 80 planes were destroyed on the ground in Allied raids Sunday on German air bases, principally in northeastern Italy, bringing the toll for five days of air war to 251 German planes wrecked in the air and aground.

Heavy bombers with fighter escorts caught German defences flat-footed at Klagenfurt, covering the field, hangars and workshops with a shower of bombs. They did not meet a single fighter or any flak and pilots said many fires were started, with three hangars probably destroyed.

Other planes shot down 16 enemy planes in blows at Udine, 60 miles northeast of Venice, and Aviano, 45 miles north of Venice. It was the second consecutive attack upon Udine.

Sixteen other planes were destroyed aground.

These three bases are of vital importance to Nazi long-range fighters and bombers.

There was little air activity yesterday over the invasion beachhead, but Allied planes hit heavily at enemy communications near that area.

German U-Boat Claim is Unconfirmed

London, Feb. 1 (CP) — The German radio said today U-boats in January had sunk 17 Allied merchantmen totalling 120,000 tons, 23 destroyers, two submarines and 3 landing barges.

The claim was unconfirmed by any Allied source.

The broadcast said other German naval units sank seven ships, bringing claimed total merchant losses to 138,000 tons, and surface units of the German navy sank two additional submarines and two escort vessels.

American Troops Drive Wedge Thru Gustav Line North Of Cassino

STRONGLY ENTRENCHED

By HAL BOYLE
(AP War Correspondent)

With 5th Army Troops Around Cassino, Feb. 1 — (AP) — American troops who drove a wedge through the German Gustav Line pursued the retreating Nazis through the hills north of Cassino yesterday as the enemy defences in this key corridor to Rome began to crumble.

Capture of a number of German troops, including officers, showed the extensive nature of the fortifications which the enemy spent months building.

Tanks prodding forward with the infantry waved back to the rear a number of German prisoners who came down voluntarily to surrender. Those taken included about 20 per cent non-Germans — Austrians, Czechs and Poles.

"Some of the prisoners were put out because they had to dig their own foxholes," said Maj. Kermit R. Hansen, of Omaha, Neb., a former radio announcer.

Strong Bunkers

"We had been hearing much about their concrete and steel bunkers, but this was the first time we came up against them. One emplacement we found was equipped with food and clothing and bunks to sleep 28 men. It was connected by a trench to the machine-guns in the dugout. The bunkers were carved out of the semi-rocky mountain sides and at least five of them were reinforced with concrete, with big log revetments."

The prisoners complained that they had been in their positions more than two days without food, indicating that the Germans—their communications lines under incessant air attack — are having major supply problems.

The enemy was still defending the ridges north of the town yesterday afternoon. Windows and floors in the command post in the Rapido river valley shook steadily as American artillery bombarded the outskirts of the town a short distance away and in clear view.

Crack Under Tank Attack

"The German infantry in these hills were under attack 11 days, but they didn't crack until we finally got tanks across the Rapido and began shooting up the area," Hansen said. "The shock of our tanks and the continuous pressure of our infantry whipped them. They all have been taught that panzers are all powerful and undefeatable. That indoctrination sure boomeranged against them when our tanks cut loose. They became victims of their own propaganda."

Stilwell Tells Press Reopening Of Land Route to China Workable

By PRESTON GROVER
Associated Press Staff Writer

New Delhi, Feb. 1 — (AP)—Fresh from a visit to the Ledo front in Northern Burma, Lt.-Gen. Joseph W. Stilwell told a press conference today that the reopening of a land route to China was a workable job and that the Chinese and Americans were fighting well to make it so.

Stilwell conceived the project of building a road through the north Burma jungle to connect with the old Burma land route which formerly began at Rangoon, now in Japanese hands.

The General said the road would work and that critics who had said it would be impossible to build a highway through the India-Burma jungle had seen the "impossible" accomplished. He declined to discuss how big a force it would support when it was built or when it would be finished.

A reporter commented that it was "presumed" that the Board was designed to support a land movement aimed at recapturing a workable port on the China coast.

After a brief pause Stilwell answered, "This is a start on an attempt to reopen communications with China."

Taro Captured

Taro on the far right flank of the Ledo operation was captured Jan. 30 after the Chinese killed a considerable number of Japanese, and the Chinese infantry now are some distance ahead of the road-building gangs.

Asked about the morale of the Japanese, Stilwell said, "You have to kill them to get them out of their holes. They are tough and they are good soldiers." He said the Chinese tactics were to shell the enemy's strongpoints if possible, and then come in from behind and rush them.

Asked how many Japanese prisoners have been taken Stilwell replied, "Two, and they were wounded."

A southeast Asia communique disclosed today that Taro and Kolum, two miles east of that point, were captured Jan. 30 by Chinese forces after a five-mile advance in two days.

SUBMIT OR FIGHT ISSUE CONFRONTS GENERAL FRANCO

Pressure Increases On Spain to Break Ties With Axis; London Doubtful

OIL CUT OFF

London, Feb. 1—(CP)—Both pro-Franco and anti-Franco elements among Spaniards here expressed doubt today that Gen. Francisco Franco would go to the extent of breaking of Spain's diplomatic relations with the Axis despite Anglo-American economic and diplomatic pressure.

A diplomat in Buenos Aires had predicted Spain would cut off relations this week and both Axis and neutral sources told of a burst of diplomatic activity at Madrid.

It had been expected Foreign Secretary Eden would make a statement in the House of Commons today on Anglo-Spanish relations but by mid-afternoon he had not appeared and it was unlikely he would today.

Franco's adherents, who profess neutrality, argued that the Germans across the border in France are a more serious immediate menace to Spain than are Britain and the United States at a distance, even with their power of blockading Spain from the sea.

Embassy Declines Comment.

Opponents of Franco said a Spanish rupture with the Axis seemed probable only if Franco were forced out by a faction or coalition which was convinced the Allies will win the war.

The Spanish embassy declined comment.

In Madrid, morning newspapers carried on their front pages a brief Washington dispatch that "The American Department of State in accord with the British Government gave an order for shipments of petroleum for Spain in the month of February to be suspended, according to an official communique."

The newspapers made no comment and gave no further details.

The United States already has cut off oil shipments to Spain for the month of February and is reconsidering relations with Madrid "in the light of trends in Spanish policy." Washington announced Saturday.

Britain also has been taking a sterner line toward Franco's government.

The identity of the South American diplomat who was quoted in an Associated Press dispatch from Buenos Aires as predicting that Spain would break with the Axis was not disclosed. He was described as a prominent figure in Latin-American diplomatic circles.

Must Declare Self

This source said the attitude being taken by the United States and Britain has brought Franco face-to-face with a situation where he must declare himself for one side or the other. A break with the Allies is virtually out of the question, he said, because Spain desperately needs the oil and supplies which she has been getting from the Americas as well as other goods which pass through Allied-controlled waters.

Increases in Treatment Allowances Paid To Discharged Men Made

Ottawa, Feb. 1—(CP)— Increases in the treatment allowances paid to service personnel discharged from the Armed Forces for medical reasons and in allowances made under the war veterans' allowances act were announced today by pensions Minister Mackenzie at a press conference.

Mr. Mackenzie said that in future the treatment allowances will be equal to the regular pay or rank held, up to the rank of lieutenant, plus the regular scale of dependents' allowances for the Armed Forces.

In the past, discharged men were put on treatment allowances which amounted to much less than the pay and the dependents' allowance received while the man was in the forces. The allowances are paid from the time the man is discharged until his treatment period ends.

Increases have also been provided for those receiving allowances under the war veterans' allowance act. Now, allowances up to $365 per year may be paid to an unmarried veteran, or to the widow of a veteran with no dependent children, while $730 may be paid to a married veteran, or to the widow of a veteran with dependent children. In addition, in all cases, They may have casual earnings up to $125 annually and an additional unearned $25 annually.

Formerly, allowances amounted to about $300 for single veterans, or widows without dependents, and $600 for married veterans, or widows with dependents, less casual earnings over $125 annually and many unearned income.

Mr. Mackenzie told the press conference, held in this office in the parliament buildings, that previously when a man was discharged for medical reasons he immediately went on treatment allowances which provided—no matter what his rank—$44.20 monthly for himself, $18.20 for his wife, $12 monthly each for the first and second children, $10 monthly for the third child and $8 monthly for the fourth, fifth and sixth children.

Under the amendments, the ex-service man or woman will receive treatment allowances equal to the regular pay of rank which was held, plus the regular scale of dependents' allowances for the armed forces. However, the maximum pay and allowances will be that of a sub-lieutenant in the navy, a lieutenant in the army, or a flying officer in the air force. The ceiling will affect officers above those ranks.

Those qualifying for the increased allowances are those whose treatment is continued without interruption from the date of discharge either as in-patients, or, in certain cases, as out-patients. The allowances may be continued only for a period equal to that of service during the present war, or for 12 months following discharge, whichever is the lesser.

In cases where hospital allowances are greater than the pay of rank at the time of discharge, the rate of hospital allowance will prevail. This is applicable to those requiring treatment for disabilities attributable to war service, who may, while out-patients, receive allowances equal to a 100 per cent disability pension.

Provision is made also for dependents' allowances for persons who become dependents of the ex-serviceman after the date of discharge.

"Under former regulations there were certain cases of hardship," Mr. Mackenzie said.

"To ask an army lieutenant, for instance, who, with his wife, had been in receipt of an income of $195 per month to adjust living standards suddenly to an income of $62.40 per month, was asking a great deal. The same conditions applied for those who had held non-commissioned rank.

"The situation was aggravated because of the fact that a man could do nothing to help himself and to increase his income, for, even though discharged from the armed services, he was not ready for rehabilitation. If his disability was pensionable, frequently there was a lag between the period of discharge and the determining of his pensionable status.

"These new allowances will give a man the peace of mind so essential to his ultimate recovery. I am of the opinion that, with financial worries removed during the period he is undergoing treatment, his recovery will be expedited and his mental outlook towards re-establishing himself in civilian life will be greatly improved.

SHOTGUN-RIDDLED BODIES OF FATHER AND SON FOUND

Police Probing Shooting State Affair Was Murder and Suicide

NO MOTIVE REVEALED

Aylmer, Feb. 1 (CP) — Provincial Police here reported today that the shotgun-riddled bodies of 33-year-old Claude Charlton, farmer, and his eight-year-old son, Jim, had been found in a tobacco barn on Charlton's farm, five miles southeast of Aylmer.

Police, who termed the affair murder and suicide, said the bodies were found last night by a party of farmers who set out to search for Charlton and his son after Mrs. Charlton became worried when they did not arrive home for dinner after a hunting expedition. Charlton had been called to appear in court here today on a minor traffic charge.

Preliminary investigation revealed no motive for the double tragedy. In the tobacco barn, the boy was found under a bench with shot gun wounds in his back. Charlton's body, part of his head blown away, was found about 20 feet away.

Police said Charlton had accompanied other farmers to nearby Brownsville yesterday afternoon, and had invited them to go hunting with him on their return. When the other farmers declined, Charlton and his son set out together.

Dr. C. V. Sinclair, Alymer coroner, said an inquest was unlikely. Charlton is survived by his widow and another son, Jack, five.

GOVERNOR TO WEAR OLD SARONG

Springfield, Ill., Feb. 1 —(AP)— Gov. Dwight H. Green promised last night to push a lawn mower through a 25-acre patch of young timothy—clad in one of Dorothy Lamour's old sarongs. The spectacle was arranged for $460,000 in war bonds.

WAKE ISLAND AIR BASE BOMBED BY U. S. SEAPLANES

Action Taken to Prevent Japs From Interfering With Other Offensives

POWERFUL ASSAULT

Pearl Harbor, Feb. 1 — (AP) — Bombing by two squadrons of seaplanes, intended to prevent Japan's Wake Island air base from interfering with the current American offensive in mid-Pacific, was reported last night by the United States Navy but further operations of a mighty task force against the Marshalls were cloaked by official silence.

Monday passed without word on the movements of the largest mass of warships ever sent against the Japanese. It was officially disclosed Saturday carrier planes of the task forces opened a powerful assault on the Marshalls, 700 miles south of Wake. Sunday the naval units including battleships, were reported to have moved closer to pour shells on the air bases and shipping lagoons of those atolls.

No official credence was given radio Tokyo reports that "Japanese Army and Navy units have intercepted powerful enemy units which have been attacking the Marshall group." Lacking this substantiation, there was inclination here to doubt the reports, particularly as to the implication that the Japanese navy had joined battle.

The Wake raid, 10th of the war to hit that island since it was captured Dec. 24, 1941, by the Japanese, was made by between 14 and 30 seaplanes, each probably carrying more than a ton of bombs. None of the raiders was lost while making what was described officially as a "strong attack."

War correspondents here, studying the Tokyo radio report while awaiting new word of the big fleet movements, interpreted the reference to intercepting Japanese "navy units" as meaning planes rather than ships. Strong Japanese naval units probably are based at Truk, more than 1,000 miles west of the Marshalls but they likely are held there for defensive purposes.

25,000 KILLED IN EARTHQUAKE IN NORTH TURKEY

Town of Gerede Is Destroyed—Tremors Are Recorded in England and in U.S.

IN QUAKE ZONE

The Turkish town of Gerede was destroyed by a powerful earthquake today and many of its 25,000 inhabitants were killed.

Earthquakes described as "very severe" and of "devastating intensity", and apparently originating in Turkey, were recorded by seismographs in both Britain and the United States.

Gerede is in Northern Turkey, some 60 miles from the Black Sea and 180 miles east of Istanbul. Reports from Ankara said the tremors lasted 50 seconds and were felt throughout Turkey.

In Britain, J. J. Shaw, West Bromwich seismologist, said his instruments recorded an earthquake so intense that one of the recording pointers was thrown from its bearings.

Shaw said the shock's epicentre was about 1,715 miles from England, apparently in a southwesterly direction. While this would place the centre of the quake in the bed of the Atlantic ocean north of the Azores, uncertainty as to the exact direction of the disturbance suggested a possibility it might have occurred in the vicinity of the Black Sea.

Quake Zone in North Anatolia.

The city of Gerede lies in the "earthquake zone" of Northern Anatolia, a rugged region where numerous similar disasters have occurred in the past few years.

Late last November a series of shocks shook the Black Sea coastal area east of Istanbul and on Dec. 1, Turkish Interior Minister Helmi Uran told the National Assembly 2,919 persons had been killed, 1,084 seriously injured and 3,321 buildings destroyed. Six days later a new quake killed an estimated 550 persons and destroyed 12 villages.

Last June 21 a quake in the northwest part of Anatolia province killed thousands in the City of Andapazari.

In November, 1939, Anatolia had a violent quake that killed 30,000. The sufferings of the population were intensified by floods and blizzards.

More than 1,000 persons were killed in quakes in July, 1940, and December, 1942.

James was feted last week upon his conclusion of 52 years' service.

Japs Bayonet Wounded U.S. Soldiers In Ambush Attack on New Georgia

New York, Feb. 1 (AP) — Japanese laughed deliriously as they bayonetted wounded American soldiers in an ambush attack on New Georgia Island last July, J. Norman Lodge, Associated Press war correspondent, wrote in a story from there last July which inspired one of the first atrocity posters printed by the army in this war. Lodge has returned to the United States.

Distribution of the posters among factories throughout the country was begun today.

The story said a force of 300 Japs broke through the Munda trail and attacked a litter convoy along the Bairoko River near what formerly was a frontline of foxholes. Eyewitnesses estimated 20 out of the 40 litter cases were killed.

A detail of 25 Americans guarding a waterhole on the trail had received word of the Jap advance and rushed to the aid of the convoy. Lieut. Nicholas T. Kliebert, who had charge of the detail, gave Lodge this account of the attack:

"The Japs who got through to one of our littler cases propped the man against a tree and five Japs took turns bayonetting him. I got three of them. Several times we saw Japs pull blankets off litter cases and then line up and take turns macheting them.

"They cut one of the poor lads from the top of his head to his feet, meanwhile laughing deliriously. They shot him through the head.

"We couldn't stand that, so we let the oncoming hordes alone and turned the now cooled-off rifles into the Japs among our wounded and killed six of them. But the others kept up their dirty work.

"One of them evidently was an officer for he had a sword. Using both hands, he raised the weapon overhead to strike one of our men. In doing so he cleaved the head off one of his own men, who was standing behind him.

"By this time, other Japs had got into the foxhole area and were dumping our wounded off the litters which they used to carry back their own wounded.

"Five more of our boys, now freed from the job of taking back the wounded, dashed in swinging their bayonets and knives. Many Japs fell dead, but only after they had hacked to death a number of litter cases, including officers."

City Is Important Station on Rail Line to Reval

Next Big Town Is Narva in Estonia Fourteen Miles West Of Kingisepp

NAZIS FLEE IN DISORDER

London, Feb. 1—(CP)—The Red army has captured Kingisepp, Moscow announced tonight.

Kingisepp (Yamburg) is a Russian frontier station on the pre-war Estonia border and the last German bastion before Estonia. It is some five miles east of the actual border line and 14 miles from Narva, next important Red army objective.

It is a major rail station on the line to Reval, capital of German-occupied Estonia.

The capture by Gen. Leonid A. Govorov's Leningrad armies was announced in a special order of the day from Marshal Premier Joseph Stalin who called the town "an important strongpoint in German defences in the Narva direction."

It was taken by "a skilful outflanking manoeuvre," Stalin said. He ordered a victory salute of 12 salvoes from 124 Moscow guns in celebration.

Moscow, Feb. 1 — (AP) — The fall of Kingisepp, eight miles from Estonia and last eastern outpost of German defences to the Baltic, was expected any hour today as the Red Army fought from house to house.

Lt.-Col. Nikolai Denisov with the army in the north reported in Red Star that "our troops are capturing one house after another. The Russians were across the Luga River in several places and this meant there was no natural defence barrier between them and the big town of Narva, 14 miles west of Kingisepp."

The Russians were giving the Germans a terrible beating as they drove them from a huge area between lakes Ilmen and Peipus.

"The last days of the Leningrad front battles are characterized by the pursuit in all directions of the defeated enemy," Denisov reported.

He told how fast Soviet mobile units threatened the German flanks and rear as the Nazis fell back, sometimes running to avoid encirclement.

The Russians were slowed by a thaw west and southwest of Novgorod, the army newspaper said. A tank battalion was said to have captured the entire staff of a German artillery regiment in the region.

Meantime other Govorov forces farther south, swinging down the highway and railway to Luga, were within 31 miles of a junction with Gen. K. A. Meretskov's army. This pincers movement already had cut off disorganized groups of Germans in lakes and forests to the east.

Churchill Declines To Express View When War Will End

London, Feb. 1—(CP)— Prime Minister Churchill declined to express an opinion in the House of Commons today as to when the war might end.

George Mathers, Labor, asked Mr. Churchill if he could yet state "the principle which would be applied in determining the date of the end of the war or cessation of hostilities, as at that date or a fixed period there after certain wartime agreements come to an end."

Amid Laughter, Mr. Churchill replied: "No doubt at some date hostilities will cease in the different theatres of war.

"It is not for me to state what principles the courts would apply in construing the terms of agreement nor am I prepared at the present time to make any statement which will proceed in determining any formal date on which the war will be deemed to be concluded."

Chetniks, Nazis Defeated By Partisan Forces

London, Feb. 1 —(CP)— Yugoslav Partisan troops have defeated a mixed force of Germans and Chetniks near the towns of Andrijevica and Berane in Montenegro not far from the Albanian frontier, Marshal Josip Broz (Tito) reported today.

Eighty enemy troops were killed and 110 wounded in the Montenegrin fighting, Tito reported in his communique, broadcast by the Free Yugoslav radio.

Partisans are on the offensive in eastern, central and western Bosnia, Tito added, and a strong German attack has been thrown back near the town of Travnik, 45 miles northwest of Sarajevo.

Fierce but apparently indecisive battles were being fought in Slaavonia and the Lika Province of Croatia, it was reported.

Gigantic Fires Still Raging In German Capital

Stockholm, Feb. 1 —(AP)— Allied bombs now have brought death and destruction into every quarter of Berlin, a Swedish correspondent in the Nazi capital said today.

"No description can tell you what happened in Berlin during the last few raids," the correspondent said in a telephoned dispatch to the Stockholm newspaper Dagens Nyheter.

"Gigantic fires in uncounted houses look like great stoves lighting up the whole sky," he declared. "There is not a single quarter any more that has been spared."

The reporter telephoned his story from Berlin early today after communications had been severed for hours.

"In these new raids thousands of people lost their homes," he asserted. "Fires are so great and numerous it takes several days to extinguish them. A great number of people are buried in cellars and many are saved after several days or not at all."

SUM OF MONEY STOLEN FROM BEAUTY PARLOR

Gaining entrance by means of crawling through the door transom, burglars entered the premise of the Cole Beauty Parlor, situated in the Kresge Building, and stole $14.70 in cash, police were informed.

Attempts to force the main door were in evidence, but the lock held securely. Later the marauders forced the transom and crawled through it to gain entrance. The money was stolen from a cash drawer, police were informed. Police theory is that a small person must have completed the burglary, as a larger person would have experienced difficulty in getting through the small transom.

APPOINTED DELEGATES TO ASSOC. MEETING

J. C. Sills of West Huntingdon and John McCaffrey will be the official delegates from Hastings county to the annual meeting of the Ontario Crop Improvement Association to be held in Toronto the first three days of next week, it has been announced by H. Lynn Fair, agricultural representative. Ontario farmers have been asked to produce more food in 1944 and with this thought in mind every effort has been put forth to bring up for discussion at the meeting crop and food production problems under present wartime conditions.

Speakers at the meeting will include Honorable George A. Drew, premier of Ontario, who has recently returned from Britain; W. R. Reek, deputy minister of agriculture, and seed growing and soil conservation experts. Forty-nine branches of the Association throughout the province will send delegates.

SMALL GIRL ESCAPES INJURY WHEN HIT BY CAR DURING STORM

Monday afternoon's blizzard-like snowstorm was attributed to two minor motor accidents that occurred on city streets. Late in the afternoon a motor car driven by Ralph Ackerman R.R. No. 7, Belleville, was in collision with another automobile driven by Wm. Tebworth, 46 Geddes Street, was approaching the north entrance to the upper bridge as Ackerman was making a lefthand turn off the bridge. Fender damage resulted and the principals reported the incident at the police station.

Later a small girl ran out in front of a motor car on Station Street, and was knocked down. The driver of the automobile, Percy E. Kerr, 307 Bleecker Ave., reported the accident to police headquarters and stated it was snowing hard at the time and apparently the little girl did not see the approaching vehicle. She was not seriously injured, the driver told police.

Several Soldiers From the County Among Casualties

Picton, Feb. 1 — Several more Prince Edward County men are among recent casualties in Italy, according to official notices received by the families.

Pte. Clayton Young of Consecon has been killed in action; Pte. E. R. Langstaff, formerly of Mt. View, is missing; Pte. Peter Cockburn, Bloomfield is missing, Pte. Kenneth Watkins of Cressy has been wounded a second time.

Pte. Young was a native of Consecon village, where his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Freeman French, reside. His wife resides in Birmingham, England.

In a letter from Staff Sgt. Ashley Kirkey, Battalion Headquarters, Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment, it is revealed that Pte. Young met death at the same time as Sgt. Charles Read of Northport, an unnamed Medical Officer of Health. They were standing by a truck when a shell landed in their midst, killing all three instantly. Sgt. Kirkey stated "Pte. Young was loved and admired by all the battalion. Never once did he fail to go forward and do his job. His devotion to duty was an inspiration to all ranks. Faithfulness to duty and untiring energy earned him the highest, possible, praise."

Pte. P. D. Cockburn, who was wounded Jan. 18, was a member of the Perth regiment. He enlisted at Peterboro in May 1943 and was in England six months later. His parents are Mr. and Mrs. William Cockburn, Bloomfield.

Pte. E. R. Langstaff, missing, has been mentioned in newspaper stories for outstanding work. His mother resides near Belleville. The family formerly lived at Mt. View. His brother, Flight Lieut. W. C. Langstaff, R. C. A. F., is holder of the D. F. C. and Bar and recently returned to Canada. He enlisted at Picton in 1939 and went overseas the same year. His wife is engaged in war work in Peterboro.

Pte. Oswald Milner, son of Arthur Milner, earlier reported wounded, suffered a shell wound penetrating the left knee and right wrist, a message yesterday advised. He had been overseas with H. P. E. R. since 1939 and was previously wounded in Sicily. His mother died here a week ago.

Pte. Kenneth Watkins, son of Donley Watkins, Cressy, suffered a shell wound in the right hand. He had also been wounded in Sicily as was his brother, Pte. George Watkins. A sister, Ella is a member of the C. W. A. C.

Children Use Hills For Sleigh Riding Despite the Danger

The tempation of Monday's first heavy snowfall of the year was too great for young Belleville as caution was tossed to the winds as children gave vent to their feelings in welcoming the falling snow. Hand sleighs were pressed into service as the exuberance of childhood was unconfined in the excitement of sleigh riding down hill.

However, this practice might have proven dangerous during Monday's blinding snowstorm as it was impossible for motorists to see any great distance and visibility was limited. Police were called to Albion Street where children were riding hand sleighs down the street hill. Several narrowly escaped being hit by passing motor vehicles until police were notified of the danger and cleared the hill. Unfortunately Belleville had no tobbogan slide or separate hills where children may enjoy winter sports.

On Catherine Street the falling snow proved tempting in another light when a snowball was thrown through a door window at 75 Catherine Street. When police arrived to investigate, however, there was no sign of the guilty culprits.

Council Approves Motion To Spend $1,500 on City Survey For Sewage Disposal Plant

Resolution Asking Utilities to Provide the Money Defeated

OTHER BUSINESS

A motion from the Post-War Planning Commission to hire Gore and Storrie, to make a survey of the sewage system of Belleville was approved by the city council at their meeting on Monday night. It was shown that the survey will not exceed $1,500 and when this survey is completed the council will be in a better position to consider the next move with respect to erecting a sewage disposal plant as a post-war project.

The Notice of Motion introduced by Ald. Frank Follwell at the last regular meeting of the City Council, requesting that the Public Utilities Commission provide $1,500 to make a survey of the city's sewers in anticipation of erecting a sewage disposal plant in this city was defeated by the members on Monday evening, when the regular meeting of the council was held. Aldermen Follwell, Pringle and Butler voted for the motion, while Aldermen Wilbur, Chamberlain, Woodley, Allin, Harvey, McDougall, Trudeau, Clapp, Armstrong, Clarke and the Mayor voted against. Considerable business was transacted by the members with many of the motions requiring little discussion as they had been fully dealt with in committee before being brought to the floor of the council.

In speaking to the motion Ald. McDougall thought it would be very unfair to present this request to the Utilities because he could not see why the Utilities should make the survey. "I don't think they could legitimately make the charge for this work and I think the request would stir up friction between the council and the Utilities and that is something we as a council wish to avoid," said Ald. McDougall.

Speaks to Own Motion.

Ald. Follwell in speaking to his own motion stated there was nothing unfair in the request at all. "If the Utilities want to slow cooperation it would be a nice gesture on their part to take over this survey" said the Alderman. "It could be asked, where will the money come from in the Utilities to make this survey and I can answer I don't know but I do know, that the Commission has loaned the gas department of the Utilities approximately $10,000 and if they can loan money from one utility to another surely they can find $1,500 to make this survey."

Ald. Armstrong: "The sewage disposal plant may not be placed with the Utilities Commission after it is completed. The people will have to vote on that question. Whatever expenses are incurred in making the survey and drawing plans should be borne by the council."

Ald. Butler: "I believe the work must be started by the municipality but I see no reason why the Utilities can't lend the money."

Ald. Pringle: "The council can make the water users pay for the sewage disposal plant according to information received at Toronto."

Ald. Clapp: "I think it is our responsibility to make the survey and if we proceed with the work to pay for the plans and the erection of the plant and issue the debentures for the same what is done with the plant as to its management and direction after that is another question that possibly the people might decide."

City Should Pay For Survey Claim

Ald. Chamberlain: "All the preliminaries should be paid for by the city and the erection of the plant should be by the vote of the people."

Ald. Clarke: "The Public Utilities Commission does not figure in this matter at all and I think it would be an imposition to ask them to supply the money. If we want a survey let the council pay for it."

Mayor Rollins: "I think the motion is premature but if it is passed I will certainly present it to the Commission." The question was called and the vote recorded as given above.

Ald. Harvey objected to the amount of expenses incurred by the Committee, that visited Toronto with respect to Post-War planning, stating he thought an itemized account should be given to council and that only railway fare, hotel lodging and meals should be included in the expenses. The members of the delegation defended the account, which was for an amount of $65. Ald. McDougall was going to Toronto at the time on his own business and was driving up and the delegation went with him and it was decided that he should be recompensed for the use of his car to the amount of $10, which was included in the $65 account. The Alderman at the meeting last night stated that he had redeposited the amount to the treasurer and which the Aldermen thought unfair.

Survey Street Lighting.

Aldermen Follwell and Clapp will make a survey of the city street lighting system and prepare plans and recommendations for improved lighting and present their report at the earliest opportunity. The Post-War Planning Commission will consider the possibility of having the Department of Marine extend the east pier of the present government dock as a post war proposition, this to work in with our system of reclaiming land along the water front, which will make acres available for industrial sites providing additional revenues for the Department and sites requiring rail and water transportation. The Chairman of the Harbor Commission is a member of the planning committee and can instruct the committee on the merits of the recommendation. The council approved the motion of the Post-War Planning Commission with respect to the esplanade and also added a member to the commission from the Board of Health and the Canadian Legion.

J. M. Wood was permitted to erect a sign on North Front Street at Evans St. under the supervision of the City Engineer the ground to be leased to the applicant at $1 a year. The council appointed a committee to go into the question of accident insurance for the public works employees and report back to council. The committee named were Aldermen McDougall, Armstrong, Harvey and the city comptroller.

Repairs For Sweeper Ordered.

Repairs amounting to $282.90 were ordered for the city sweeper to put it in working order for the coming season. Mr. J. B. Boyce, Orliff Lloyd, Clare B. Morgan, J. O. Herity, Aldermen H. J. Allin, R. A. Pringle, chairman of industries, W. L. McDougall and Mayor Rollins was named as the Industrial Commission for the coming year. Gerald Vance was granted the use of some property on Fahey Street for a riding stable and to keep a number of horses. Alderman Clarke and H. D. Bateman city comptroller, were authorized to appear before the Public Utilities Commission regarding the amount, which may be included as revenue from the water works department in the 1944 estimates and they are authorized to approve any agreement made by the commission and this council as representatives of the city council.

To Install Lines.

Two new telephone lines will be placed on the main floor of the city hall to accommodate the city treasurer and comptroller, while on the second floor two lines will feed the city clerk's office and that of the city engineer. A number of requests were received from organized bodies in the city and they were all referred to the committee on estimates for action. These included a grant for the Kiwanis centre, a grant for the Kinsmen "Fag" fund, a petition of the firemen for an increase in wages of $102 per year per man, a request of the Public Utilities Commission to meet the council on Monday night next with respect to the debt of the gas works, a request of Minerva Chapter to hold a tag day, the request of the Canadian Legion to hold a tag day. The city engineer was granted a few days leave of absence from duty to go to Toronto to write an examination on land surveying.

A petition was received from the druggists of the city to amend the closing by-law so that all drug stores will be closed from 8 p.m. until 7 a.m. on Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday and on Saturday from 10.30 p.m. until midnight from January 1st to November 30th. The clerk was instructed to check the petition and if found correct to order the amending clause in the by-law.

Inquiries Answered.

Under the heading of inquiries Ald. Allin inquired as to the cause of the shut-down in water on Saturday from 9.30 a.m. to 2.30 p.m. of the same day stating, that the war industries of Belleville were badly handicapped by the shut-down. Mayor Rollins stated he was informed that the shut-down was unavoidable. "I understand when they got to the seat of the trouble the work of the morning was entirely wasted and another approach had to be made", said Mayor Rollins. Ald. Allin, "I understand the trouble was just a four-inch valve and that they had to go to Trenton to get it. The Mayor promised a full report.

Ald. Follwell: "What about the wood situation in the city?"

Mayor Rollins: "It is nearly all on hand at present."

Ald. Clarke: "Is it permissible for the bus drivers to smoke, when there are signs up prohibiting smoking?"

Mayor Rollins: "Probably due to war conditions."

Ald. Clapp: "We have no jurisdiction. Mr. Rawson owns the bus. There were no motions and no by-laws and the council adjourned. All members were present.

Rotary Provides Treatment for Six Crippled Children Since Last July

That despite the pressure of wartime service duties which call for added hours of work and effort on the part of its individual members, the Belleville Rotary Club is not forgetting its civilian welfare activities was indicated at their regular weekly luncheon meeting on Monday when Chas. J. Symons, chairmen, Crippled Children's Committee, gave a brief report of his committee's activities.

During the past week, two Belleville or Belleville district children suffering from paralysis have been taken to Toronto hospital at the expense of the Belleville Rotary Club and are now receiving the best of care and treatments which it is hoped will one day restore them to normal health. These two cases have been a boy two-and-one-half years of age and the other a young girl, 13 years old. Their chances of complete recovery from the dread paralysis are being brightened through welfare activities of the local Rotary Club.

38 Have Tonsils Removed.

But that is not the complete story of such community service being rendered by the local club, it was later revealed by Mr. Symons. Since the beginning of the current Rotary fiscal year starting July 1st, six children have been afforded treatment through the club's Crippled Children's Fund, while during the last few weeks of the old year a total of 38 children had their tonsils removed at Belleville General Hospital at the expense of the club.

Further elaborating on the work of his committee Mr. Symons reported 18 local children had received gifts from the Club at Christmas time. He personally thanked Mr. J. B. Boyce for assistance in the delivery of these parcels, and Mr. and Mrs. Art Francis for books and games supplied.

Greek Vice-Consul Speaker.

Guest speaker at the meeting was Deputy Vice-Consul for Greece in Canada, Mr. George D. Vlassis, M.A., who delivered an inspiring address on the part which the people of his native land had played in frustrating Nazi efforts toward world domination. Mr. Vlassis was capably introduced by Dr. Rev. James Semple, with club appreciation being expresseed by Rotarian "Bill" Morrison.

In introducing the guest speaker, Dr. Semple digressed briefly to ask for club support in the forthcoming drive for funds to assist in the purchase of comforts for the Corvette "Belleville' which is to be launched in the Spring. He intimated the needed comforts to be supplied the ship from Belleville would cost in the neighborhood of $3,000 and urged the fullest cooperation from club members and from all local residents.

Secretary of the Club, "Pink" Pinkston acted as chairman for the meeting in the absence of President Jack Deacon and during the course of the meeting asked for volunteers to provide transportation for the Belleville Municipal Band which on Feb 7th will stage a concert in Napanee for war charity. The offer of the use of ten cars was almost immediately forthcoming. Brief exerpts from the Governor's letter were read by Chairman Pinkston indicating club activities in other centres.

Quite a number of guests were present at the meeting, being introduced by Harry Ackerman and the club welcome being expressed by Jamieson Bone. Howard Clarke expressed the club's congratulation to Mr. Clare Morgan on his being elected as president of the Chamber of Commerce. Leo Riggs acted in his usual role as pianist.

22-Year Perfect Attendance Record Is Still Intact

That it takes more than a broken arm and a fractured ankle to spoil a 22-year perfect attendance record at Rotary was indicated at the local Rotary Club luncheon Monday when Mr. Ed. Simmons, Trenton druggist, turned up at the meeting with his arm in a sling and his leg in a cast. He broke his arm two weeks ago and his ankle last Friday night but left his hospital bed at Belleville in a wheel chair to attend Rotary meeting.

One of the original charter members of the Trenton Rotary Club when that body was organized almost 22 years ago, Mr. Simmons had never missed a meeting since that time. Two weeks ago he suffered a broken arm while skating and last Friday night broke his ankle when he slipped on the slippery pavement while crossing the street in front of his business establishment.

This is the second occasion upon which Mr. Simmons has kept his Rotary meeting attendance record intact through intestinal fortitude. Sixteen years ago while having an appendectomy at Belleville Hospital his attendance record was kept intact by the Trenton Club motoring to Belleville to hold their regular meeting.

Wintry Weather Blankets District

After two months of apparently misplaced spring-like weather Old Man Winter eventually caught up with the Bay of Quinte district Monday night with Tuesday morning presenting itself to residents as a typical winter's day. The thermometer hovered down near the zero mark during the early morning hours and a liberal blanket of snow covered rooftops, trees and other ground.

Practically every kind of weather had been experienced during the previous twenty-four hours with comparatively balmy weather presenting itself Monday morning; later snow began to fall and with gradually lowering temperature the storm blew itself out in a miniature blizzard in the early morning hours. In all approximately three-and-one-half inches of snow fell to add to what remained of Friday's fall. Lowering temperature dried the snow and small drifts were in evidence on country roads this morning.

Comparison With 1943.

January, 1943, saw 29.1 inches of snow fall in this district as compared with only 6.5 inches during the month just completed—and practically all of this snow fell last Friday and yesterday. Rainfall during January of this year was slightly greater than that of one year ago, .69 inches as compared with .26 inches, but total precipitation was only 1.34 as compared with 3.17 last year. There was precipitation on 21 days as compared with 19 days one year ago.

But the real pay-off was in temperature recordings with a maximum of 45 degrees being experienced while the thermometer dropped below the zero mark on only two occasions. Minimum temperature recorded was 3.5 below zero. In January, 1943, there were 15 days of zero weather with the thermometer dropping to 21.5 below for the coldest. Against this the top reading was 38 degrees.

The War Today—
Hitler Unable to Seize Initiative In Any Big-Scale Operation

(By DeWITT MacKENZIE)
(Associated Press War Analyst)

With Germany undergoing a tornado of bombing from the west, and her thousand-mile battle line in Russia being ripped and smashed back by the Red Army, the question naturally arises as to just how much resistance Hitler still has up his sleeve.

This takes on particular significance in view of the great assault now in process against the Marshall Islands, since that is merely a preliminary to the all-out offensive which must await the surrender of Hitler. Thus his strength is the key to the war.

We can say at once that Hitler's defensive strength still is great. His offensive strength, however, no longer is sufficient for him to seize the initiative from the Allies in any big-scale operation the way things now stand.

The reason the Allies haven't invaded Europe yet is because they only now are acquiring the necessary equipment for the job, owing to being caught unprepared at the outset of the war. Allied strength is mounting by leaps and bounds, while German striking-power is going down rapidly.

We shan't know Hitler's exact strength until we get an army of invasion ashore in Western Europe and put him under pressure from two sides. That's the only gauge by which we can measure his power. So long as France is uninvaded, the conflict might continue indefinitely.

Even after the German armies have been driven back to defence of their own frontier, they might hold out for a considerable time. Desperation gives added strength. Leningrad, with its vast population of three millions hung on for seventeen months while completely surrounded by Boche and staggering from hunger.

So Hitler's fortress might produce fireworks. However, the comparison with Leningrad isn't exact, for the final attack on the Reich will be spearheaded by the greatest fleet of aircraft ever assembeld. Thus the Nazis will be beset from without and from within. Hitler will be entirely dependent on reserve resources in his own cupboard, which is becoming Mother Hubbardish.

Sgt. E. Bonter,' Chute Cameraman, Tells of Work During Radio Interview

Trenton, (Special.) — Relatives and friends in Trenton were thrilled to hear on the Canadian Broadcasting Company's roundup at 7.45 Monday night the voice of Sergeant Elmer J. Bonter, being interviewed by CBC correspondent, Peter Sterzberg.

Sgt. Bonter enlisted early in the war as a gunner but on arrival in England joined the Paratroops and last fall was reported from London as being one of only two parachute newsreel cameramen in the British and Canadian armies. Elmer was a reporter for the Belleville Ontario Intelligencer and the Toronto Evening Telegram before the war and a [illegible] cameraman.

In his interview with Sterzberg he told of recent review of Canadian parachute troops somewhere in England and of their brilliant accomplishments. Equipment of all description is dropped with the men he said, 'chutes of various colors used for different kinds of equipment and supplies. Asked if his camera equipment was dropped by 'chute he said that he was able to carry all this on his person when he jumped. The only other non-combatant in the unit, he said, was the padre, a man of over 40 born in England but who had lived for some years in Winnipeg.

While a news reporter in Trenton Sgt. Bonter's first big camera assignment was when a cyclone of intense velocity hit the Trenton Air Station doing a considerable amount of damage. This was some years before the war, and he was able to obtain first hand pictures which were used in all the leading papers and magazines across Canada.

He has two sisters, Miss Shirley Bonter, Reg.N., of Belleville General Hospital, and Miss E. Bonter, a munitions instructor in a Hamilton war plant. His father, the late William R. Bonter died last year, while his mother has been dead for some years. Two aunts, the Misses Meta and Mabel Bonter and an uncle, Mr. Gershom Bonter reside in Trenton.

It is regrettable that, although, it is understood, information came to Trenton during the day that Sergt. Bonter would be on the air at 7.45, his relatives were only notified about five minutes before his voice came over the air with the result that they were only able to inform a very few of their friends. Elmer was a great favorite in Trenton and literally hundreds of his friends missed hearing him through the lateness of this message.

Down to Business To Be Watchword Of Major Parties

Prime Minister Opposes Single Foreign Policy Advanced by Halifax

Ottawa, Feb. 1 — (CP) — Watchword of the major parties in parliment appeared to be "down to business" today after their leaders had their say in the House of Commons debate on the Speech from the Throne.

Prime Minister Mackenzie King gave the cue yesterday when he voiced the most positive assurance yet that there will be no general election before 1945, declared he wanted little time wasted, and gave his blessing to moves to put more work in committee instead of on the Commons floor.

From the debate came Mr. King's official view on the recently-raised issue off a single foreign policy for the Empire: he was against it. And he disagreed specifically with the Toronto speech last week by Lord Halifax, British Ambassador to the United States, and the London speech some time ago by Prime Minister Jan Christiaan Smuts of South Africa.

He said both those men thought Britain should be supported by other countries to give her sufficient power to preserve a balance with the other great United Nations powers. Behind their views, he said, lurked the idea of rivalry among the great nations. Canada, between the United States and the Soviet Union, could not support such an idea.

"What we must strive for," Mr. King said, "is close co-operation between those great states themselves and all other like-minded countries."

The idea of a common empire policy "runs counter to the establishment of an effective world security and therefore is opposed to the true interests of the Commonwealth itself."

Disagreement with the Halifax viewpoint was also expressed by M. J. Coldwell, C.C.F. leader. Gordon Graydon, Progressive Conservative House Leader, said his party would not raise a controversial issue "when common sense indicates that every effort must be made to secure a United front in a United Canada in a greater and more powerful British Commonwealth."

Mr. King said it was unfortunate Lord Halifax made his Toronto speech at the time he did, since it tended to divert attention from the winning of the war. He expressed hope the subject would not be debated at length in the House — but he invited other party leaders to state their views and said he was not avoiding the issue.

Apart from a few jibes at the national leader of the Progressive Conservative party, John Bracken, it was a friendly opening of a Throne Speech debate, and also one of the most expeditious on record. Both Mr. King and Mr. Graydon had finished their speeches before the dinner adjournment — 2½ hours for two speeches which in previous years had taken as much as eight.

Mr. King called upon Mr. Bracken to obtain a seat in the House and said the Conservative party had not had a leader in Parliament since 1940. No man who was not elected to parliament, said the Prime Minister, had the right to speak for the Canadian people.

Mr. Coldwell said Mr. Bracken had had ample opportunity to seek a seat in the two by-elections in Western Canada last year.

New Democracy Leader John Blackmore had his own challenge for Mr. Bracken. He asked Mr. Bracken to say whether he stood with the common man or with international finance. Mr. Bracken had once been a friend of the common man, said Mr. Blackmore, but he added that now he was not sure since Mr. Bracken had become Progressive Conservative leader.

Explains New Democracy

New democracy, said Mr. Blackmore, stands for abundance against scarcity, for full production, for distribution on the level of full production, and for the maximum use of Canada's natural resources. To achieve that it would be necessary to have debt-free money.

Maxime Raymond, leader of the Bloc Populaire, was the last of four party leaders to speak. He said he looked upon the Speech from the throne as a preliminary to an election. He condemned mutual aid with its gifts to Britain, a country richer than Canada, and a war effort disproportionate to Canada's means.

Frederic Dorion (Ind.-Cjlevoix-Saguenay) urged Canada to send an ambassador to the Vatican and asked the Prime Minister to press for representation of the Pope at the peace conference.

Both Mr. Graydon and Mr. Coldwell accused the liberal government of adopting parts of their parties' programs. Mr. Graydon spoke particularly of the throne speech proposal to establish a floor under farm prices—a development which he said came from Mr. Bracken's Lethbridge, Alta., speech on agricultural policy. Mr. Coldwell said the social security proposals in the speech came from the C. C. F. program but that the government had not gone so far as to adopt the economic base which would make social security possible.

Bank Act Up For Revision

With the Bank Act up for revision this year, Mr. Coldwell urged public ownership and control of all banks. He said the government should retain the war plants it had created and use them to produce peacetime goods.

Parliament should announce the sum it was prepared to spend in the past-war period — "say $5,000,000,000" — provide full pay and allowance for service personnel until they are absorbed in civilian employment, spend $500,000,000 a year on housing, develop rural electrification and extend scientific research.

Mr. Coldwell and Mr. Graydon both urged the government to put its proposed social security measures on the statute books this session.

Mr. Graydon, who spoke before the Prime Minister's statement on the election, said "the vague generalization" in the Throne Speech would accomplish nothing. Mr. Coldwell said the measures proposed were "not firm commitments" and the government should put them into effect before going to the country.

Amendment Proposed

Mr. Graydon proposed an amendment and Mr. Coldwell a sub-amendment to the address in reply to the Speech from the Throne.

The Progressive Conservative motion expressed regret the government had failed to implement promises made regarding men and women on demobilization, to provide adequate measures for agriculture, to establish a national labor code, to correct coercive and restrictive clauses in the wages control order, to lessen bureaucratic controls and to halt infringement of provincial rights.

The C.C.F. motion expressed regret at the government's failure to "oppose the fundamental social changes and economic planning which alone can hasten the winning of the war and make possible the establishment of a post-war Canada capable of providing full employment and complete social security."

To speed house deliberations, Mr. King suggested Wednesday — now a half-day for the House — might become a day devoted to work of House committees, with no House sittings. More discussion might be conducted in committee and the time of the House saved.

Dewey Most Likely Republican Candidate for President in '44

By CLYDE BLACKBURN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Washington, Feb. 1 — (CP) — It now would appear that young Tom Dewey may be the Republican candidate for President next June if the G.O.P. has to send a Commando squad down the Mohawk Valley to Albany and drag him to the Chicago convention by main force.

Healthy, elegant and assured, the 42-year-old Governor of New York, who barely missed the G.O.P. nomination at Philadelphia in 1940 when delegates suddenly decided Wendell Willkie was most likely to win for them, had become the nation's political mystery man.

Amid a furore of growing demands that he step in as candidate for the Republican nomination he smilingly points to his declaration that he would not be that kind of a candidate.

But there seems no record of his having declared against accepting nomination if it were thrust upon him — and a growing volume of opinion believes that is what will happen.

Last fall Wendell Willkie let it be known he was available for the party's presidential purposes and at first there seemed a tendency to accept him as logical candidate, even though he was beaten in 1940.

But a Republican move away from Willkie and toward Dewey is gaining momentum even in the face of the latter's apparent indifference.

Trend Will Grow

This Dewey trend will grow, says the Washington Post's Edward Folliard, "unless some of the smartest politicians in the G. O. P. have lost all their sagacity."

Republicans, apparently convinced that they will have to beat Roosevelt if they are to win this year, seemed determined to put up New York's famous "gang-buster" against the greatest vote-getter of all time.

But Dewey, busy and happy at his task of running New York State —next to the presidency, the biggest political job in America — is as sphynx-like as Roosevelt was in 1940 and promises to be in 1944.

From many points of view Dewey appears to be in the best possible position for the Republican nomination — a position he might never hold again, and there seems little doubt that when the Republican convention in Chicago is over next June it will be Dewey who will carry into the presidential campaign the hopes of the G.O.P.

Crown Life Policies Total $308,167,791

Toronto.— Sturdy strength and notable growth of membership were reported last week at the annual meeting of the Crown Life Insurance Co., by Hon. G. Howard Ferguson, president. Crown Life policies in force now number some 131,000 for a total amount of $308,167,791. This figure takes no account of a large number of the annuities in force. Mr. Ferguson said all portions of the territory where the company operated have contributed to the increased business.

Premiums received amounted to $9,512,888, deposits on behalf of policyholders $1,193,561, and investment income $2,530,002, making total receipts $13,236,452.

Policy reserves stood at $51,123,639 at the close of 1943, and free surplus carried forward was $2,393,429.

British House Will Not Comment

London, Feb. 1 (CP. Cable) — Prime Minister Churchill today told the House of Commons that Viscount Halifax whose recent speech in Toronto about co-operation in the British Commonwealth touched off widespread discussion "was not making any pronouncement on behalf of the (United Kingdom) government."

The Prime Minister added, however, that Lord Halifax's speech "like those of other distinguished figures on this subject was a valuable contribution to study of the subject."

Answering Edgar Granville, Independent, who asked if the Prime Minister was satisfied that the present method of consultation between Dominion leaders was adequate for day to day co-operation on Commonwealth policy, Mr. Churchill said the proper occasion for consideration of such issues is a meeting among the Empire Prime Ministers.

"It is hoped to hold such a meeting at an early date," he added.

The Prime Minister said it was a matter for the leaders of the House when Emmanuel Shinwell asked, "in view of the speeches by Lord Halifax and other distinguished persons would it not be desirable and strengthen the hands of the Prime Minister if the House did debate the matter and make a pronouncement?"

Tokyo Says Heavy Allied Forces Attack Marshalls

New York, Feb. 1 —(AP)— The Tokyo radio told the Japanese people tonight a "superior enemy force has been raiding the Marshall Islands group" since Sunday morning but that details of the fighting are "not known to us at this time."

The broadcast, intended for domestic consumption and recorded by the United States foreign broadcast intelligence service, said:- "It has been made clear to us that enemy has taken a new offensive operation against our Marshall Islands group" and that "we can surmise the enemy has raided our island with a task force on a large scale."

While describing the attacking force as "superior," the broadcast assured Japanese audiences that "our Army and Navy forces garrisoned on the islands have intercepted and now are engaged in fierce fighting."

Wording of this announcement was similar to that of an English language broadcast which the Tokyo radio beamed to North America yesterday morning.

Another Tokyo broadcast last night described the attack as "centring around aircraft carriers" and spoke of it as the "second phase" of a large operation.

The War Today—
Hitler Unable to Seize Initiative In Any Big-Scale Operation

(By DeWITT MacKENZIE)
(Associated Press War Analyst)

With Germany undergoing a tornado of bombing from the west, and her thousand-mile battle line in Russia being ripped and smashed back by the Red Army, the question naturally arises as to just how much resistance Hitler still has up his sleeve.

This takes on particular significance in view of the great assault now in process against the Marshall Islands, since that is merely a preliminary to the all-out offensive which must await the surrender of Hitler. Thus his strength is the key to the war.

We can say at once that Hitler's defensive strength still is great. His offensive strength, however, no longer is sufficient for him to seize the initiative from the Allies in any big-scale operation the way things now stand.

The reason the Allies haven't invaded Europe yet is because they only now are acquiring the necessary equipment for the job, owing to being caught unprepared at the outset of the war. Allied strength is mounting by leaps and bounds, while German striking-power is going down rapidly.

We shan't know Hitler's exact strength until we get an army of invasion ashore in Western Europe and put him under pressure from two sides. That's the only gauge by which we can measure his power. So long as France is uninvaded, the conflict might continue indefinitely.

Even after the German armies have been driven back to defence of their own frontier, they might hold out for a considerable time. Desperation gives added strength. Leningrad, with its vast population of three million hung on for seventeen months while completely surrounded by Boche and staggering from hunger.

So Hitler's fortress might produce fireworks. However, the comparison with Leningrad isn't exact, for the final attack on the Reich will be spearheaded by the greatest fleet of aircraft ever assembeld. Thus the Nazis will be beset from without and from within. Hitler will be entirely dependent on reserve resources in his own cupboard, which is becoming Mother Hubbardish.

Trenton and District

Sgt. E. Bonter,' Chute Cameraman, Tells of Work During Radio Interview

Trenton, (Special.) — Relatives and friends in Trenton were thrilled to hear on the Canadian Broadcasting Company's roundup at 7.45 Monday night the voice of Sergeant Elmer R. Bonter, being interviewed by CBC correspondent, Peter Sterzberg.

Sgt. Bonter enlisted early in the war as a gunner but on arrival in England joined the Paratroops and last fall was reported from London as being one of only two parachute newsreel cameramen in the British and Canadian armies. Elmer was a reporter for the Belleville Ontario Intelligencer and the Toronto Evening Telegram before the war and a keen cameraman.

In his interview with Sterzberg he told of a recent review of Canadian parachute troops somewhere in England and of their brilliant accomplishments. Equipment of all descriptions is dropped with the men he said, 'chutes of various colors used for different kinds of equipment and supplies. Asked if his camera equipment was dropped by 'chute he said that he was able to carry all his on his person when he jumped. The only other non-combatant in the unit, he said, was the padre, a man of over 40 born in England but who had lived for some years in Winnipeg.

While a news reporter in Trenton Sgt. Bonter's first big camera assignment was when a cyclone of intense velocity hit the Trenton Air Station doing a considerable amount of damage. This was some years before the war, and he was able to obtain first hand pictures which were used in all the leading papers and magazines across Canada.

He has two sisters, Miss Shirley Bonter, Reg.N., of Belleville General Hospital, and Miss E. Bonter, a munitions instructor in a Hamilton war plant. His father, the late William R. Bonter died last year, while his mother has been dead for some years. Two aunts, the Misses Meta and Mabel Bonter and an uncle, Mr. Gershom Bonter reside in Trenton.

It is regrettable that, although, it is understood, information came to Trenton during the day that Sergt. Bonter would be on the air at 7.45, his relatives were only notified about five minutes before his voice came over the air with the result that they were only able to inform a very few of their friends. Elmer was a great favorite in Trenton and literally hundreds of his friends missed hearing him through the lateness of this message.

Down to Business To Be Watchword Of Major Parties

Prime Minister Opposes Single Foreign Policy Advanced by Halifax

Ottawa, Feb. 1 — (CP) — Watchword of the major parties in parliment appeared to be "down to business" today after their leaders had their say in the House of Commons debate on the Speech from the Throne.

Prime Minister Mackenzie King gave the cue yesterday when he voiced the most positive assurance yet that there will be no general election before 1945, declared he wanted little time wasted, and gave his blessing to moves to put more work in committee instead of on the Commons floor.

From the debate came Mr. King's official view on the recently-raised issue off a single foreign policy for the Empire: he was against it. And he disagreed specifically with the Toronto speech last week by Lord Halifax, British Ambassador to the United States, and the London speech some time ago by Prime Minister Jan Christiaan Smuts of South Africa.

He said both those men thought Britain should be supported by other countries to give her sufficient power to preserve a balance with the other great United Nations powers. Behind their views, he said, lurked the idea of rivalry among the great nations. Canada, between the United States and the Soviet Union, could not support such an idea.

"What we must strive for," Mr. King said, "is close co-operation between those great states themselves and all other like-minded countries."

The idea of a common empire policy "runs counter to the establishment of an effective world security and therefore is opposed to the true interests of the Commonwealth itself."

Disagreement with the Halifax viewpoint was also expressed by M. J. Coldwell, C.C.F. leader. Gordon Graydon, Progressive Conservative House Leader, said his party would not raise a controversial issue "when common sense indicates that every effort must be made to secure a United front in a United Canada in a greater and more powerful British Commonwealth."

Mr. King said it was unfortunate Lord Halifax made his Toronto speech at the time he did, since it tended to divert attention from the winning of the war. He expressed hope the subject would not be debated at length in the House — but he invited other party leaders to state their views and said he was not avoiding the issue.

On the Right Side

Residents of Belleville who are Greek by birth must have an intense satisfaction in the evidence of high regard in which their countrymen in faraway Greece and they themselves are held in this time of war. The service in Bridge Street United Church on Sunday night was an example of that attitude of Belleville people who like Canadians everywhere cannot resist the opportunity to show this gratitude and respect to the brave Greeks who protected by their faith and a small army against the brutal combined armed might of Germany and Italy, took their destiny in their hands and trusting in the democratic nations stood in the path of Hitler and Mussolini and dared all. This step brought occupation by the aggressor but they preserved their honor and lived up to the highest instincts of their great forbears who two and a half thousand years ago created the Greek civilization which will influence the minds and hearts of ages yet unborn to the farthest limits of time.

The blood of the ancient Hellenes or Grecians tells. The modern Greeks by their sacrifice, according to Deputy Vice-Consul George H. Vlassis, who spoke at the service in aid of the Greek relief fund, altered the course of the war, upset Germany's timetable of aggression by a month and a half and made possible the loss to Germany of the Battle of Moscow. Greeks at home and abroad have the proud knowledge that they helped to knock out the Axis puppet Mussolini and bring about the collapse of Italian Fascism and have co-operated in the Allied victory to come.

"Never has Greece forgotten for a moment her mission, never has she betrayed her trusted place. She has always stood a vigilant sentry of the honor of man as honor is understood by God, has fought for the preservation and the spreading of the light of civilization which she first gave to the world and has been sacrificed for the creation of a better tomorrow."

Greece, the builder of the Parthenon and the great Hellenic civilization, endures after three thousand years despite despots and invaders. First to emancipate the mind of man, she is still the great liberator by her past and through her present trials.

Maple Syrup and Honey

The new coupon value of "D" preserve coupons recently announced applies to all such "D" coupons as may be in the hands of the consumer on Feb. 3. So ran an announcement of the Wartime Prices Board yesterday in answer to a question whether the recent order increasing the value of the "D" coupons referred only to coupons becoming valid on and after February 3rd or whether the order meant that unused "D" coupons valid before February were to be increased as well. The explanation to the latter is "yes."

For those who have many unused "D" coupons this will mean that they will have an opportunity now to buy considerable maple syrup, for instance, or preserves, or honey. There has lately been some doubt among producers of maple syrup that there might not be enough coupons available for the purchase of maple syrup to buy all that would be offered. The statement of Monday makes it clear that coupons "D", unused before February 3rd., carry the increased values.

The news ought to be good news to producer and to the consumer alike, and is calculated to increase production and set at rest any hesitancy or doubt on the part of the producers. This will permit buying in quantity and should make for a larger production of syrup as assuring a good market.

So from February 3rd until May 31st maple syrup accordingly may be purchased on the basis of one coupon for 40 fluid ounces and "D" coupons unused but valid before that date can be used at the 40 fluid ounce value each until the end of May.

In honey coupon values have been doubled for the same period. A "D" coupon will be good for two pounds of honey. Honey, too, can be bought at the double amount for the coupons which are unused prior to February 3rd, as well as for the coupons becoming valid for February 3rd to May 31st.

Sugar in place of preserves, however, does not increase in value per "D" coupon. Many householders have been using the "D"'s for extra sugar and henceforth that practice may not be so general and popular for the next four months.

Under the recent revision canned fruit coupon values are doubled for the next four months, and likewise jam, marmalade, maple butter and honey butter. A coupon will buy one quart of molasses, double what it will buy up to February 3rd.

Canning Sugar

Under the new regulations holders of ration books wanting preserving and canning sugar will be entitled to ten pounds of sugar by the use of special coupons in the present ration book. The new plan will take the place of the method used last year of estimating the amount of jams and canned goods to be made up and of making application for the required sugar. Those who do not take advantage of the extra sugar for canning and preserving purposes may apply to have the canning sugar coupons exchanged on application for "D" coupons for purchases of honey, jellies, jams and marmalades now rationed.

Considerable choice is allowed consumers which is expected to work out advantageously for consumers' tastes differ. The new method is thought likely to induce more preserving.

The changes in general indicate a better supply situation of the items affected.

Canadians have been generously treated under the rationing plan which has worked out to the mutual advantage of all. With the additional allowances made under the new schedules and the choice of several purchases with certain coupons there will be added variety and a certainty of a good supply of preserves, maple syrup, honey and such.

King Gets Dagger

Haakon, King of Norway, received in London the other day a parcel containing an old and valuable stiletto, with which the sender though the monarch might like to stab one of two persons who have been ursurping his powers under the German army. It will be used as a paper knife. The King, 71 last August, receives many gifts and messages of esteem. From New York a prominent American clubwoman sent marmalade, home made jam and candy, and a box of special cheese. The accompanying letter made it clear that the gift was a token of the admiration of the men and women of the United States for the ruler in exile.

Surgical Glue From Blood

(Newsweek)

The edges of a wound can be glued together with a cement concocted from the patient's own blood, the technical journal Surgery, Gynecology and Obstetrics disclosed recently. The method was devised by a woman surgeon, Dr. Machtel F. Sano of Philadelphia. The glue can be used to make a skin graft patch when the edges of a surface wound won't meet, and 48 hours after they are planted the grafts are as much a part of the body as surrounding, normal skin. Even more vital, the experiments indicate that the new glue can be used to close and patch gaps in such organs as liver and spleen, where large punctures often have been fatal.

EXAMPLE

He noticed that his neighbors' window frames of paint were bare,
The roofs were worn in places and in need of much repair.
And walking home at sundown oft grieving he was moved
By the shabbiness about him which he knew could be improved.

Should he talk to Jim about it? Should he mention it to Joe?
ft he wondered, trudging homeward: Can it be they do not know
What so plainly is apparent? Do they fail their shame to see?
If he talked to them about it would they better try to be?

Then one evening he decided that his roof was needing care,
And his window frames and doorway were of paint extremely bare.
So he went to work upon them; put his place in order trim,
And the neighbors started painting without any word from him.

First the house next door was bettered; then the one across the way;
Then the one upon the corner; none was shabby left to stay,
Till the street entire was bettered. Need the moral here be told?
Men will heed a good example, when to lectures they are cold.

Australian Letter

By J. E. HOLDWORTH
Canadian Press Correspondent)

Sydney, Australia, Feb. 1 (CP Cable)—Australia has completed the first fortnight of meat rationing and for the first time in history there are queues at butcher shops Saturday morning as people seem to have decided to enjoy weekend roasts and let the rest of the week look after itself.

Australians are such large meat-eaters that, although their ration is the most liberal of any rationed country, it upset normal habits. The system resembles the Canadian "group system" and each person over nine years of age gets 1 1-2 to four pounds of meat weekly according to cut. Children under nine receive half the ration.

Coal miners criticize rationing, complaining that because of their peculiar occupation they have not the opportunity of "outside eating."

Meantime Prime Minister John Curtin told state premiers at a Canberra conference that unless coal production in New South Wales showed a substantial advance Australia's whole war capacity would be less this year than last. The Prime Minister said "too much coal was being lost by strikes." The Commonwealth coal commissioner reports miners in every state but New South Wales working satisfactorily.

The manpower shortage is headline news in the papers, the central theme being shortage of men for food production.

Dr. H. V. Evatt, Minister for External Affairs, has announced that by the end of January there would be more than 50 clothing factories established in country towns to provide employment for thousands of country girls. This scheme would enable Australia to supply the ever-growing demands of the Allied and Australian armed forces.

More than 2,500 aircraft have been manufactured in Australia since the beginning of the war and production is to be speeded up this year, the government announces.

Great-West Life Reports Splendid Business Increase

Winnipeg, Man.—Mr. H. W. Manning, vice president and managing director, told the annual meeting of The Great-West Life Assurance Company today that during 1943 still larger numbers of people have turned to the Company for protection and security He pointed out that 30,000 men and women purchased new life insurance and annuities during the year, totalling over $101,000,000. This brings the total amount of policies in force to $759,000,000—graphic evidence of widespread appreciation of the services afforded by the Company.

He referred to the difficulties which people must meet in adhering to a savings program year after year, and through changing circumstances. Nevertheless, only 2 1-2 per cent of the Company's policyholders found it necessary to surrender their policies or allowed them to lapse in 1943.

Over $200,000,000 is now held in trust and invested on behalf of policyholders. This is an increase of over $13,000,000 within the year, every dollar of which went into government bonds and thereby contributed to the wartime financial needs.

The Company enjoyed an exceptionally favorable mortality experience and a lower expense level than for several prior years despite the difficulties of current conditions. The Accident and Health and Group Insurance Departments both provided widely increased coverage during the year.

Insurance Company Well Supervised.

Mr. W. P. Riley, president, in his address said that it is more important than ever before that individuals and nations clearly recognize their responsibilities to plan for and safeguard those things for which our men and women are fighting. He reported that 230 of the Company's employees and representatives are now serving the United Nations on practically every theatre of war, while those who remain at home have also given freely of their time and energy to activities related to the war effort. The Company in 1943 invested over $29,000,000 in war bonds, nearly 50 per cent more than the total premium income.

He urged policyholders to appreciate that, "Each year competent public servants examine all Company records, study policy provisions, regulate and survey investment transactions and analyze balance sheets in minute detail. Their reports are open to all who wish to read them. It is clear that those who advocate government control of the life insurance business are uninformed about the extent to which the business is already supervised and regulated".

In concluding his remarks Mr. Riley said, "We are happy that the confidence of so many in the strength and services of this Company has made possible the record of achievement presented to you today. As we enter upon another year we pledge our maximum effort to bring victory over our enemies and to establish an era marked by neither strife nor regimentation but by voluntary co-operation for the betterment of all".

H. W. Manning, Vice-President and Managing Director of The Great-West Life Assurance Company reported an excellent year to the Company's Annual Meeting in Winnipeg on February 1st.

Canadian Scene A Century Ago

By J. L. G.

As February makes its bow to 1944, and we begin to make preparations for St. Valentine's Day, let us spare a thought for the sentimental episode of the heart that crossed the Atlantic twice. This much-travelled heart belonged to Frontenac, the great Governor of Canada, who died in 1698. The organ was removed, according to his instructions and sent to Paris to his estranged wife in a little silver casket. The Countess de Frontenac, then well over sixty, spurned the tribute. She said that she would have nothing to do with a dead heart, which, living, did not belong to her. . . .Today Frontenac and his restored heart rest under the Basilica, the principal church in Quebec since 1647.

Frontenac was greatly beloved in Canada. One who shared the popular grief at his death said "He was the father of the poor, the protector of the oppressed and a perfect model of virtue and piety".

Do you know the origin of the custom of observing St. Valentine's Day? There is no doubt that the practice of sending valentines goes back to the days of the ancient Romans. The names of young girls were put into a box and drawn by young men. Each man was supposed to present a gift to the maiden who fell to his lot, and to make her his partner while the feast of the Lupercalia was "on". We find a mention of "valeatines" in English and Scotch chronicles as early as 1446. . . .St. Valentine was a bishop of Rome during the third century, and a man famous for his love and charity. His death occured on February 14, 1270.

Ottawa, Feb. 1 — (CP)—A Labor Department spokesman said last night that Canada is "guaranteeing" the United States 3,500 men to cut wood for munitions and pulp, and is allowing the U. S. "leeway" to take care of the turnover in this type of work.

NUGGETS OF KNOWLEDGE

The word "chimney" occurs in the English Bible only once. In the days when the Bible was written chimneys consisted merely of openings in the walls or roofs of houses.

Jericho in Palestine, with about 1,000 inhabitants, is said to be about the lowest town on the earth's surface. It lies 820 feet below sea level.

The fat-tailed sheep of Asia is a good milk-producer, but its wool is of poor quality.

"Shallot," the name of a small onion used widely in flavoring salads and sauces, is derived in a round-about way from a place in Palestine. This type of onion is native to Syria and was once extensively cultivated at Ascalon in the Holy Land. The Romans called Ascalon and the onions raised there "Ascalonia." This was corrupted by the Norman-French into "Escallion," which was twisted by the English into "shallot."

A person burning with curiosity or excited to know the issue of something is said to be "on tenterhooks." The term comes from weaving. Cloth after being woven, is "tentered" or stretched on hooks passed through selvedges.

Despite the fact that St. George had been the patron saint of England for many centuries, there was not an English king named George until 1714.

"Fillet of sole" originally meant a portion of the flatfish known as sole served without bones. "Fillet" literally signifies "little thread." Now "fillet of sole" refers more to the manner of preparation and serving than it does to the species of fish served.

James M. Wayne, of Georgia, is believed to have been the only man ever appointed directly from the House of Representatives to the Supreme Court of the United States. He was appointed by President Jackson in 1835 and served on the court as an associate justice until his death in 1867.

"Boer," as applied to the descendants of the Dutch settlers in South Africa, is often mispronounced. It is the Dutch word for farmer and is correctly pronounced like English "boor," rhyming with "moor," not "door."

GREAT-WEST LIFE Policyholders
BUILD SOUNDLY IN 1943

Policyholders in the Great-West Life shared a notable year in 1943. By their thrift and prudence they made remarkable headway in spite of the many strains of wartime and the unusual demands on their incomes.

1. Their increased savings added more than $13,000,000 to the funds which the Company is holding for them. Over $200,000,000 is now held in trust for 231,000 policyholders.
2. They were joined by 24,500 new policyholders who, along with former policyholders, added $101,000,000 of new protection for themselves and their dependents.
3. They now own policies totalling $759,000,000—an average of $3,286 per policyholder.
4. They bought $29,000,000 of Victory Bonds and U.S. War Bonds through their Company during the one year—representing $125.00 for each policyholder.

To many policyholders, 1943 brought death, retirement or unexpected emergencies, but through their foresight they had provided for these contingencies. Beneficiaries whose homes were saddened during the year received $4,573,000, while living policyholders received $9,189,000—a total of $13,762,000.

A complete report, showing the strong position of the Company, is available. It gives striking evidence of how men and women in Canada and the United States are making financial provision for their own future security.

To overcome this condition, Mrs. Lessard says, "There is only one thing that has brought any comfort or caused the pain to subside. I prepare a very hot foot bath and put two tablespoonsful of mustard into it, having first mixed the mustard to a paste in cold water. This brings me immediate relief and relaxation."

"After this treatment," declares Mrs. Lessard, "sleep comes without any further effort, and I bless mustard for the relief it has brought me."

Many Ways to Use Mustard Remedy

You can use mustard in foot baths, complete baths, poultices or plasters to relieve pain of Neuralgia, Rheumatism, Arthritis, Neuritis, over-tired Muscles, etc.

Tinting the Tresses Can Be Done By the Home Shampooer

Pamela Blake believes in daily care of the hair.

By HELEN FOLLETT

PROPRIETORS of beauty salons report that there is not as much hair dyeing and bleaching going on as usual; women are busy as bees; this does not seem to be the proper time to start a rejuvenating project. But the demand for color rinses has developed into a frenzy. They take only a minute's treatment after the shampoo and the cash customer feels that something has been done to make the old mop look better.

That old timer, the camomile rinse, which Cleopatra probably dunked her queenly head in, is gaining popularity. The home shampooer can use it if she wishes. It puts bright lights on blonde hair, gives character to drab tresses.

Fill a teaball with the dried leaves. Let it steep in a quart of boiling water for half an hour. Use as the final flourish for the shampoo; don't rinse it out. There are no bad results. It does not make as much of a color change as peroxide and, unlike peroxide, it will not dry the shafts or make them brittle. It is a sort of spiritual comfort to the girl with tarnished golden hair who is afraid to undergo a real bleaching transformation.

If one wants something stronger than the camomile, add three tablespoonfuls of peroxide to a quart of water, pour over the head repeatedly. For a decided bleach, it is best to have professional attentions.

The henna pack seems to have gone by the board though men and women who specialize in dyeing and bleaching still use it in combination with chemicals. The henna rinse gives only a suggestion of auburn tints to brown hair. To make it the leaves of the herb are used, not the powder. One ounce of the leaves is covered with boiling water. After standing for ten minutes, the brew is strained, a quart of tepid water is added. It is poured over the hair while tresses are wet from the shampoo.

Honor Mrs. Ponton Who Retires As President of St. John Ambulance Brigade Here

In honor of Mrs. W. N. Ponton, who is retiring from the presidency of the nursing division of the local St. John Ambulance Brigade to go to New York City for an indefinite period, a dinner was arranged for her by the brigade at Dickens' Tea Room on Monday evening. Included in the party were not only members of the original class but also guests in the persons of Col. and Mrs. B. C. Donnan and Dr. J. J. Robertson.

Col. Donnan toasted the King and also expressed his appreciation to Mrs. Ponton for her untiring efforts to build and strengthen the organization to what it is today.

Mrs. Frank Cushing, who succeeds Mrs. Ponton as president, extended her thanks to the past-president for her co-operation in getting the girls out to aid the V.O.N. and the Red Cross at the Blood Donors' Clinic.

Dr. Robertson also thanked Mrs. Ponton and added that whatever he had done to help the brigade was small in comparison to the worthy cause for which his rooms had been donated.

Mr. A. Leslie, head of the men's unit, voiced his appreciation to Mrs. Ponton for her unstinted time and co-operation.

Everyone then retired to the office at 217 Pinnacle St., where the remainder of the evening was spent in practical work and plans for a full season ahead.

Mr. D. J. Batchelor, who has been a member of the brigade for a period of fifty years, but who only recently joined the local unit, gave an account of the inception of the brigade of Jerusalem. He told of how it helped to save many lives and of the necessity of the nursing division to be well versed in its work and fit to render any help in the city in time of a crisis.

Holy Name Society Elects New Officers

On Sunday, January 30, in St. Michael's Academy, the Holy Name Society held its first meeting for the year 1944.

The first item of business was the reading of the treasurer's report for the past year. The report was by far the most outstanding in the history of the organization.

Various business items were then discussed, including the weekly dances, bingo and the various charitable undertakings of the society during the past year.

The election of officers was then held. Rev. Father O'Donnell, representing the director, Monsignor Nicholson, then took the chair. The election was quickly brought to a close for it was moved, seconded and carried that the present executive remain in office for another term. The present executive has held office for five consecutive years.

Discussion on the past successful year and proposed plans for the coming year took up the rest of the afternoon and the meeting closed with the drafting of far reaching plans for the coming year.

Spring Fancy

Two-tone coat.

By VERA WINSTON

THE TWO-TONE trend has extended to coats and a most attractive fashion it is, nice for those who want new and interesting details for that all-important Spring model. This useful coat, built on trench coat lines, has a beige top and a honey-tan skirt, and has other clever ideas such as stitched pocket flaps built up over the leather belt. It is single breasted below long revers, and is slit in back from a centre seam that extends from neck to hem.

Home Service

MAKING BED WITH PATIENT

Today everyone should know a bit about home nursing for one can never tell when an emergency may arise. Particularly in wartime, a knowledge of how to care for a patient at home is absolutely necessary.

Do you know how to make a bed with your patient in it? Some patients cannot be moved out of bed and you have to know what to do. The illustration above is a guide. Full instructions how to do this are included in our 32-page booklet, along with many other necessary things in the daily care of a patient.

Our booklet gives the home nurse the important do's and a few of the don'ts are also in order.

As well as the daily care of a bed patient it gives instructions how to care for a bed patient, how to care for a patient after an operation, a patient with a contagious disease and also how to nurse common ailments such as colds and convulsions.

Send 15c in coins for your copy of WHAT YOU SHOULD KNOW ABOUT HOME NURSING to The Ontario Intelligencer Home Service, 166 Front St., Belleville. Be sure to write plainly your name, address and the name of booklet.

Fashion Flashes

VERY PRECIOUS leisure hours deserve precious clothes. A lovely negligee is in black crepe with ruffles of Alencon-type lace around the deep collar, the elbow-length sleeves and down the skirt from the waist to the point where the hem is slashed, and then around the hem. A clump of roses at the centre waist.

A SENSE of well-being comes with fine lingerie. A lovely slip is of pale pink or pale blue satin with darted bodice and snug diamond-shaped midriff. A scalloped border of tiny embroidered roses and tiny appliqued satin hearts lends beauty to this slim slip.

A REVIVAL is being staged by the old-time hat pin, but modernized and brought up-to-date. Something new is a two-pronged hatpin, a ball studded with amethysts or aquamarines or peridot. A pair such pins also makes a delightful hair ornament worn tucked into a chignon when not on duty on a hat.

INTERESTING color combinations are now lining up for Spring wear. Violet with deep, bright pink is a smart choice as dove gray and tobacco brown with a touch of heaven blue. The lighter shades are used as accessories, often matching blouse and gloves.

NO MATTER how much the soft suit is promoted, the meticulously done tailor-made still obtains. A smart new model is in gray men's wear suiting with a hairline stripe. It is a one link-button model and has a shawl collar banded with the fabric using the stripes in reverse.

Don't talk about your health—or lack of it—all the time. It is bad manners and very boring.

Girls Beat Boys In Bowling At 'Y' Open House

Whoever said that girls could not beat boys at bowling? Because it so happened that at the Y.M.C.A. Open House on Sunday, the "Y" girls came through with flying colors and thoroughly trounced the boys in that popular sport.

The list of the victors are as follows: Dorothy Evans, 258; Doris McCabe, 234; Margaret Aman, 229; Jean Muir, 222; Evelyn Reid, 210.

Not forgetting their opponents, here they are: A. W. Richardson, Ottawa, stationed at No. 2 S.F.T.S., 229; Ted McDonald, Saskatchewan, stationed at No. 6 R.D., 229; Len Langevin, Montreal, stationed at Mountain View, 226; Harry Caldwell, Barrie, stationed at No. 5 I.T.S., 218.

The hostess girls entertained the airmen at small games, such as cards, Chinese checkers and table tennis and the day was spent most enjoyably by both the girls and the boys. At 9.30 o'clock, late refreshments, provided by Holloway St. United Church, were served.

Trenton Flyers Forced to Come From Behind to Down Mt. View Bombers by 6-4 Count

Both Squads Studded With Named Players From Pro and Amateur Ranks

SMART CONTEST

With both squads studded with named hockey celebrities from all parts of the Dominion, Coach Padre Malka's Trenton 'Flyers' were forced to come from behind with a 3rd period rally to triumph 6 to 4 over Coach "Dutch" Cain's Mountain View "Bombers" in a Bay of Quinte R.C.A.F. service hockey league game played at the Hume Arena. The win elevated the "Flyers" on their league-leading lofty perch with two wins and a tie in three starts. It was the Bombers' first game.

Playing the strongest style of hockey seen in the Market St. rink in years the score stood 3-2 for Trenton at the end of the initial 20 minutes, while Mountain View outscored the Flyers in the middle session, that ended 4-4.

No quarter was sought as hard rugged hockey with speed and scientific passing featured a game that saw high sticks and rugged body checking and one fistic outbreak added for good measure to give some 500 puck patrons a style of hockey that sent them home satisfied that the brand of hockey played each Monday and Thursday nights at the Hume Arena is equal or superior to the senior O. H. A. games that packed the local ice igloo a few short seasons ago. Both teams were bolstered with former N.H.L. stars, to say nothing of senior players of repute.

Took an Early Lead

The fast skating Trenton sextette took an early lead with Ellis scoring on a three-way combination play with Bagnell and Voss. Back Coach Padre Malka's league leaders came with Paul Raymond, former Les Canadiens' ace, scoring on a pretty set up by Ellis. The "Bombers" bounced back into the picture with two quick goals and gained the respect of the civilian patrons. The veteran Dan Cowley, who did yeoman service on the Bombers' defence with a prolific poke check, scored the first Bomber goal on a three-way rapid passing attack along with Aube and Bourdeau. Back bounded the Bombers to tie the score with Fegre scoring, assisted by Bauer and Pat McCreavy, former Boston Bruin ace. However, Raymond made sure of Voss' pass to put the Flyers 3-2 up to end the frame.

Cowley Got His Second

Cowley got his second goal to open the second period from Fegre and the Bombers moved into another tie. Aube rifled Boudreau's pass behind Benson, leaving the Flyers wondering just what was going on as the Bombers took over command to lead 4-3. Ellis, scoring his second goal of the night, put an end to such matters to rap the rubber behind Reading in the Bombers' net on a rebound, with Savard serving time in the sin bin and the Bombers short-handed, when the score moved to 4-4 to end the second.

It was late in the third period when Raymond came out of a corner with Dziura's pass to hit the post behind Reading and have the old boot heel drop into the net. Dziura cinched matters for the Flyers by whipping in Voss' sweet combination pass. The last two Trenton counters were the result of some high-class razzle dazzle passing. Condition took its usual toll as the Flyers out-lasted the Bombers in an all-out effort.

Raymond, with three goals, paced the winners, Ellis getting two and Dziura one. Dan Cowley with two, Aube and Fegre were the Bomber marksmen. Service league hockey continues at the Hume Arena Thursday night.

The line ups—Mountain View:—goal, Reading; defence, Savard and Cowley; centre, Dacquette; wings, Aube and Boudreau; subs, McCreavy, Fegre, Bauer, Platt, Wood and Bailey. Trenton—goal, Benson; defence, Bagnell and Fitzpatrick; centre, Ellis; wings, Voss and Raymond; subs, Dziura, Dart, Tessier, Kelly and Wismer.

CHICAGO HAWKS TO PLAY BRUINS

By The Canadian Press

Two teams whose recent records are diametrically opposite clash tonight in a National Hockey League contest which incidentally supports the theory that one or two good players can make or break a club in wartime.

The opponents are Boston Bruins, who rode the league's top brackets until three of their star performers traded sticks for crutches a few weeks ago, and Chicago Black Hawks, currently on the crest of a four-game winning sequence, which has lifted them one point ahead of the fifth-place Bruins.

The Bruins haven't gained a point in six games since Jan. 15, a week after Bill Cowley suffered his shoulder injury against Toronto Maple Leafs. Chicago, on the other hand, won only one game in nine starts from Dec. 22 to Jan. 22 before starting their upsurge with the arrival of goalie Mike Karakas and defenceman Art Wiebe.

Boston, outscored 30-27 in breaking even in six starts against Chicago this season, will have the advantage of home ice for tonight's game.

Cain and Carr Tied for Top Scorer of Loop

Montreal, Feb. 1 — (CP) — Boston's Herbie Cain pulled into a 1st-place tie with Lorne Carr of Toronto during the last week of National Hockey League play, picking up three points to raise his total to 56.

Carr, who led the point-getting parade alone a week ago, added two points since the previous weekly official compilation, while the injured Bill Cowley of Boston retained third spot, four points behind the leaders, despite another week of illness.

In fourth spot with an even 50 points is Doug Bentley of Chicago, a point ahead of team-mate Bill Mosienko. A year ago today Cowley was leading the field with 51 points, and Carr was second with 49.

Cain's 29 goals puts him in the lead in that department, three up on Carr and four up on Mud Bruneteau of Detroit. Cowley and Buddy O'Connor are tied for assist honors with 33 each, while Elmer Lach of Canadiens and Clint Smith of the Hawks have 32 each.

Mike McMahon of Canadiens continues atop the penalty department, with one hour and one minute served in majors and minors so far.

What's Doing in Sport

BELLEVILLE JRS. HELD TO DRAW BY 'COMBINES'

Stirling - Marmora Team Had Lead Shortly Before End of Game

SCORE IS 3-3

Stirling, Feb. 1 (Special)—Beleville and the Stirling-Marmora "Combines" battled to a 3-3 draw in a scheduled junior O.H.A. fixture here Monday night. There was no scoring in the first period while Coach Toots Holway's Belleville kids bagged two to the Combines' one in the middle session and the scoring was just the reverse in the last stanza, when Coach Neal's homesters notched two to one. When it came to the matter of penalties, however, Belleville drew down 11 to the Combines' two.

The draw match left the Belleville kids leading the group standing with three wins, last night's tie and one loss, while the Combines have two wins and as many losses.

With no scoring registered in a fast close-checking first period Belleville forged to the lead, when Don Barrett scored on a three-way combination play with Moher and Wardhaugh early in the middle frame. Two minutes later Goodchild evened matters for the Combines on a solo effort, but Beleville came back strong with Holway beating McInroy, in the homesters' net, on a pass from B. Meagher. In this period Referee Shannon ruled off four Belleville players.

Early in the last stanza Bert Bastedo evened the count and knotted the game up at two-all when the puck deflected into the Belleville net behind Fitzpatrick. With Semark off Bastedo put the Combines one up midway through the period. Al Gordon broke loose for Bellevlile and with some nice stick-handling pulled the Combines defence aside and passed to Billie Holway, who made sure of his count late in the last period to tie the score. There was no overtime played. Belleville was given six penalties to the Combines' one this frame. Holway scored two for Belleville and B. Bastedo a brace for the home team.

The lineups:

Belleville: Goal, Fitzpatrick; defence, Rosetti and Bush; centre, Moher; wings, J. Wardhaugh and Barrett; subs, Holway, Gordon, Meagher, Day, Semark, Greatrix and Rollins.

Walter D. Richey of Arnprior Appointed Starter for I.C.R.A.

By The Canadian Press

Walter D. Richey of Arnprior, who officiated on the Quebec circuit last season, yesterday was appointed starter on Ontario tracks under the jurisdiction of the incorporated Canadian Racing Association, succeeding Thomas (Nipper) Rowe who had been sending away the fields for 11 years. Rowe had not applied for re-appointment, it was stated. W. A. Hewitt was again appointed presiding steward while Anthony Simms once more became racing secretary.

President Robert Carpenter of the Phillies suggested at Philadelphia last night major league baseball clubs should invade the pro football field, either by acquiring National Football League franchises or starting an opposition circuit, pointing out that the baseball magnates owned the parks and equipment.

Member of a family of famous sportsmen, Thomas Carroll Boucher, veteran of the First Great War and a linotype operator, died yesterday in Ottawa after a long illness. His father was the late Tom Boucher of the old Ottawa Rough Riders and two of his four brothers are Frank Boucher of the New York Rangers and George Boucher, formerly of the Ottawa Senators in the N.H.L. His son is Sgt. Raymond Boucher, R.C.A.F., Guelph.

Billy Petrolle, 39, former world lightweight champion, has been elected chairman of the Board of the Pioneer National Bank at Duluth, Minn. He is also head of a steel company in Duluth. In his long fistic career, during which he downed many famed fighters of the U.S., Canada and England, he was managed by Jack Hurley.

A Greek who started in a New York restaurant after leaving his homeland, William George Helis promises to be the big noise in U. S. horse racing this year. Rated the richest oil man in Louisiana, Helis bought up 49 yearlings, one for $56,000, in 1943 and his latest acquisition is the British-bred Valdina Zenith, rated the hottest prospect for the Kentucky Derby.

Lightweight Tippy Larkin of New Jersey has replaced Sammy Angott as the opponent for Lulu Constantino in a 10-round bout Feb. 9 in Madison Square Garden. It was announced last night at New York Angott had been forced to withdraw because of a leg injury.

At a U. S. War Bond boxing show in Baltimore last night, ex-heavyweight champion Jack Dempsey sold $10,000 worth of loan bonds to Mrs. Leon Engel of Baltimore for a pair of his boxing gloves with which he had knocked out Georges Carpentier, French challenger, July 2, 1921.

Catcher Gene DeSautels of the Cleveland Indians yesterday passed his physical examination at Springfield, Mass., and was assigned for service in the U. S. Navy. He is married and has a family.

After being discharged from the Navy because of a physical ailment, outfielder John M. Coakley, 25, formerly of the North Carolina State League, was yesterday signed by the Baltimore Orioles of the International League. Third-baseman Jim McLeod of the Orioles passed his Army physical and will be inducted Feb. 14.

Canadian Sport Snapshots

By CHARLIE EDWARDS
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

Toronto, Feb. 1. (CP)— Doug Vaughan of the Windsor Star has uncovered new evidence of hockey's anticipated rapid growth in United States.. Doug quotes Franklin Lewis, sports editor of The Cleveland Press: "It seems to me that hockey, more than any other sport, is adding fans in these troubled years".

Lewis anticipates terrific expansion of hockey after the war, even to the extent of endangering baseball as the United States major sport. He says football may have a hand. He refers to professional football's August - through-December season, envisages lengthening of the hockey season into May and comments:

"Unless baseball meets the challenge of hockey through April and even through May and of football through August and September, the so-called national sport may be a June-July affair, as far as its monopoly is concerned. Baseball now is no longer a daily sport. It's a night, weekend novelty attraction.

"Comes the revolution and more fun, I'll guarantee".

Soo, Soo, Baby:

One of the famous old hockey circuits of the west, the Soo Line League in Southern Saskatchewan, has vanished with the war. Towns between Estevan and Moose Jaw which once produced players like Nick and Don Metz, Buzz Boll, Ken Doraty, Elmer Kreller, have given their youth to the services and war plants. Only in Wilcox is there an effort to keep hockey alive. There Father Murray, long the sponsor of youthful sport, has organized a four-team league.

Incidentally:

Extension of the service ban to all interprovincial sports upset New Brunswick Basketball calculations. The senior game in that province was knocked kicking because the only two senior clubs were air force teams at Scoudouc and Pennfield. The entire intermediate schedule requires revision. Four civilian intermediate teams remain, two in Saint John and one each in Fredericton and Moncton. . .Jimmy Ward, former Montreal Maroons star, is refereeing minor hockey on Montreal outdoor rinks. . . . Elmer (Montreal Herald) Ferguson recalls one of the great scorers of hockey was the late Marty Walsh of Ottawa. Walsh scored 42 goals in 12 games in 1909, playing with the Ottawa Stanley Cup Champions. That some year Chubby Power of Quebec finished fourth in scoring with 21 goals. Chubby now is Canada's Air Minister.

Jackie Callura Beaten by Lewis

Providence, R.I., Feb. 1. (CP)— A gallant little ex-champion, Jackie Callura of Hamilton, Ont., was pushed back in the weather-weight ruck here last night by a run-of-the-mill 126 pounder, Charles (Cabby) Lewis of New York.

Lewis all but toyed with Callura in hammering out an unanimous decision triumph over the Canadian in a 10-round feature bout that attracted a $4,056 gate, part of which will go to the National Infantile Paralysis Foundation.

The New York negro speared Callura with straight and curved left and right hand smashes, dropped him to the canvas twice, once in the first round and again in the eighth, and throughout had much the better of the scrap.

Callura weighed 129 3-4 to Lewis 125 1-2.

Callura's stablemate, Tony Brandino of Hamilton, Ont., 148 1-2, knocked out Jackie Collins, of Boston, 156, in the fourth round of a scheduled six-rounder.

Close Heavy Checking

In the second game, that saw close and heavy checking, Alemite led by a scant margin of 15 to 12 at the halfway mark with the scoring being evenly divided. However, in the second half the Alemite lassies let loose a torrid attack to outscore Reliance 12 to 4, paced by Ruth Oliphant and D. Mansfield. Coach Martin's league leaders set up a strong defence in the second half, that saw much personal contact in a rugged torrid checking game.

Ruth Oliphant paced the winners with 11 points, D. Mansfield getting 8. Kay Coathup with six and Arlie Gilbert with four carried Coach Pryke's scoring threat. The Alemites are unbeaten in three league starts.

Wonder if any one-coach High School can beat this? . . .In 21 years that Wallace Bailey (West Point 1921) has been coaching at Russellville, Ark., High School, his teams have compiled this record: Football-won 150, lost 49, tied 15; Track, won 81, lost 24; Basketball —won 292, lost 101; Golf, won 15, lost 5.

(Kids win draw.)

Toots Holway's local juniors came home from Stirling with a 3-3 draw last night to retain the leadership in their junior O.H.A. group. Billie Holway bagged two for his dad, Don Barrett getting the third. Bert Bastedo got two for the Combines, one of which was deflected into the local cage. Goodchild notched the other Combine counter. There was no scoring in the first period, when the fastest hockey of the night was seen. The Combine supporters were out in full strength last night and are giving their pets the support that warrants the continuance of junior hockey in this area for years to come.

Incidentally Belleville drew down 11 penalties to the Combines' two last night. It seems strange that no matter whether the locals are playing on the home ice or away they always seem to draw down the margin of penalties. It just couldn't be that Skipper Holway's charges are that much rougher than the rest of the players in the group, or do the visiting teams get unbiased officiating when they visit the Hume arena? The ombines journey to Trenton for a postponed game on Wednesday night.

(Fans' in error.)

Hockey lovers, who pass up these semi-weekly Air Force hockey games at the Hume area, are only fooling themselves. Take last night's Trenton-Mountain View game as an example. There hasn't been a better sustained hockey game played in these har parts, pardner, in many a moon. Three times the score was knotted before Coach Padre Maika's Flyers emerged 6-4 winners and then it was only condition. that made the ultimate difference on the score sheet. Boasting of some of the best hockey players in the Dominion, the airmen play a rugged style of hockey, the type Belleville puck patrons used to demand in the old days. Sergt. "Dutch" Cain, formerly with the Montreal Maroons, was named coach of the "Bombers" only recently and once Dutch gets acquainted with his charges there'll be some merry times around the Market Street igloo before spring. Incidentally we were told Johnny McCreedy, former Maple Leaf star, was with the Bombers. It isn't McCreedy, but rather Pat McCreavy, ex-Boston Bruin forward starlet.

Besides McCreavy from Boston, Coach Cain has a couple of speedsters in Aube from the Montreal Royals, Lou Boudreau, an outstanding player from the Quebec Aces, a kid named Fegre and another French lad—Ducquette—who took the fans' eye. Dan Cowley, who needs no introduction in Belleville, is now playing defence for the Bombers, and his cunningness is as prolific as ever. Besides scoring two goals, Dannie's poke checking was one of the features of the game, as he repeatedly broke up strong Trenton combination plays in front of his own net. And the boys added a fistic encounter for good measure last night.

On the other side of the fence Coach Maika, trotted out Paul Raymond who teamed with Pete Lepine and Aurel Joliat with Les Canadiens, Mike Dziura, another professional in his own right. This kid Ellis from Waterloo is what's commonly called a "whizz," while Voss from Montreal Royals and Kelly from the M-O loop are only a few stars studding the Flyers' roster. With such puck celebrities playing at the Hume area each week there should be thousands instead of the odd 500 or so on hand. True enough the loop unfortunately has one weak sister, but what of the N.H.L., haven't they got the Rangers?

(Remember when—)

It was just 20 years ago today that the first goal was scored against a Canadian team in Olympic hockey competition. Great Britain scored two goals in the 1924 Olympic match at Chamonix, Switzerland. However, the Toronto Granites, the Canadian team on that occasion, won 19 to 2 and continued on to clinch the world amateur hockey title the following day.

(Girl cagers.)

Coach Frank Martin's Alemite lassies remain undefeated in the city ladies basketball loop after downing Reliance 27 to 16 last night. In the other game, that was much closer in scoring, Jack Dickens' Deacon gals chalked up their initial win by taking Sargents into camp 25 to 22. In this game "Pee Wee" Lepore was the big noise with 21 points. In the other game the scoring was divided with Ruth Oliphant pacing Alemite and Kay Coathup heading Reliance with three baskets.

Horse Sense Bridge

LESSON NO. 291

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

Wottaman is the partner of Ida Nonuttin. For the beating she gives him, he must be a glutton.

Ida will start with an opening bid. Her partner will respond at once with a one-jump that forces her to bid again. But she will pass and say: "I didn't have enough for another bid."

What every young bridge player should know is this: If you had enough for an opening bid, you always have enough to bid again if partner forces with a one-jump signal.

You have this hand:

♠Q 4
♥A Q 10 5
♦7 3
♣A 8 6 4 3

Your opening bid with that hand is one club. If the immediate response from partner is two diamonds, it is a one-jump. And a one-jump is a forcing-to-game signal.

That jump by partner says he sees enough for a game with what your opening has shown. It cries out in accents wild and clear that neither of you should permit the bidding to die at less than game.

It does not say you are expected to bid again if you have something more to show. It says he already sees enough for game even if you have nothing more than you said.

Consequently, an opening bidder always has another bid when partner forces. The second bid is always decided by following the order of choice in T-A-N; takeout, assist, no-trump.

This hand of yours has no fears about making a second bid, even without being forced. It has unshown values. And your second round bid is two hearts, a takeout to your unshown biddable bid.

But even without your additional values, you would have been forced to bid something when your partner jumped. If you had no other bid, your bid would be two no-trump in this spot.

When your partner forces you to bid, he says he has enough for both. Don't let it scare you, kids.

AT THE CAPITOL

"Journey For Margaret"

Against the lurid background of bomb-torn London, "Journey for Margaret", which opened yesterday at the Capitol Theatre, is a dramatic adaptation of W. L. White's memorable book on his experiences as an American war correspondent.

Robert Young and Laraine Day are featured, with five-year-old Margaret O'Brien playing the title role, aided by Billy Severn, a year her junior. They portray the loveable war orphans adopted by Young in London.

Young and Miss Day achieve new dramatic heights as acknowledged craftsmen. The children are magnificent, performing their emotional roles with the artistry of schooled veterans.

Expecting a baby, Nora is injured in a raid on the city. An operation saves her but the doctor informs Davis that she can never have a child. Heartbroken, Nora returns to America. Davis remains to complete his assignment.

Rescues Child

He rescues the child Peter from his bomb-wrecked home and later meets Margaret at an orphanage conducted by Trudy Strauss (Fay Bainter), and adopts them. How he restores their bomb-shattered nerves and with the help of Trudy Strauss, brings them to America, forms an absorbing story.

"Melody Parade"

It is seldom, indeed, that a motion picture is so jam-packed with entertainment as is "Melody Parade", the Monogram musical comedy revue which opened an engagement at the Capitol theatre last night. The entire film is a kaleidoscopic succession of musical numbers, songs, dances, comedy interludes and prodution spectacles, with pretty girls always in evidence.

The cast comprises an exceptional group of entertainers. It would be hard to imagine a better choice for the starring role than lovely, blonde Mary Beth Hughes, who is an accomplished singer and dancer; and the glib light comedy of Eddie Quillan makes him an ideal foil in the leading male role. Also important in the comedy department are Tim and Irene Ryan (the radio comedy team of Tim and Irene), and the colored funmaker, Mantan Moreland. Jerry Cooper is there to sing in his rich baritone, and Armida, the "Mexican bombshell", is a fiery little mite in her songs and dances. Andre Charlot is good in a character role, and two trios who contribute importantly to the general entertainment are the Loumell Morgan group of colored singers, and Ruloff, Follette and Lunard, whose comedy adagio dancing is calculated to bring down the house.

Instrumental music for the production is furnished by the orchestras of Anson Weeks and Ted Fio Rito.

AT THE BELLE

"The Fallen Sparrow"

Hard-boiling love-making, not just to one but to several women, always seems to mix well with a movie's hero's adventures in perilous international intrigue.

You're not likely to see a better teaming of these elements than in "The Fallen Sparrow", which is now on the Belle Theatre screen with Maureen O'Hara and John Garfield as co-stars. It offers romantic adventures and perilous intrigue that are both refreshingly different.

The plot starts with the hero's return to New York City after participation in Spain's Civil war and two years of torture and imprisonment following it. His very life depended upon his not giving up that secret, so he kept both the secret and his life.

In New York, as the picture opens, Garfield finds that agents of his Fascist enemies are awaiting him, and brewing some new scheme which they hope will succeed where torture failed.

They are concealed in a crowd of refugees, some real, some phony, that clutters up all of his old haunts. He swears vengeance upon them for murdering one of his best friends, and even while he tries to track them down, they kill another of his friends.

But it isn't just a campaign of terror. He suspects that Miss O'Hara, blonde Martha O'Driscoll and brunette Patricia Morison (his former fiance!) are in the plot against him. To learn if the surmise is true, he makes love to all three.

In a swift-moving climax, he outwits and traps some of his foes, and ruthlessly deals out long-delayed justice to the most dreaded of all of them, just before a diabolical scheme can be worked out on him.

Robert Fellows produced the big movie for RKO Radio and Richard Wallace directed it. A large supporting cast headed by Walter Slezak, John Miljan, John Banner and Hugh Beaumont does excellent work in varied, colorful roles.

The Canadian Movietone News, a timely and entertaining "Medicine on Guard" and "Flicker Flashbacks" a pleasing novelette will be exhibited on the same program.

AT THE McCARTHY

"Trade Winds"

Night, the air laden with the chill of death; a girl, wanted for murder, sits nervously in her roadster on the front end of a San Francisco ferry; a police car is driven onto the boat, and two officers alight to peer into every car; without a moment's hesitation, the girl drives crazily into the water—and the darkness; the swirling fog silently covers the splash.

This is one of the first thrilling scenes in "Trade Winds" Walter Wanger's adventure romance opening Wednesday at the McCarthy theatre, with Frederick March and Joan Bennett in the starring roles. The girl who seizes this daring chance to escape is Miss Bennett herself. A few days later the San Francisco police are notified that she has pawned a ring in Honolulu.

Thus begins a chase that extends half way around the world, with March, debonair private detective with an inordinate fondness for beautiful girls, in close pursuit of the fugitive. Another exciting romance is contributed by Ralph Bellamy and Ann Sothern, who also do their sleuthing on the run.

2nd feature attraction presents Charles Boyer and Jean Arthur in "History is Made at Night". Leo Carrillo and Colin Clive also have prominent parts in the picture.

General Election Not Likely This Year Says King

Ottawa, Feb. 1 —(CP)— Prime Minister Mackenzie King yesterday gave the House of Commons the most positive assurance yet that there will be no general election before 1945.

Mr. King stressed the importance of concentrating attention on winning the war. He said he hoped to remain Prime Minister until the war was won, emphasized he did not expect that to be soon, and said parliament could run until about June next year.

Neither the people nor the troops overseas wanted an election. While he was opposed to parliament extending its own life, except for the gravest of reasons, he said he would not say what position he would take in that regard when the five-year term of the present parliament elapsed if the war was still in progress.

"A Prime Minister is placed in a very difficult position when he is asked to give any undertaking to the country that he will not, in any circumstances, have a general election. It is running counter to the spirit of British institutions when any government ties itself in any final way in that connection.

Makes Statement in House.

"For that reason I have found it necessary, as I do today, to say that there may be situations arise in which it would be impossible for the government to carry on with the authority it should have at a time of war. Some questions might arise which would make it absolutely necessary that an appeal to the people be made to settle an issue, and get on with the work of continuing to win the war.

"I see no reason for either at the present time. I have no desire for and no thought in seeking to find an issue of the kind. What I am determined to do, if God gives me health and strength, is to stay in the position I am in at the present time until this war is won.

Rests With People.

"Then, if circumstances warrant, the people will be given their full rights and powers to decide as to what form of administration they wish, or whether they wish the present one to be returned to office. It will rest with them to say whether some other administration is to take the place of this one."

He made this statement, he said, so members would feel able to cooperate as much as they could in the business of the session. There was a heavy sessional program, Mr. King said, and he expressed belief the House "should get down to business just as soon as possible."

Graydon Calls Social Security Program in Throne Speech Of Gov't 'Death-Bed Repentance'

Conservative House Leader Wants More Information on Conduct of War

ADVANCES CHARGES

By JAMES McCOOK
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, Feb. 1 —(CP)— Gordon Graydon, Progressive Conservative House Leader, said Monday in the Commons that the Liberal government's social security program outlined in the Throne Speech last week represents a "death-bed repentence" and the use of proposals set forth by the Progressive Conservative Party.

The first Opposition Party spokesman to participate in the Throne Speech debate, Mr. Graydon asked fuller information from the government on charges in the Canadian army set-up at home and overseas; a declaration of Canada's determination to hold an important place in post-war civil aviation; effective action to satisfy labor's needs; and reform of parliamentary procedure to speed business.

Of the government program generally, Mr. Graydon said:—

"Our (the Progressive Conservative) criticism of this government in these matters is that for eight years it has not brought down enough progressive social or agricultural or labor legislation, and only now, in an election year, comes forward with these dying declarations."

The government had never been too frank about the conduct of the war, Mr. Graydon said.

Want Satisfactory Answers.

The people demanded "satisfactory answers" as to why the 7th and 8th Divisions were constituted in the first place; what was being done with the "big" home-defence army; whether it was going overseas; and whether its personnel would be directed back into civilian activities if it were left in Canada.

Mr. Graydon said the Chiefs of Staff of the navy, army and air force had all been transferred overseas and replaced in Ottawa.

"Does this mean that the government believes that all danger to Canada has been largely removed?" he asked.

"If so, why the necessity for the maintenance of this big home-defence army? Even at this late date it is essential that the whole story of the home-defence army constitution and its present future role should be explained fully and frankly by the government to this House."

Canadians were "confused" about what was going on overseas, and wondered why the 1st Canadian Army there was constituted in the first place and then "abandoned."

"Many rumors are in circulation regarding the resignation of Gen. McNaughton (Lt.-Gen. A. G. L. McNaughtan, former Canadian Army Commander Overseas)," Mr. Graydon said.

Want Frank Explanation.

"Public interest demands that the Prime Minister should at once give a full and frank explanation of the facts in this regard, letting the chips fall where they may."

Other statements made by Mr. Graydon in his speech were:—

Civil Aviation — "There is grave and general concern throughout Canada that delay and inertia on the part of the government may lead to our position becoming, in the critical period ahead, nothing more than a point of geographical convenience (for international civil aviation) when final arrangements have been concluded."

Agriculture — "The variation of arrangements with Britain regarding bacon has resulted in disappointment and dissatisfaction on the part of the agricultural population of Canada. Since the last session of the House, the wholesale slaughtering of brood sows and the general disintegration of the whole bacon industry have belatedly forced the government to give hog bonuses. The irreparable damage already done is a clear indication that these bonuses were long overdue."

Labor — "The farmer now is having company; Labor is joining him in that great group of forgotten men in the Dominion . . . Schemes for providing social security are not effective substitutes in themselves for higher earning power and continuous employment."

War Assets Corporation — "Before the selling process (of surplus or obsolete war materials) gets under way I believe that a judicial inquiry should be made into the details of materials purchased, cost prices and use made of them insofar as crown assets of Canada are concerned."

Canadian Broadcasting Corporation — "The CBC has lost the confidence of the people of Canada . . . the government deserves the just condemnation of an outraged public for its lackadaisical, happy-go-lucky policy which has allowed this corporation aimlessly to drift into comparative uselessness, instead of directing its course into a field of greater and increasing public service."

Veterans' Rehabilitation — "Our veterans, men and women, will not be content with blueprints, plans and promises, they will demand effective action."

Employment — "To achieve this objective (of full employment), handouts by the Federal government will be neither a sufficient nor a satisfactory solution . . . Despite the optimism of the Minister of Labor (Hon. Humphrey Mitchell), the operation and administration of National Selective Service has been a bitter and disillusioning experience for the Canadian people."

Reconstruction — "I suggest that there should be established a new department of government that will integrate all aspects of our economy in its transition from war to peace (dealing with) problems such as industrial reconversion, readjustment of war workers, demobilization of soldiers and post-war employment."

Supremacy of Parliament — "I charge the government that they have exceeded the limits of vital war necessity and urgency in their rush to bureaucratic government . . . Our democratic form of government is actually in peril. At this stage of the war's development, there cannot any longer be any real necessity for our citizens tolerating the continuance in toto of such a system which might easily be perpetuated into our peacetime economy."

Taxes — "If there shall be some lessening of governmental expenditures in the days ahead, I call upon the administration to give consideration to relieving the small wage-earner in the lower brackets from the comparatively heavy taxation he must presently endure . . . I want to raise my voice in vehement protest against the complicated methods and procedure used in gathering the taxes from our people."

Parliamentary Reform — "I have been disgusted and discouraged over the unbusinesslike way that parliament has been conducting itself . . . I hope the new committee (on House rules and procedure) . . . (will) see that parliament, its methods, its rules and its procedure are taken out of the mothballs, dusted off, and made to work efficiently for the people of Canada."

The C.C.F. — "The Progressive Conservative Party has taken the initiative from one end of the country to the other in the battle against socialism . . . It is pretty generally acknowledged throughout the Dominion that the present tired, weary administration has lost the confidence of the people of Canada."

Mr. Graydon said the Speech from the Throne could be called a combination of the "Winnipeg platform" drafted at the 1942 Progressive Conservative convention; the speeches of John Bracken, Progressive Conservative National Leader; a "death-bed repentance;" and "several dying declarations."

Takes Eye Off War.

The Throne Speech indicated, he said, that Prime Minister Mackenzie King had taken an eye off the war momentarily and was looking over his "broken-down" political fences.

"Let us get this program down out of the clouds to where we can see what it really is," Mr. Graydon said.

"It may well be that these lofty, high-sounding phrases mean very little in the way of reform to the Canadian people. I hope that it will prove more than a smoke-screen to blind the electors so that they cannot see the tragic failure of this government's administration.

"The government has done some attractive political window dressing. Let's see now what they have on the shelves inside. What is on the shelves is what counts."

Mutual aid for destitute populations, expansion of world trade, national security and enduring peace by international co-operation, a national minimum of social security, housing, rehabilitation, children's allowances and other proposals in the Throne Speech were desirable; but the legislation covering them should be made available at once, Mr. Graydon said.

Mess Room Chatter Of Canada's Airmen

By LOUIS V. HUNTER
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

With the R.C.A.F. Somewhere in Britain, Feb. 1 —(CP)— When it comes to cool efficiency, members of the City of Toronto are right in there pitching. The other day, Flt.-Lt. Ken Morham and FO. Seath of St. Lambert, Que., were on a sweep over France with FO. Malcolm Robb of London, Ont.

Calling over the radio-telephone, Robb asked for Morham's position. The St. Lambert boy replied:

"See the pile of flak about two o'clock from you?"

"Yes," answered Robb.

"Well, I'm in the middle of it."

Bits and pieces of German aircraft shot down over the British Isles are not all written off. Some are still highly useful—but not to the Luftwaffe.

Aircraftman Paul Dugas of Alexandria, Ont., a motor transport mechanic attached to a Canadian fighter airfield, is just one of many R.C.A.F. members who put these bits and pieces to good use. But Dugas is a more qualified authority than most, for he's considered tops around his station at converting piston heads into ash trays, perspex into rings and lockets, dural into rings, knives, letter openers, model aircraft. His main forte, though, is the manufacture of cigarette lighters from used cannon shells.

Coincidences are commonplace in the R.C.A.F. overseas—friend meeting friend sort of thing—but the Wolf Squadron goes one better in one particular instance.

FO. Jim Preston and Flt.-Sgt. Norm Cheevers hail from the Ontario cities of St. Catharines and Niagara Falls, respectively. They flew together at elementary school in St. Kitt's a couple of years ago, with Preston as the instructor and Cheevers the student.

Now, led by Sqdn.-Ldr. Robert Buckham of Vancouver, holder of R.A.F. and American D.F.C.'s, they fly side by side on Spitfire sweeps into France.

He's proud of the fact that he was born in Scotland but Flt.-Lt. Norman Gallagher, Roman Catholic padre with the R.C.A.F. in England, wishes jokingly his birthplace, Morar, "was a little closer to the centre of Scottish civilization."

A recent arrival from Canada, the youthful, good-natured padre is anxious to visit the Morar he left 20 years ago but is afraid he'll need more than a week's leave to make it."

"If it was near Glasgow," he said, "it would be a 'piece of cake,' as my be-winged friends phrase it. But," he added, poker-faced, "it's 150 miles north of Glasgow, the last 40 miles of which involve mountain-climbing, one or two portages, and the fording of at least one river."

WHEAT CROP DOWN UNDER

Production of wheat for 1944 in Australia is estimated at 97,000,000 bushels.

SOME MILEAGE

It is estimated that some engines in use on Canadian railways build up a mileage of 16,000 miles in 30 days.

BRUNETTE—Patricia Morison, his former fiancee, now attracted to another man, but wooed by Garfield with a purpose.

BLONDE BEAUTY—Martha O'Driscoll, sub deb singer, whom he courts during his vengeance quest in the RKO Radio melodrama.

RED HEAD—Maureen O'Hara, mysterious refugee, for whom he falls hook, line and sinker—only to be disillusioned.

CHAPTER 17

"I thought this was a land," she said bitterly, "where everyone's innocence was presumed until guilt was proven. Grandpa Carfax told me so. Have you thought of the results to me if I am refused the right to appear tonight?"

"Darnley, Darnley—can't you see I must protect—"

"Is business the highest law? What about the finer law, Chico, that commands us all to protect the innocent? I assure you I will be able to prove I did not steal this coat or anything else—ever!"

Sanson seemed lost in deep, worried thought. Suddenly he declared "Well, Darnley, despite cops or robbers, you compete tonight. That's that!"

"Thank you, Chico," she said simply and passed into her dressing room.

She hung the sable coat on the rack and sat before a dressing table. Others girls arrived, and the room became noisy with conversation. Several of her rivals seemed dangerously beautiful. They made her conscious that to be declared the most beautiful model in New York required something more than ordinary good looks.

A man in evening dress rapped and entered. He held a list in his hand. "There are forty girls in this competition," he said. "You are to appear in groups of ten for the preliminary judging. From each group of ten, two will be selected. In the semi-finals there will be two groups of four, from each of which one will be picked by the judges to appear in the finals." He read a list of names. "These young ladies will appear in the first group. Please be ready to step upon the stage at 8.30 promptly."

Darnley's name was in the third group. At last she stood ready, offstage, to make her entrance with her section, and could hear the applause from the audience as it greeted the winners of the preceding section. An attendant motioned them on and Darnley followed the girl before her out upon the stage and before the footlights. She looked down upon an area of white faces, vaguely visible through the glare of light. In line the group walked slowly before the judges; then each girl was required to step from line and to walk back and forth across the stage, exhibiting herself to audience and judges.

Some contestants chose to make use of the artificial, undulating slink of the trained mannequin. Darnley, when her turn came, did not do so. She walked as she believed an intelligent girl of good taste would carry herself, not proudly, not with exaggerated movement, but with an effort to be natural, unself-conscious. She reassumed her place in formation, and the ten stood while the judges conferred. One of these stepped forward and took a dark-haired girl from the other end of the line and led her forward. He turned and walked to Darnley, taking her hand and leading her to stand beside the first selection. The room roared its applause.

It was not with a feeling of elation but of relief that Darnley realized she had surmounted the first barrier. She could look, now, down into the audience with greater serenity. Faces ceased to be blurs and became human. It was not pleasant to recognize Lacey Gorse in the fifth row. It was with distinct distaste that she saw Elaine Sanson. But and she felt a pang of disappointment, she could not make out the untidy hair or boyish face of Clyde Farrish.

She was again in the dressing room. The time of waiting seemed interminable before she was called to appear again in the smaller group of four. This time the judges were more deliberate, their scrutiny more severe. Because their task was more difficult. Darnley cast covert glances at her three rivals. They were radiantly, young and lovely. The moments that passed while the judges sat buzzing with heads together were unbearable. Finally a tall man arose and walked to the footlights.

"To select honestly," he said, "the most beautiful of these four young ladies is a task that your judges would not willingly assume again. To chose from the quartet the girl for the finals, and to arrive at a unanimous opinion, as we have done, constitutes a miracle." He paused here. Darnley could not breathe. The judge continued: "I present to you Miss Darnley Carfax. . . . Miss Carfax, will you step to the footlights?"

Darnley walked toward him. She felt she was stumbling, groping. The judge lifted her hand and bowed to her.

"Thank you," she managed to say in a whisper. Then she remembered that she must bow to the thundering, cheering audience. She was in the finals; one of two selected from forty.

She never remembered leaving the stage. Suddenly she was at the top of the stairs; then she was in her dressing room. Soon came a rapping upon the door.

"Miss Carfax!" called a stern voice.

"Who is it?" she queried.

"The police," was the answer.

Darnley closed her eyes. The police. They could not wait another half-hour but must come now when she stood upon the very threshold—when she had come victorious to the final judging.

She walked to the rack, from which she took the sable wrap. With it across her arm she opened the door to face the lieutenant of detectives.

"Lieutenant," she said, "here's the fur coat."

"Yes," he countered, "and here are you."

"I'm here," Darnley responded. "Do you know why?"

"Yes, the beauty show," he said. "Get your things if you want them. We're going downstairs."

"Lieutenant," she began her plea, "did you ever want a certain thing more than everything else in the world?"

"Everyone has," he growled.

"Will another fifteen or twenty minutes make so much difference?" she asked. "Lieutenant, you don't believe I stole this coat. You can't believe it. Would I have shown you how it was taken out of the studio if I were the thief?"

"We were tipped off you had it. That's good enough for me."

"You have the coat now. I can't get away."

"Not from me, you can't."

"Lieutenant, there was but one reason for the thief to—to plant, is the word, isn't it?—to plant this fur in my closet. It was because he was afraid, because we were getting too close to him. Don't you see that?"

"They all say the stolen goods were planted on them," he snorted. "If it was a plant, and if you were innocent, why didn't you tell the police? But did you? You did not. You sneaked out and I'm darned if you didn't wear it here bold as brass."

"I'll tell you why. It was because I had to be here. I had to be here on time. If I had called you there would have been questionings and you would have kept me until it was too late to come. But I was going to report to you as soon as the contest was over. I was. That is the truth." She put out a hand and touched his arm.

"And I've won so far," she said. "There were forty girls at the start and it has narrowed down to only two—myself and another. In a moment we are to be called onto the stage again. Just two of us. In the beginning my chances were one in forty, now they are one in two."

"Yeah?"

"A half-hour will mean nothing. I can't get away. I shan't try to get away. Let me stay, lieutenant, for the final judging—it means everything in my life."

A voice called loudly, "Miss Carfax on stage, please."

She looked up in to the detective's face. "Well?" she asked.

"Go on, kid. I'll give you the break," he grumbled.

She did not pause to thank him, but ran downstairs to the passageway behind the stage. His gray eyes glinted as he peered after her. In a moment he followed and stood off-stage where he could watch Darnley and everything that went on, yes, everything . . .

With keen eyes the detective followed every movement of the two models.

A man in plain clothes spoke in his ear. "Everything's set," he said.

"Okay," he answered without turning his head.

The judges walked to their table and conferred, while the two girls remained standing under the eyes of that staring audience. There was suspense while more than a thousand people waited for the final pronouncement. At last the spokesman walked to the apron of the stage.

"Ladies and gentlemen," he began, "I am gratified that the decision, difficult as it was to reach, is unanimous. From it not one of the five judges dissents. We have taken into consideration more than mere beauty of face and figure." Finally he turned and bowed to both girls. "My only regret," he said, "is that we judges cannot choose both of you. But, that being impossible, I shall ask Miss Darnley Carfax to step forward.'

Elated as never before, Darnley stepped down from her stand and was halfway to the spokesman before she halted, turned, walked to her defeated competitor and extended her hand. "I—I'm so sorry. I—you are so beautiful I was-—Honestly, if I'd lost I'd have wished you luck."

The other girl smiled, not altogether wholeheartedly, and held out her hand. "Good luck," she said in a voice that was not quite steady.

Then Darnley became aware of the applause that had been rolling up from the floor of the house. The next few minutes were noise and confusion as she was holding a reception on the stage. Adrian De Groot was there. Chico Sanson held her hand and whispered, looking at once happy and depressed. A large man with a moustache was presented to her as Mr. Mitchner.

"Do you think you will like California?" he asked roguishly.

"I am not going to California," she said.

"If I have my way, you are," he smiled guilefully.

"This is Mr. Mitchner of Continental Pictures," interjected the man who had performed the introduction.

"Oh," said Darnley.

"We must talk, eh? When so many people are not around. I am interested. Tomorrow? To make a test for the screen. You have something, Miss Carfax. I think it will come over on the screen. In the morning my secretary will telephone you."

"Yes, yes. Thank you Mr. Mitchner," she said hurriedly, hardly taking in what he said.

After a while Chico guided her from the stage, and at the steps she saw the lieutenant.

"Well," he said, "you made the grade. Fine, but now for that fur job—"

"Must I go to police headquarters?" she interrupted. "Mr. Sanson, here, has got some rooms upstairs. We'll thrash things out there."

Her elation had passed, and depression had taken its place. It was bitter that the high moment of her life should be so tarnished; but, strangely, the thing that hurt her most poignantly was Clyde Farrish's absence.

"Let's get it over," she said.

They walked to the elevator, the police office, Chico and Darnley, and ascended to an apartment on an upper floor.

"Sit down," directed the lieutenant. "We'll get to whizzing as soon as the rest of the cast gets here."

"Shall I stay?" Sanson asked.

"You might slide into the other room for a while," directed the veteran detective.

"Lieutenant," Darnley said, "I did not steal that coat. I found it hanging in my closet tonight before I came to this contest. It was too late to do anything about it I brought it here, meaning to call you as soon as the show was over."

"Sister," said the lieutenant, "I kind of like you. But I got to act on what I see. Now, you claim you was framed?"

"Yes."

"By who and why and how?"

She spread her lovely hands helplessly. "I've told you everything. You know as much as I do."

"Keep your apartment locked?"

"Of course."

"Anybody else got a key?"

"Only my room-mate."

"If," said the lieutenant, "there is only two keys to a door and somebody lugs something through it, why sister, it's got to be one of the two with keys. Eh?"

"But Jerry, she lives with me," Darnley said after a moment, "did not steal the coat. I was with her. We left the studio together. We went home together."

"I didn't say steal it; I mean put it. World's full of reasons: money, love, fear, hate. Does she hate you?"

"I can't believe it."

"Any reason she should be afraid of you?"

"None."

"Who is she in love with?"

"I don't know."

"Does she need money?"

"Who doesn't?"

Before he could ask another question the telephone rang. He lifted the receiver to his ear. "Yeah it's me. It's always me when I say it's me. Who? Where's he at? Now, ain't that nice! And where was you smart boys? Well, how would you like to get over there quick and fetch 'em here? Ask 'em polite to come. What about that tale on the couple we was so interested in? Lost 'em, I suppose. . . . No? Well crack down on 'em diplomatic. Invite 'em here for buns and coffee. Yeah. But get 'em here fast."

He slammed up the receiver, jerked it off again and gave a number. "Morrisy? . . . Yes, it's me. Don't I tell you it's always me? I want that Shafto broad and before she gets so old she loses her figure. Here."

He turned to Darnley. "Maybe it's a break for you. Maybe not. All I know is you got the coat."

"What is it? What has happened?"

"You and your boy-friend wasn't in cahoots to steal that fur?"

"I have no boy-friend."

There was a loud knock on the door and a plainclothes man ushered in Lacey Gorse and Elaine Sanson. "They were down in the dining room," said the officer. "That's how I got them here so sudden."

"What's the meaning of this?" demanded Elaine. "Why are Mr. Gorse and myself brought here? We were going on to a party."

"We got a better party here."

"What have I to do with the police?" she asked.

"Maybe nothin' lady; maybe plenty. Just sit and I'll try to keep you from being bored. You feel like replyin' with a few answers, Mr. Gorse?"

Little Benny's Note Book

I was taking a walk with pop for his appetite, me asking questions and pop smoking, and the wnd was blowing like anything, and I said, Do you think the birds have more fun in a wind like this, pop, or less?

Probably less, pop said, business in life, and business is fun only in rare fortunate cases, pop said.

Which just then I caught my hat just in time to keep the wind from blowing it off, saying, Oh boy, did you see that, pop? I sure worked fast that time. I bet a lot of people would of been chasing their hat up the street by this time with everybody laughing at them, I said.

It's true that our reflexes are more responsive when we are young, pop said. And although I've known instances when you have escaped just retribution by quick and imaginative thinking, you'll have to give credit where credit is due in this particular case, in other words to Nature. When the wind started to lift your hat, your natural reflexes stepped in and saved the situation with practically no help from you at all. A message was flashed to your brain which in turn flashed instructions to your hands, which obediently flew up to your head before you had time to realize what was going on, or rather what was going off. It is true you were present at the time, but that was your only share in the entire manoover, pop said.

But —jimminy, pop, I mean G wizzickers, if I hadn't moved so fast my hat would of been off anyways, and by that time it would of been too late for my brain to do anything about it, except maybe get mad, I said, and pop said, I still maintain that Nature is wonderful, but in many ways you are quite as remarkable, so let's let it go at that.

Which we did.

What a relief to settle down to a real night's rest, and awake fully refreshed, ready for the day's duties. I was tortured by fretful nights—tossing, turning—never comfortable. ## Three Found Dead in Cellar

Albany, N.Y., Feb. 1. (AP)—Bodies of a brother and two sisters, dead several days, were found last night in the fire-scarred cellar of their farm home near here in what District Attorney Johnny Delaney said appeared to be a double murder and suicide.

Delaney said the body of Edward Swartz, 50, was found with a bullet hole in the head and a box of matches in one hand. Nearby were the bodies of his sisters, May, 60, and Hattie, 54, badly burned and with decomposition starting. A revolver was found beside Edward.

Delaney said it appeared the brother had killed the sisters and then attempted to burn the bodies.

Frank Sharpe Completes Fifty Years Service With Bank of Montreal

Fifty years' association with the Bank of Montreal as bank messenger was completed Monday evening by Mr. Frank Sharpe, 185 Church St., who for the past half century has been a familiar sight on Belleville streets as he has gone quietly about his duties. And with fifty years' service completed, he still has no thought of quitting and will stay at his present job until easing of the current manpower shortage enables his replacement. He will be 74 in April.

On the first day of February back in 1894, Mr. Sharpe reported for duty as a bank messenger at the Bank of Montreal, then at its former office at the corner of Pinnacle Street and Victoria Avenue. Manager of the bank at that time was Mr. Richardson. At the change of the office from its former location, Mr. Sharpe came with the bank to its present site. For many years he acted as treasurer at the former Griffin Opera House on Bridge St.

Presented with Watch and Pipe

In appreciation of his lengthy service with the bank, Mr. Sharpe today was presented with a gold watch and chain, suitably inscribed, the gift of Mr. B. C. Gardner, General Manager of the Bank of Montreal. Mr. Dredge, manager of Belleville branch, made the presentation, at the same time expressing the donor's good wishes. The occasion was also marked with the presentation of a pipe and tobacco pouch by "Matt" Currie, accountant, on behalf of the Belleville staff members.

Building permits were issued to the following:

Mr. Jack Grills, Coleman St., 1½ storey dwelling on Dunbar St., $2,500.

Mrs. Florence Emmons, 211 Coleman St., garage, $150.

Mystery Gas Pervades Home

Coatesville, Pa., Feb. 1. (AP) — Three persons were dead today and two others in hospital after a mystery gas pervaded three homes in the community.

John Refford, 55; his wife Myrtle, 51; and her brother, Charles Johns, 54, were found dead in the Refford home late last night, Deputy Coroner Fred Manship said "A sweet smell" prevailed throughout the house, he added.

Mrs. Elmer Dripps and Mrs. William Cohen, who live on opposite sides of the Refford home, became ill as a result of the presence of the "yet unidentified" gas, Manship said. Neither was seriously affected. The gas, Manship added, is believed to be explosive and its source has not been discovered.

Urges Alliance With Russia, U.K., Revivified France

Baltimore, Feb. 1 —(AP)— If the small countries of Europe wish to survive, they must ally themselves closely with Russia, Great Britain and a revitalized France after the war, says the Czechoslovakian ambassador to the United States.

The ambassador, Col. Vladimir S. Hurban, told a meeting of Methodist Ministers here that the Czechs are determined to back a collective security plan in cooperation with other countries of Europe, and especially Russia.

He warned, however, that the great powers must not take advantage of their strength, declaring that European unity and peace best can be guaranteed by a good neighbor policy among powers of equal strength as well as among countries of unequal size, population and resources.

Col. Hurban explained that the Czechs' post-war foreign policy of co-operation with Russia would be against "Germanism, which proved in the last 100 years to be the arch enemy of the small central and east European nations."

German Incendiary Squad Destroyed Priceless Treasures

London, Feb. 1—(CP)—A German incendiary squad in Italy wantonly destroyed priceless works of art and important archives of European history dating from 1238 to 1811 despite a plea by Italian authorities to save them, War Secretary Sir James Grigg told the House of Commons today.

The outrage occurred Sept. 30 at Livardi, where the Italians had deposited art treasures from Naples —886 cases of selected documents from state archives and a quantity of museum pieces.

Among the objects destroyed were registers of the Hohenstaufen and Angevin kings of Naples, kings of the House of Aragon and the Bourbon dynasty, and 60 to 70 paintings including an early portrait by Botticelli and a Madonna and Child by Luini.

Says Nazi General, Now Dead, in Plot To Replace Goering

London, February 1 —(CP)— Moscow radio broadcast a Tass dispatch from Zurich today asserting Col.-Gen. Hans Jesschonnek, 44-year-old Chief of Staff of the German Air Force, whose sudden death was announced in Berlin last Aug. 20, had been involved in a plot to replace Reichsmarshal Hermann Goering.

The Tass dispatch, as quoted by the Moscow radio, said "Goering discovered that Jesschonnek had been making private contacts with certain air force generals to discuss the replacement of Goering by a seasoned air force general . . ."

After Jesschonnek's death, Tass reported, important changes were noted in the air force command. The Berlin radio reported last August Jesschonnek had died at Goering's headquarters following a "serious illness."

POLICE COURT

Convicted of being found in possession of two beer permits and two permits to purchase wine under his own name, which is contrary to the L.C.A., Pte. Aberdeen Maracle, C.A.S.F., stationed at Camp Borden, was sentenced to serve fourteen days on each charge. Also a plea of guilty brought 14 days in default of the payment of a drunk charge, but all jail terms are to run concurrent and date from the time of his arrest, and Maracle will be turned over to the military authorities at the expiration of his sentence next Tuesday.

Captain K. R. Holmes, adjutant of the Argyll Light Infantry, appeared as observing officer, and informed the court Maracle was reported as being a good soldier with no military crime sheet. Maracle was fined $10 and costs, or 14 days in default on the two permit charges, as well as the drunk count —the sentences to run concurrently in default.

Ross Wannamaker, Belleville, was fined $25 and costs after being convicted on a careless driving charge while Melbourne Barriage, also of this city, was assessed $10 and costs for failing to notify the Highway Department after having purchased a motor vehicle.

When Ray Woods, Belleville, failed to respond to his name when called to face an assault charge, Crown Attorney B. C. Donnan, K.C. asked for a bench warrant for his immediate arrest. His Worship signed the warrant before the next case was heard.

Two inebriates, one a woman, paid fines after pleading guilty to charges of drunkenness.

Frank Goddard, of this city, was given one year in the Reformatory after being convicted of non-support. "This case has been in the courts for months on end. This man doesn't intend to support his wife and child and I recommend he be severely dealt with," stated Crown Attorney Donnan in moving for sentence.

Work Stoppage Ends Before Noon

Detroit, Feb. 1 —(AP)— A stoppage of production of centre wing bomber assemblies at the Ford-operated Willow Run plant ended shortly before noon today, a company spokesman said, after 625 of approximately 925 employees who demonstrated in favor of a wage demand, returned to their jobs.

The Ford Motor Company spokesman said 300 other workers had left the plant after the demonstration began.

The wage dispute, he said, involving the workers' demands for a 10-cent hourly wage increase, is to be submitted to the Regional War Labor Board.

The spokesman said 169 workers on a night shift started a demonstration half an hour before the end of their shift, and that the 925 day shift workers milled about for several hours this morning before they started work.

Says Hitler Agents Filter Into Canary Is. And Rio de Oro

New York, Feb. 1—Moscow radio quoted advices from Lisbon today saying 250 "Hitlerite agents" had filtered into the Canary Islands and the Spanish west African colony of Rio de Oro during the last four months through the Spanish port of Cadiz.

"Most of these agents were transported to the Canary Islands and to Rio de Oro by air," said the broadcast, recorded by the United States Foreign Broadcast Intelligence Service.

"Moreover the Spanish authorities did not hinder them in any way. Among the spies who left Spain are some Germans and many Spanish and French nationals.

"Lisbon quarters say that these agents are assigned especially to wrecking work in French West Africa and in Equatorial Africa."

The colony of Rio de Oro adjoins French Morocco on the south. The Canary Islands are located about 60 miles off its coast.

Government Crisis Believed Brewing In Argentina

Montevideo, Feb. 1. (AP)— A government crisis is brewing in Argentina as a result of her break with the Axis, private reports said today, but predicted that President Gen. Pedro Ramirez would remain in power with a reshuffled cabinet.

At the same time it was reported that Gen. Arturo Rawson, who recently quit as Ambassador to Brazil, had been denied permission to return to Argentina. Rawson, co-leader of the June Argentine revolution, was president for two days.

(An Associated Press dispatch from Buenos Aires said Foreign Minister Alberto Gilbert had accepted the resignation of Ruiz Guinazu as Argentine Ambassador to Spain and that Felipe Espil, former Ambassador to the United States would succeed him. Guinazu said he was quitting for personal reasons.)

Claims Damage For Husband's Death in Crash

Montreal, Feb. 1 (CP)—For the first time since the war started a damage action yesterday was presented in Superior Court by the widow of an accredited war correspondent.

Mrs. Edouard Baudry, claims $8,375 for the death of her husband who was killed when the aircraft in which he was going to the Casablanca Churchill-Roosevelt conference was fired upon by anti-aircraft guns over Spanish territory.

The action was taken against the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation for which, Mrs. Baudry said, her husband was to broadcast to Canada from the historic meeting place in Jan. 1943.

Mrs. Baudry claims that her husband had a $10,000 insurance policy but that it was not in force because an extra war risk premium had not been paid.

She claims the extra premium should have been paid by the C.B.C. or the C.B.C. should have protected her husband otherwise to the extent of $10,000 while he was on duty as a war correspondent.

The insurance company, she said, granted her $2,500 under her husband's policy.

BRITAIN AND U. S. SHOULD CONTINUE TO WORK TOGETHER

"If We Are Together, Nothing is Impossible," Says Sir Godfrey Haggard

CANADA'S PART

Toronto, Jan. 31 — (CP)—Britain and the United States have always stood together against aggressors, Sir Godfrey Haggard, British Consul-General in New York, said today, advocating that the two powers continue to work together in the future.

In a speech prepared for delivery to the Canadian Club of Toronto, Sir Godfrey recalled lend-lease aid and the exchange of leases of British West Indies and Newfoundland bases for over-age American destroyers.

"Cannot we capitalize on this innate capacity for sensible agreements between us?" he asked. Quoting from Prime Minister Churchill, he added "If we are together, nothing is impossible; if we are divided, all will fail."

Canada as Interpreter

Sir Godfrey said the "spreading Dominions" of the United States had grown up "under exactly the same internal impulses as our empire has — the outward thrust of a strong united people against weaker and less advanced neighbors." He pictured "the Empire of the United States…growing simply because it had to, to the west coast and beyond; to Alaska and Hawaii; to the Philippines and Panama; and, because the war must be won, even to bases in the British West Indies, Newfoundland, Greenland and Iceland."

The Consul-General called upon Canada to try to interpret the British Empire to the people of the United States — "to say to them that our society of British nations stands ready as ever hand in hand with the United States to march on together 'in majesty, in justice and in peace.'"

'British Empire is a Hard Fact'

"The British Empire…is a hard, hard fact, one of the really hard facts of the world today. It is fighting a total war now and after the war it will still be there, fighting for a total peace. When we say we mean to maintain our empire it is a defensive stabilization war aim. For British strength is American strength. We support each other."

Turning to Empire relations, he said "the Statute of Westminster recorded so many declarations of independence peacefully won and gladly accorded. They are also now seen to be declarations of inter-dependence. If self-determination can mean an act of separation, it can also, the Dominions say, mean an act of association…we have taught the world something new there between us; an idea that is going to play a great part in the history of the years to come."

Sir Godfrey concluded his speech with a tribute to Canada for her support of Britain in the war, mentioning the $1,000,000,000 gift to the United Nations, the Commonwealth Air Training Plan, the role played by Canadian airmen in the Battle of Britain and "the priceless assistance of the great Canadian navy."

Swedish Naval Circles Anxious Over Red Advance

Think Russian Fleet Units May Soon Break Into Baltic and Threaten Sweden's Traffic With Germany and Finland

By ROBERT STURDEVANT
Associated Press Staff Writer

Stockholm, Jan. 31 — (AP)—The Russian advance toward Estonia created uneasiness today in Swedish naval circles, which speculated that powerful Russian fleet units might soon break into the Baltic and threaten Sweden's traffic with Finland and Germany.

Since 1942, the Russian Baltic fleet has been bottled up in the Gulf of Finland and restricted to limited operations from its base at Kronstadt. With the occupation of Estonia, the Germans threw an extensive minefield and submarine booms across the narrow neck of the gulf from Baltisch port (Baltiski) to Finland.

A Swedish naval officer, E. Oeberg, writing in the Stockholm Tidningen, said the Russian advance opened the possibility of an early Russian occupation of Baltisch Port.

The Russian fleet and air force operating from Estonia could isolate Finland and Germany from traffic with the eastern Baltic countries and make traffic between Finland and Sweden difficult. Swedish iron ore is one of the main raw materials of the German arsenal.

Oeberg named the following ships as comprising the Russian Baltic fleet: the 33,000-ton battleship October Revolution; the 8,000-ton cruisers Kirov and Maxim Gorky; the 2,000-ton destroyers Leningrad and Minsk; 10 other destroyers of 1,700 tons each; numerous torpedo boats and some submarines.

Oeberg urged a strengthening of the Swedish destroyer force and asserted that in 1942 Russian submarines attacked Swedish merchant ships in Swedish waters. He warned that the Russians might even occupy the Aaland Islands in the southern part of the Gulf of Bothnia between Finland and Sweden.

FRENCH, U. S. TROOPS RIP HOLES IN GUSTAV LINE

Allies Throw Back Counter-Attack West of Littoria

Anzio Beachhead Now Fourteen Miles Long and Eight Miles Deep

TROOPS POUR IN

By EDWARD KENNEDY
Associated Press War Correspondent

Algiers, Feb. 2—(AP)—French and United States troops converging north of Cassino have torn away several miles of the Nazis' strong Gustav line, and are advancing deeper in a grim struggle. Allied headquarters announced today.

To the northwest, on the Anzio bridgehead, British and American invasion troops threw back a strong German counter-attack west of Littoria supported by tanks and artillery, and advanced in some areas.

British troops are fighting hard near Campoleone 16 miles from Rome, and American units are at grips with the enemy near Cisterna 14 miles northeast of Anzio.

A headquarters officer declared the Germans still are building up a large force near the beachhead, and a heavy counter-attack may be expected soon.

Reinforcements Pouring In

Allied reinforcements are pouring into the beachhead, now 14 miles long and eight miles deep on the average, with some prongs running considerably farther inland.

On the main 5th Army front, American and French troops are fighting side by side as the spearheads of their attack join in the area north of Cassino.

They advanced a mile, seizing more heights, and U. S. units now are within a mile of Terelle, some five miles northwest of Cassino. French forces took 100 prisoners yesterday ,and Americans captured 50. A battle now is raging on Mount Manna southeast of Terelle, and German pockets in nearby areas are being mopped up.

Attack Behind Tanks

Troops attacking behind tanks entered the northern half of some old Italian barracks near Cassino, transformed by the Germans into a bulwark of the Gustav line, and took prisoners.

Patrols pushed to within 300 yards of Cassino Monday night, but withdrew under heavy machine-gun fire from Nazi squads left in the town to delay the Allied advance and deny use of the main road to Rome, highway No. 6, passing through Cassino.

Evidencing the intensity of fighting on the Cassino front, French Gen. Paul Devinck, chief of Gen. Henri Giraud's personal staff, said French losses in two months in Italy had equalled their losses for the entire Tunisian campaign. Devinck, returning after a visit to the front, said important casualties had been inflicted on the Germans, but the French had suffered higher losses.

Radio France at Algiers said the main coastal railway supplying Germans in the Cassino area had been cut by Allied forces which battled their way to Campoleone.

A Berlin broadcast estimated 250,000 men were engaged on both sides in the Italian bridgehead. "One hundred Allied guns are facing a single German division alone," another broadcast said.

The part of the Gustav line near Cassino through which the Allies have smashed consisted of dugouts, pillboxes, minefields and barbed wire entanglements on the slopes running down to the Rapido river. Farther back were observation posts from which the Nazis poured down accurate artillery fire.

Pay High Price For Victory

The Allies have paid a high price for victory there, but finally have penetrated the entire thickness of the line. The Germans still have natural features as defences, and some miles beyond lies their "Adolf Hitler" line, strength of which has not been tested.

German counter-attacks decreased against British troops in the Garigliano sector of the 5th Army front.

On the 8th Army front Canadian troops knocked out three 75-millimetre anti-tank guns in a short gain against stiff German opposition. The Canadians won positions commanding a crossroads just southeast of Tollo, five miles inland from Ortona.

Canadian troops of the British 8th Army, fighting near the Adraitic, attacked yesterday in the direction of Tollo, about four miles inland from the sea. Headquarters reported fierce German resistance but a short advance put the Canadians astride the Tollo-Villagrade Road, a secondary highway paralleling the coast.

GERMANS RUSH REINFORCEMENTS INTO DALMATIA

Nazi Troops Taken From Greece to Face Sudden Partisan Threat

TITO STYMIES PLAN

London, Feb. 2 — (CP) — German reinforcements, rushed from Greece, has been thrown into bloody fighting against Yugoslav Partisans in Dalmatia, while in Macedonia the Nazi two-weeks-old offensive has collapsed, headquarters of Marshal Josip Broz (Tito) announced today.

The sudden Partisan threat to German positions in Dalmatia centred in the Cetina Valley between the towns of Knin and Benkovac, west of the Adriatic ports of Split and Zara, Tito's communique said.

Tito's forces, greatly strengthened by the increased supply of Allied war materials reaching them, apparently have stymied Germany's winter campaign to crush the Partisans, who have successfully held off the better part of 16 divisions.

Only small-scale fighting was reported from the rest of the 245-mile-long front stretching from northern Croatia to Montenegro.

700 M.P.H. Forecast, Globe-Girdling Planes Of 16 to 24 Engines

Toronto, Feb. 2 —(CP)—Speeds of 700 miles an hour and globe-girdling planes with 16 .to 24 engines were predicted here today by D. P. MacIntyre of Prestwick, Scotland, a director of Scottish Aviation Company.

Mr. MacIntyre, a group captain in the Royal Air Force Auxiliary, arrived last night from Washington after a survey of United States aviation plants. He represents the British Air Ministry and the Minister of Aircraft Production.

Luxury and tourist travel in post-war trans-atlantic flying were predicted by Mr. MacIntyre in an interview. The latter would cost about $250 and would include private sleeping compartments, he believed, with planes of this type flying non-stop to the British Isles from Montreal or Ottawa.

Canada has possibly the best future in aviation of any country in the world because of its situation on the Great North Circle Route, Mr. MacIntyre said.

FORMER BELGIUM CABINET MEMBER REPORTED SHOT

New York, Feb. 2 —(AP)—Francois Bovesse, a former member of the Belgian cabinet, was shot in his home at Nuamr yesterday by "four unknown persons," the Nazi-controlled Brussels radio said today. It was not brought out whether his injuries were fatal. The O.W.I. said Bovesse was known as a strong anti-Nazi.

SIXTEEN SOVIET REPUBLICS GAIN OWN AUTONOMY

Empowered to Deal Directly With Other Countries and Raise Their Own Army

COMPOSE SOVIET UNION

By HENRY C. CASSIDY
(Associated Press Staff Writer.)

Moscow, Feb. 2 —(AP)— Foreign diplomats examining the Soviet union's reconstruction of the relationships of its 16 republics with the outside world today saw in the move possibilities for one of the broadest, most elastic foreign policies of any government in the world—one which could give Russia the opportunity to swing great weight in Allied councils.

Increasing interest was shown in the trends the new program might take, especially whether the Soviet union will seek to set up separate representations in the various countries with which it now has diplomatic relationships.

Autonomy of the republics in foreign affairs would give the Soviets the legal right to ask for multiple representation in such councils as the league of nations like that enjoyed by the British Commonwealth.

There are diplomatic authorities here who feel the Russians have pulled off a brilliant piece of work in international diplomacy, no matter what are the immediate developments.

The history-making plan adopted unanimously by the supreme Soviet (Russian Parliament) Tuesday night gave the 16 republics the power to deal directly with other countries and raise their own army units.

Foreign Commissar Molotov submitted the proposition, explaining to the delegates "this new step forward in the nationality question," concerning the various nationalities in the union, resulted "through the success of the Soviet union as a whole in the war against the invader."

Autonomy of the 16 republics—including Estonia, Latvia and Lithuania—would give the Soviets great bargaining power in foreign relations. It is believed that Russia will seek to realize as much as legally possible from the reconstruction.

Denied membership in the league of nations for a long period, refused diplomatic recognition by many nations, Soviet Russia now is progressing fast diplomatically.

PARTIAL EVACUATION ORDERED

New York, Feb. 2 (AP)—The Japanese radio at Batavia said today partial evacution of certain areas in the Japanese cities of Kyoto and Yokosuka had been ordered by the government as an air raid precaution measure.

Similar evacuations, the broadcast said, previously had been carried out in five othere cities — Tokyo, Yokohama, Osaka, Kobe and Nagoya.

RUSSIA BROADCASTS ACCOUNT OF JAPANESE ATROCITIES

London, Feb. 2 —(CP)— The Moscow radio has broadcast "in considerable detail" the official United States account of Japanese atrocities against Allied prisoners of war, the Soviet Monitor said last night.

Destroyers Being Lost at Twice Rate of the First Great War

New York, Feb. 2—(AP)— Contending navies in 53 months of the Second Great War have lost more than twice as many destroyers as the belligerents in the First Great War which lasted about two months less than the present conflict has.

Destroyer losses in the present conflict total 425, compared to 185 between Aug. 1, 1914 and Nov. 11, 1918, official and semi official sources indicate.

Figuring in the increase has been the global scope of present naval patrol and offensive operations, contrasted to concentration of such activity in Atlantic and European waters between 1914 and 1918.

Another factor in the increased expenditure o. destroyer strength probably has been the airplane, a naval weapon of negligible value 30 years ago.

Plane attacks are known to have cost more than one in every five of the combined Anglo-American destroyer losses and an even higher degree of fatality among Japanese ships of this type.

Illustrative of the greater expendability of destroyers in the present war is the British navy's loss of 110 from all causes, including four Canadian destroyers, compared to a toll of 67 in 1914-18.

Even more striking have been American and Japanese casualties in what to these powers has been a full dress naval show as contrasted to the last war.

Allied communiques have reported at least 129 Japanese destroyers sent to the bottom. American destroyer loss is 41 from all causes.

One Japanese and two American destroyers went down in the First Great War.

In the present war, paralleling the trends in 1914-1918, the Royal Navy's destroyer losses have been nearly twice as large as the combined total of 57 of its battleships, battle cruisers, aircraft carriers, cruisers and armed merchantmen.

Ocean Voyage Overseas Austere But Interesting Ottawa Newsman Writes

Editor's Note: Vernon M. Kipp, a member of the editorial staff of the Ottawa Journal, and one of a group of Canadian newspaper and magazine writers who have been invited by the British Ministry of information to see England after four years of war, has cabled a story of his impressions of an ocean trip to the United Kingdom. This is the first of several stories which will appear in the Ontario Intelligencer.

By VERNON M. KIPP
(Special Cable to The Ontario Intelligencer

London, Eng., Feb. 1—After an austere trip by troopship across the North Atlantic to a British Port of disembarkation, we arrived safely in London at midnight not long after the "All Clear" ended a sharp German air attack on the English capital. The crossing was most interesting and worth relating because scores of thousands of Canadians have gone overseas under very similar conditions. We were only a handful of civilians on the ship which was mainly filled with United States troops, including many negroes, but carrying also R. C. A. F. personnel, who caused endless curiosity.

Civilians seemed curiously out of place in the atmosphere so strictly military and overwhelmingly male. Officers and civilians slept six to ten or more in staterooms on bunks, but many troops slept on floor with one blanket and lifebelt for pillow. Two meals only was the daily rule for everyone, and those two were severely plain but substantial. Safety precautions were rigidly enforced. Smoking was sternly prohibited in staterooms and cabins as well as in the passageways and on open decks, and everyone was barred from open decks during the long blackout hours. Boat drills were the order of the day and took place at a designated hour each morning. These drills were most thorough and were announced by the sounding of a claxon horn through out the whole ship. When the warning sounded for life boat drill, everyone dropped whatever he was doing and reported to his boat station on the Promenade deck where he remained until dismissed by the Officer Commanding Troops aboard ship. Nobody stirred a step without his lifebelt over his shoulders and, after the first few days at sea this uncomfortable contraption became almost as indispensable as one's right arm; it was there when you ate your meals, ever present when you took a constitutional around the deck, it was near at hand when you slept, when you bathed or shaved and, to dare leave it behind was akin to a cardinal sin in the eyes of those responsible for the safety of the ship and its passengers.

Articles which had been considered of no importance whatsoever in civilian life, such as flashlights were taken from everyone aboard. These were checked with the pursar who issued a chit which was your claim check at the end of the voyage. Portable radios were also forbidden and were confiscated for the duration of the crossing. Canteens were dry, both those used by the troops and those used by the officers and civilians. Their main feature was American cigarettes at fifty cents a carton.

A considerable path of stormy weather was encountered and one whole day's hot meals couldn't be served troops. Instead of sitting down at tables with comfortable rations, they filed through to get one sandwich for breakfast and two sandwiches plus coffee for dinner. Officers and civilians did somewhat better but not much. Nevertheless, it was a cheerful, good-natured crowd and officers said they found little grumbling among men, who accepted wartime austerities and travel hazards as something expected in this strange new existence.

The contrast between troopship and the dignified comfort of the famous London Hotel Grosvenor House on Park Lane was most striking. Our welcome, following an air raid just before midnight of the night we arrived, was most cordial from officials of the Ministry of Information and from Campbell Moodie representing Canada House. The morning's daylight showed London scarred but expectant, battered but perfectly confident, serene and lovely under springlike sun. Our program for first week includes: A visit to an R. C. A. F. fighter station and a reception by Air Marshal L. S. Breadner, Air Officer Commanding the R. C. A. F. Overseas; a tour of the bombed area of London and a visit to Caxton Hall where British rationing will be explained, after which there will be a luncheon where Rt. Hon. Vincent Massey, Canadian High Commissioner will be host. Canadian army units will be visited in the middle of the week and the navy during the latter part of the week.

Allies Control Most of Underside Of New Guinea

Allied Headquarters, New Guinea, Feb. 2 — (AP) — Allied control of most of the underside of New Guinea was indicated today in an official report that the Japanese had suffered a high-percentage loss in an attack at the mouth of Eilanden river.

Eight enemy barges brought troops to attack a post there manned by Netherlands and Australian soldiers. Four barges were sunk and 60 Japanese killed by the Allied ground forces, an Allied communique said. Australian fliers later bombed and strafed the remaining four, and pilots said they doubted that any of the enemy escaped.

Report of the action was the first headquarters' disclosure of the location of an Allied post on the south New Guinea coast so far from Port Moresby. The mouth of the Eilenden river is about 600 miles northwest of Port Moresby. It also was the first report of Netherlands troops being in action with Australians.

Fighters and bombers from Allied bases in the Solomons hammered the Japanese base at Rabaul, New Britain, again Sunday in three attacks which destroyed 23 enemy planes in the air, at least five Japanese bombers on the ground, sank a medium cargo ship in the harbor and set fire to a destroyer and two more medium-size merchantmen. The attacks cost the Allies 3 planes.

NO PRICE INCREASE

Ottawa, Feb. 2—(CP)—The Prices Board last night announced adjustment of leather and footwear prices for tanners and manufacturers, but stipulated there must be no increase in the retail price of shoes. One order provides that tanners, jobbers and leather dealers are to sell their leather to shoe manufacturers at a discount of two per cent instead of four per cent as formerly. Another provides that shoe manufacturers may increase their selling prices by three per cent rather than one per cent as formerly.

Churchill Asked Pertinent Question

London, Feb. 2—(CP) — Prime Minister Churchill was asked in the House of Commons today if the government woulud "encourage" a trend of Irish opinion seeking to incorporate Eire as a permanent member of the British Commonwealth and replied: "As long as their atitude remains what it is as regards the war, our relations with them must take account of that dominating factor."

He declared that he was "not aware of any alteration in the standpoint of the southern Irish government."

The question was raised by Emanuel Shinwell, Labor, who cited Gen. Richard Mulcahy's recent suggestion that Eire join Britain.

Mr. Churchill pointed out that Gen. Mulcahy is not a member of the Eire government, but is an opposition leader. Pressed by Shinwell to accept Mulcahy's speech as "an approach," the Prime Minister added:

"I should hesitate to make any statement because of many elements of gravity without having an opportunity of considering my words very carefully."

Few Nazi Planes Get to Convoy

Algiers, Feb. 2 (AP)—R.A.F. Beaufighters of the coastal air force intercepted 40 German bombers 50 miles from a convoy off North Africa, shooting down three Junkers-88s, but a few planes got through to the vonvoy, headquarters said today.

The action took place at dusk, with the Nazi force consisting of Junker-88's and Heinkel 11s.

The German communique claimed German torpedo planes successfully attacked an Allied supply convoy last night off North Africa, hitting a cruiser and seven freighters totalling 52,000 tons. Some suffered heavw damage, it added, and two British planes were shot down.

MARINES BATTLE FOR KEY POINT ON MARSHALLS

Strong Force Covered By Tons of Naval Might Lands on Monday

ATOLLS BY-PASSED

By WILLIAM HIPPLE
(Associated Press Staff Writer.)

Pearl Harbor, Feb. 2 (AP)—Bulwarked by more than 2,000,000 tons of naval might, United States forces which have invaded Japan's Marshall Islands by a backdoor route battled today for Kwajalein Atoll, a key position conquest of which may topple the Japanese from 800 square miles of mid-Pacific territory.

The invasion opened Monday against Kwajalein, with 4th division marines going ashore on the north and U.S. army veterans of Attu landing from the south. They struck in the fortified centre of western (Ralik) line of Marshall Atolls.

The by-passed eastern (Radak) line as well as those Atolls north and south of Kwajalein were placed in such a position by the invasion stroke that Rear-Admiral Richmond K. Turner, commanding amphibious operations, said:-

"We can either take them or let them wither on the vine."

The marines won islet positions near the enemy's Roi air base on the northern end of Kwajalein, while nearly 60 miles to the south, 7th infantry division veterans of Attu landed close to Kwajalein islet, a heavily defended shipping, seaplane and submarine base.

Kwajalein Atoll is 66 miles long and forms the hub of defences among the 32 Marshall Atolls which bar the way to Japan's naval base of Truk, more than 1,200 miles to the southwest, and to Tokyo 2,700 statute miles to the northwest.

Powerful Escorting Fleet

Under command of Vice-Admiral R. A. Spruance, a powerful fleet escorted transports and landing craft to the invasion scene, 2,000 miles southwest of Pearl Harbor. Before the landings, big guns of the naval escort churned Kwajalein and other atolls with a terrific bombardment.

Constant support is being afforded the ground forces by land-based planes and hundreds of planes from the carrier forces.

During more than 20 straight days of neutralizing raids prior to invasion more than 300 enemy planes were destroyed or damaged, 113 of them on the last two days, in the Marshalls. More than 20 tons of

R.A.F. Photographic Pilots Perform Vital Work in Flights Over Europe

By LOUIS V. HUNTER
Canadian Press Staff Writer

London, Feb. 2 —(CP)— Single-seater aircraft, armed with nothing more lethal than a verey signal gun, range almost unmolested in solitary flights over enemy territory doing work which, though not spectacular, is playing a major part in winning the war.

The aircraft, generally specially-adapted Spitfires, belong to the R. A. F. photographic unit. Instead of guns, the machines carry extra petrol for long-range flying and some of them have been flown as far as Berlin and back, an approximately 1,200-mile trip.

The unit's work essentially is concerned with the photographing of bomb damage. But it has done other jobs. P. R. U. pilots were the first to find the Bismarck and during the invasion season in the summer and fall of 1940, photo Recce pilots were over the invasion ports as often as three times a day. Possible future targets, airfields and shipping are photographed.

WO. Keith Campbell, an Australian pilot, told in a broadcast of some of the jobs he has done.

"All our work is not as interesting as bomb-damage, assessment flights," he said. "I have gone on many sorties where I have just photographed field after field of occupied Europe and Germany. It seems a bit pointless until you know the reason behind this work, but from these photographs, maps that will guide our invasion army are made . . . An ordinary photograph that I might take of a field can be the source of valuable information to the economic warfare people and those who will be concerned with the feeding of Europe when it is free again—for from this photograph the experts can tell what the present crop is like and they can decide what sort of crop can be expected from this field in the years to come.

"We have taken so many photographs of Europe since the war got going that a spade of earth could not be turned there without our knowing about it— we simply compare present photographs with past ones. Our pictures reveal how much rolling stock is available in Europe and what it is being used for. The German-supplied rumors from neutral sources concerning various concentrations of troops and fortifications of their western wall can be either confirmed or proved false by our reconnaissance."

It was Campbell who took the first pictures of Berlin after the start of the big raids on the German capital. Unbothered by flak, he made four photographic runs over the city and obtained a complete set of pictures. He saw one fighter but it didn't come near him, and one two previous trips to Berlin he met no opposition.

Pilots have their amusing moments on these sorties. Returning from Dusseldorf, Campbell saw two Focke-Wulf's coming in to attack him. He went into a circle and kept turning as sharply as he could. The FW's did the same, but because he was turning in a smaller circle he eventually landed on their tails. One who obviously thought Campbell was armed caught sight of him in his mirror peeled off and disappeared in a steep dive. His mate immediately pushed off, too.

"Sitting there in my cockpit with only a verey pistol, I laughed," Campbell said, "having sent two gallant Luftwaffe pilots running for their lives."

Seize Border Town Of Keikino to Help Speed Up Drive

Capture Kingisepp Gives Reds' Baltic Fleet Chance to Help In Land Campaign

WANT TO TAKE NARVA

By EDDY GILMORE
Associated Press Staff Writer

Moscow, Feb. 2 — (AP) — The Red Army west of Leningrad, pressing a strong campaign for liberation of Estonia after seizing the border town of Keikino, made swift progress today down the broad highway and railroad which are parallel between captured Kingisepp and Narva.

With the capture of Kingisepp, the Russians now control the enemy southern shore of the Gulf of Finland. This gives the Baltic fleet an opportunity to participate in the land campaign as it did in helping lift the siege of Leningrad.

Narva would be one of the greatest prizes of the offensive, for it controls the eastern shore of Lake Peipus, along which are numerous fairly large towns. Narva with its railroads to the south and west is a key to a vast area.

Narva, on the west bank of the Plissia River, is five miles inside Estonia and may be a tough nut to crack because the Germans will fight desperately with reserves from Reval.

South and southwest of Leningrad, the Russian offensive developed speed. The Red Army was sweeping in more large areas and thickly-populated villages and moving ever closer toward the Leningrad-Pskov railroad below Luga.

Front dispatches said the Germans continued to flee in some sectors. Huge amounts of booty are being collected and indications are that nothing like a similar amount of war material has been captured in the war to date.

A Copenhagen dispatch to the Stockholm newspaper Dagens Nyheter said the Germans had seized seven Danish ships for use in evacuating Baltic areas menaced by the Russians.

R.A.F. MOSQUITOS STAB AT BERLIN, AID DESTRUCTION

16,500 Tons of Explosives Loosed on Capital During January

OTHER TARGETS HIT

London, Feb. 2—(AP)—Britain's swift Mosquito bombers lashed again last night at Berlin, still smoking from Sunday's heavy hammering, and today large formations of Allied planes renewed their attack on the "invasion coast" of France.

United States heavy bombers with fighter escort struck at military objectives in northern France, it was announced, and medium bombers, without loss, bombed an airfield in Normandy.

The daylight raiders roared across the channel early in the morning and came streaming back 45 minutes later. The operation against the Pas-de-Calais area reopened attacks which were interrupted yesterday for the first time in nine days.

The Mosquito, stab set air raid sirens howling in the devastated German capital for the fourth time in six nights.

Over Western Germany

The raiders also attacked other targets in Western Germany, the identity of which was not disclosed. One plane was lost in the night's operations.

The air ministry disclosed Tuesday night the R. A. F. had loosed 16,500 tons of explosives on Germany during January to break all monthly records for bombing attacks on the Reich as additional details filtered through concerning the damage inflicted on Berlin.

Dispatches from Stockholm quoted travellers arriving from Berlin as saying the German capital was a "dead city" and that 10 more attacks on the scale of the most recent R. A. F. raids would finish it completely.

The air ministry review said the weight of bombs dropped on Berlin alone in six heavy raids during January totalled more than 9,300 tons.

Six Massive Assaults

Aggregate tonnage unloaded on Germany exceeded by 500 tons the figure for the previous record month —August, 1943.

In addition to the 16,500 tons dropped on Germany, approximately 1,500 tons of explosives were showered down on other European objectives by the R. A. F. last month.

Besides the six massive assaults on Berlin, the R. A. F. also struck heavy blows a. Stettin, Brunswick and Magdeburg as well as attacking Germany on a smaller scale on 19 other nights.

Altogether Britain lost 385 planes over Europe during January, and destroyed 120 enemy aircraft—93 during offensive operations over the continent and 27 over Britain.

Yesterday was marked by a comparative lull in the Allied aerial offensive, operations being limited to attacks on enemy shipping off the coast of Norway during which Allied airmen sank an armed minesweeper, damaged an escort vessel and set afire a medium-sized merchantman.

Better Than Expected

It was disclosed officially that the R.A.F.'s commanders are satisfied with the campaign to knock the Nazi capital out of the war.

"We are doing better in the bombing of Berlin than we expected," said Air Vice Marshal Sir Robert Saundby, Deputy Chief of R.A.F. bomber command, when he was knighted recently at Buckingham Palace.

Icy Pavements Cause of Many Car Accidents

Snow-covered pavements were attributed the principal factor in several motor crashes that occurred on city streets yesterday when considerable property damage resulted, but fortunately no person sustained serious injury.

Shortly before six o'clock on Coleman Street, two automobiles collided as one skidded when attempting to pass a parked vehicle. S. S. Chisholm, R.R. No. 2, Belleville, was proceeding south and turned out to pass the parked car as he was meeting a north-bound taxi-cab driven by Freeland Fitzgerald, 169 Foster Ave. Damage estimated at $150 resulted to the front portions of both cars. Fender damage resulted when a motor car driven by F. Sine, Belleville, sideswiped a large transport driven by Albert Skemer, 150 Carleton Street, Ottawa. Skemer informed police Sine stopped, gave his name and licence plate No and then drove away. Here the street was covered with slippery snow.

At the intersection of Queen and William Streets, a motor car driven by Mrs. Bruce Graham, 16 Bellevue Apts., skidded into another automobile driven by Thos. ### POINT TRAVERSE

Fishermen Prepare For Spring Season

Point Traverse, Feb. 2. —Residents of this community one year ago, were cut off from mail service for over a week, and supplies of food were dropped via air to this isolated community. The Point Traverse school was closed for several days, owing to township roads being blocked by large drifts of snow.

Springlike weather conditions which were being enjoyed by inhabitants of this community recently assisted fishermen in putting their fishing crafts into readiness for the spring opening. Gulls and ducks are disporting about in open waters, while bald head eagles scan the mainland for feed. Muskrats are frolicking about in harbor water.

Old timers in offering their prognostications remind us to recall back four years ago, 1940, when on March 26, thousands of Canadian citizens were deprived of their franchise by snow-blocked roads, during the Dominion election.

Township hunters report foxes being very numerous in the Black Creek vicinity. One hunter has already bagged thirteen foxes this winter.

Although no word has been received from the Main Duck Island, 12 miles off here, it is presumed that ice harvesting at the fishing colony has been commenced, as weather conditions at the present time are very favorable for the storing of ice at the island. All help to assist with the ice harvesting, will be brought to the isolated island via plane, from Watertown, N.Y. The Main Ducks is owned by Mr. John Foster Dulles, eminent New York lawyer and important church layman.

Chas. Hardwick Presented With Purse Of Money on Completion of 40 Years Service As Composing Room Foreman

Popular Member of Ontario Intelligencer Staff Honored by Associates

48 YEARS IN CITY

A newspaperman first, last and always, and one to whom the smell of printer's ink is as his life's blood, Mr. Charles Hardwick, composing room foreman at the Ontario Intelligencer, recently completed 40 years service in that capacity with the Daily Ontario and since 1930, with the Ontario Intelligencer.

In honor of the occasion and in appreciation of his lengthy service with the newspaper, members of the staff presented Mr. Hardwick with a substantial purse. It had been planned to mark the occasion with a short ceremonial but owing to a cold Mr. Hardwick was confined to his home on the anniversary and the purse was instead sent to his residence on Burton Street with regrets of the staff that he was indisposed.

Born in England

Born in England, Mr. Hardwick came to Canada as a young man and settled first at Collingwood where his first job was in the composing room of the town newspaper. Forty-eight years ago he came to Belleville to enter the employ of the former Daily Ontario under the late T. S. Carman. Eight years later he went to Galt for a brief period but forty years ago returned to Belleville as composing room foreman at the plant of the Daily Ontario, a position which he has since filled.

Three Sons in Newspaper Work

Like father, like son, is an oft-heard saying, but that axiom has never been more truly carried out than by members of the Hardwick family. Three of Mr. Hardwick's sons have followed in their father's footsteps to become linotype operators, composing room or set-up men. Today Bert Hardwick is advertising and newspaper make-up man with the Ontario Intelligencer, while Cecil is a linotype operator with special qualifications in job printing. Reginald was formerly a linotype operator with the Ontario Intelligencer but resigned early in the war to enlist in the Canadian Army.

Arduous Work

And just what are the duties of a composing room foreman in a newspaper plant? That is a natural question from the uninitiated. The composing room foreman must see that linotype operators turn out the required number of columns of type each day; to oversee the arrangement of advertisements and type in the page; to see that necessary corrections are made, to make up the pages and to "mat" them ready for casting into plates for the press.

All the while he must eye the clock keeping always in mind the "deadline" at which each respective page must "go down" for casting that the newspaper deadline may be met. That, as composing room foreman, is Charles Hardwick and a more loyal member of the staff no newspaper has ever had.

City Council Can Estimate on $10,000 From Waterworks Surplus This Year

The Public Utilities Commission will notify the City Council the members can reasonably estimate on $10,000 from waterworks surplus for 1944 in addition to refund of hydrant rentals and the annual adjustment in street lighting charges, this action being taken at the meeting of the commission held on Tuesday afternoon. Ald. H. J. Clarke, chairman off Finance and City Controller H. D. Bateman appeared before the commission requesting a portion of the surplus from the waterworks operation. Ald. Clarke stated that the commission had advanced $9,000 last year and hoped the members could see their way clear to increase this amount this year.

Chairman M. P. Duff told the delegation that the reservoir was in the course of construction, and as it was being paid for out of profits without the issuance of debentures, it had kept the bank balance at a low ebb. He stated the commission wished to assist the city and that the request of the delegation would be entertained. After the delegation had withdrawn, the members decided on $10,000 being given.

Request Granted

Messrs. R. A. Pringle and Lorne McDougall appeared before the commission as private citizens requesting the commission to make some preparations to build a small dock for the use of yachtsmen who shelter their boats in the little cove near the Purification Plant. The commission looked with favor on the request and this landing will be built when the new plant is completed. In furtherance of this project the commission will request the City Council to close Sidney Street, south of the railway tracks, the commission to pay the expense of advertising the same. It was also decided to put a covered drain from the north of the plant down to the bay so that the ground can be made into a beauty spot.

No Rate Adjustment

There will be no local rate adjustment of the Hydro rates according to a letter received from the Hydro Electric Power Commission of Ontario. The secretary advised the local commission that a study was being made of the whole province, which will not be completed until the end of February and that it would not be advisable to make an individual local rate adjustment before completion of the study.

Given Power to Vote

The chairman of the commission was given the power to vote at Chamber of Commerce meetings and if not present any member of the commission or the manager can be delegated by the chairman. The manager was asked to take up the complaint of Ald. H. J. Allin respecting the shutdown of water on Saturday. Mr. Scott stated the trouble was a broken main at the corner of Pine and Chatham Streets and when the trouble was located, it was impossible to shut the valve off and it was necessary to shut off seven other valves in order to dry out that portion of the pipe so that the valve could be repaired. The commission ordered the purchase of a hydraulic pipe pusher at a cost of $332 net. Mr. Scott stated this piece of equipment was needed because last year one had to be borrowed on two occasions and valuable time was wasted.

SAMUEL J. COLLIER
(Picton.)

Picton, Feb. 2.—Agent for Canada Steamship Lines for the past 23 years, Samuel J. Collier passed away in Prince Edward County hospital late Friday. He had not been well for more than a year and had been forced to give up active work and entered hospital the Sunday previous to his passing.

Mr. Collier was well known throughout the district and death closes a useful life. His friendly, obliging nature won him many friends who will miss him.

Born at South Bay, he was the son of Captain James Collier and his wife, Elizabeth Farrington. In those days, schooners called at the wharf there and Mr. Collier came early to love the water. He sailed first with his father on the Reindeer, which operated between Quinte ports. He also sailed on the Ella Ross, the Alexandria and the Quinte which earlier plied local waters.

His mother died when he was nine days old and he made his home with the late Capt. and Mrs. Philip Farrington.

As agent for Canada Steamship Lines here for 23 years he gave valued service. When ill health forced him from carrying on since November 1942, the company showed their appreciation by retaining him as agent until the time of his passing. He was popular with the employees and ever thoughtful of their welfare, and they in turn reciprocated these kindnesses.

Mr. Collier was a member of the Oddfellows Lodge for more than fifty years and served as an officer. He was a member of the United Church and a loyal Conservative. He was a home lover and did not seek public office.

Winter's Touch

Winter's mantle of three and a half inches of snow has fallen upon this district and removed on the last day of January the appearance of the grass of spring in the fields, lawns and parks. On the last day of the first month of the year the snowfall was heavier than in the other thirty days of the month.

He would have been a venturesome one who would have wagered that there would not be something of a real winter this year. Monday's storm was not a heavy one but it attracted more attention than many a more severe storm in other winters, because snow has been so scarce. However the fall was really light and would ordinarily have been passed over but it was news this year.

Now there is an opportunity for those who would risk a wager about the coming two months. Today is the socalled halfway mark for on this day, February second, the bear is supposed to see his shadow at noon if there is to be winter for the next six weeks or spring if he does not see the shadow.

Whatever the nature of the coming weeks and months about half of the winter period has passed without seeming very much like the ordinary season and so if there is a fairly hard spell from now on, it will not be so hard to bear as a winter that sets in early in November and lasts well into April.

Eleven Years After

Hitler has begun his twelfth year as the Fuehrer of Germany and faces for the coming year the worst situation he or any aggressor has ever had to contend with during the course of history. Before the year 1944 is out, the Allied world hopes that Hitler and Nazism will have been finished as Mussolini is finished and that as far as Europe is concerned the dark page of Nazi aggression will have been turned over. On Sunday, the eleventh anniversary of his accession to power, his speech was broadcast and it revelled in the anxious gloom of his mind. His look over the coming months is dark as his references to the situation indicate. He sees arrayed against him the greatest armament in history, piled up during the years 1939-44 by the Allies which began with a grave handicap while Hitler and Germany were armed to the teeth when he ordered his troops across the border of Poland. Today the Allied power is what Hitler never expected to see—democracy thoroughly armed.

At New Year's the Nazi leader prophesied that there would be no victors in the war but only the survivors and the annihilated. Now he reverts to his old theme and sees a victor, Nazi Germany or Soviet Russia, the former meaning, he said, the salvation of Europe, the latter the destruction of the civilization of Europe. He raised the dread of Bolshevism again as he did long ago. But he finally came to state that Germany would win and he said that through bombing her spirit would be made so strong that Germany would rule the world down the centuries.

But his spirit was gloomy. He spoke of the possibility of victory of the Russians and held out dread of Russia. He said that the Kremlin would plan the extermination of the German people.

Because Hitler did not refer to military events, the Nazi news agency Transocean's chief correspondent must have thought the Germans would think this odd and explained that "instead he touched on those things which he considered the decisive questions of the war. In these serious times the Germans are seeking for a deeper sense of events."

That of course is but an effort to slur over the disasters of the German army and U-boat campaign. The "sense of events" is the evidence of Allied superiority that is still growing.

Hitler's stress of the Bolshevik menace is a return to his old style of talk before he forced the war. He kept off that line of argument while he thought he was deceiving Russia in 1940 and 1941, though Russia saw through his plot and later Britain and the United States warned Russia of the Hitler plan to attack Russia in 1941.

Latterly his propaganda force under Goebbels has been making frantic efforts to split the Allies of the west and Russia by trying to stir up fears of Bolshevism. But the Russians and the other Allies are too deeply interested in the overthrow of the Nazi menace to listen to his frantic alarms which neither the Russians, nor the British and Americans and other Allies have believed. They know Hitler's propensity for lies and deceit. They have all seen Germany's course of aggression, have seen her brutal hand displayed in every part of Europe, and her atrocities against the overrun peoples and particularly in Russia.

He lashed at international Jewry with the typical Hitler venom he showed in the pre-war days of the Nazi persecutions of the Jews.

For the German people it was a dark picture which reiterated that "the utmost sacrifices will yet be demanded of home and the front." "The greater the sorrows today, the greater the achievement," he added. That is bitter news to the "herrenfolk," the "supermen" of Germany and the people of Germany. After all his references to Russia, Hitler who revels in deceit told the Germans "this war will be Germany's greatest victory." Such he predicted of the war in Russia two years ago where he has since been thoroughly beaten before Moscow, Stalingrad, Leningrad and at countless other points.

The Nazi leader did not speak directly to the people but he is thought to have read his speech. It lacked the fire of his utterances spoken in the height of his glory before a visible audience.

The whole address aimed at trying to sow discord in the firm ranks of the United Nations. How futile his labor will be can be seen in the determination with which Russia is pushing forward and coming ever and ever nearer to Germany, and with which the other Allies are carrying on their offensives on land, on sea and in the air. The ranks of the United Nations are firm and cannot be broken by the criminal Hitler who is trying in vain to dodge the judgment of the world upon him and Germany for the crimes they have committed against the peace and health of Europe and of the world.

Princess Dies for Love

Prince Louis Schoenburg-Hartenstein, from Vienna, Austria, wrote his wife in England that he was well. He did not know that she was dead. She was buried at Tenby a few weeks ago, and not many people in the little seaside resort had heard the story of her tragic life. Pretty, 22-year-old Dilys Marten, daughter of a British major, met the prince on the ski slopes of the Austrian Arlberg. It was love at first sight, and their wedding was an event of the London season in 1935. They went to his chateau at Steegam-Hallstatersee, and the first of their two boys, Johannes, was born. In 1939, just before the war, Prince Louis sent Dilys and the baby back to England, but he was not allowed to go. Soon their second child, Nicholas, was born. The Prince was allowed to send short, censored messages, but the Princess pined and her health steadily declined.

Tulips Get New Hues

Giant tulips and daffodils in colors never seen before will appear in florists' windows after the war, according to Fred Culpin of Spalding, England, president of a bulb growers' association. "We are only waiting for peace and the end of restrictions to introduce tulips with petals five inches long compared with the one and a half inches of ordinary varieties," he said. "Each bulb is worth $30 or more, but no grower sells any. I have thousands of dollars worth planted in a plot eight yards square. Bulb growers have paid up to $1,000 for a single bulb to develop a new variety."

Memorial Town Urged

Tenterden, England, may transform itself into a Garden of Remembrance instead of building the usual style of war memorial. Each householder and land owner would co-operate to make the town as beautiful as possible. Major Burney, who suggested the idea, has offered an annual cup for the best garden or window box.

OLD JINGLE

For want of a nail the shoe was lost,
  For want of a shoe the horse, and then,
But why go on with the mounting cost?
  Are we living the jingle over again?

For want of anything hand can make
  Or patience or courage or strength supply
In this terrible struggle for freedom's sake,
  Shall we let it be said that a boy may die?

Greed tells ever a sorry tale.
  Indifference ends with a bitter sigh.
Battles are lost for want of a nail,
  For want of a nail brave soldiers die.

Say it over! If workers fail
  Vain is courage—land, sea or sky.
Battles are lost for want of a nail.
  How shall we answer them, you and I?

"THE DAILY GRIND"

Letter to The Editor

January 26, 1944

Editor,

The Ontario Intelligencer:

Please permit me to not only express some views but also commend you for the extra good edition put out on Tuesday last, January 25. It is true that there was splendid 'grist for the mill' that day, however, in the case of the account covering the address by Dr. Charlotte Whitton at the meeting of the Women's Canadian Club last Monday night, which the writer took in, your epitome has been found since to be very pleasing. Her weighty remarks were condensed nicely for the average citizen. The timely reference she made regarding contributary social insurance benefits needed to be stressed.

To a one-time teacher, however, the speech of Principal W. S. Turner of the Collegiate before the Kinsmen's Club was appreciated most for the phase covered regarding education. It is true that the general run of modern newspaper readers are interested most over a page or two of sports news. This can be made to blend with education, for each has its proper sphere. Tolerance, without too much compromise, is what this war-torn world needs, but a bad blot on our civilization is the spirit of ingratitude so manifest. Then again we have plenty of destructive criticism instead of the constructive kind. Many persons prefer to belong to the wrecking-crew rather than to the construction gang.

Aside from the last-mentioned address what was likewise gratifying is the contribution made in a public way outside of regular and capable service by our principal. As our 'family journal' is a great asset to the community so the headmaster particularly has a great opportunity in the careful molding of our youth through everyday contacts, knowledge and administration and discipline. The forte of a teacher is to guide in studies and inspire the learner to dig for himself or herself. A former head of Queen's University in the person of Dr. Dyde, many times emphasized and, on appearances here, gave warning that scholars ought not to be spoonfed. Personality, and knowledge of the subjects taught, backed up by certain degree standing, give necessary confidence in the teacher so essential for the student. Yet teachers should modestly keep in the background a tendency to exploit sometimes their accomplishments. They should lead the unfolding mind of youth in self-achievement.

Our Collegiate and Vocational Institute building means a lot to the community for it is not just a seat of learning A hive of industry it can be termed as it meets the demand of academic studies and technical courses carried on throughout the day and as well by evening and night classes. Civilians including young women, and airmen from surrounding centres are learning from efficient and expert teachers under the war emergency class facilities to meet the demand for machinists, toolmakers, carpenters, welders and auto mechanics. Former members of the Board of Education and others who espoused or championed the large edifice deserve great credit for their efforts. The increased taxes to cover such are not now begrudged our youth.

Mr. Turner's reference to the curriculum is worth note. The problem about public school attendance could be met by adopting what progressive countries like Denmark (before the recent holocaust of oppression struck their people) viz., a half-day period of study, then some work of a practical nature for the balance of teaching hours. Possibly our youth have too much liberty beyond parental control and besides as Mr. Turner contends, the accumulation of money for spending means an independent trend. His view about tests and examinations is however, subject for debate. Because of physical tendencies and the strain in submitting to ordeals the best is often not accomplished through special written methods to arrive at the pupil's understanding. This should warn us against cramming tactics and memorizing simply for the occasion. In the writer's own experience oral tests by random questions with which classes are faced serve a better purpose. Medical and theological candidates for graduation are still dealt with in this manner in our province.

Who but instructors know best the situation regarding promotions? Based on observations and convictions held by one bearing the costs of education the foregoing is presented for publication. Not being a prophet nor the son of a prophet but for personal reasons my identity is humbly known as

A TAXPAYER.

THAT BODY OF YOURS

JAMES W. BARTON, M.D.

The Medical Care of Busy Men—Executives

"The early history of man shows him as one who "rested" often. A busy executive drives hard at his work from 9 a.m. until 10 p.m. often six days a week. He lives intensely, lustily and strenuously. Often he eats, smokes and drinks too much. Many waste a great deal of nervous energy in "flying off the handle" at employees and others. I observed an increase in blood pressure from 170 to 230 during a tantrum".

I am quoting Dr. Walter Alvarez, Mayo Clinic, in the Illinois Medical Journal, in an article on the medical care of executives, these men who are worth so much to the world in these tense days.

How can the executive, his physician and his family recognize the danger signals or warning of a threatened nervous breakdown?

Common symptoms are a sense of impaired health and energy, getting up tired in the morning, wearing out by noon, feeling a need for forcing the brain or feeling a sense of tension. Usually there is sleeplessness, impatience, irritability, and ill humor "Soon it will be hard to tackle the morning's mail and the making of decisions will be put off. It will be hard to read through a long report, or to remember what was read. Later may come "jittery" spells, when the man will feel faint, dizzy, or chilly, uncertain of himself, or he will break into a sweat or will feel his heart throbbing wildly. He may become overly emotional so that he tends to weep".

I believe most physicians will agree that this description by Dr. Alvarez of an executive nearing a breakdown is correct. The patient should undergo a thorough examination by physician and dentist as early evidence of disease— high blood pressure, angina pectoris, gout, diabetes, ulcer or infection—may be present and may be wholly or in part corrected.

What is the advice this type of patient should receive? Providing no real or organic trouble is found, the physician's advice will depend upon the besetting sins of the patient. He must go away for short vacations as he cannot be spared for long vacations; he should cut down on fats, sugars, tobacco and alcohol.

Finally, his home life should be investigated as he may be "too busy" to enjoy the restfulness that understand the need for this.

DUCKBILLED PLATYPUS

For the first time to the knowledge of science, a duckbilled platypus has been born in captivity, according to a report from Melbourne, Australia.

The unusual occurrence took place in the Healesville sanctuary for Australian fauna.

The platypus is one of the strangest of all existing creatures on the earth.

It combines some of the characteristics of mammals, birds, reptiles and fish.

The platypus is about the size of a muskrat, is covered with fur, has webbed feet and a flat bill like a duck, lays soft-shelled eggs, suckles its young, and is semi-aquatic in its habits.

"Platypus" is derived from Greek "platys," broad, wide or flat, and "pous," foot.

Its diet consists of worms, insect larvae and small crustaceans which it obtains by nuzzling through the water and mud with its queer bill.

Ordinarily two eggs are laid by the female. The young are hatched and reared in burrows in the banks of streams, the entrances being under water.

Scientists tell us that the mammary glands of the female are not true teats, but merely modified sweat glands.

The male is provided with a poisonous spur in the heels of its hind legs.

There is only one other known species of mammal that lays eggs and suckles their young. It is the echidna, which is found not only in Australia but also in Tasmania and New Guinea.

These two curious types belong to the lowest grade of mammal life and are survivals of the primitive period when all mammals laid eggs like reptiles.

Some years ago several duckbilled platypuses were transported from Australia to New York with a view of raising them in captivity in the zoological park, but the experiment failed because the original stock promptly died.

The director of the fauna sanctury near Melbourne reported that the baby platypus at the age of nine weeks was about 16 inches long, was sightless and uttered puppylike barks.

Women's Christian Assoc. Holds 64th Annual Meeting

Mrs. J. R. Abrams Re-Elected President for Fourth Term

WORK OF ACHIEVEMENT

At the annual meeting of the Women's Christian Association, who own and operate the Belleville General Hospital and the Home for the Aged in the city in the Board Room of the Hospital on Tuesday afternoon, Mrs. J. R. Abrams for the fourth consecutive year, was elected president of the organization. Concluding the 64th year of the association's untiring efforts to help further the welfare of the citizens of Belleville splendid reports of the year's work were given by the various committees.

Mr. Gordon Barclay, appearing for the first time before the members as administrator of the hospital, gave an excellent account of the activities of the hospital during the year. The highlight of his report was the fact that room rates in the hospital had been increased because of the increase in foods and materials and to allow for higher salaries being paid to the nursing staff. "This was necessary," he said, "in order to retain nursing service in the hospital."

"At the present time," said Mr. Barclay, "we have the best staff that we have ever had to cope with the fact that the hospital is very, very busy."

Mrs. Abrams was in the chair for the business of the meeting which opened with the regular monthly meeting of the association followed by the annual meeting. Adjutant William Marsh of the Salvation Army gave the invocation at the beginning of the afternoon's business.

Mrs. Hurst's Report

The report of the corresponding secretary, Mrs. W. N. Hurst, contained the full information of the association's work during the past year and paid high tribute to the officers and members for their work which has been carried out most successfully under the competent guidance of their president, Mrs. R. Abrams.

It was with sincere regret that the resignation of Mrs. Purdy, chairman of the Home for the Aged, owned and operated by the W.C.A., was accepted. Many improvements have been instituted at the Home under her ten-year period of office. Expressions of gratitude were extended to Mrs. Thompson, assistant chairman and members of the board, for their zealous work in connection with the Home.

The W.C.A., taking great pride in their ownership of the Hospital, show great interest in the monthly reports of that institution presented by the administrator, Mr. Gordon Barclay, and complimented him and his staff for the excellent manner in which the Hospital is operated.

Six members were appointed to the Board of Governors of the Hospital to represent the W.C.A., and a vote of thanks was extended to the Board. The Hospital Auxiliary deserves a great deal of credit for the work they have done, said Mrs. Hurst, in her report, as does Col. P. H. Wills for his generous donation of $500. The gratitude of the association was passed on to the Advisory Board for their valuable assistance in making decisions whenever called upon.

To the chairmen of the Indigent Committee, the Magdalene and Jail Committees, the association expressed their thanks and appreciation for their efforts in these important undertakings.

The Women's Christian Association invites each organization in the city to delegate representatives to attend their regular monthly meetings which are held on the first Tuesday afternoon of each month. The W.C.A. is a civic and undenominational organization, directing several worthy activities in the city for the betterment of Belleville citizens.

Home for the Aged.

In the report submitted by Mrs. M. Thompson, in the absence of Mrs. A. E. Purdy, retired chairman of the Home for the Aged Board of the W.C.A., the account of the work performed by this Board divulges that during the year two patients were discharged from the Home, leaving fifteen in the Home at present, eleven men and four women.

Decorating work was done early in the year by Mr. Harrison when the walls and ceilings of the kitchen, dining rooms, men's smoking room, two bedrooms, two bathrooms and the ladies' sitting room were painted. Money bequested to the Home was used to purchase comfortable chairs for the men's room and to buy new covering for the floors in the halls and Board Room. Pleased with the appearance of the Home after the painting was completed, an "Open House" was set aside to which the citizens of the city, including city officials and members of the various organizations who have donated funds to the Home, were invited to visit the Home upon this occasion.

To some of the visitors who were interested in the financial side of managing such an institution it seemed incredible that the old people could be so comfortably housed and well cared for from such a small expenditure. It costs slightly over $260 for each inmate for the year. Of this the city of Belleville contributes about one-fourth of the amount with the balance being derived from old age pensions, government grant, gifts and bequests. Hospital care is one of the major expenses included in this amount.

The Home operated a successful garden during the summer of last year, raising practically all the vegetables the Home used, with the exception of potatoes. A very large saving in expenditures is managed by this method of home-grown edibles.

Thanks and appreciation from the Board of Management were extended to the Salvation Army, Rev. Hornsby, Dr. J. Semple, Rev. Payne, Rev. Wright, Rev. Freeman, who conducted religious services at the Home during the year. Appreciation for the attention and medical care given the inmates was extended to Drs. Cronk and Miles.

Gratitude was expressed to all who remembered the old people with gifts and donations, a few of these are: The Argyll and St. Julien Chapters of the I.O.D.E., The Corby Estate, Queen Mary School, the Reliance Aircraft and Tool Company, St. Michael's Benevolent Society, the United Church, Miss Hart's class, the Kiwanis Club, Loblaw Groceteria, Col. P. H. Wills for clothing and tobacco, Miss Bessie Niblock, Mr. and Mrs. H. Ackerman, Dr. J. Semple, Mr. Jim Harvey, Mrs. Harry Thompson, Mr. Jack Hawley, Miss Bunting, Mrs. Ada Coulson, Mrs. J. A. Kerr, Mrs. A. Cameron, Mrs. Ruston, Mrs. Bert Black, Mrs. O. A. Marshall, Mrs. Lovell, Mrs. N. Edwards, the late Mr. W. B. Deacon, and the late Mrs. J. A. Campion's Estate.

The thanks of the Board were extended to Mrs. Hogle for her secretarial work during the year, and to Mrs. O. A. Marshall and Mrs. French and to the Advisory Board for their help and advice in all matters.

In closing the report, expressions of appreciation and thanks were made to Mr. and Mrs. Harrison for without their help the work of the Home would have been retarded and unable to be kept running as smoothly and efficiently as it did during 1943.

Corresponding Sec'y Report

Mrs. M. Faye Read, corresponding secretary of the Women's Christian Association said in her report before the annual meeting of the association that during the year 17 business letters, 2 letters of appreciation and 1 letter of sympathy were written. Seven business letters and two letters of appreciation were received. A file of these letters has been kept and held for ready reference during the coming year.

Indigent Committee Report

Miss Helena Lynch, convener of the Indigent Committee, said in her report that the Indigent Committee of the W.C.A. held a meeting on December 13th last and discussed certain cases and the distribution of the Corby Fund.

From the Corby Fund fuel was sent to 71 homes, food orders to 16 persons, and turkey and vegetables and apples to the Home for the Aged.

Some food hampers were sent out from the churches and societies but not so many as usual as there was not the same need as other years.

From the Emergency or Trust Fund $104 was dispensed during the year, and some flannelette clothing and household remedies given out for some special cases.

BUS, CAR COLLIDE ON SHARP CURVE

During Monday afternoon's blizzard a motor car driven by Harry B. Norwich, 36 Humbertrail Ave., Toronto, was in collision with the Tweed bus driven by J. H. Emerson of Tweed. The accident occurred immediately south of Corbyville on a sharp curve. Mr. Norwich assured Traffic Officer Harry Caldwell that he had been blinded by the driving snow and had not realized the curve was so sharp. Rear fender and running board damage to the bus amounted to $25, while less damage resulted to the smaller vehicle, police stated.

The War Today— Far-Reaching Effects Foreseen Of Remoulding of Soviet Union

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
(Associated Press War Analyist.)

Remoulding of the Soviet Union into what amounts to a commonwealth of nations, which appears to confer a large degree of sovereignty on the 16 members comprising the Union, bids fair to have far-reaching effects. For one thing it might give the Soviet 16 votes in any postwar "League of Nations" which may be created to maintain peace, whereas a government like that of the United States would have only one. There is, however, another point which, while not so obvious, strikes me as presenting momentous possibilies, and it is this:—

Flexible Organization.

This new commonwealth of nations seems to contemplate a wholly flexible organization—a sort of big club—which could enlarge its membership freely without any troublesome annexactions or apparent infringement of the sovereignty of the new member.

Thus, for example, if countries like Yugoslavia, Bulgaria, or Greece—all of which have developed strong Communistic parties—want too become members of the Soviet commonwealth, despite their geographical separation from Russia, they could do so without surrendering their independence. If this is so it would permit of a wide-spread enlargement of the Soviet Union.

Allied Invasion of Marshall Islands.

In the Pacific, American Forces, supported by the greatest naval strength ever assembled in one place, have invaded the heart of Japan's Marshall Islands stronghold. They are hitting at the powerful bases of Roi and Kwajalein Islands, having by-passed numerous other isles with the idea that if they take the two key positions, the other bases will more or less fall of their own weight.

Marines and army units are ashore on the Kwajalein Atoll. There is fierce fighting, but early reports were that losses had been moderate. Indications are that the invasion forces have a lot of dirty work ahead of them, for these Japanese defences are among their strongest. The Marshalls are, of course, one of the main shields for Japan proper.

The greatest event which could grow out of this invasion would be for the Japanese to rush to the rescue with the big naval fleet which they have been sheltering within the harbor of their powerful naval station of Truk, 1,200 miles west.

That would precipitate a battle which would either make or break the Mikado.

However, it may well be that the barbarians of the Rising Sun won't risk their Truk fleet in such a great gamble. After all, Truk and the surrounding Caroline Islands present a formidable barrier—so long as they are strongly held—between the Allies and both Japan and the Philippines, even if the Marshalls are captured.

Kiwanis Club Hears Inspiring Talk On Value Service Clubs to Community

Addressing the regular Tuesday luncheon of the Belleville Kiwanis Club at the Hotel Quinte on Tuesday, Mr. J. B. Boyce spoke on the value of Service Clubs to a community. His talk took on the nature of a listing of the benefits a community derives from public-spirited Clubs of the Kiwanis-Rotary-Kinsmen type, pointing out the various charitable and patriotic works done by such Clubs. His outstanding remark, that men do not think as they do because of the way they act, but because they act as they think. His address was received by the assembled members with rapt attention and an ovation of applause as he concluded.

Distinguished Guest.

The Kiwanis Club also had the pleasure of being hosts to one of Canada's most distinguished airmen in the person of Flying Officer Charles C. Cleland, D.F.M., of Mountain View R.C.A.F. Station. F/O. Cleland was awarded the Distinguished Flying Medal while still an Aircraftman Second Class, the lowest rank in the Air Force. He, with several other Canadians, left Canada before the war and joined the Royal Air Force in England and later transferred to the R.C.A.F. He was with the R.A.F. in France and served with that outfit during the evacuation of Dunkirk, being on reconnaissance patrol at the time the British troops were being attacked on the beaches. It was part of his duty to fly on reconnaissance and photograph the advance of the enemy and to inform the War Department of the progress of the evacuation. F/O. Cleland, modest and reticent, would not reveal much of his experience during this famous engagement, and he informed the press that the act which won for him his award of the D.F.M. was of such a nature that it could not be divulged. F/O. Cleland married Miss Margaret Tufts, who is a clerk in the offices of the Bell Telephone Company, on December 4th., 1943.

Corvette Committee Formed.

President Jack McVeigh announced that His Worship Mayor Rollins had requested him to announce the formation of a committee to raise funds for the equipping and supplying needed comforts for the crew of the Corvette H.M.C.S. "Belleville', and to urge each Kiwanian to get behind the committee and back it up to make it possible to equip the "Belleville" the finest in the Canadian Navy.

An announcement made by Kiwanian Lawrence Kells revealed that a huge quantity of magazines and books had been collected by the school children of the city in the drive put on by the Argyll and St. Julien Chapters, I.O.D.E. last week, and that the books and magazines were stored in the Kiwanis Centre awaiting disposal. He said there were over 3,000 books in the collection. A note of amusement crept into the meeting when President McVeigh commenced an apology to the club members for the absence of Kiwanian Bill Hopson, who he said was in Ottawa at the time and unable to be present. Bill remarked that he was not in Ottawa. The announcement to be made was to express appreciation to Bill Hopson for the splendid drawing he had made of the Kiwanis Centre which was made into a printing block and would be used on all Kiwanis letterheads and bulletins.

Thanked For Truck.

Kiwanian Harold Bateman announced the monthly meeting of the attendance committee, and the thanks of the club were expressed by Kiwanian Richardson to Kiwanian H. H. Reid for his being able to arrange for a truck to work in connection with the Red Cross Blood Donors Clinic. A further announcement that Sunday, February 13, was the Kiwanis day to hold open house at the Y.M.C.A. for servicemen and women of the city and district.

A short address by Kiwanis Past-President Bruce Lattimer, who at this time took over the meeting from President McVeigh, on Kiwanis Education, was next in order of the luncheon. He stated that the committee meets throughout the year to educate new members along the line of Kiwanis work and prepare them for carrying on with community work to the utmost of their ability. Past-President Jim Barclay read a message from International President, Donald B. Rice.

New Member Welcomed.

Mr. W. O. "Bill" Steer, advertising manager of The Ontario Intelligencer, was admitted to the Club as a member at the luncheon, being introduced by Kiwanian Jack McIntosh and installed by Past-Lieutenant-Governor Cliff Baragar, who presented him with the certificate, badge and button of membership in Kiwanis. Kiwanian Steer was welcomed to the club by Bruce Lattimer with a few appropriate remarks.

Address by J. B. Boyce

Introduced by Lorne McDougall, Mr. J. B. Boyce, Rotary Club, spoke about the value of a service club to a community. He said that there was a great deal to say on the subject but that it was only necessary to point to the achievements of the Belleville Kiwanis Club, the equipping of playgrounds for children, so that the children of the city might have the facilities for building strong and healthy bodies and minds, their sponsoring of the Victorian Order of Nurses and their splendid work in the community, the Kiwanis interest in the young boys of the city through their Ki-Y League and their crowning achievement—the Kiwanis Centre and the Blood Donors Clinic, through which perhaps thousands of lives will be saved. "Anyone of these is a great contribution," said Mr. Boyce, "but all together they are a magnificent contribution."

Cites Instances of Good Deeds

"The Rotary Club," said Mr. Boyce, "through their Crippled Children's Fund, are performing similar community services." He cited the instances of children being in hospital for four years and more who have been treated and cured by some of the most famous surgeons and medical men of the province. "The Kinsmen," continued Mr. Boyce, associating his subject with the actual work being done by the service clubs of the city, "with their Eye Clinic and their Cigarette Fund for the boys overseas, substantiate the value of a service club to a community and all these things add to the betterment of the community."

Mr. Boyce said that these were feasible things, but to him it seemed that service clubs render a value that far transends anything one can say. "The greatest value of service clubs," he said, "is the spiritual value. The most amazing thing about these clubs is the intermingling of faiths, Protestants, Jewish and Catholics, meeting in good fellowship and complete accord."

All Groups Work Together

"The value comes from members of all faiths working together for the betterment of mankind," Mr. Boyce continued. "You and I, and most everybody else, want to live together in peace and happiness, and what is true of us has been true all down through the ages. One of the greatest things in life is our attitudes and actions toward one another. Men don't think as they do because of the way they act, but because they act as they think. It is the way men think that makes us meet as individuals to do things that will give value to all. Take a look at the record back to the time of that great Hebrew law-maker, Moses, who gave to the children of Israel a code to live by, a code which we know as the Ten Commandments. When you examine them, what do you find, seven out of the ten have to do with human relationships."

Mr. Boyce referred to the teachings of Bhudda, Confucius and other ancient religious teachers of the past and then made reference to the greatest of all who came to the world centuries after these others with a message upon which is based the foundations of Christianity. "If we want to get we must give," said Mr. Boyce as he brought his talk to a conclusion. "And we will always get more than we give. Service clubs not only obey the law, but work the law. As time goes on they will be the thing above all else that will act as the antiseptic that will cleanse all sores of racial prejudice and distrust, and will bring men together in a spirit of good will."

At the close of the meeting, before turning it back to President Jack McVeigh, Kiwanian Bruce Lattimer presented the club with a club banner in memory of his father who served as president of the club in 1925. The appreciation of the club was expressed by President Jack McVeigh.

TWO TRANSFERS IN O.P.P. STAFFS

Two transfers of Provincial Constables in O.P.P. District No. 8 were announced here today by Inspector H. Storey. Constable James McKenzie, who has been stationed at district headquarters here for the past five years, has been assigned to the Provincial Police detachment at Campbellford. Constable Gordon Hayes, who has been at Campbellford, was transfered to O.P.P. headquarters at Toronto, Inspector Storey revealed.

"Constable McKenzie came to the Belleville headquarters directly from Queens Park in Toronto and of a recent date has been associated with the new "liquor detachment" of the O.P.P. During his sojourn in Belleville Constable McKenzie has made many friends with the business-like manner in which he conducted his work as a Provincial officer and he carries the good wishes of those friends to his new assignment.

'G.B.S.' Complains Heavy Taxes Make Him 'Tax Collector'

London, Feb. 2—(CP)—George Bernard Shaw, in a letter to The Times complaining he had been transformed from "a prosperous playwright" into a "tax collector" forced to work for a commission of sixpence in every pound sterling, called today for abolition of the excess profits tax and exemption from surtax of all income above £20,000 annually.

Shaw also advocated that a system of figuring income on a three-year average be revived and "made extensible in hard cases to any reasonable period."

In this connection, he said that in his profession "one lives precariously from hand to mouth, and acquires capital enough to provide for his dependents and educate his children only by windfalls," which should not be taxed at the same rate as settled incomes.

MACKEY—McHUGH

A quiet but pretty wedding took place at St. Michael's Church on Monday morning, January 31st, when the Rev. Father O'Donnell united in the holy bonds of matrimony, Miss Mable Catharine McHugh, of this city, to James Edward Mackey of Read, Ont. The attendants were Miss Ethel Bawden of Belleville and Mr. Stephen Brennen, of Read, Ont.

A Trusting Wife's Problem — She Gets the "Other Woman's Christmas Gift

Dear Miss Fairfax:

In my ten years of marriage, I have never harbored a jealous thought. Apparently my husband had been absolutely devoted to me and our two boys.

When I've read your column I've wondered at some of the problems women write about and felt it must be up to them; such things couldn't happen to me. Now I realise I've been self-righteous and heartbreaking problems confront wives through no fault of their own.

Christmas Eve a package was delivered to our home—a lovely nest of four mahogany tables beautifully inlaid. I'd always wanted such a set of tables but never hinted, thinking them too expensive.

In the drawer of the largest table was a note beginning "Dearest" but as I read on I realized from references that "Dearest" and I were not the same. My little world of happiness, trust and love went down with a crash, but I determined not to show what I felt. I summoned a laugh that wasn't bitter and said to my husband when he came home: "This present evidently is not for me."

For a few minutes I was afraid he would have a heart attack—he was so ill. His medicine helped and I had more respect for him than if he had attempted to lie out of it.

Now, what's to do? A broken home just because two packages got mixed? My sons need their father, and I think my husband's health would not survive a separation. He doesn't deny interest in this woman, but says he'll give her up if I want it that way. There have been no recriminations between us.

Mrs. N. P. B.

I'm glad there have been no recriminations. For whatever may be your final decision there'll be no ugly accusations to linger in your or your husband's mind.

You're wise to consider the future of your sons and the effect that the breaking up of your home would have on your husband's health. The "other woman" mustn't have meant so much to him, or he wouldn't have agreed so readily to give her up. You will be wise, it seems to me, to let matters stand.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Ask Him to Tell You About His Church

Dear Mrs. Beeckman,

My fiance is of a different religion from mine. I have never been to his church with him, although he has asked me several times to go, because I am not familiar with the service and I am sure I would feel awkward. Would it be better for me just to remain seated, or should I try to follow the service?

Doris

You should participate in the service in every way you possibly can. One goes to church to worship, whether in one's own denomination or in another and it is neither "good religion" nor good manners not to make a sincere effort to participate actively in the service, to conform reverently to the spirit of ritual. Why not ask your fiance to explain the ceremonies to you and then, when you go to church with him, follow his lead, kneeling or rising as he does.

Tea for an Engaged Soldier's Friends

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My daughter's engagement was announced before her fiance left for camp. On his next furlough I want to invite all their friends to a tea, if possible on a Sunday afternoon. What are the hours usually named? Is it necessary to plan any entertainment? And what is the customary menu?

Mother

Four to seven are the usual hours named for a tea, but if you prefer, choose four to six or four-thirty to six-thirty. It isn't necessary or customary to plan any entertainment at a tea, conversation is the "program." However, your guests will undoubtedly love to dance, if this can be conveniently planned for and "let's sing" is today an always-popular suggestion. Have you some song-collection books? The usual tea menu consists of tea, coffee or chocolate, small sandwiches and cakes or cookies. Welcome accessories are candies, mints, nuts and if you like, potato chips, popcorn. If there is to be dancing, it would be nice to provide a fruit punch.

Note Paper for the Home

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I would like to order some "household" letter-paper, paper that all the members of our family could use for all letters except social correspondence. Should I order single or double sheets, and how would you suggest I have them printed?

W. L.

For this general use I suggest you order single sheets, of medium size. With the address at the top centre of the sheet and if you wish the telephone number in smaller type, than the address, under the address. Or, if you prefer, have the address printed at the right hand side of the sheet, and the telephone number at the left hand side.

Fibrositis

When you get a pain in the muscles of your back or shoulder, due to exposure or overwork, it possibly may be due to one form of condition called fibrositis. According to Dr. Charles H. Slocumb, of the Mayo Clinic, almost everyone at some time or another has had an attack of fibrositis.

This disorder is characterised by inflammation of the fibrous or connective tissue. Fibrous tissue is found in practically every part of the body. In most instances, the exact cause of the condition cannot be found. However, over-exertions, injuries, exposure to changes in temperature, infections of the nose or throat, or intestinal upsets may bring on attacks of fibrositis.

The symptoms of the disease depend upon where the affected fibrous tissue is located. Intermuscular fibrositis is often the result of strain or overuse of the muscles. It causes areas of tenderness in the affected muscles and there may be swelling and muscular spasm. Movements which cause stretching of the affected muscles are painful.

Periarticular fibrositis is frequently the result of injuries, rheumatic fever, arthritis or gout. In this type the swelling and tenderness are around the affected joints. Movements may be so painful that they cannot be tolerated.

Bursal fibrositis is also associated with injuries or gout. It causes pain and swelling of the bursae, which are sacs containing fluid. These are located over the joints.

In primary fibrositis, the cause cannot be found. Many primary fibrositis patients seem to note that there is a direct relationship between their attacks of pain and infections of the nose and throat, changes in weather, over-exertion, fatigue and exposure to dampness, cold and drafts. The disorder is more common among adults.

In treating the condition rest is important. Relaxation of the muscles should be obtained, if possible. The application of heat or of counter-irritants, such as liniments, will help relieve the pain. Certain drugs, such as aspirin, are also helpful in relieving the pain for the time being. After heat has been applied, massage of the affected region is important. At first the massage should be gentle, but as the acute attack subsides it may be made more vigorous.

Purse of Money Is Presented On Wedding Anniversary

On Tuesday, Jan. 25th, the neighbors and friends of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Brennan surprised them at their home in Lonsdale, it being the anniversary of their wedding. After a very pleasant evening of entertainment, Mrs. Frank Brennan presented Mr. and Mrs. Brennan with a purse of money, while Mrs. J. J. Farrell read the address. A delicious lunch was served by the ladies.

Mr. and Mrs. Brennan expressed their appreciation and the sincere pleasure at having their friends in their home. With the promise of returning again, a very happy event was brought to a close.

SALVATION ARMY YOUTH GROUP

On Monday evening, January 31, the Salvation Army Youth Group had its first meeting since Christmas. The evening was devoted to "Education." Mrs. Fudge, vice-president of the group, opened the meeting with a song, prayer and Bible reading. The meeting was then handed over to George Ellarby, who was in charge of the program. Being education night, it consisted of a novel spelling and geography match and some tricks to test the brain.

COFFEE SUBSTITUTE

In France they are now telling people what products shall or shall not be made into coffee substitutes. Among these are roasted barley or malt, sweet or common acorns, chicory, tomato seeds, apple seeds, pear seeds, blue-lipin seeds, senna seeds, cabbage roots and pulp of Jerusalem artichokes. Last fall the entire French harvest of acorns was placed under control for the manufacture of coffee and coffee substitutes.

HANDY HINT

Here are the classic rules for conserving household linens: rotate the use of sheets, putting the fresh one on the bottom of the pile when you sort the laundry each week, then using the top. Rotate their use on the bed, too, by putting the bottom hems at the top of the bed every other week, for the hard wear comes where shoulders and elbows dig in. Put torn or worn sheets and cases out of circulation at once and mend when the bad place is still small

The Marry-Go-Round

When Mary Get Wise

The following significant verses were handed me by my good friend, Berton Braley. Read them—and don't be an "Inflationary Mary."

Inflationary Mary

Inflationary Mary plans
To show that she is smart
By filling cupboards full of cans
"Before the hoarders start."

And when she hears that rationing
Of any goods is nigh,
She thinks it is the clever thing
To buy and buy and buy.

And yet when prices start to rise
And won't stay stationary,
"Why don't they stop inflation?"
Cried Inflationary Mary!

—Berton Braley

Life will never be perfect for any girl until she can depend on a man and a wrist-watch as confidently as she can rely on her intuition and the kitchen clock.

Memories would sweeten a woman's life, if there were not so many vivid recollections among them of the times when she made a fool of herself over some man.

A girl may forgive a man for cutting her heart to pieces — but she has the memory of an elephant for every pin-prick aimed at her vanity.

A man's promises are like the weather reports. You never put any real reliance in them; but somehow that doesn't prevent you from listening to them just as hopefully next time.

Fashion Flashes

STRETCH OUT and really enjoy lounging in a pretty robe. Violet petals and green leaves on a ground of pale pink crepe are used for a pretty robe made with shirtwaist top and softly graceful skirt.

POETIC shades such as cloud pink, twilight purple, shadow-gray and dawn-sun-rose are used for some of the new sheer wool frocks. Pale pink wool makes a lovely frock for general wear. It has curlicues of self fabric on both sides of the self-material buttons that go from throat to waistline. A double row of the curlicue embroidery above the skirt hemline.

MAYBE our wool suits are overly slim but they are rich in chic and charm. A lovely suit in ruby-port red woolen is made on almost skimpy lines but its jacket has collar and revers of black woolen and three rows of tiny black wool buttons.

THERE'S A RUSTLING in the early Spring wind—it is the rustle of taffeta used for frocks, suits and dresses. A grand blouse made on full shirtwaist lines with a bow tied neckline is of silk taffeta plaided in beige, maroon, tan, purple and black.

STARK BEAUTY without any frills is always exciting. A dress that answers these specifications is of black satin made with high neckline that ties in a big self bow at one shoulder. Sleeves are long, skirt has sheath-like lines. A magnificent buckle of brilliants is used for the tailored self belt.

WHO CARES if it rains? The latest raincoat is of water-proofed rayon taffeta in red, black, navy or brown and white checks. Velveteen collar, big square scarf of matching checked taffeta.

BIG, BLACK AND SPANKING is always a nice way to do a bag. Such a bag is an enormous draw-string affair, a pouch of black or deep brown suede, its self handles drawn through huge bricks of simulated tortoise shell.

TRICKY VITAMIN C

Forgetting to put the lid on the vegetables lets vitamin C disappear in a cloud of steam.

Peeling the vegetables and letting them soak lets Vitamin C dissolve away.

Cutting up the salad green ahead of time lets the vitamin disappear into thin over. Overcook or keep the vegetables hot and the same thing happens.

Stocks of Wheat Shrink to Less Than Billion Bus.

(By J. E. HOLDSWORTH)
(Canadian Press Correspondent)

Sydney, Australia, Feb. 1 (CP Cable) — An expert in the Australian department tof agricultural economics reports that shrinkage of world wheat stocks from 1,500,000,000 bushels last year to less than one billion at the end of the current year showed that changes of the greatest importance are taking place regarding grain supplies.

A complete survey of the position at present is impossible, he said, as statistics are not obtainable except from Canada, the United States, the Argentine and Australia. In all these countries the position has changed considerably, mainly through increased local consumption.

Contrary to general belief, he said, increased wartime stocks were not due to falling off of exports but to excellent harvests in Canada and to a lesser degree in the United States.

The total "wheat disappearance" of 1943-44 he estimated at 2,050,000,000 of which exports accounted for only 480,000,000. Continuation of consumption at the present rate would exhaust stocks of the four chief exporting countries in two or three years. At present efforts are being made to increase production in the United States, Argentina and Australia.

Newspaper Claims Vatican Directly Supported Fascism

Moscow, Feb. 1.—(CP)—Writing in the Soviet newspaper Izvestia, Dmitri Petrov today called Pope Pius XII pro-Fascist and said "no wonder hate of Hitler and Mussolini now also includes the Vatican".

"Catholics who live in England, America, Spain, Poland other countries as well as the Italians are becoming convinced of the pro-Fascist character of the Vatican's policy", he said.

"The Vatican has assumed the position of direct accomplice of Fascism", Petrov asserted in a long article reviewing the American Foreign Policy Association's recent observations on the Vatican.

"The Pope's declaration of equal love for all people on the fourth anniversary of the war and on Christmas, 1943, does not conform with the Vatican's practical policy which not only has maintained diplomatic relations with Hitler, but helped Hitler strangle the Italian people, including Catholic groups opposed to Fascism in Germany as well as in Italy".

Petrov asserted there was growing opposition to the Vatican in Italy and said "the Vatican is harvesting the fruits of its own policy".

London, Feb. 1—(CP)—The Moscow radio today quoted an article from Izvestia, Soviet newspaper, asserting that "servility of the Vatican towards Fascism has not been confined to Italy. The Vatican has approved of many Fascist acts of aggression."

"The inglorious part played by the Vatican in Hitler's and Mussolini's ventures is common knowledge, while the Vatican maintained silence when Italy attacked France in June 1940," said the broadcast recorded by the Soviet Monitor.

"The Vatican now has changed its course and preaches impartial love to all people, but the fact remains that in the great historic battle of freedom-loving people against the enemy of mankind, the Vatican has adopted an attitude of direct support of Fascism."

ASSEMBLY

Choral Session

Following the regular morning hymn and prayer, the members of our school joined in a sing-song, composed of several popular songs. Included in this group were "Clementine" and a humorous parody on "Allouette". All the students had a grand time singing these ballads, and the numbers succeeded perfectly (as was their aim) in considerably brightening the assembly.

Another musical treat was the presentation of two band selections instead of the usual single offering. The performance of these numbers proved the truth of the words spoken by Mr. Fenwick at a recent Assembly, when he called the band one of the best in Ontario.

Dual Personality

A surprising and delightful treat was added to the program of the last Assembly period when young Jean White of IX-B appeared in youthful male costume and presented a whimsical reading on the advantages of being a boy. The originality of the number and the clear style were very well received by the whole school. In spite of the commanding applause of her listeners, no encore was forthcoming.

SPECIAL ASSEMBLIES

Speech! Speech!

Recently we have been very fortunate in securing excellent speakers who addressed the assembled school. Flight Lieut. Lynch, who was in Belleville with a mobile recruiting unit of the R.C.A.F., spoke to us on his experiences in the recruiting division. He told of the eagerness of the men with whom he had come into contact (including the stories of two young men who hitch-hiked all the way from Mexico) and their disappointment when they found that they lacked one of the requirements of their "physical" examination. Quite often the lack of schooling kept fine physical specimens from entering the service. An example of this was the story of the twins who came in together to enlist. One had finished his high-school education, the other (yearning for independence) had decided to leave at the end of his first year, and consequently did not have the mental agility to cope with the rigorous examinations. Flight Lieut. Lynch stressed the advantages of remaining in school to gain an education.

The more recent speaker was Dr. Charlotte Whitton, who was lecturing for the Women's Canadian Club, and consented to speak to the school. Dr. Whitton was introduced by Mrs. Finkle, president of the W.C.C., who recounted Dr. Whitton's scholastic attainments. She entered Queen's University at the age of sixteen, and completed her Master of Arts course in three years, taking two gold medals (English and History) and all the feminine athletic awards during this time. She lectured on our heritage of the love of liberty, and of the sacrifices made in the past by our ancestors and in the present by our fighting men. She reminded us that we must continue to make sacrifices to preserve our ideals of freedom. She told us that we must continue our schooling through the many difficulties that beset a wartime student, in order to prepare ourselves for building the world of tomorrow.

Dr. Whitton was thanked by Miss Merry, who attended Queen's with her.

ADMINISTRATION

Plans for Council Progress

The plan for a Students' Council, which was announced by Mr. Turner in a recent Assembly (Coll. News, Dec. 7) has reached the blueprint stage. A committee of teachers has been formed to study the plan, and to report on their work to the other members of the staff. The committee, with Mr. McGuire as chairman, is as follows: Miss Gibson, Miss Merry, Mr. Davidson, Mr. Hancock, Mr. Mott, Mr. Robinson and Mr. Youdale. Other teachers are being asked to advise the committee on special points.

This group will formulate a constitution for the Council, which will be presented for approval to the teaching staff. The constitution will then probably be ratified by the students, thus providing a solid foundation for early organization. It is being based, to a certain extent, on similar constitutions by successful Student's Councils in other schools.

The Council will undoubtedly do a great deal towards fostering school spirit, and will provide excellent training in many fields for those lucky students who are elected to serve.

CUFF NOTES

'Tis reported in the inner circle of the eleventh grades that a gala event is in the offing, namely an eleventh grade party. . . .The school wishes the best of luck to Ethel Smith in her forthcoming debut as a radio artiste. . . .The Quartet performed at Bridge Street Sunday School last Sunday afternoon, and have been asked to perform there again next Sunday evening. . . . .The office is now definitely located by an artistic sign, which says "Principal" on one side. The sign was made by the vocational students of the school. . . .Punned one of our staff in a merry mood: Student—"Sir, I simply can't get all of my homework done; there's so much of it". Master—"Well, that calls for post-four planning".

SPORTS

Introduction.

The Assembly was given a preview of the Senior Girls' Basketball team (not in action) as they were all presented, formally, to the audience, by their gym teacher and coach, Miss Morton. The girls presented a very fine showing, lined up on the stage, and gave the audience a chance to picture what they would see on Friday at 4:20, when the girls battled it out with Trenton Collegiate in the Girls' Gymnasium.

Girls Crush Albert.

The Girls' Senior Basketball team outdid Albert College girls in a very fast and exciting game in our gymnasium on Friday, Jan. 28.

School spirit was at its best as the balcony was filled to its capacity with students and masters. The game started out very fast with a basket being scored by Joan Watson. The score remained at 2-0 until the end of the first quarter. The collegiate forwards made many shots which went wild of the basket in the second quarter, but these were improved at the beginning of the second half. Vera Findall who had moved up from the guard line scored two baskets and Eleanor Davidson scored two more, to boost the score to 10 for the Collegiate.

The Albert College Girls really began to work, in the last quarter, when Ruth Hagerman scored two baskets, but one did not count, as Referee Ruth Oliphant had blown the whistle.

The guarding in the game was excellently done. The Albert guards did a swell job in intercepting the ball. The only foul in the game was called in the third quarter on Albert.. The game ended with our team victorious, with a score of 10-2, over the Albert Girls.

Supreme Court Upholds Ruling

Ottawa, Feb. 1. (CP)—A Supreme Court of Canada judgment upheld today an Ontario Appeal Court ruling that A. Acorn and Collacutt's Coach Lines, were responsible for a highway accident near Cobourg, Ont., in 1941, in which Mr. and Mrs. William Dean of Toronto, were injured.

The judgment affirmed awarded Mrs. Dean damages for $3,000 for personal injuries and Dean $100 for injuries, with $3,568 for out-of-pocket expenses.

The injuries were suffered when a bus driven by Acorn struck Dean's car as it was stopped on the highway while he and Mrs. Dean were examining a flat tire.

U.S. Leaders Want More Action Against Japan

Washington, Feb. 1 —(AP)— Repeated failure of diplomatic efforts by the United States government to curb Japanese atrocities apparently has left thousands of Americans still in enemy hands with scant hope of better treatment.

The only hope still held by some military leaders and government experts on Japanese psychology is that the Tokyo militarists soon will see the handwriting on the wall.

Senator Dennis Chavez (Dem., N.M.) demanded yesterday that the war in the Pacific be stepped up immediately. He announced he was making formal representation to President Roosevelt "asking that we get action now."

"The only way to answer the Japs is with more planes and tanks and guns for General MacArthur," Chavez said.

Failure of diplomatic efforts to influence the Japanese was disclosed by the United States State Department last night with publication of a detailed list of 89 protests, warnings and demands forwarded to the Tokyo government, through Switzerland, during the past two years.

Arson Probers Say Clerk Claimed He Set Fires in Jap Flophouses

Los Angeles, Feb. 1 — (AP) — Arson investigators quote a 40-year-old hotel clerk as saying "I guess I've set more than 200 fires," many of them in "cheap Jap flophouses" in Los Angeles' Japanese settlement shortly before and after the Japanese attacked Pearl Harbor in 1941.

"I tried to get 'em before they were chased out," the suspect, who gave his name as Clarence Everett Steepleton, was quoted by Capt. Carl Halter, Chief of the First Department Arson Squad. "I wanted to burn the Japs as well as the joints they were running."

ST. CATHARINES JUNIORS JUMP TO TOP OF GROUP

Defeat Stratford 4-3 But Require Ten Minutes of Overtime

KITS ARE BEATEN

By The Canadian Press

St. Catharines Falcons took over undisputed possession of first place in group 3 of the junior "A" series of the O.H.A. last night but required overtime in which to dispose of Stratford Kroehlers on St. Catharines ice, the score being 4-3. The scoring hero of the fray was P. Long who accounted for the winning goal in the extra session, his second counter of the evening.

The Falcons had been paired with Galt Kists in top position but this partnership was disrupted when Kists fell before St. Mikes 5-4 at Galt despite the two-goal performance of Pete Babando who recently had migrated from South Porcupine to strengthen the Galt squad. Double scorers for the students were Dave Bauer and Johnny McCormack, with Frank Dunlap good for a single. The first period of this tilt was scoreless. The Toronto Collegians now stand only four points behind Oshawa Generals in the group standing.

Toronto Young Rangers added another loss to their list at Hamilton where the Whizzers steamed to the fore with a 6-1 verdict, the score at the first intermission being 4-1. It was Tomiuk's night for the Hamiltonians, snaring three goals, with Comfort, Kaiser and Brown sharing the other three. Rutledge was the lone scorer for Young Rangers.

Because of injuries to a number of Port Colborne players, a scheduled game with Oshawa Generals was not played.

B. C. I. DOWNS ALBERT COLLEGE BY 6-4 COUNT

Losers Showed Lack of Practice But Player Boyd Outstanding

ICE QUITE FAST

Ramming home three goals in the middle session, Coach Harold Mott's Belleville Collegiate sextette downed Albert College 6-4 in the opening game of the senior Interscholastic C.O.S.S.A. hockey series at the Hume Arena Tuesday afternoon. There was a marked absence of united school spirit on the part of local Collegiate Institute in following, although Albert College was well represented in the gallery. The Collegians led by periods 3-2 and 6-3, Coach Pepper's Albert's notching the only third period counter.

The ice was lightning fast and the more experienced Collegians showed the way as the Albert sextette showed the lack of practice in the season's initial Interscholastic contest. "Zeke" Philp led the Church Street Collegians on the attack with two goals and an assist. McDonald with a pair of goals and Boyd with a goal and two assists were the chief point gainers for the losers.

Albert took the lead when Jack Boyd, former Grimsby junior O.H.A. ace, rapped home Ferguson's pass out. The Collegiate sextette moved to the attack and gave Gelber a busy session before Billie Holway sank the equalizer, when he hooked his own rebound around the net into the twine. Inspired Coach Mott's Collegians swept through with Lyall passing at centre ice to Bishop, who went through alone for a second tally and the B.C.I. were never headed from that point. Bailey sank Philp's pass for the winners later before McDonald scored for Albert on a three-man combination play along with Boyd and Rankin. The only penalty in the first period went to Holway for tripping.

Albert Knots Score

Early in the middle frame McDonald scored his second goal in the exact same manner as he bagged his previous one, from Boyd and Rankin to knot the score. But the "red scourge" from B.C.I. swept all before them the remainder of the period as Philp scored two, one from Bailey and the next from Locke's stick before Lyall whipped home Wood's wide pass and B.C.I. lead 6-3 with Rankin drawing down the only penalty of the frame.

In the last period, that saw McNiven score the only goal on a solo sweep down the left boards for Albert College, the game tightened with some defensive play on both sides.

Ferguson, Boyd, McDonald and McNiven carried strong play for Albert, while Coach Mott's Collegians tried to play as a unit, but lack of practice as a team was seen in their blind passing, which made matters rather difficult for goalie Rollins and the defence at times. The Collegians missed more opportunities to score than did Albert, although the game was typical of Interscholastic hockey.

The lineups:

Belleville Collegiate: Goal, Rollins; defence Holway and Woods; centre, Lyall; wings, Coleman and Bishop; subs, Bailey, Philp, Locke, McCaw and Wells.

Albert College: Goal, Gelber; defence, Ferguson and Rankin; centre, Boyd; wings, McDonald and McNiven; subs, Pulford, Christie, LeMay and Benner.

Referee—Jack Doran.

JACKIE CALLURA ALL WASHED UP

Providence, R. I., Feb. 2 — (AP) —Jackie Callura of Hamilton, Ont., former National Boxing Association world's featherweight champion, has fought his last fight his manager, Leo P. Bradley, said today.

Callura's retirement from ring warfare was announced here by Bradley following Callura's sound whipping at the hands of Charles (Cabby) Lewis of New York at the Rhode Island Auditorium last night.

The little Canadian won the N.B.A. featherweight crown by beating Jackie Wilson of Pittsburgh in Providence on Jan. 18, 1943 and subsequently lost it via an eighth round knockout in a title bout with Phil Terranova of New York at New Orleans last Aug. 9.

Tampa, Fla. — (AP) — Following a tour of army camps in Florida manager Leo Durocher of the Brooklyn Dodgers expects to leave for overseas to entertain servicemen, he announced last night, adding "there may be a bunch of 15-year-old kids in camp" when he got back to the club's training quarters.

Bradley Wants Good Ball or Will Close His Park

Cleveland, Feb. 2.—(UP) — President Alva Bradley of the Cleveland Indians declared today he would close his park if he couldn't present high class baseball this year.

"It's too grand a game to be turned into a farce and that's what will happen if we insist on operating whether or not we've got big league ball players to operate with", the club owner explained. "I for one have too much respect for the dignity of baseball to stand for that. If I can't present baseball of high quality I'll close my park".

Bradley believes the Majors will start the season but he isn't certain they'll finish. "For two years peoples have been offering to bet people have been offering to bet me that the game wouldn't survive the season but this time I'm not taking any bets of that kind. The manpower pinch is just beginning to be felt".

Although he emphasizes "it's going to be damned tough to operate", the grey-haired executive maintains the game should continue if the calibre of play doesn't fall too low.

"I think baseball has something real to contribute in wartime and I won't consider quitting until there's no other course open to me. But common sense tells me that time may come whether I like it or not".

Toronto, Feb. 2 — (CP) — The average player in a modern hockey game covers between three and five miles. Acting on a query from a United States sports editor, managing director Red Dutton hired a statistician to estimate how far two forwards skated at a recent National League game in Montreal. The statistician chose two centres, Elmer Lach, a tireless skater, and Buddy O'Connor, who covers considerably less ice.

Elmer (Montreal Herald) Ferguson reports Lach's record thus:

First period, on three times, made 42 1-2 rushes, covering from 7,650 to 8,500 feet. Second period, on 3 times, 41 rushes, 7,300 to 8,200 feet. Third period, on three times, 53 rushes, 9,540 to 10,600 feet. Total, from 24,570 to 27,300 feet, or between 4 3-4 and 5 1-4 miles.

O'Connor, on twice in each period; first period, 24 rushes, between 4,320 and 4,500 feet; second, 32 rushes, 5,760 to 6,400 feet; third, 36 1-2 rushes, 6,570 to 7,300 feet; total between 16,350 and 18,500 feet or between 3 1-6 and 3 1-4 miles.

CHICAGO HAWKS WIN 5 STRAIGHT IN TEN DAYS

Latest Victim in Drive is Boston Bruins Beaten Tuesday 2-0

CLOSE TO LEAFS

By the Canadian Press

A three-cornered fight for the National Hockey League's runner-up spot was shaping up today in the wake of a form reversal which has enabled Chicago Black Hawks to win five straight games in 10 days.

The Hawks recorded their latest success last night, blanking Boston Bruins 2-0 to climb within two points of Detroit Red Wings and Toronto Maple Leafs, co-holders of second place. The defeat was Bruins' seventh in a row, skidding them three points behind Chicago.

The 8,500 Boston fans had little at which to cheer except the earnest performance of rookie Maurice Courteau, who filled in capably enough for injured Bert Gardiner but had no chance on the two Chicago goals, both scored from close range.

Bill Mosienko caged his own rebound three minutes before the first intermission. After a scoreless second period in which Courteau kicked out 19 shots, Earl Seibert shook George Allen loose on a breakaway pass for the second goal.

It was Chicago's fourth victory in seven starts against Boston this season and the first shutout in the N.H.L. this season for Mike Karakas, 32-year-old Eveleth, Minn., goalie who has been beaten only once since he returned to the Chicago nets Jan. 16. Over that stretch, Karakas has to his credit five victories, one tie and one loss in seven starts.

SPORT SHORTS FROM BRITAIN

By ALLAN NICKELSON
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

With the R.C.A.F., Somewhere in England, Feb 2.—(CP)—Bashing a defence carried no terror for hockey-playing Don Maher of Westmount, Que., but he holds no ambition to participate in the favorite sport around his present locale. He admits, however, to being an ardent ringsider.

All this information comes from the Azores where the most popular sport is bull fighting. Don, a gunner with the rank of flight sergeant, in a Coastal Command Flying Fortress, is stationed there along with many other Canadians. It's a far cry from the time he played hockey with Toronto's senior Marlboros, and Victoria and Verdun juniors in Montreal.

"One of the R.A.F. boys stepped into the bull ring the other day", Don said in a letter here. "He looked like a born toreador as he tossed the darts at the bull, then took some smart evasive action. But not for me.

"I've seen some of these local chaps nearly killed, despite padding on the bull's horns. Under Portuguese regulations, it's illegal to kill the animals.

"I'll stick to softball around these parts".

That softball business is pretty easy to do, as far as numbers go, because there are plenty of Canadians in this R.A.F. unit. The main difficulty is obtaining softballs. Incidentally, one of Maher's softball mates is FO. Bob Thomson whose Westmount home (Sherbrooke St.), is less than two blocks from that of Maher.

Since moving overseas Maher has been doing anti-submarine patrol with the Fortress unit, both here and in the balmy Azores.

It has come to pass that Porky Dumart and Milt Schmidt rate snappy salutes from that third member of the Boston Bruin Kraut line, Bobby Bauer.

That's because Porky just received his commission and, like Milt, is a pilot officer Bobby is a leading aircraftman engaged in radio work.

Milt and Porky are sports officers at a couple of stations of the Canadian Bomber Group.

A lad who keeps games going at one Canadian bomber station is Sgt. Jock Stephen, 33-year-old physical training instructor from Rosemount, Que. He organizes everything from hockey to baseball and received his early experience at No. 1 Wireless School, Montreal.

A sister, AC1 Barbara Stephen is a member of the R.C.A.F. (W.D.) Training Command Headquarters in Calgary.

CASUAL COMMENT by K.J.C.

Says a Chinese visitor: "Funny people, you Canadians. You take a glass—you put in sugar to make it sweet and lemon to make it sour; you put in gin to warm you up and ice to keep you cool—you say,—"here's to you! 'and then drink it yourself."

Gets Promotion.

F/L. F. E. "Buff" Horton, who has been chief sports officer at the Trenton R. C. A. F. main station for the past two years, has been promoted to head the physical training program for the No. 2 Training Command of the R. C. A. F. and is to be stationed at Winnipeg. A native of Toronto F/L. Horton took an active interest in playground and city sporting activities in the Queen City prior to enlisting as a sports officer with the R. C. A. F. His many friends in the Eastern Ontario area will be glad to hear of his splendid promotion, although sorry to see such a competent sports organizer leave the district.

A few of the many features brought to this district by F/L. Horton included the 1942 senior Ontario Basketball Association finals and later a Dominion semi-final series. "Buff" Horton has always featured a strong cage quintette at the Trenton station, which is still a feature today, as his present Flyers high-hoop star aggregation has played 12 games this season without sustaining a single loss.

Introduces Camp Games.

Besides an extensive intra-mural program of sports at Trenton, where the motto is—"It is your duty to keep fit"—"Buff" Horton entered baseball teams into both the O. B. A. provincial playdowns and the National Congress last summer. His hockey program also was enjoyed by civilians and only recently he informed this department he was arranging to have the Kingston Army seniors and the Toronto Navy seniors play his strong Trenton Flyers here in the near future. No doubt Padre Maiki, coach of the Flyers will continue these plans.

Of course his biggest program was to arrange a large intra-mural sports program at Trenton, which takes in the No. 8 Manning Pool, K. T. S., Central Flying School Air Control and several other departments. At present they have 120 different teams competing in various phases of competitive team sports such as hockey, basketball, bordenball, floor hockey, volleyball, swimming, lacrosse, baseball, softball, soccer, rugby and such like. His main object to get as many of the men actively engaged in sports as possible. "The days when the crowd stood by and watched the champions practice is gone forever," predicts F/L. Horton. One of the feature sports programs at Trenton are the Tuesday night boxing matches, that include novice bouts so that each man may learn the manly art of self-defence.

One of the finest programs to be presented at the Trenton station, and for civilian participation as well as attendance, will be tomorrow night's gala ice carnival, F/L. Horton's final achievement before leaving for the west. Costume parades, civilians being welcome to take part, races and all the features of a gala winter carnival will be featured. The outstanding novelty will be a slack wire exhibition over the Air Force open air rink by Cpl. Albert Bell, formerly of Montreal, and Canadian Equilibrist champion. He once toured Canada and the U. S. A. in a vaudeville act called—"Kings of the Air". This is only one of the many thrills to be seen tomorrow night at Trenton. And to F/L. Horton we say—Good luck and safe landings".

Is Dissatisfied.

"Maybe he just doesn't know what it is all about, but Referee Bill Shannon looked awfully biased in Stirling Monday night," commenced Coach 'Toots' Holway as he referred to the fact Shannon meted out 11 penalties to Belleville and but two to the Combines.

"Despite the fact we'd have three players in the penalty box at one time, we still had plenty of chances to score goals, but it made things rather tough for the boys to be playing short-handed most of the night," added Skipper Holway.

All of this merely brings about one thing—the clubs will have to dig down to pay neutral referees when the group play-offs roll around. We have heard complaints regarding the officiating from nearly every losing team in the group, the Air Force screamed to the high heavens about Bennie Bowen and Trenton cried "robber" at St. Louis here last week. It's the age old story and the only solution is a neutral official. And folks that costs money in junior circles.

Collegians Wins.

Belleville Collegiate pried off the senior Interscholastic puck lid with a 6-4 win over Albert College. It was a typical school game, where the players seem to forget what knowledge of the game they have gained while either playing or practicing with O. H. A. squads. (Of course this pertains to the Collegiate team in this instance.) With at least five players, who have worked out with the Belleville juniors on numerous occasions, Coach Mott's Church St. sextette should have been at least two goals a period better than Albert, who hadn't practiced over three or four times all season.

Incidentally Coach 'Toots' Holway took in the game and was impressed with Jack Boyd, former Grimsby junior centre, and McDonald, a winger from Albert. Both would fit in well with the local junior O. H. A. squad, especially Boyd.

Horse Sense Bridge

LESSON NO. 292

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

A partner is a hopping flea who causes you anxiety by jumping to a slam before he knows what danger is in store. So many partners lose your pants by bidding slams that have no chance.

Those who live their bridge dangerously take all kinds of risks with slams. And they get many a thrill that way. By not counting the ultimate costs, they can boast of gains and pooh-pooh their losses.

But if you like a safe and sane way to reach slams, The Kibitzer's convention is your huckleberry. It tells you in advance if the slam is reasonably safe. It also warns you when there is danger.

You are still hanging on to this hand:

♠A K 5
♥K J 9 4
♣7

Your partner started with an opening bid of one club, saying he had at least five tricks. Your hand contains seven tricks. You already see 12 tricks in your pair.

Your first response was a one-jump to two diamonds. That is a signal for saying you see tricks enough for a game. After which, neither of you will stop short of game.

Your partner then bids two hearts. And when you hear that, you begin to get ideas. Not only can you see game. The makings of a slam are making big eyes at you.

A slam depends on 12 tricks with enough aces and kings and a satisfactory trump suit. When you see the 12 tricks and a trump suit that clicks, your only worry is enough aces and kings.

The partner who discovers these things may become slambitious if he holds in his own hand two aces and a king, or better. In that case, he bids four no-trump.

That bid of four no-trump is a convention signal for asking partner how many aces and kings he has. You have the stuff for it. Bid four no-trump.

It is better than slam-banging at random.

AT THE BELLE

"The Fallen Sparrow"

A striking feature of RKO Radio's new movie "The Fallen Sparrow" now at the Belle Theatre is Director Richard Wallace's use of the psychological thrill, as well as the action thrill, for suspense.

Hero John Garfield, for example, wrings terrific suspense out of the simple question, does he really hear or just fancy that he hears the dragging step of a crippled man? If he really hears it, then a deadly enemy has followed him to New York City, to hound him, spy upon him, endanger his life.

If the steps aren't real, then the ordeals through which that same man put him while he was in a dungeon in Spain have warped his mind!

"The Fallen Sparrow" has plenty of action thrills, too, as Garfield smokes out his enemies and avenges not only his own wrongs but the deaths of two friends. And romantic thrills aplenty, too, as he makes love to co-star Maureen O'Hara, and equally ardent but not-so-sincere love to Martha O'Driscoll and Patricia Morison.

The Canadian Movietone News and a timely screen miniature "Medicine on Guard" and "Flicker Flashbacks" a clever novelette precede the feature attraction.

"Above Suspicion"

Fred MacMurray, whose specialty has been making love to glamor girls of the screen takes on a bride, in the person of Joan Crawford, in the first reel of their first role together. This is M-G-M's "Above Suspicion", Helen MacInnes' dramatic story of counter-espionage, Nazi secret intrigue and "The Underground" in Central Europe prior to the outbreak of war. It comes next to the Belle Theatre.

The Mission Was Dangerous

MacMurray and Miss Crawford play an Oxford professor and his bride, who devote their honeymoon to carrying out a dangerous mission on the continent. Their escapes from the Gestapo and other adventures cram the story with thrills.

Directed by Richard Thorpe, the picture boasts a cast that includes Conrad Veidt, Basil Rathbone, Reginald Owen, Felix Bressart, Richard Ainley, Bruce Lester and others.

Your hits of yesterday and tomorrow will be presented in "Community Sing". All we ask is that you sing loud.

AT THE McCARTHY

"Trade Winds"

No dramatic picture ever to reach the screen has equalled in the variety of its far-flung scenic backgrounds Walter Wanger's "Trade Winds", which opened today at the McCarthy Theatre through United Artists release with Frederick March and Joan Bennett in the starring roles.

This thrilling and yet light-hearted screenplay tells the story of a detective chase that leads half way around the world, and authentic scenes are shown in the seven different countries in which portions of the action take place. These were filmed by Director Tay Garnett, who made a 40,000 mile trip aboard his yacht "Athene" for the purpose of insuring a truly correct background for the story.

Beginning in San Francisco, when Miss Bennett flees after having apparently killed a man, the action shifts to Honolulu, Hawaii, where she pauses long enough to buy a fake passport and have her hair dyed black. With Detectives March and Ralph Bellamy always in close pursuit, Miss Bennett next escapes to Kobe, Japan, and shortly afterward proceeds to Shanghai, China, later to go from there to Saigon, Indo-China. Here Ann Sothern, March's secretary in his San Francisco office, re-enters the story and adds to the complications.

As the flight of the fugitive is resumed, the story moves to Singapore, Malaya, and from there to Colombo, Ceylon. With the excitement continually increasing, the next jump is to Bombay, India, where March spirits his quarry away from another detective working under orders from the San Francisco police. After an action-filled sequence in the Laccadive Islands, off the coast of India, the story shifts back to San Francisco, where a startling climax brings the picture to a close. In each of the places visited, there are many scenes in well known interesting and picturesquely colorful localities.

Second feature attraction presents Charles Boyer and Jean Arthur in "History is Made at Night". Leo Carrillo and Colin Clive also have prominent parts in the picture.

AT THE CAPITOL

"Seven Sweethearts"

It's a sweetheart of a picture! "Seven Sweethearts" which opens at the Capitol Theatre next. Seven times the romance, seven times the fun, of any picture in a long time! Because seven of the most gorgeous girls you've ever seen are on a merry man-hunt; it's entertainment in a big, big way! Produced by Joe Pasternak. (He produced those wonderful Deanna Durbin hits); directed by the man who gave you "Seventh Heaven". You'll love every kiss, every song, every laugh! "Seven Sweethearts" stars Kathryn Crayson, Van Heflin, Marsha Hunt, Cecilia Parker, Peggy Moran, Diana Lewis and S. Z. Sakall.

"Canyon City"

The added western attraction "Canyon City" starring Don "Red" Barry introduces two new personalities, Helen Talbot, love interest and Twinkle Watts, blonde moppet, who was recently signed to a long term by Republic. Barry is his usual strong-silent-man self, satisfying with his accustomed vigor in physical brushes without laws. "Canyon City" is a fast-action range adventure loaded with thrills and excitement.

A funny cartoon and the thrilling serial "Secret Service in Darkest Africa" makes this program grand entertainment for all to see.

MARINES BATTLE

explosives also hit Wake Island to keep that enemy air base from interfering.

Gravity of the action was recognized in Japan.

"The Japanese homeland is directly linked up with these mandated islands, which form the outer front line of the Japanese Empire," said Mainichi, one of Japan's most influential newspapers, published in Osaka. It added "the enemy must be beaten back, even at the greatest sacrifice."

Admiral Chester W. Nimitz' communique announcing the invasion said despite strong opposition encountered, "information indicates that our casualties are moderate."

Experts here do not expect any 76-hour capture of the Marshall islands, such as took place in the invasion of the Gilbert islands.

Many Bases in Marshalls

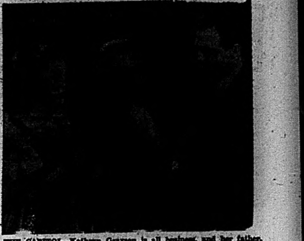
The Japanese have many more bases in the Marshalls than they had in the Gilberts. They also have spent more years in fortifying them.

It's no secret now even to the Japanese that the hundreds of ships engaged in the attack form one of the most powerful fleets ever assembled. The nearest comparison is with the fleet assembled for the invasion of Sicily.

Total of ships and boats of all sizes employed in the Mediterranean operation probably exceeded the number being used to assault the Marshalls and patrol the Central Pacific. But the Pacific includes many battleships, both post and pre-war classes, and scores of cruisers and destroyers.



AT THE CAPITOL—Kathryn Grayson is all business, and her father, portrayed by S. Z. Sakall, is trying to make an impression on Van Heflin in this scene from M-G-M's "Seven Sweethearts," coming next to the Capitol Theatre. Van Heflin, however, can't keep his eyes off Kathryn. On the same program a Western Thriller "Canyon City" starring Don "Red" Barry.

SIXTEEN SOVIET

The reconstruction, involving revision of the 1936 constitution, gives each republic its own commissariat of national defence and foreign affairs.

Some idea of the effect of the changes was provided by Dr. Johannes Vares, President of the Estonian Republic, who said, in approving the plan, "the diplomats of the National Republics will be guided in their work by the general principles of Soviet diplomacy."

N. M. Ponomerenko, Secretary of the Communist party in White Russia; Alexander Bogomolets, President of the Academy of Sciences of the Ukraine; Latvian Representative Wilhelm Lazis, and Eustace Paleckis, President of the Lithuanian Soviet Republic, also endorsed the plan.

Position Not Understood

Lazis said the United States still recognized the "old Fascist regime" of Latvia and said Latvia's position was not understood abroad despite the 1940 plebiscite by which it was joined to the Soviet union.

Nikolai Gretchuka, President of the Ukrainian Republic, said "certain western neighbors of the Ukraine" had "unjustified claims" to part of its territory and asked the Soviet government to bear in mind the desires of the people in handling this question. He evidently referred to the Soviet-Polish border problem.

In a 40-minute speech outlining the plan, Molotov said it demonstrated the strength of the Soviet union, adding that "not every state would make such a venture." He declared that National units of the Red Army previously had lacked full opportunity for national development and said that "now they can be put on a firm footing."

A Necessary Stage

Asserting that the creation of a central commissariat to handle international affairs for all the republics had been a necessary stage," Molotov said that the republics "have some interests which cannot be satisfied by general agreements with the Soviet union. They'll be better satisfied if they have separate commissars for foreign affairs."

He quoted Stalin's words of 1923 that "we shall have to come back to the question of nationalities again and again."

CHAPTER 18

"Speed it up," Gorse snapped.

"You got a yen again this Clyde Farrish?"

"No," said Gorse.

"Tried to buy his studio, didn't you?"

"What of it?"

"Why?" asked the lieutenant patiently.

"It seemed like a good business move."

"Was it the studio you wanted to buy, or something that was in it?"

"I don't know what you're talking about."

"Worked there before Farrish bought it, didn't you?"

"Yes."

"Pals with the old proprietor?"

"Rather."

"Somebody," said the lieutenant, "wanted something from that studio bad. Kept breaking and entering it. You won't be mad at me if I ask if it was you?"

"It wasn't."

"Did you try to bust Farrish by smashing a camera and other capers?"

"No."

"Know a janitor that worked there—name of Perkins?"

"As one knows the janitor in a place where he works."

"I do wish we could find Perkins," said the lieutenant wistfully. "He'd be such a help. On account of it was him smuggled the sable coat out of the studio. Seems like I can' lay hands on the right people to ask questions of . . . Huh! Know Jerry Shafto?"

"She has posed for me."

"Ever buy her dresses?"

"Certainly not."

"Known Mrs. Sanson long?"

"Yes," said Gorse shortly.

"Goin' to be married, ain't you?"

"You must read the papers!" responded Gorse scornfully.

"Wouldn't want anything to break up the match, would you?"

"Naturally not."

"Well," said the lieutenant to Elaine, "you're married to Chico Sanson?"

"I am."

"Get a good allowance from him, I hear, and won't give him a divorce."

"I don't believe in divorces," declared Elaine smugly.

"Does you credit," said the lieutenant. "But you wouldn't cheer if anything was to cut off your allowance, would you?"

"It won't be cut off," replied Elaine coldly.

Suddenly, the lieutenant interrupted the examination to roar: "Hey, one of you lugs, see if they've got the Shafto gal."

"She's here," reported an officer after a brief disappearance.

"Bring her in."

Jerry was brought in by a policeman, tearful, disheveled. She did not look at Darnley, did not lift her eyes from the floor.

"The boys been laborin' with her?" the lieutenant asked.

"Hearty," said a subordinate.

"It couldn't be we're gettin' some place, could it? Seems too good to be true. Did you know anything about this sable coat?"

"Plenty."

"Now, Miss Shafto, I don't like to embarrass a lady before folks, but which of your many admirers bought those nice dresses for you? Don't hold back. Speak up!"

"Lacey Gorse."

"Have you been keeping company with him?"

"Yes."

"So you let him plant a sable coat in your apartment?"

"It—it wasn't Lacey."

"No? Who?"

"Perkins brought it."

"Without warning? Out of a clear sky?"

"No. No. I heard you and Darnley talking—heard what she said about knowing how the coat was stolen."

"And you telephoned Lacey?"

"Yes."

"So he sent somebody, it wouldn't be Perkins, would it? right over with the swag?"

"Yes."

"And you hung it in Darnley's closet?"

"Yes."

"Just a good pal," observed the lieutenant. "Now, where in trunket is that Farrish?"

"Waiting outside," said a detective.

"With a friend?"

"I wouldn't say friend," the detective replied, "unless they like to play rough."

"Let's see'm," ordered the lieutenant.

In came Clyde Farrish, hair mussed more untidily than usual, and a man, somewhat larger, who seemed to have passed through an unpleasant physical experience.

"As I live and breathe—Perkins!" exclaimed the lieutenant in spurious astonishment. "Where'd you glom onto him, Farrish?"

"He dropped in on me," Farrish said. "I was rummaging. He came to rummage too. He didn't expect to find me there."

"So you rassled some, eh?"

"He wanted to go away again when he found me there," explained Clyde. "I urged him to stay."

"You were rummaging, you say?"

"Industriously."

"For what?"

"For what Perkins came to rummage for."

"Did you find it?"

"In an old safe without a lock. I'd forgotten it was there. The man I bought the studio from left it there. It got snowed under. He never came back for it. I tried it as a forlorn hope."

"And found what?"

"Photographs," answered Clyde, "and a document."

"Pictures of what?"

"A wedding."

"And this document?"

"It looked to me," said Clyde, "like a marriage certificate."

"Go on! Go on!"

"The pictures were of Gorse, yonder and Elaine Sanson. The certificate guaranteed his marriage to one Elaine Piper, which I guess is Mrs. Sanson's maiden name."

"I do declare!" stressed the lieutenant. "And can it be possible they were not subsequently divorced? If that is so, Elaine has committed just a trace of bigamy—which cuts off that income from Chico Sanson. Mr. Lacey Gorse can't marry the lady with all the money. Any observations, Gorse?"

"I haven't heard anything yet that ties me up with an illegal act."

"Wait till you hear Perkins," said Clyde.

"One point," interrupted the lieutenant. "If Gorse procured Perkins to steal that coat and bring it to him, how did he know the coat was there and how did he have time to plan the business?"

"Perkins touched on that," said Clyde. "Their idea was to wreck me when an opportunity offered. They had their minds all made up. When those furs came into the studio, Perkins telephoned Gorse and got the order to go ahead."

The lieutenant raised his voice: "Have you been an interested eavesdropper, Mr. Sanson? Step right in now. Step right in."

Chico came in, his face working. He confronted Elaine. "Is this true?" he demanded. "Were you married to Gorse when you married me?"

She did not lower her eyes. She sneered. "You always were a fool, Chico."

The lieutenant got heavily to his feet. "I'll get my troupe out of here," he said. "The case seems to be about completed. Well, good-bye all. Good-bye, Darnley. I'm glad it didn't turn out to be you."

Then he added, "Guess you'd better come down town, Gorse. The D.A. will want to see you and Mrs. Sanson, with Jerry and Perkins. Just some questions, maybe; just some more questions!"

Darnley and Chico Sanson and Clyde Farrish were left alone in the apartment. Police were gone, Gorse and Elaine were gone—and something else, something imponderable, something chilling and poisonous had departed with them. It was fear.

It was Sanson who first broke the silence.

"I'm free," he said, almost as if it were incredible. He made a gesture as of one who finds his hands liberated from shackles. "Do you realize that I am free, Darnley?"

"Yes, Chico," she answered.

"Do you realize what that means?" He was speaking as if they two were alone in the room, as if Farrish was not present. It was not that he ignored Clyde but rather that his mind was aware only of Darnley. "It means I am free to marry. Do you realize that?"

"I am glad, Chico," she said.

"Glad! That's a puny word, Darnley."

"We aren't alone, Chico," she told him gently, reminding him of Clyde's presence because she did not want him to speak words that might humiliate him when he remembered them afterward. "I'm happy, Chico, that you are free to find some woman to love and to make a home for you."

He stared at her for a moment as if it required time to reach the true meaning of her words. "So it is like that," he murmured.

"It is like that, Chico," she answered.

He sighed and looked from her to Farrish. "Well," he said. "Well, at any rate it will be sweet to remember that I owe my freedom to you," he said.

"To Clyde," she said. "It was he who found the pictures."

"And to Clyde," he agreed. Again he glanced at Farrish and walked to the door. "I must attend to things. I—I shall be busy. You and Farrish will have things to talk about." His hand was on the knob. "By the way, Farrish, as to the Golden Blend advertising, I have reached a decision. Will you tell your friend, Sam Britton, that he gets it—on condition that the Farrish Studio does the photography? . . . I'll be seeing you."

When the door closed behind Chico there was a brief silence.

Clyde Farrish stood in the middle of the room, awkward and frowning. "So you got yourself in a jam!" he said tartly.

"Yes—meddling in your affairs."

"And you've won a beauty contest."

"Yes. I've won a beauty contest," Darnley said. "And you get all the Golden Blend business."

"Splendid, isn't it? It'll put me on my feet. I'll be making money. It's just dandy, isn't it?"

"You should be very pleased," she said.

"And you! The most famous model in America. Great! After the publicity you get out of this you'll be getting motion picture offers."

"I've already had one."

"Congratulations."

His tone was disagreeable. They were almost quarreling. Nerves, recently tense, were now unstrung.

"So you've got what you want," he said. "You're the Golden Blend Girl. You'll be going to Hollywood."

"That ought to please you!"

It seemed to her just then that he was ungrateful. He had changed toward her since he had heard that she was Chico Sanson's girl. He had believed it. And now, for some reason, he resented her success. He resented the fact that she had been chosen to be the Golden Blend Girl.

She got to her feet and a startled look crossed her face. "I—I haven't any coat."

"That won't matter; it's a warm night," Clyde said coldly in tones that plainly dismissed Darnley.

"I'm going—leaving," said Darnley curtly while Clyde's frown tightened.

She moved toward the door, opened it and walked to the elevators. He was at her heels, but grimly silent. They descended to the street together and proceeded through the hotel to the Fifth Avenue entrance. Clyde signaled for a cab and would have entered after her.

"No," she said. "I want to be alone." Her voice was brittle, ready to break.

His lips compressed. He nodded. "Have it your way," he said and stepped back from the door.

"Where to, lady" asked the driver.

Darnley gave him her address, and in ten minutes was ascending to her apartment, the apartment to which Jerry Shafto would not return that night. She did not like to think about Jerry. She took off the dress she had purchased for this night. This time she did not pause to admire herself in the mirror. She had succeeded. She had accomplished all she had set out to do in New York.

But Darnley was not happy . . . With no exaltation, no pride, no exciting anticipations of a gorgeous future, she crept into bed and lay with her face pressed into the softness of her pillow . . .

She awakened unrefreshed. In slippers and gown she prepared a lonely cup of coffee and a slice of toast. One would have thought that her first impulse would have been to send down for the morning papers to read about herself but she had no curiosity to see them. She looked at the clock and was surprised. She had slept long—overslept. It was half past nine.

Her telephone rang and she answered reluctantly. "This is Mr. Mitchner's secretary of Continental Pictures," said a voice. "At what hour can Mr. Mitchner see you this morning?"

"Tell him ten o'clock," she said.

Mr. Mitchner to talk to her about a Hollywood contract! That would mean leaving New York, going to live in California, 3,000 miles away! She did not seem to care how many miles away Hollywood might be.

When her toilet was completed she went into the little living-room and sat down facing the window.

Then the bell rang. It was just after ten. It would be Mr. Mitchner come to show her the kingdoms of the earth from the top of a high mountain—and she must make up her mind. She opened the door for him and he entered, smiling.

"A lucky girl!" he beamed.

"Am I?" she asked.

He seated himself and declared, "Without even a test I would give you a contract. Of course," he hesitated and corrected himself, "I would not really give a contract without a test—but it would be a safe bet. Such a lucky girl!"

"You are very complimentary," she said.

"I could be more and not lie. So now what? So now we make the test. This morning. We make the test of how you screen and of how your voice will do. About voices you never can tell."

"And this contract—if you offer it to me—what will it be?"

"That you discuss with the legal department," he said. "But it will be good. So far as that I can say. I will make of you a great star. Not hundreds a week but thousands—"

In the midst of this sentence the doorbell rang again. Darnley frowned. Who could this be? She opened the door and felt suddenly limp and breathless.

Clyde Farrish brushed past her almost rudely and asked, "Who's he?" jerking his head to Mitchner.

"A gentleman discussing a motion picture contract with me."

"Tell him to clear out," demanded Farrish.

"You're crazy!" protested Darnley.

"Or I'll heave him out." He turned to Mitchner. "Listen, Mister," he said, "she's signing no motion picture contracts. None. She's signing nothing, unless it is a marriage license. Now, scram!"

"Clyde, you've lost your mind!"

He gripped her shoulders and shook her. "There's been enough of nonsense. There's been too much pulling and hauling. I'm sick of it! I love you. In words of one syllable. Just let them sink in. I love you."

"Clyde!"

"I don't care who hears me. I adore you. I always have and I always will. And you love me."

"I do?"

"Don't lie to me!" he snapped savagely. "I can tell. You've acted like it." He shook her again. "Do you love me or don't you?"

"I—I—yes," said Darnley faintly.

"All right, then. Send this gentleman on his way. If you love me, what have you to do with motion picture contracts? Or with anything else but loving me? Careers? Bah! We love each other, don't we? What more do you want? Do you want to trade that off for a couple of years of notoriety? Love lasts."

She was trembling. Her knees seemed incapable of supporting her as she looked into his eyes, eyes that she knew she loved. It was foolish, impractical, but there was nothing in the world she wanted but this untidy young man who was bullying her at that moment.

Hollywood! Money! Fame! What good were any of these if she lost Clyde Farrish? She was not thinking coldly, logically, ruthlessly with her eye only on the main chance. She was thinking as a girl, an ordinary girl who loved a man, and who wanted nothing of life but that man's love in return.

"Speak up!" snapped Clyde, "What about it?"

"One thing you've concealed from me," said Darnley.

"Never!"

"When the color camera was smashed you marched right out and bought another one. Without money. How did you wangle it?"

"I wasn't going to make that public," said he, flushing. "I ventured into a hock shop."

"A pawnshop! But what did you have to pawn?"

"This," he said, and, fumbling in his pocket, managed to extract a small leather box. Its tiny lid flew open, disclosing a diamond, white, beautiful, shimmering. Not a diamond of modern cut nor modern setting, but a rose diamond such as were worn in our grandmothers' girlhoods.

"Oh!" exclaimed Darnley.

"Grandma's engagement ring," Clyde said. "Father's engagement ring. It—it was all I had. I was—well, it was to be my engagement ring and I didn't like to part with it. But just then cameras seemed to be more important than diamonds, so I put it up the spout. The first cash I got I took it out again—and there you are. Finger, please."

He slipped it on and lifted her hand to his lips.

Darnley felt herself overridden. She was powerless. Something beyond her control had taken possession of her. Her feet carried her a step nearer to Farrish; her body swayed toward him until she was pressed against his coat; her arms crept upward and around his neck, and lips, slightly parted, were raised to his. Farrish did not kiss her, not then. He turned his head toward Mr. Mitchner.

"Good day, Mister," he said. "Too bad, sir, you lose."

Then for the first time his lips met hers in love as Mr. Mitchner tiptoed out of the room. And she neither saw him go nor cared if he was going. Because, at last, she was safe. Because ambition had receded over the horizon and she was content. It was wonderful, unbelievably beautiful, to be content.

Capt. Louis Maraskas Suffers Fracture Of Thigh and Wounds

Participating in both the Sicilian and Italian invasion campaigns, and having been mentioned in dispatches for courage in action, Captain Louis Maraskas of the Canadian Armored Corps, son of Mrs. Catherine Maraskas, 133 Charles Street, Belleville, has been wounded according to information received by his mother. The announcement that he was in hospital indicated he had sustained a compound fracture of the thigh as well as gunshot wounds.

Born in Belleville, son of the late Michael Maraskas, Captain Maraskas attended city schools and while a student at Belleville Collegiate starred as a rugby player. He was active in many lines of sport.

Initial military experience was gained by Captain Maraskas with the Argyll Light Infantry and shortly after the war commenced he went active taking his officer's training course at Brockville. He went overseas with the Armoured Corps in 1941 holding the rank of lieutenant and in October, 1943, received his promotion to the rank of Captain. Three sisters reside in Belleville.

ALLIES MAKE APPEAL

New York, Feb. 3. (AP)— The Bari Radio appealed today to residents of Rome to note where the Germans place mines in and near the city so that Allied forces may be notified "as soon as they arrive".

The Italian-Language broadcast took note of reports that the Nazis already have begun mining operations similar to those they carried out in Naples.

Johnny Groundhog Sees His Shadow

For the first time in going on five years, Johnny Groundhog's activities has been removed from the hush-hush list of military secrets and his activities can once again be reported.

During the past four years the populace has been most curious on February 1st to learn whether, on the following day, the animal would see his shadow after his winter sleep underground, but, for the past four long years nothing was said about it, and unless the actual shadow was also seen by man as well as Johnny, nobody was sure whether the winter was going to continue for six weeks more, or whether an early spring was in the offing.

The groundhog's shadow was a matter of strict military censorship with it and all other weather predictions being disallowed until the Allies got the Axis on the run.

During those years few people knew before May or June what has happened, because of the shortage of groundhogs.

Now the censors have okayed the groundhog, and anyone who finds him observing his shadow today can freely tell all neighbors that we have six more weeks of winter ahead.

This all sounds sort of silly when it is considered that the poor groundhog, lacking intelligence of the human kind . . . . ? . . . is undoubtedy just as confused as any of us. For many, many years Johnny Groundhog has been burrowing out of his underground home, breaking through the crust of snow, and sitting beside the opening looking to right and left for what he hopes he will see, another six weeks' sleep, but this year he would feel frustrated from the very start, and the shock of finding the spring here already might very well keep him up, thinking he had overslept.

No reports have been heard from local prognosticators who believe in the groundhog's inherent knowledge of the weather, and for their information, any information on this little fellow who casts his shadow before him would be appreciated.

However, at the noon hour today the sun was shining brightly. You can put your own interpretation on what the weather will be like for the next six weeks.

Airman Arrested On Two Charges Under H.T.A.

Arrested on charges of dangerous driving and failing to remain at the scene of an accident, Cpl. Arthur S. McGrath of No. 6 Repair Depot, R.C.A.F., Trenton, was lodged in the Belleville jail yesterday. The charges arose out of an accident, which occurred on Highway No. 2 near the main gates of the Trenton Airport on Jan. 4 last, when two airmen, who were walking on the highway, were run down, struck by a car and left lying in the ditch seriously injured. McGrath was apprehended by Provincial Constables W. E. Smith and W. G. Milton on the No. 6 Repair Depot Station yesterday following extensive investigations of nearly a month. Bail was set at $1,000.

On the night of Jan. 4, two airmen, AC2 Victor I. Guest, 35, and AC2. Sheldon T. Hatton, 31, both of the Trenton main station, were walking westerly on Highway No. 2 some 300 feet west of the main gate, when it is said by police they were struck by a west-bound motor vehicle, that failed to stop at the scene. Rushed to the nearby Air Force hospital it was found Guest was suffering from a fractured leg, multiple head lacerations and a fractured skull. He had been hurled clear of the travelled portion of the highway when struck. Hatton was found lying on the shoulder of the road and was suffering from fractured ribs, a broken arm and complicated internal injuries. Both men are still confined to hospital.

Provincial Police investigations are believed to have revealed that markings on the front fender of McGrath's car were found by the investigating officers yesterday, following previous examinations to the vehicle in secrecy. McGrath is also believed to have made a statement to police, the contents of which were not released by Crown Attorney B. C. Donnan K.C., who directed charges of dangerous driving and that of leaving the scene of an accident be preferred. McGrath was still in custody at noon today, the bail of $1,000 not having been covered.

Thanks for 'Fags' Received From All War Theatres

Canadian cigarettes are arriving in all theatres of war, it was indicated by the large list of replies received by Chairman "Buster" LaBarr, of the Kinsmen Fag Fund last week. Replies from Belleville boys serving in the Pacific, Italian and European campaigns were received last week, all expressing thanks for "good old Canadian fags" and urging the continuance of the shipment of cigarettes. "Next to letters from home, Canadian smokes are the most welcomed," all agree.

From India P. Stewart, of the R.A.F. wrote thanks as early as last month and the card came through speedily. From other theatres Gord Atyeo, Pat Boyle, Frank Sedore, Art Bridge and Johnny Ronsky were only a few of the 27 odd Belleville boys to express thanks for cigarettes already received. Cigarettes are perfect morale builders for Canadians in the armed services, all agree.

Allied Bombers Range Far Over Long Burma Front

New Delhi, Feb. 2. (AP)—Allied bombers ranged far over the long Burma front yesterday blasting Japanese barracks near Fort White in the Northern Chin Hills and enemy installations in the Mayu Peninsula and leaving two Japanese-occupied villages in Kaladan in flames, an Allied communique said today.

Sporadic clashse between Allied and Japanese patrols featured the ground fighting, with Japanese detachments operating in the Fort White and Arakan areas being dispersed. Allied troops occupied an important hill position east of Htindow.

The Allied advance southward in the Kaladan area continued, with spearheads reported active on the Taungkdu and Naigyaung areas.

Supported by tanks making their first appearance on the Burma front, Indian troops have blasted their way through the outer Japanese defences east of Maungdaw and now face strong hill positions blocking their advance on the Port of Akyab.

Attacking two or three times a day over a span of 72 hours, the Indian forces have taken a score of hill features aided by the point-blank fire from tanks.

Allied heavy, medium and dive-bombers also have been supporting the advance.

Four Veteran Air Gunner Officers Start Training As Pilots at I.T.S.

Showing the same spirit of devotion to duty which has characterized the driving power behind the Royal Canadian Air Force in its many pulverizing raids of German strongholds, four R.C.A.F. officers from overseas recently arrived at No. 5 Initial Training School to begin their training as pilots. All four had served overseas as air gunners with bombing squadrons and collectively have a total of approximately 125 operational flights to their credit.

The officers remustering and now taking training at No. 5 Initial Training School are Flying Officer Bill Rowland, Brussells; Flying Officer Jack Otten, Kingston; Pilot Officer Phillip Whitnall, Peterboro and Pilot Officer Lloyd Morrison of Ottawa.

Two of the above-mentioned officers, FO. Otten and PO. Whitnall were shot down over enemy territory and held as prisoners-of-war in Italy and Germany respectively. Both made their escape from prison camps and managed to return to England.

After serving their tour of duty as air gunners the above officers decided they would like to "steer the crates" and were repatriated to Canada to commence training as pilots. All are looking forward anxiously to the time when they get their wings and again get back into the fray.

Decline Continued In Butter Output

J. E. Singleton Says Unless Decline is Halted it Will be Difficult to Maintain 8-Ounce Weekly Ration

Saskatoon, Feb. 1 (CP)—Unless the continued decline in volume of butter production is halted, it will be difficult to maintain the present ration of eight ounces per person weekly, J. F. Singleton of Ottawa said in an address prepared for delivery today at the opening of an inter-provincial dairy conference here.

Mr. Singleton, Chairman of the Dairy Products Board, reported that butter distribution during 1943 was approximately 25,000,000 pounds less than during 1942.

Since the commencement of the war, production of creamery butter in the prairie provinces has increased to a much greater extent with relation to pre-war volume than has occurred in the other six provinces of Canada.

"The geographical centre of Canadian creamery butter production is moving westward rather rapidly," Mr. Singleton said.

He also reported an increase in total milk production in Canada and a decrease in the all-Canada total for cheese—a drop of 43,000,000 pounds, equivalent to 21.3 per cent, in 1943.

All dairy products which Canada can produce in 1944 will be required and no Canadian producer need hesitate to produce to the maximum.

BULLDOG'S SENSE OF BALANCE USED IN AIR TRAINING

Buffalo, N.Y., Feb. 2 (AP)— Murphy, a bulldog owned by S. H. Woodward, Curtiss-Wright test pilot, has an acute sense of balance," Woodward relates. Algiers, Feb. 1 (AP) — British and American troops bursting forward in a big offensive from their invasion beachhead have struck to the outskirts of Campoleone, sixteen miles southeast of Rome, and also to the edge of Cisterna, communications town on the Appian Way 14 miles northwest of Anzio, headquarters announced today.

Campoleone is 15 miles from the invasion port of Anzio.

American troops attacking on the main front north of Cassino have hammered out new gains meanwhile, and seized 250 prisoners from the German 44th. Infantry Division.

A field dispatch said the German defences in the corridor northwest of Cassino were beginning to crumble.

Enemy Well Dug In.

U.S. units striking northeast of Anzio have reached within half a mile of Cisterna, a key rail and road junction and large air base. They found the Germans well dug in on the border of the city, and resisting strongly.

British forces pushing northward carried ahead in a co-ordinated assault to the edge of Campoleone.

The twin attacks were the first big offensive since the landings.

An Allied officer said the Nazis brought troops from the area north of Rome to meet the Allied blows. But the navy said that Allied landings of reinforcements and supplies were proceeding on schedule, under favorable conditions.

Attack at Tollo

On the 8th Army front, Canadians attacking in clear weather with strong tank and artillery support advanced against heavy German opposition from dug-in positions on the approaches to Tollo. German fighter planes twice were repulsed in raids on Allied positions in the Orsogna area.

American heavy bombers reached into Austria seeking to destroy German air strength, pounding the air base at Klagenfurt. The four-engined bombers also smashed at fields at Aviano and Udine in northern Italy. Berlin said extensive fires were started.

Eighteen Nazi planes fell to Allied sharpshooters during the day. The weather limited Allied operations to 800 sorties, under the number they have been flying in widespread activities. Four Allied ships were lost.

80 Planes Destroyed on Ground

Photographs showed 80 planes were destroyed on the ground in Allied raids Sunday on German air bases, principally in northeastern Italy, bringing the toll for five days of air war to 251 German planes wrecked in the air and aground.

Heavy bombers with fighter escorts caught German defences flat-footed at Klagenfurt, covering the field, hangars and workshops with a shower of bombs. They did not meet a single fighter or any flak, and pilots said many fires were started, with three hangars probably destroyed.

Other planes shot down 16 enemy planes in blows at Udine, 60 miles northeast of Venice, and Aviano, 45 miles north of Venice. It was the second consecutive attack upon Udine.

Sixteen other planes were destroyed aground.

These three bases are of vital importance to Nazi long-range fighters and bombers.

There was little air activity yesterday over the invasion beachhead, but Allied planes hit heavily at enemy communications near that area.

German U-Boat Claim is Unconfirmed

London, Feb. 1 (CP) — The German radio said today U-boats in January had sunk 17 Allied merchantmen totalling 120,000 tons, 23 destroyers, two submarines and 3 landing barges.

The claim was unconfirmed by any Allied source.

The broadcast said other German naval units sank seven ships, bringing claimed total merchant losses to 138,000 tons, and surface units of the German navy sank two additional submarines and two escort vessels.

American Troops Drive Wedge Thru Gustav Line North Of Cassino

STRONGLY ENTRENCHED

By HAL BOYLE
(AP War Correspondent)

With 5th Army Troops Around Cassino, Feb. 1 — (AP) — American troops who drove a wedge through the German Gustav Line pursued the retreating Nazis through the hills north of Cassino yesterday as the enemy defences in this key corridor to Rome began to crumble.

Capture of a number of German troops, including officers, showed the extensive nature of the fortifications which the enemy spent months building.

Tanks prodding forward with the infantry waved back to the rear a number of German prisoners who came down voluntarily to surrender. Those taken included about 20 per cent non-Germans — Austrians, Czechs and Poles.

"Some of the prisoners were put out because they had to dig their own foxholes," said Maj. Kermit R. Hansen, of Omaha, Neb., a former radio announcer.

Strong Bunkers

"We had been hearing much about their concrete and steel bunkers, but this was the first time we came up against them. One emplacement we found was equipped with food and clothing and bunks to sleep 28 men. It was connected by a trench to the machine-guns in the dugout. The bunkers were carved out of the semi-rocky mountain sides and at least five of them were reinforced with concrete, with big log revetments."

The prisoners complained that they had been in their positions more than two days without food, indicating that the Germans—their communications lines under incessant air attack — are having major supply problems.

The enemy was still defending the ridges north of the town yesterday afternoon. Windows and floors in the command post in the Rapido river valley shook steadily as American artillery bombarded the outskirts of the town a short distance away and in clear view .

Crack Under Tank Attack

"The German infantry in these hills were under attack 11 days, but they didn't crack until we finally got tanks across the Rapido and began shooting up the area," Hansen said. "The shock of our tanks and the continuous pressure of our infantry whipped them. They all have been taught that panzers are all powerful and undefeatable. That indoctrination sure boomeranged against them when our tanks cut loose. They became victims of their own propaganda."

SUBMIT OR FIGHT ISSUE CONFRONTS GENERAL FRANCO

Pressure Increases On Spain to Break Ties With Axis; London Doubtful

OIL CUT OFF

London, Feb. 1—(CP)—Both pro-Franco and anti-Franco elements among Spaniards here expressed doubt today that Gen. Francisco Franco would go to the extent of breaking of Spain's diplomatic relations with the Axis despite Anglo-American economic and diplomatic pressure.

A diplomat in Buenos Aires had predicted Spain would cut off relations this week and both Axis and neutral sources told of a burst of diplomatic activity at Madrid.

It had been expected Foreign Secretary Eden would make a statement in the House of Commons today on Anglo-Spanish relations but by mid-afternoon he had not appeared and it was unlikely he would today.

Franco's adherents, who profess neutrality, argued that the Germans across the border in France are a more serious immediate menace to Spain than are Britain and the United States at a distance, even with their power of blockading Spain from the sea.

Embassy Declines Comment.

Opponents of Franco said a Spanish rupture with the Axis seemed probable only if Franco were forced out by a faction or coalition which was convinced the Allies will win the war.

The Spanish embassy declined comment.

In Madrid, morning newspapers carried on their front pages a brief Washington dispatch that "The American Department of State in accord with the British Government gave an order for shipments of petroleum for Spain in the month of February to be suspended, according to an official communique."

The newspapers made no comment and gave no further details.

The United States already has cut off oil shipments to Spain for the month of February and is reconsidering relations with Madrid "in the light of trends in Spanish policy," Washington announced Saturday.

Britain also has been taking a sterner line toward Franco's government.

The identity of the South American diplomat who was quoted in an Associated Press dispatch from Buenos Aires as predicting that Spain would break with the Axis was not disclosed. He was described as a prominent figure in Latin-American diplomatic circles.

Must Declare Self

This source said the attitude being taken by the United States and Britain has brought Franco face-to-face with a situation where he must declare himself for one side or the other. A break with the Allies is virtually out of the question, he said, because Spain desperately needs the oil and supplies which she has been getting from the Americas as well as other goods which pass through Allied-controlled waters.

Stilwell Tells Press Reopening Of Land Route to China Workable

By PRESTON GROVER
Associated Press Staff Writer

New Delhi, Feb. 1 — (AP)—Fresh from a visit to the Ledo front in Northern Burma, Lt.-Gen. Joseph W. Stilwell told a press conference today that the reopening of a land route to China was a workable job and that the Chinese and Americans were fighting well to make it so.

Stilwell conceived the project of building a road through the north Burma jungle to connect with the old Burma land route which formerly began at Rangoon, now in Japanese hands.

The General said the road would work and that critics who had said it would be impossible to build a highway through the India-Burma jungle had seen the "impossible" accomplished. He declined to discuss how big a force it would support when it was built or when it would be finished.

A reporter commented that it was "presumed" that the Board was designed to support a land movement aimed at recapturing a workable port on the China coast.

After a brief pause Stilwell answered, "This is a start on an attempt to reopen communications with China."

Taro Captured

Taro on the far right flank of the Ledo operation was captured Jan. 30 after the Chinese killed a considerable number of Japanese, and the Chinese infantry now are some distance ahead of the road-building gangs.

Asked about the morale of the Japanese, Stilwell said, "You have to kill them to get them out of their holes. They are tough and they are good soldiers." He said the Chinese tactics were to shell the enemy's strongpoints if possible, and then come in from behind and rush them.

Asked how many Japanese prisoners have been taken Stilwell replied, "Two, and they were wounded."

A southeast Asia communique disclosed today that Taro and Kolum, two miles east of that point, were captured Jan. 30 by Chinese forces after a five-mile advance in two days.

Increases in Treatment Allowances Paid To Discharged Men Made

Ottawa, Feb. 1—(CP)— Increases in the treatment allowances paid to service personnel discharged from the Armed Forces for medical reasons and in allowances made under the war veterans' allowances act were announced today by pensions Minister Mackenzie at a press conference.

Mr. Mackenzie said that in future the treatment allowances will be equal to the regular pay or rank held, up to the rank of lieutenant, plus the regular scale of dependents' allowances for the Armed Forces.

In the past, discharged men were put on treatment allowances which amounted to much less than the pay and the dependents' allowance received while the man was in the forces. The allowances are paid from the time the man is discharged until his treatment period ends.

Increases have also been provided for those receiving allowances under the war veterans' allowance act. Now, allowances up to $365 per year may be paid to an unmarried veteran, or to the widow of a veteran with no dependent children, while $730 may be paid to a married veteran, or to the widow of a veteran with dependent children. In addition, in all cases. They may have casual earnings up to $125 annually and an additional unearned $25 annually.

Formerly, allowances amounted to about $300 for single veterans, or widows without dependents, and $600 for married veterans, or widows with dependents, less casual earnings over $125 annually and many unearned income.

Mr. Mackenzie told the press conference, held in this office in the parliament buildings, that previously when a man was discharged for medical reasons he immediately went on treatment allowances which provided—no matter what his rank—$44.20 monthly for himself, $18.20 for his wife, $12 monthly each for the first and second children, $10 monthly for the third child and $8 monthly for the fourth, fifth and sixth children.

Under the amendments, the ex-service man or woman will receive treatment allowances equal to the regular pay of rank which was held, plus the regular scale of dependents' allowances for the armed forces. However, the maximum pay and allowances will be that of a sub-lieutenant in the navy, a lieutenant in the army, or a flying officer in the air force. The ceiling will affect officers above those ranks.

Those qualifying for the increased allowances are those whose treatment is continued without interruption from the date of discharge either as in-patients, or, in certain cases, as out-patients. The allowances may be continued only for a period equal to that of service during the present war, or for 12 months following discharge, whichever is the lesser.

In cases where hospital allowances are greater than the pay of rank at the time of discharge, the rate of hospital allowance will prevail. This is applicable to those requiring treatment for disabilities attributable to war service, who may, while out-patients, receive allowances equal to a 100 per cent disability pension.

Provision is made also for dependents' allowances for persons who become dependents of the ex-serviceman after the date of discharge.

"Under former regulations there were certain cases of hardship," Mr. Mackenzie said.

"To ask an army lieutenant, for instance, who, with his wife, had been in receipt of an income of $195 per month to adjust living standards suddenly to an income of $62.40 per month, was asking a great deal. The same conditions applied for those who had held non-commissioned rank .

"The situation was aggravated because of the fact that a man could do nothing to help himself and to increase his income, for, even though discharged from the armed services, he was not ready for rehabilitation. If his disability was pensionable, frequently there was a lag between the period of discharge and the determining of his pensionable status.

"These new allowances will give a man the peace of mind so essential to his ultimate recovery. I am of the opinion that, with financial worries removed during the period he is undergoing treatment, his recovery will be expedited and his mental outlook towards re-establishing himself in civilian life will be greatly improved.

SHOTGUN-RIDDLED BODIES OF FATHER AND SON FOUND

Police Probing Shooting State Affair Was Murder and Suicide

NO MOTIVE REVEALED

Aylmer, Feb. 1 (CP) — Provincial Police here reported today that the shotgun-riddled bodies of 33-year-old Claude Charlton, farmer, and his eight-year-old son, Jim, had been found in a tobacco barn on Charlton's farm, five miles southeast of Aylmer.

Police, who termed the affair murder and suicide, said the bodies were found last night by a party of farmers who set out to search for Charlton and his son after Mrs. Charlton became worried when they did not arrive home for dinner after a hunting expedition. Charlton had been called to appear in court here today on a minor traffic charge.

Preliminary investigation revealed no motive for the double tragedy. In the tobacco barn, the boy was found under a bench with shot gun wounds in his back. Charlton's body, part of his head blown away, was found about 20 feet away.

Police said Charlton had accompanied other farmers to nearby Brownsville yesterday afternoon, and had invited them to go hunting with him on their return. When the other farmers declined, Charlton and his son set out together.

Dr. C. V. Sinclair, Alymer coroner, said an inquest was unlikely. Charlton is survived by his widow and another son, Jack, five.

Springfield, Ill., Feb. 1 —(AP)— Gov. Dwight H. Green promised last night to push a lawn mower through a 25-acre patch of young timothy—clad in one of Dorothy Lamour's old sarongs. The spectacle was arranged for $460,000 in war bonds.

WAKE ISLAND AIR BASE BOMBED BY U. S. SEAPLANES

Action Taken to Prevent Japs From Interfering With Other Offensives

POWERFUL ASSAULT

Pearl Harbor, Feb. 1 — (AP) — Bombing by two squadrons of seaplanes, intended to prevent Japan's Wake Island air base from interfering with the current American offensive in mid-Pacific, was reported last night by the United States Navy but further operations of a mighty task force against the Marshalls were cloaked by official silence.

Monday passed without word on the movements of the largest mass of warships ever sent against the Japanese. It was officially disclosed Saturday carrier planes of the task forces opened a powerful assault on the Marshalls, 700 miles south of Wake. Sunday the naval units including battleships, were reported to have moved closer to pour shells on the air bases and shipping lagoons of those atolls.

No official credence was given radio Tokyo reports that "Japanese Army and Navy units have intercepted powerful enemy units which have been attacking the Marshall group." Lacking this substantiation, there was inclination here to doubt the reports, particularly as to the implication that the Japanese navy had joined battle.

The Wake raid, 10th of the war to hit that island since it was captured Dec. 24, 1941, by the Japanese, was made by between 14 and 30 seaplanes, each probably carrying more than a ton of bombs. None of the raiders was lost while making what was described officially as a "strong attack."

War correspondents here, studying the Tokyo radio report while awaiting new word of the big fleet movements, interpreted the reference to intercepting Japanese "navy units" as meaning planes rather than ships. Strong Japanese naval units probably are based at Truk, more than 1,000 miles west of the Marshalls but they likely are held there for defensive purposes.

25,000 KILLED IN EARTHQUAKE IN NORTH TURKEY

Town of Gerede Is Destroyed—Tremors Are Recorded in England and in U.S.

IN QUAKE ZONE

The Turkish town of Gerede was destroyed by a powerful earthquake today and many of its 25,000 inhabitants were killed.

Earthquakes described as "very severe" and of "devastating intensity", and apparently originating in Turkey, were recorded by seismographs in both Britain and the United States.

Gerede is in Northern Turkey, some 60 miles from the Black Sea and 180 miles east of Istanbul. Reports from Ankara said the tremors lasted 50 seconds and were felt throughout Turkey.

In Britain, J. J. Shaw, West Bromwich seismologist, said his instruments recorded an earthquake so intense that one of the recording pointers was thrown from its bearings.

Shaw said the shock's epicentre was about 1,715 miles from England, apparently in a southwesterly direction. While this would place the centre of the quake in the bed of the Atlantic ocean north of the Azores, uncertainty as to the exact direction of the disturbance suggested a possibility it might have occurred in the vicinity of the Black Sea.

Quake Zone in North Anatolia.

The city of Gerede lies in the "earthquake zone" of Northern Anatolia, a rugged region where numerous similar disasters have occurred in the past few years.

Late last November a series of shocks shook the Black Sea coastal area east of Istanbul and on Dec. 1, Turkish Interior Minister Helmi Uran told the National Assembly 2,919 persons had been killed, 1,084 seriously injured and 3,321 buildings destroyed. Six days later a new quake killed an estimated 550 persons and destroyed 12 villages.

Last June 21 a quake in the northwest part of Anatolia province killed thousands in the City of Andapazari.

In November, 1939, Anatolia had a violent quake that killed 30,000. The sufferings of the population were intensified by floods and blizzards.

More than 1,000 persons were killed in quakes in July, 1940, and December, 1942.

Japs Bayonet Wounded U.S. Soldiers In Ambush Attack on New Georgia

New York, Feb. 1 (AP) — Japanese laughed deliriously as they bayonetted wounded American soldiers in an ambush attack on New Georgia Island last July, J. Norman Lodge, Associated Press war correspondent, wrote in a story from there last July which inspired one of the first atrocity posters printed by the army in this war. Lodge has returned to the United States.

Distribution of the posters among factories throughout the country was begun today.

The story said a force of 300 Japs broke through the Munda trail and attacked a litter convoy along the Bairoko River near what formerly was a frontline of foxholes. Eyewitnesses estimated 20 out of the 40 litter cases were killed.

A detail of 25 Americans guarding a waterhole on the trail had received word of the Jap advance and rushed to the aid of the convoy. Lieut. Nicholas T. Kliebert, who had charge of the detail, gave Lodge this account of the attack:

"The Japs who got through to one of our littler cases propped the man against a tree and five Japs took turns bayonetting him. I got three of them. Several times we saw Japs pull blankets off litter cases and then line up and take turns macheting them.

"They cut one of the poor lads from the top of his head to his feet, meanwhile laughing deliriously. They shot him through the head.

"We couldn't stand that, so we let the oncoming hordes alone and turned the now cooled-off rifles into the Japs among our wounded and killed six of them. But the others kept up their dirty work.

"One of them evidently was an officer for he had a sword. Using both hands, he raised the weapon overhead to strike one of our men. In doing so he cleaved the head off one of his own men, who was standing behind him.

"By this time, other Japs had got into the foxhole area and were dumping our wounded off the litters which they used to carry back their own wounded.

"Five more of our boys, now freed from the job of taking back the wounded, dashed in swinging their bayonets and knives. Many Japs fell dead, but only after they had hacked to death a number of litter cases, including officers."

Fall of Kingisepp, Last Nazi Baltic Outpost, Announced

City Is Important Station on Rail Line to Reval

Next Big Town Is Narva in Estonia Fourteen Miles West Of Kingisepp

NAZIS FLEE IN DISORDER

London, Feb. 1—(CP)—The Red army has captured Kingisepp, Moscow announced tonight.

Kingisepp (Yamburg) is a Russian frontier station on the pre-war Estonia border and the last German bastion before Estonia. It is some five miles east of the actual border line and 14 miles from Narva, next important Red army objective.

It is a major rail station on the line to Reval, capital of German-occupied Estonia.

The capture by Gen. Leonid A. Govorov's Leningrad armies was announced in a special order of the day from Marshal Premier Joseph Stalin who called the town "an important strongpoint in German defences in the Narva direction."

It was taken by "a skilful outflanking manoeuvre," Stalin said. He ordered a victory salute of 12 salvoes from 124 Moscow guns in celebration.

Moscow, Feb. 1 — (AP) — The fall of Kingisepp, eight miles from Estonia and last eastern outpost of German defences to the Baltic, was expected any hour today as the Red Army fought from house to house.

Lt.-Col. Nikolai Denisov with the army in the north reported in Red Star that "our troops are capturing one house after another. The Russians were across the Luga River in several places and this meant there was no natural defence barrier between them and the big town of Narva, 14 miles west of Kingisepp."

The Russians were giving the Germans a terrible beating as they drove them from a huge area between lakes Ilmen and Peipus.

"The last days of the Leningrad front battles are characterized by the pursuit in all directions of the defeated enemy," Denisov reported.

He told how fast Soviet mobile units threatened the German flanks and rear as the Nazis fell back, sometimes running to avoid encirclement.

The Russians were slowed by a thaw west and southwest of Novgorod, the army newspaper said. A tank battalion was said to have captured the entire staff of a German artillery regiment in the region.

Meantime other Govorov forces farther south, swinging down the highway and railway to Luga, were within 37 miles of a junction with Gen. K. A. Meretskov's army. This pincers movement already had cut off disorganized groups of Germans in lakes and forests to the east.

Churchill Declines To Express View When War Will End

London, Feb. 1—(CP)— Prime Minister Churchill declined to express an opinion in the House of Commons today as to when the war might end.

George Mathers, Labor, asked Mr. Churchill if he could yet state "the principle which would be applied in determining the date of the end of the war or cessation of hostilities, as at that date or a fixed period there after certain wartime agreements come to an end."

Amid Laughter, Mr. Churchill replied: "No doubt at some date hostilities will cease in the different theatres of war.

"It is not for me to state what principles the courts would apply in construing the terms of agreement nor am I prepared at the present time to make any statement which will proceed in determining any formal date on which the war will be deemed to be concluded."

Chetniks, Nazis Defeated By Partisan Forces

London, Feb. 1 —(CP)— Yugoslav Partisan troops have defeated a mixed force of Germans and Chetniks near the towns of Andrijevica and Berane in Montenegro not far from the Albanian frontier, Marshal Josip Broz (Tito) reported today.

Eighty enemy troops were killed and 110 wounded in the Montenegrin fighting, Tito reported in his communique, broadcast by the Free Yugoslav radio.

Partisans are on the offensive in eastern, central and western Bosnia, Tito added, and a strong German attack has been thrown back near the town of Travnik, 45 miles northwest of Sarajevo.

Fierce but apparently indecisive battles were being fought in Slaavonia and the Lika Province of Croatia, it was reported.

Gigantic Fires Still Raging In German Capital

Stockholm, Feb. 1 —(AP)— Allied bombs now have brought death and destruction into every quarter of Berlin, a Swedish correspondent in the Nazi capital said today.

"No description can tell you what happened in Berlin during the last few raids," the correspondent said in a telephoned dispatch to the Stockholm newspaper Dagens Nyheter.

"Gigantic fires in uncounted houses look like great stoves lighting up the whole sky," he declared. "There is not a single quarter any more that has been spared."

The reporter telephoned his story from Berlin early today after communications had been severed for hours.

"In these new raids thousands of people lost their homes," he asserted. "Fires are so great and numerous it takes several days to extinguish them. A great number of people are buried in cellars and many are saved after several days or not at all."

SUM OF MONEY STOLEN FROM BEAUTY PARLOR

Gaining entrance by means of crawling through the door transom, burglars entered the premise of the Cole Beauty Parlor, situated in the Kresge Building, and stole $14.70 in cash, police were informed.

Attempts to force the main door were in evidence, but the lock held securely. Later the marauders forced the transom and crawled through it to gain entrance. The money was stolen from a cash drawer, police were informed. Police theory is that a small person must have completed the burglary, as a larger person would have experienced difficulty in getting through the small transom.

APPOINTED DELEGATES TO ASSOC. MEETING

J. C. Sills of West Huntingdon and John McCaffrey will be the official delegates from Hastings county to the annual meeting of the Ontario Crop Improvement Association to be held in Toronto the first three days of next week, it has been announced by H. Lynn Fair, agricultural representative. Ontario farmers have been asked to produce more food in 1944 and with this thought in mind every effort has been put forth to bring up for discussion at the meeting crop and food production problems under present wartime conditions.

Speakers at the meeting will include Honorable George A. Drew, premier of Ontario, who has recently returned from Britain; W. R. Reek, deputy minister of agriculture, and seed growing and soil conservation experts. Forty-nine branches of the Association throughout the province will send delegates.

SMALL GIRL ESCAPES INJURY WHEN HIT BY CAR DURING STORM

Monday afternoon's blizzard-like snowstorm was attributed to two minor motor accidents that occurred on city streets. Late in the afternoon a motor car driven by Ralph Ackerman R.R. No. 7, Belleville, was in collision with another automobile driven by Wm. Tebworth, 46 Geddes Street, was approaching the north entrance to the upper bridge as Ackerman was making a lefthand turn off the bridge. Fender damage resulted and the principals reported the incident at the police station.

Later a small girl ran out in front of a motor car on Station Street, and was knocked down. The driver of the automobile, Percy E. Kerr, 307 Bleecker Ave., reported the accident to police headquarters and stated it was snowing hard at the time and apparently the little girl did not see the approaching vehicle. She was not seriously injured, the driver told police.

Several Soldiers From the County Among Casualties

Picton, Feb. 1 — Several more Prince Edward County men are among recent casualties in Italy, according to official notices received by the families.

Pte. Clayton Young of Consecon has been killed in action; Pte. E. R. Langstaff, formerly of Mt. View, is missing; Pte. Peter Cockburn, Bloomfield is missing, Pte. Kenneth Watkins of Cressy has been wounded a second time.

Pte. Young was a native of Consecon village, where his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Freeman French, reside. His wife resides in Birmingham, England.

In a letter from Staff Sgt. Ashley Kirkey, Battalion Headquarters, Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment, it is revealed that Pte. Young met death at the same time as Sgt. Charles Read of Northport, an unnamed Medical Officer of Health. They were standing by a truck when a shell landed in their midst, killing all three instantly. Sgt. Kirkey stated "Pte. Young was loved and admired by all the battalion. Never once did he fail to go forward and do his job. His devotion to duty was an inspiration to all ranks. Faithfulness to duty and untiring energy earned him the highest, possible, praise."

Pte. P. D. Cockburn, who was wounded Jan. 18, was a member of the Perth regiment. He enlisted at Peterboro in May 1943 and was in England six months later. His parents are Mr. and Mrs. William Cockburn, Bloomfield.

Pte. E. R. Langstaff, missing, has been mentioned in newspaper stories for outstanding work. His mother resides near Belleville. The family formerly lived at Mt. View. His brother, Flight Lieut. W. C. Langstaff, R. C. A. F., is holder of the D. F. C. and Bar and recently returned to Canada. He enlisted at Picton in 1939 and went overseas the same year. His wife is engaged in war work in Peterboro.

Pte. Oswald Milner, son of Arthur Milner, earlier reported wounded, suffered a shell wound penetrating the left knee and right wrist, a message yesterday advised. He had been overseas with H. P. E. R. since 1939 and was previously wounded in Sicily. His mother died here a week ago.

Pte. Kenneth Watkins, son of Donley Watkins, Cressy, suffered a shell wound in the right hand. He had also been wounded in Sicily as was his brother, Pte. George Watkins. A sister, Ella is a member of the C. W. A. C.

Children Use Hills For Sleigh Riding Despite the Danger

The tempation of Monday's first heavy snowfall of the year was too great for young Belleville as caution was tossed to the winds as children gave vent to their feelings in welcoming the falling snow. Hand sleighs were pressed into service as the exuberance of childhood was unconfined in the excitement of sleigh riding down hill.

However, this practice might have proven dangerous during Monday's blinding snowstorm as it was impossible for motorists to see any great distance and visibility was limited. Police were called to Albion Street where children were riding hand sleighs down the street hill. Several narrowly escaped being hit by passing motor vehicles until police were notified of the danger and cleared the hill. Unfortunately Belleville had no tobbogan slide or separate hills where children may enjoy winter sports.

On Catherine Street the falling snow proved tempting in another light when a snowball was thrown through a door window at 75 Catherine Street. When police arrived to investigate, however, there was no sign of the guilty culprits.

Council Approves Motion To Spend $1,500 on City Survey For Sewage Disposal Plant

Resolution Asking Utilities to Provide the Money Defeated

OTHER BUSINESS

A motion from the Post-War Planning Commission to hire Gore and Storrie, to make a survey of the sewage system of Belleville was approved by the city council at their meeting on Monday night. It was shown that the survey will not exceed $1,500 and when this survey is completed the council will be in a better position to consider the next move with respect to erecting a sewage disposal plant as a post-war project.

The Notice of Motion introduced by Ald. Frank Follwell at the last regular meeting of the City Council, requesting that the Public Utilities Commission provide $1,500 to make a survey of the city's sewers in anticipation of erecting a sewage disposal plant in this city was defeated by the members on Monday evening, when the regular meeting of the council was held. Aldermen Follwell, Pringle and Butler voted for the motion, while Aldermen Wilbur, Chamberlain, Woodley, Allin, Harvey, McDougall, Trudeau, Clapp, Armstrong, Clarke and the Mayor voted against. Considerable business was transacted by the members with many of the motions requiring little discussion as they had been fully dealt with in committee before being brought to the floor of the council.

In speaking to the motion Ald. McDougall thought it would be very unfair to present this request to the Utilities because he could not see why the Utilities should make the survey. "I don't think they could legitimately make the charge for this work and I think the request would stir up friction between the council and the Utilities and that is something we as a council wish to avoid," said Ald. McDougall.

Speaks to Own Motion.

Ald. Follwell in speaking to his own motion stated there was nothing unfair in the request at all. "If the Utilities want to slow cooperation it would be a nice gesture on their part to take over this survey" said the Alderman. "It could be asked, where will the money come from in the Utilities to make this survey and I can answer I don't know but I do know, that the Commission has loaned the gas department of the Utilities approximately $10,000 and if they can loan money from one utility to another surely they can find $1,500 to make this survey."

Ald. Armstrong: "The sewage disposal plant may not be placed with the Utilities Commission after it is completed. The people will have to vote on that question. Whatever expenses are incurred in making the survey and drawing plans should be borne by the council."

Ald. Butler: "I believe the work must be started by the municipality but I see no reason why the Utilities can't lend the money."

Ald. Pringle: "The council can make the water users pay for the sewage disposal plant according to information received at Toronto."

Ald. Clapp: "I think it is our responsibility to make the survey and if we proceed with the work to pay for the plans and the erection of the plant and issue the debentures for the same what is done with the plant as to its management and direction after that is another question that possibly the people might decide."

City Should Pay For Survey Claim

Ald. Chamberlain: "All the preliminaries should be paid for by the city and the erection of the plant should be by the vote of the people."

Ald. Clarke: "The Public Utilities Commission does not figure in this matter at all and I think it would be an imposition to ask them to supply the money. If we want a survey let the council pay for it."

Mayor Rollins: "I think the motion is premature but if it is passed I will certainly present it to the Commission." The question was called and the vote recorded as given above.

Ald. Harvey objected to the amount of expenses incurred by the Committee, that visited Toronto with respect to Post-War planning, stating he thought an itemized account should be given to council and that only railway fare, hotel lodging and meals should be included in the expenses. The members of the delegation defended the account, which was for an amount of $65. Ald. McDougall was going to Toronto at the time on his own business and was driving up and the delegation went with him and it was decided that he should be recompensed for the use of his car to the amount of $10, which was included in the $65 account. The Alderman at the meeting last night stated that he had redeposited the amount to the treasurer and which the Aldermen thought unfair.

Survey Street Lighting.

Aldermen Follwell and Clapp will make a survey of the city street lighting system and prepare plans and recommendations for improved lighting and present their report at the earliest opportunity. The Post-War Planning Commission will consider the possibility of having the Department of Marine extend the east pier of the present government dock as a post war proposition, this to work in with our system of reclaiming land along the water front, which will make acres available for industrial sites providing additional revenues for the Department and sites requiring rail and water transportation. The Chairman of the Harbor Commission is a member of the planning committee and can instruct the committee on the merits of the recommendation. The council approved the motion of the Post-War Planning Commission with respect to the esplanade and also added a member to the commission from the Board of Health and the Canadian Legion.

J. M. Wood was permitted to erect a sign on North Front Street at Evans St. under the supervision of the City Engineer, the ground to be leased to the applicant at $1 a year. The council appointed a committee to go into the question of accident insurance for the public works employees and report back to council. The committee named were Aldermen McDougall, Armstrong, Harvey and the city comptroller.

Repairs For Sweeper Ordered.

Repairs amounting to $282.90 were ordered for the city sweeper to put it in working order for the coming season. Mr. J. B. Boyce, Orliff Lloyd, Clare B. Morgan, J. O. Herity, Aldermen H. J. Allin, R. A. Pringle, chairman of industries, W. L. McDougall and Mayor Rollins was named as the Industrial Commission for the coming year. Gerald Vance was granted the use of some property on Fahey Street for a riding stable and to keep a number of horses. Alderman Clarke and H. D. Bateman city comptroller, were authorized to appear before the Public Utilities Commission regarding the amount, which may be included as revenue from the water works department in the 1944 estimates and they are authorized to approve any agreement made by the commission and this council as representatives of the city council.

To Install Lines.

Two new telephone lines will be placed on the main floor of the city hall to accommodate the city treasurer and comptroller, while on the second floor two lines will feed the city clerk's office and that of the city engineer. A number of requests were received from organized bodies in the city and they were all referred to the committee on estimates for action. These included a grant for the Kiwanis centre, a grant for the Kinsmen "Fag" fund, a petition of the firemen for an increase in wages of $102 per year per man, a request of the Public Utilities Commission to meet the council on Monday night next with respect to the debt of the gas works, a request of Minerva Chapter to hold a tag day, the request of the Canadian Legion to hold a tag day. The city engineer was granted a few days leave of absence from duty to go to Toronto to write an examination on land surveying.

A petition was received from the druggists of the city to amend the closing by-law so that all drug stores will be closed from 8 p.m. until 7 a.m. on Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday and on Saturday from 10.30 p.m. until midnight from January 1st to November 30th. The clerk was instructed to check the petition and if found correct to order the amending clause in the by-law.

Inquiries Answered.

Under the heading of inquiries Ald. Allin inquired as to the cause of the shut-down in water on Saturday from 9.30 a.m. to 2.30 p.m. of the same day stating, that the war industries of Belleville were badly handicapped by the shut-down. Mayor Rollins stated he was informed that the shut-down was unavoidable. "I understand when they got to the seat of the trouble the work of the morning was entirely wasted and another approach had to be made", said Mayor Rollins. Ald. Allin, "I understand the trouble was just a four-inch valve and that they had to go to Trenton to get it. The Mayor promised a full report.

Ald. Follwell: "What about the wood situation in the city?"

Mayor Rollins: "It is nearly all on hand at present."

Ald. Clarke: "Is it permissible for the bus drivers to smoke, when there are signs up prohibiting smoking?"

Mayor Rollins: "Probably due to war conditions."

Ald. Clapp: "We have no jurisdiction. Mr. Rawson owns the bus. There were no motions and no bylaws and the council adjourned. All members were present.

Rotary Provides Treatment for Six Crippled Children Since Last July

That despite the pressure of wartime service duties which call for added hours of work and effort on the part of its individual members, the Belleville Rotary Club is not forgetting its civilian welfare activities was indicated at their regular weekly luncheon meeting on Monday when Chas. J. Symons, chairmen, Crippled Children's Committee, gave a brief report of his committee's activities.

During the past week, two Belleville or Belleville district children suffering from paralysis have been taken to Toronto hospital at the expense of the Belleville Rotary Club and are now receiving the best of care and treatments which it is hoped will one day restore them to normal health. These two cases have been a boy two-and-one-half years of age and the other a young girl, 13 years old. Their chances of complete recovery from the dread paralysis are being brightened through welfare activities of the local Rotary Club.

38 Have Tonsils Removed.

But that is not the complete story of such community service being rendered by the local club, it was later revealed by Mr. Symons. Since the beginning of the current Rotary fiscal year starting July 1st, six children have been afforded treatment through the club's Crippled Children's Fund, while during the last few weeks of the old year a total of 38 children had their tonsils removed at Belleville General Hospital at the expense of the club.

Further elaborating on the work of his committee Mr. Symons reported 18 local children had received gifts from the Club at Christmas time. He personally thanked Mr. J. B. Boyce for assistance in the delivery of these parcels, and Mr. and Mrs. Art Francis for books and games supplied.

Greek Vice-Consul Speaker.

Guest speaker at the meeting was Deputy Vice-Consul for Greece in Canada, Mr. George D. Vlassis, M.A., who delivered an inspiring address on the part which the people of his native land had played in frustrating Nazi efforts toward world domination. Mr. Vlassis was capably introduced by Dr. Rev. James Semple, with club appreciation being expresseed by Rotarian "Bill" Morrison.

In introducing the guest speaker, Dr. Semple digressed briefly to ask for club support in the forthcoming drive for funds to assist in the purchase of comforts for the Corvette "Belleville' which is to be launched in the Spring. He intimated the needed comforts to be supplied the ship from Belleville would cost in the neighborhood of $3,000 and urged the fullest cooperation from club members and from all local residents.

Secretary of the Club, "Pink" Pinkston acted as chairman for the meeting in the absence of President Jack Deacon and during the course of the meeting asked for volunteers to provide transportation for the Belleville Municipal Band which on Feb 7th will stage a concert in Napanee for war charity. The offer of the use of ten cars was almost immediately forthcoming. Brief exerpts from the Governor's letter were read by Chairman Pinkston indicating club activities in other centres.

Quite a number of guests were present at the meeting, being introduced by Harry Ackerman and the club welcome being expressed by Jamieson Bone. Howard Clarke expressed the club's congratulation to Mr. Clare Morgan on his being elected as president of the Chamber of Commerce. Leo Riggs acted in his usual role as pianist.

22-Year Perfect Attendance Record Is Still Intact

That it takes more than a broken arm and a fractured ankle to spoil a 22-year perfect attendance record at Rotary was indicated at the local Rotary Club luncheon Monday when Mr. Ed. Simmons, Trenton druggist, turned up at the meeting with his arm in a sling and his leg in a cast. He broke his arm two weeks ago and his ankle last Friday night but left his hospital bed at Belleville in a wheel chair to attend Rotary meeting.

One of the original charter members of the Trenton Rotary Club when that body was organized almost 22 years ago, Mr. Simmons had never missed a meeting since that time. Two weeks ago he suffered a broken arm while skating and last Friday night broke his ankle when he slipped on the slippery pavement while crossing the street in front of his business establishment.

This is the second occasion upon which Mr. Simmons has kept his Rotary meeting attendance record intact through intestinal fortitude. Sixteen years ago while having an appendectomy at Belleville Hospital his attendance record was kept intact by the Trenton Club motoring to Belleville to hold their regular meeting.

Wintry Weather Blankets District

After two months of apparently misplaced spring-like weather Old Man Winter eventually caught up with the Bay of Quinte district Monday night with Tuesday morning presenting itself to residents as a typical winter's day. The thermometer hovered down near the zero mark during the early morning hours and a liberal blanket of snow covered rooftops, trees and other ground.

Practically every kind of weather had been experienced during the previous twenty-four hours with comparatively balmy weather presenting itself Monday morning; later snow began to fall and with gradually lowering temperature the storm blew itself out in a miniature blizzard in the early morning hours. In all approximately three-and-one-half inches of snow fell to add to what remained of Friday's fall. Lowering temperature dried the snow and small drifts were in evidence on country roads this morning.

A striking comparison of the spring-like weather during January as compared with that experienced in this district during the same period one year ago is given by temperature and precipitation figures released by officials of the Belleville Water Purification Plant.

Comparison With 1943.

January, 1943, saw 29.1 inches of snow fall in this district as compared with only 6.5 inches during the month just completed—and practically all of this snow fell last Friday and yesterday. Rainfall during January of this year was slightly greater than that of one year ago, .69 inches as compared with .26 inches, but total precipitation was only 1.34 as compared with 3.17 last year. There was precipitation on 21 days as compared with 19 days one year ago.

But the real pay-off was in temperature recordings with a maximum of 45 degrees being experienced while the thermometer dropped below the zero mark on only two occasions. Minimum temperature recorded was 3.5 below zero. In January, 1943, there were 15 days of zero weather with the thermometer dropping to 21.5 below for the coldest. Against this the top reading was 38 degrees.

The War Today—
Hitler Unable to Seize Initiative In Any Big-Scale Operation

(By DeWITT MacKENZIE)
(Associated Press War Analyst)

With Germany undergoing a tornado of bombing from the west, and her thousand-mile battle line in Russia being ripped and smashed back by the Red Army, the question naturally arises as to just how much resistance Hitler still has up his sleeve.

This takes on particular significance in view of the great assault now in process against the Marshall Islands, since that is merely a preliminary to the all-out offensive which must await the surrender of Hitler. Thus his strength is the key to the war.

We can say at once that Hitler's defensive strength still is great. His offensive strength, however, no longer is sufficient for him to seize the initiative from the Allies in any big-scale operation the way things now stand.

The reason the Allies haven't invaded Europe yet is because they only now are acquiring the necessary equipment for the job, owing to being caught unprepared at the outset of the war. Allied strength is mounting by leaps and bounds, while German striking-power is going down rapidly.

We shan't know Hitler's exact strength until we get an army of invasion ashore in Western Europe and put him under pressure from two sides. That's the only gauge by which we can measure his power. So long as France is uninvaded, the conflict might continue indefinitely.

Even after the German armies have been driven back to defence of their own frontier, they might hold out for a considerable time. Desperation gives added strength. Leningrad, with its vast population of three million hung on for seventeen months while completely surrounded by Boche and staggering from hunger.

So Hitler's fortress might produce fireworks. However, the comparison with Leningrad isn't exact, for the final attack on the Reich will be spearheaded by the greatest fleet of aircraft ever assembeld. Thus the Nazis will be beset from without and from within. Hitler will be entirely dependent on reserve resources in his own cupboard, which is becoming Mother Hubbardish.

Down to Business To Be Watchword Of Major Parties

Prime Minister Opposes Single Foreign Policy Advanced by Halifax

Ottawa, Feb. 1 — (CP) — Watchword of the major parties in parliment appeared to be "down to business" today after their leaders had their say in the House of Commons debate on the Speech from the Throne.

Prime Minister Mackenzie King gave the cue yesterday when he voiced the most positive assurance yet that there will be no general election before 1945, declared he wanted little time wasted, and gave his blessing to moves to put more work in committee instead of on the Commons floor.

From the debate came Mr. King's official view on the recently-raised issue off a single foreign policy for the Empire: he was against it. And he disagreed specifically with the Toronto speech last week by Lord Halifax, British Ambassador to the United States, and the London speech some time ago by Prime Minister Jan Christiaan Smuts of South Africa.

He said both those men thought Britain should be supported by other countries to give her sufficient power to preserve a balance with the other great United Nations powers. Behind their views, he said, lurked the idea of rivalry among the great nations. Canada, between the United States and the Soviet Union, could not support such an idea.

"What we must strive for," Mr. King said, "is close co-operation between those great states themselves and all other like-minded countries."

The idea of a common empire policy "runs counter to the establishment of an effective world security and therefore is opposed to the true interests of the Commonwealth itself."

Disagreement with the Halifax viewpoint was also expressed by M. J. Coldwell, C.C.F. leader. Gordon Graydon, Progressive Conservative House Leader, said his party would not raise a controversial issue "when common sense indicates that every effort must be made to secure a United front in a United Canada in a greater and more powerful British Commonwealth."

Mr. King said it was unfortunate Lord Halifax made his Toronto speech at the time he did, since it tended to divert attention from the winning of the war. He expressed hope the subject would not be debated at length in the House — but he invited other party leaders to state their views and said he was not avoiding the issue.

Apart from a few jibes at the national leader of the Progressive Conservative party, John Bracken, it was a friendly opening of a Throne Speech debate, and also one of the most expeditious on record. Both Mr. King and Mr. Graydon had finished their speeches before the dinner adjournment — 2½ hours for two speeches which in previous years had taken as much as eight.

Mr. King called upon Mr. Bracken to obtain a seat in the House and said the Conservative party had not had a leader in Parliament since 1940. No man who was not elected to parliament, said the Prime Minister, had the right to speak for the Canadian people.

Mr. Coldwell, said Mr. Bracken had had ample opportunity to seek a seat in the two by-elections in Western Canada last year.

New Democracy Leader John Blackmore had his own challenge for Mr. Bracken. He asked Mr. Bracken to say whether he stood with the common man or with international finance. Mr. Bracken had once been a friend of the common man, said Mr. Blackmore, but he added that now he was not sure since Mr. Bracken had become Progressive Conservative leader.

Explains New Democracy

New democracy, said Mr. Blackmore, stands for abundance against scarcity, for full production, for distribution on the level of full production, and for the maximum use of Canada's natural resources. To achieve that it would be necessary to have debt-free money.

Maxime Raymond, leader of the Bloc Populaire, was the last of four party leaders to speak. He said he looked upon the Speech from the throne as a preliminary to an election. He condemned mutual aid with its gifts to Britain, a country richer than Canada, and a war effort disproportionate to Canada's means.

Frederic Dorion (Ind.-Cjlevoix-Saguenay) urged Canada to send an ambassador to the Vatican and asked the Prime Minister to press for representation of the Pope at the peace conference.

Both Mr. Graydon and Mr. Coldwell accused the liberal government of adopting parts of their parties' programs. Mr. Graydon spoke particularly of the throne speech proposal to establish a floor under farm prices—a development which he said came from Mr. Bracken's Lethbridge, Alta., speech on agricultural policy. Mr. Coldwell said the social security proposals in the speech came from the C. C. F. program but that the government had not gone so far as to adopt the economic base which would make social security possible.

Bank Act Up For Revision

With the Bank Act up for revision this year, Mr. Coldwell urged public ownership and control of all banks. He said the government should retain the war plants it had created and use them to produce peacetime goods.

Parliament should announce the sum it was prepared to spend in the past-war period — "say $5,000,000,000" — provide full pay and allowance for service personnel until they are absorbed in civilian employment, spend $500,000,000 a year on housing, develop rural electrification and extend scientific research.

Mr. Coldwell and Mr. Graydon both urged the government to put its proposed social security measures on the statute books this session.

Mr. Graydon, who spoke before the Prime Minister's statement on the election, said "the vague generalization" in the Throne Speech would accomplish nothing. Mr. Coldwell said the measures proposed were "not firm commitments" and the government should put them into effect before going to the country.

Amendment Proposed

Mr. Graydon proposed an amendment and Mr. Coldwell a sub-amendment to the address in reply to the Speech from the Throne.

The Progressive Conservative motion expressed regret, the government had failed to implement promises made regarding men and women on demobilization, to provide adequate measures for agriculture, to establish a national labor code, to correct coercive and restrictive clauses in the wages control order, to lessen bureaucratic controls and to halt infringement of provincial rights.

The C.C.F. motion expressed regret at the government's failure to "oppose the fundamental social changes and economic planning which alone can hasten the winning of the war and make possible the establishment of a post-war Canada capable of providing full employment and complete social security."

To speed house deliberations, Mr. King suggested Wednesday — now a half-day for the House — might become a day devoted to work of House committees, with no House sittings. More discussion might be conducted in committee and the time of the House saved.

Dewey Most Likely Republican Candidate for President in '44

By CLYDE BLACKBURN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Washington, Feb. 1 — (CP) — It now would appear that young Tom Dewey may be the Republican candidate for President next June if the G.O.P. has to send a Commando squad down the Mohawk Valley to Albany and drag him to the Chicago convention by main force.

Healthy, elegant and assured, the 42-year-old Governor of New York, who barely missed the G.O.P. nomination at Philadelphia in 1940 when delegates suddenly decided Wendell Willkie was most likely to win for them, had become the nation's political mystery man.

Amid a furore of growing demands that he step in as candidate for the Republican nomination he smilingly points to his declaration that he would not be that kind of a candidate.

But there seems no record of his having declared against accepting nomination if it were thrust upon him — and a growing volume of opinion believes that is what will happen.

Last fall Wendell Willkie let it be known he was available for the party's presidential purposes and at first there seemed a tendency to accept him as logical candidate, even though he was beaten in 1940.

But a Republican move away from Willkie and toward Dewey is gaining momentum even in the face of the latter's apparent indifference.

Trend Will Grow

This Dewey trend will grow, says the Washington Post's Edward Folliard, "unless some of the smartest politicians in the G. O. P. have lost all their sagacity."

Republicans, apparently convinced that they will have to beat Roosevelt if they are to win this year, seemed determined to put up New York's famous "gang-buster" against the greatest vote-getter of all time.

But Dewey, busy and happy at his task of running New York State —next to the presidency, the biggest political job in America — is as sphynx-like as Roosevelt was in 1940 and promises to be in 1944.

From many points of view Dewey appears to be in the best possible position for the Republican nomination — a position he might never hold again, and there seems little doubt that when the Republican convention in Chicago is over next June it will be Dewey who will carry into the presidential campaign the hopes of the G.O.P.

British House Will Not Comment

London, Feb. 1 (CP. Cable) — Prime Minister Churchill today told the House of Commons that Viscount Halifax whose recent speech in Toronto about co-operation in the British Commonwealth touched off widespread discussion "was not making any pronouncement on behalf of the (United Kingdom) government."

The Prime Minister added, however, that Lord Halifax's speech "like those of other distinguished figures on this subject was a valuable contribution to study of the subject."

Answering Edgar Granville, Independent, who asked if the Prime Minister was satisfied that the present method of consultation between Dominion leaders was adequate for day to day co-operation on Commonwealth policy, Mr. Churchill said the proper occasion for consideration of such issues is a meeting among the Empire Prime Ministers.

"It is hoped to hold such a meeting at an early date," he added.

The Prime Minister said it was a matter for the leaders of the House when Emmanuel Shinwell asked, "in view of the speeches by Lord Halifax and other distinguished persons would it not be desirable and strengthen the hands of the Prime Minister if the House did, debate the matter and make a pronouncement?"

Tokyo Says Heavy Allied Forces Attack Marshalls

New York, Feb. 1 —(AP)— The Tokyo radio told the Japanese people tonight a "superior enemy force has been raiding the Marshall islands group" since Sunday morning but that details of the fighting are "not known to us at this time."

The broadcast, intended for domestic consumption and recorded by the United States foreign broadcast intelligence service, said:- "It has been made clear to us that enemy has taken a new offensive operation against our Marshall Islands group" and that "we can surmise the enemy has raided our island with a task force on a large scale."

While describing the attacking force as "superior," the broadcast assured Japanese audiences that "our Army and Navy forces garrisoned on the islands have intercepted and now are engaged in fierce fighting."

Wording of this announcement was similar to that of an English language broadcast which the Tokyo radio beamed to North America yesterday morning.

Another Tokyo broadcast last night described the attack as "centring around aircraft carriers" and spoke of it as the "second phase" of a large operation.

Sgt. E. Bonter,' Chute Cameraman, Tells of Work During Radio Interview

Trenton, (Special.) — Relatives and friends in Trenton were thrilled to hear on the Canadian Broadcasting Company's roundup at 7.45 Monday night the voice of Sergeant Elmer R. Bonter, being interviewed by CBC correspondent, Peter Sterzberg.

Sgt. Bonter enlisted early in the war as a gunner but on arrival in England joined the Paratroops and last fall was reported from London as being one of only two parachute newsreel cameramen in the British and Canadian armies. Elmer was a reporter for the Belleville Ontario Intelligencer and the Toronto Evening Telegram before the war and a keen cameraman.

In his interview with Sterzberg he told of a recent review of Canadian parachute troops somewhere in England and of their brilliant accomplishments. Equipment of all descriptions is dropped with the men he said, 'chutes of various colors used for different kinds of equipment and supplies. Asked if his camera equipment was dropped by 'chute he said that he was able to carry all his on his person when he jumped. The only other non-combatant in the unit, he said, was the padre, a man of over 40 born in England but who had lived for some years in Winnipeg.

While a news reporter in Trenton Sgt. Bonter's first big camera assignment was when a cyclone of intense velocity hit the Trenton Air Station doing a considerable amount of damage. This was some years before the war, and he was able to obtain first hand pictures which were used in all the leading papers and magazines across Canada.

He has two sisters, Miss Shirley Bonter, Reg.N., of Belleville General Hospital, and Miss E. Bonter, a munitions instructor in a Hamilton war plant. His father, the late William R. Bonter died last year, while his mother has been dead for some years. Two aunts, the Misses Meta and Mabel Bonter and an uncle, Mr. Gershom Bonter reside in Trenton.

It is regrettable that, although, it is understood, information came to Trenton during the day that Sergt. Bonter would be on the air at 7.45, his relatives were only notified about five minutes before his voice came over the air with the result that they were only able to inform a very few of their friends. Elmer was a great favorite in Trenton and literally hundreds of his friends missed hearing him through the lateness of this message.

Crown Life Policies Total $308,167,791

Toronto.— Sturdy strength and notable growth of membership were reported last week at the annual meeting of the Crown Life Insurance Co., by Hon. G. Howard Ferguson, president. Crown Life policies in force now number some 131,000 for a total amount of $308,167,791. This figure takes no account of a large number of the annuities in force. Mr. Ferguson said all portions of the territory where the company operated have contributed to the increased business.

New policies issued during the year, including income bonds, amounted to $45,200,569 and the total insurance in force increased by $31,540,502. Premiums received amounted to $9,512,888, deposits on behalf of policyholders $1,193,561, and investment income $2,530,002, making total receipts $13,236,452.

Death and disability claims paid amounted to $1,340,406, the mortality record of the company continuing favorable, although somewhat higher than the unusually favorable experience of the past few years. Payments in settlement of matured and surrendered policies, less reinsurance, were $1,105,138; annuity and other payments $668,913; dividends to policyholders $401,861; making total net payments to policyholders and beneficiaries $3,516,321.

Assets increased by $7,227,296 to a total of $60,712,986. The principal increase was in government bonds. Policy loans declined slightly and now represent less than 8 per cent. of the assets. The average rate of interest realized was 4.32 per cent.

Policy reserves stood at $51,123,639 at the close of 1943, and free surplus carried forward was $2,393,429.

On the Right Side

Residents of Belleville who are Greek by birth must have an intense satisfaction in the evidence of high regard in which their countrymen in faraway Greece and they themselves are held in this time of war. The service in Bridge Street United Church on Sunday night was an example of that attitude of Belleville people who like Canadians everywhere cannot resist the opportunity to show this gratitude and respect to the brave Greeks who protected by their faith and a small army against the brutal combined armed might of Germany and Italy, took their destiny in their hands and trusting in the democratic nations stood in the path of Hitler and Mussolini and dared all. This step brought occupation by the aggressor but they preserved their honor and lived up to the highest instincts of their great forbears who two and a half thousand years ago created the Greek civilization which will influence the minds and hearts of ages yet unborn to the farthest limits of time.

The blood of the ancient Hellenes or Grecians tells. The modern Greeks by their sacrifice, according to Deputy Vice-Consul George H. Vlassis, who spoke at the service in aid of the Greek relief fund, altered the course of the war, upset Germany's timetable of aggression by a month and a half and made possible the loss to Germany of the Battle of Moscow. Greeks at home and abroad have the proud knowledge that they helped to knock out the Axis puppet Mussolini and bring about the collapse of Italian Fascism and have co-operated in the Allied victory to come.

"Never has Greece forgotten for a moment her mission, never has she betrayed her trusted place. She has always stood a vigilant sentry of the honor of man as honor is understood by God, has fought for the preservation and the spreading of the light of civilization which she first gave to the world and has been sacrificed for the creation of a better tomorrow."

Greece, the builder of the Parthenon and the great Hellenic civilization, endures after three thousand years despite despots and invaders. First to emancipate the mind of man, she is still the great liberator by her past and through her present trials.

Maple Syrup and Honey

The new coupon value of "D" preserve coupons recently announced applies to all such "D" coupons as may be in the hands of the consumer on Feb. 3. So ran an announcement of the Wartime Prices Board yesterday in answer to a question whether the recent order increasing the value of the "D" coupons referred only to coupons becoming valid on and after February 3rd or whether the order meant that unused "D" coupons valid before February were to be increased as well. The explanation to the latter is "yes."

For those who have many unused "D" coupons this will mean that they will have an opportunity now to buy considerable maple syrup, for instance, or preserves, or honey. There has lately been some doubt among producers of maple syrup that there might not be enough coupons available for the purchase of maple syrup to buy all that would be offered. The statement of Monday makes it clear that coupons "D", unused before February 3rd., carry the increased values.

The news ought to be good news to producer and to the consumer alike, and is calculated to increase production and set at rest any hesitancy or doubt on the part of the producers. This will permit buying in quantity and should make for a larger production of syrup as assuring a good market.

So from February 3rd until May 31st maple syrup accordingly may be purchased on the basis of one coupon for 40 fluid ounces and "D" coupons unused but valid before that date can be used at the 40 fluid ounce value each until the end of May.

In honey coupon values have been doubled for the same period. A "D" coupon will be good for two pounds of honey. Honey, too, can be bought at the double amount for the coupons which are unused prior to February 3rd, as well as for the coupons becoming valid for February 3rd to May 31st.

Sugar in place of preserves, however, does not increase in value per "D" coupon. Many householders have been using the "D"'s for extra sugar and henceforth that practice may not be so general and popular for the next four months.

Under the recent revision canned fruit coupon values are doubled for the next four months, and likewise jam, marmalade, maple butter and honey butter. A coupon will buy one quart of molasses, double what it will buy up to February 3rd.

Canning Sugar

Under the new regulations holders of ration books wanting preserving and canning sugar will be entitled to ten pounds of sugar by the use of special coupons in the present ration book. The new plan will take the place of the method used last year of estimating the amount of jams and canned goods to be made up and of making application for the required sugar. Those who do not take advantage of the extra sugar for canning and preserving purposes may apply to have the canning sugar coupons exchanged on application for "D" coupons for purchases of honey, jellies, jams and marmalades now rationed.

Considerable choice is allowed consumers which is expected to work out advantageously for consumers' tastes differ. The new method is thought likely to induce more preserving.

The changes in general indicate a better supply situation of the items affected.

Canadians have been generously treated under the rationing plan which has worked out to the mutual advantage of all. With the additional allowances made under the new schedules and the choice of several purchases with certain coupons there will be added variety and a certainty of a good supply of preserves, maple syrup, honey and such.

King Gets Dagger

Haakon, King of Norway, received in London the other day a parcel containing an old and valuable stiletto, with which the sender though the monarch might like to stab one of two persons who have been ursurping his powers under the German army. It will be used as a paper knife. The King, 71 last August, receives many gifts and messages of esteem. From New York a prominent American clubwoman sent marmalade, home made jam and candy, and a box of special cheese. The accompanying letter made it clear that the gift was a token of the admiration of the men and women of the United States for the ruler in exile.

Surgical Glue From Blood

(Newsweek)

The edges of a wound can be glued together with a cement concocted from the patient's own blood, the technical journal Surgery, Gynecology and Obstetrics disclosed recently. The method was devised by a woman surgeon, Dr. Machtel F. Sano of Philadelphia. The glue can be used to make a skin graft patch when the edges of a surface wound won't meet, and 48 hours after they are planted the grafts are as much a part of the body as surrounding, normal skin. Even more vital, the experiments indicate that the new glue can be used to close and patch gaps in such organs as liver and spleen, where large punctures often have been fatal.

EXAMPLE

He noticed that his neighbors' window frames of paint were bare,
The roofs were worn in places and in need of much repair.
And walking home at sundown oft grieving he was moved
By the shabbiness about him which he knew could be improved.

Should he talk to Jim about it? Should he mention it to Joe?
Oft he wondered, trudging homeward: Can it be they do not know
What so plainly is apparent? Do they fail their shame to see?
If he talked to them about it would they better try to be?

Then one evening he decided that his roof was needing care,
And his window frames and doorway were of paint extremely bare.
So he went to work upon them; put his place in order trim,
And the neighbors started painting without any word from him.

First the house next door was bettered; then the one across the way;
Then the one upon the corner; none was shabby left to stay,
Till the street entire was bettered. Need the moral here be told?
Men will heed a good example, when to lectures they are cold.

Australian Letter

By J. E. HOLDWORTH
Canadian Press Correspondent)

Sydney, Australia, Feb. 1 (CP Cable)—Australia has completed the first fortnight of meat rationing and for the first time in history there are queues at butcher shops Saturday morning as people seem to have decided to enjoy weekend roasts and let the rest of the week look after itself.

Australians are such large meat-eaters that, although their ration is the most liberal of any rationed country, it upset normal habits. The system resembles the Canadian "group system" and each person over nine years of age gets 1 1-2 to four pounds of meat weekly according to cut. Children under nine receive half the ration.

Coal miners criticize rationing, complaining that because of their peculiar occupation they have not the opportunity of "outside eating."

Meantime Prime Minister John Curtin told state premiers at a Canberra conference that unless coal production in New South Wales showed a substantial advance Australia's whole war capacity would be less this year than last. The Prime Minister said "too much coal was being lost by strikes." The Commonwealth coal commissioner reports miners in every state but New South Wales working satisfactorily.

The manpower shortage is headline news in the papers, the central theme being shortage of men for food production.

Dr. H. V. Evatt, Minister for External Affairs, has announced that by the end of January there would be more than 50 clothing factories established in country towns to provide employment for thousands of country girls. This scheme would enable Australia to supply the ever-growing demands of the Allied and Australian armed forces.

More than 2,500 aircraft have been manufactured in Australia since the beginning of the war and production is to be speeded up this year, the government announces.

Great-West Life Reports Splendid Business Increase

Winnipeg, Man.—Mr. H. W. Manning, vice president and managing director, told the annual meeting of The Great-West Life Assurance Company today that during 1943 still larger numbers of people have turned to the Company for protection and security. He pointed out that 30,000 men and women purchased new life insurance and annuities during the year, totalling over $101,000,000. This brings the total amount of policies in force to $759,000,000—graphic evidence of widespread appreciation of the services afforded by the Company.

He referred to the difficulties which people must meet in adhering to a savings program year after year, and through changing circumstances. Nevertheless, only 2 1-2 per cent of the Company's policyholders found it necessary to surrender their policies or allowed them to lapse in 1943.

Over $200,000,000 is now held in trust and invested on behalf of policyholders. This is an increase of over $13,000,000 within the year, every dollar of which went into government bonds and thereby contributed to the wartime financial needs.

The Company enjoyed an exceptionally favorable mortality experience and a lower expense level than for several prior years despite the difficulties of current conditions. The Accident and Health and Group Insurance Departments both provided widely increased coverage during the year.

Insurance Company Well Supervised,

Mr. W. P. Riley, president, in his address said that it is more important than ever before that individuals and nations clearly recognize their responsibilities to plan for and safeguard those things for which our men and women are fighting. He reported that 230 of the Company's employees and representatives are now serving the United Nations on practically every theatre of war, while those who remain at home have also given freely of their time and energy to activities related to the war effort. The Company in 1943 invested over $29,000,000 in war bonds, nearly 50 per cent more than the total premium income.

He urged policyholders to appreciate that, "Each year competent public servants examine all Company records, study policy provisions, regulate and survey investment transactions and analyze balance sheets in minute detail. Their reports are open to all who wish to read them. It is clear that those who advocate government control of the life insurance business are uninformed about the extent to which the business is already supervised and regulated".

In concluding his remarks Mr. Riley said, "We are happy that the confidence of so many in the strength and services of this Company has made possible the record of achievement presented to you today. As we enter upon another year we pledge our maximum effort to bring victory over our enemies and to establish an era marked by neither strife nor regimentation but by voluntary co-operation for the betterment of all".

Canadian Scene A Century Ago

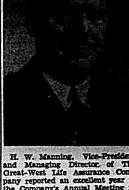
By J. L. G.

As February makes its bow to 1944, and we begin to make preparations for St. Valentine's Day, let us spare a thought for the sentimental episode of the heart that crossed the Atlantic twice. This much-travelled heart belonged to Frontenac, the great Governor of Canada, who died in 1698. The organ was removed, according to his instructions and sent to Paris to his estranged wife in a little silver casket. The Countess de Frontenac, then well over sixty, spurned the tribute. She said that she would have nothing to do with a dead heart, which, living, did not belong to her. . . .Today Frontenac and his restored heart rest under the Basilica, the principal church in Quebec since 1647.

Frontenac was greatly beloved in Canada. One who shared the popular grief at his death said "He was the father of the poor, the protector of the oppressed and a perfect model of virtue and piety".

Do you know the origin of the custom of observing St. Valentine's Day? There is no doubt that the practice of sending valentines goes back to the days of the ancient Romans. The names of young girls were put into a box and drawn by young men. Each man was supposed to present a gift to the maiden who fell to his lot, and to make her his partner while the feast of the Lupercalia was "on". We find a mention of "valentines" in English and Scotch chronicles as early as 1446. . . .St. Valentine was a bishop of Rome during the third century, and a man famous for his love and charity. His death occured on February 14, 1270.



H. W. Manning, Vice-President and Managing Director of The Great-West Life Assurance Company reported an excellent year to the Company's Annual Meeting in Winnipeg on February 1st.

Ottawa, Feb. 1 — (CP)—A Labor Department spokesman said last night that Canada is "guaranteeing" the United States 3,500 men to cut wood for munitions and pulp, and is allowing the U. S. "leeway" to take care of the turnover in this type of work.

NUGGETS OF KNOWLEDGE

The word "chimney" occurs in the English Bible only once. In the days when the Bible was written chimneys consisted merely of openings in the walls or roofs of houses.

Jericho in Palestine, with about 1,000 inhabitants, is said to be about the lowest town on the earth's surface. It lies 820 feet below sea level.

The fat-tailed sheep of Asia is a good milk-producer, but its wool is of poor quality.

"Shallot," the name of a small onion used widely in flavoring salads and sauces, is derived in a round-about way from a place in Palestine. This type of onion is native to Syria and was once extensively cultivated at Ascalon in the Holy Land. The Romans called Ascalon and the onions raised there "Ascalonia." This was corrupted by the Norman-French into "Escallion," which was twisted by the English into "shallot."

A person burning with curiosity or excited to know the issue of something is said to be "on tenterhooks." The term comes from weaving. Cloth after being woven, is "tentered" or stretched on hooks passed through selvedges.

Despite the fact that St. George had been the patron saint of England for many centuries, there was not an English king named George until 1714.

"Fillet of sole" originally meant a portion of the flatfish known as sole served without bones. "Fillet" literally signifies "little thread." Now "fillet of sole" refers more to the manner of preparation and serving than it does to the species of fish served.

James M. Wayne, of Georgia, is believed to have been the only man ever appointed directly from the House of Representatives to the Supreme Court of the United States. He was appointed by President Jackson in 1835 and served on the court as an associate justice until his death in 1867.

"Boer," as applied to the descendants of the Dutch settlers in South Africa, is often mispronounced. It is the Dutch word for farmer and is correctly pronounced like English "boor," rhyming with "moor," not "door."

GREAT-WEST LIFE Policyholders
BUILD SOUNDLY IN 1943

Policyholders in the Great-West Life shared a notable year in 1943. By their thrift and prudence they made remarkable headway in spite of the many strains of wartime and the unusual demands on their incomes.

1. Their increased savings added more than $13,000,000 to the funds which the Company is holding for them. Over $200,000,000 is now held in trust for 231,000 policyholders.
2. They were joined by 24,500 new policyholders who, along with former policyholders, added $101,000,000 of new protection for themselves and their dependents.
3. They now own policies totalling $759,000,000—an average of $3,286 per policyholder.
4. They bought $29,000,000 of Victory Bonds and U.S. War Bonds through their Company during the one year—representing $125.00 for each policyholder.

To many policyholders, 1943 brought death, retirement or unexpected emergencies, but through their foresight they had provided for these contingencies. Beneficiaries whose homes were saddened during the year received $4,573,000, while living policyholders received $9,189,000—a total of $13,762,000.

A complete report, showing the strong position of the Company, is available. It gives striking evidence of how men and women in Canada and the United States are making financial provision for their own future security.

MRS. E. LESSARD of Maymont, Sask., has been troubled for some time with severe pains across the forehead. The constant, sharp pains of these attacks make sleep impossible and bring on disagreeable nausea.

Quick Relief with Mustard

To overcome this condition, Mrs. Lessard says, "There is only one thing that has brought any comfort or caused the pain to subside. I prepare a very hot foot bath and put two tablespoonsful of mustard into it, having first mixed the mustard to a paste in cold water. This brings me immediate relief and relaxation."

"After this treatment," declares Mrs. Lessard, "sleep comes without any further effort, and I bless mustard for the relief it has brought me."

Many Ways to Use Mustard Remedy

You can use mustard in foot baths, complete baths, poultices or plasters to relieve pain of Neuralgia, Rheumatism, Arthritis, Neuritis, over-tired Muscles, etc.

The strongest proof of the value of mustard in treating so many common ailments is the fact that thousands of people like Mrs. Lessard depend on it year after year and recommend its use to friends and relatives. Always keep mustard handy in your house in case of emergency to relieve Chills or Colds, or when you feel depressed by Grippe or other Winter infections. # Tinting the Tresses Can Be Done By the Home Shampooer

Pamela Blake believes in daily care of the hair.

By HELEN FOLLETT

PROPRIETORS of beauty salons report that there is not as much hair dyeing and bleaching going on as usual; women are busy as bees; this does not seem to be the proper time to start a rejuvenating project. But the demand for color rinses has developed into a frenzy. They take only a minute's treatment after the shampoo and the cash customer feels that something has been done to make the old mop look better.

That old timer, the camomile rinse, which Cleopatra probably dunked her queenly head in, is gaining popularity. The home shampooer can use it if she wishes. It puts bright lights on blonde hair, gives character to drab tresses.

Fill a teaball with the dried leaves. Let it steep in a quart of boiling water for half an hour. Use as the final flourish for the shampoo; don't rinse it out. There are no bad results. It does not make as much of a color change as peroxide and, unlike peroxide, it will not dry the shafts or make them brittle. It is a sort of spiritual comfort to the girl with tarnished golden hair who is afraid to undergo a real bleaching transformation.

If one wants something stronger than the camomile, add three tablespoonfuls of peroxide to a quart of water, pour over the head repeatedly. For a decided bleach, it is best to have professional attentions.

The henna pack seems to have gone by the board though men and women who specialize in dyeing and bleaching still use it in combination with chemicals. The henna rinse gives only a suggestion of auburn tints to brown hair. To make it the leaves of the herb are used, not the powder. One ounce of the leaves is covered with boiling water. After standing for ten minutes, the brew is strained, a quart of tepid water is added. It is poured over the hair while tresses are wet from the shampoo.

More Than 500 At Opening Dance Of Red Triangle

The first in a series of Red Triangle Hostess Club dances to be held in the Belleville Armouries on Saturday night was held last Saturday evening by the girls of the club for the purpose of entertaining the servicemen of the district. Messrs. Jack Wilson and Albert Jones, of the Y.M.C.A. Board of Directors, who are active in the Red Triangle Club, conducted the evening's program. The dance proved a rousing success with over five hundred reported as in attendance.

The canteen was in charge of the C.W.S.F. girls, and the check room by the Air Cadets who so generously offered their services for the occasion. All types of novelty dances were conducted to the pleasure of the merrymakers.

The presence of a large number of hostesses was an absolute sign of their willingness to co-operate in every way for the purpose of entertaining the airmen of the surrounding airports.

Honor Mrs. Ponton Who Retires As President of St. John Ambulance Brigade Here

In honor of Mrs. W. N. Ponton, who is retiring from the presidency of the nursing division of the local St. John Ambulance Brigade to go to New York City for an indefinite period, a dinner was arranged for her by the brigade at Dickens' Tea Room on Monday evening. Included in the party were not only members of the original class but also guests in the persons of Col. and Mrs. B. C. Donnan and Dr. J. J. Robertson.

Col. Donnan toasted the King and also expressed his appreciation to Mrs. Ponton for her untiring efforts to build and strengthen the organization to what it is today.

Mrs. Frank Cushing, who succeeds Mrs. Ponton as president, extended her thanks to the past-president for her co-operation in getting the girls out to aid the V.O.N. and the Red Cross at the Blood Donors' Clinic.

Dr. Robertson also thanked Mrs. Ponton and added that whatever he had done to help the brigade was small in comparison to the worthy cause for which his rooms had been donated.

Mr. A. Leslie, head of the men's unit, voiced his appreciation to Mrs. Ponton for her unstinted time and co-operation.

Everyone then retired to the office at 217 Pinnacle St., where the remainder of the evening was spent in practical work and plans for a full season ahead.

Mr. D. J. Batchelor, who has been a member of the brigade for a period of fifty years, but who only recently joined the local unit, gave an account of the inception of the brigade of Jerusalem. He told of how it helped to save many lives and of the necessity of the nursing division to be well versed in its work and fit to render any help in the city in time of a crisis.

Holy Name Society Elects New Officers

On Sunday, January 30, in St. Michael's Academy, the Holy Name Society held its first meeting for the year 1944.

The first item of business was the reading of the treasurer's report for the past year. The report was by far the most outstanding in the history of the organization.

Various business items were then discussed, including the weekly dances, bingo and the various charitable undertakings of the society during the past year.

The election of officers was then held. Rev. Father O'Donnell, representing the director, Monsignor Nicholson, then took the chair. The election was quickly brought to a close for it was moved, seconded and carried that the present executive remain in office for another term. The present executive has held office for five consecutive years.

Discussion on the past successful year and proposed plans for the coming year took up the rest of the afternoon and the meeting closed with the drafting of far reaching plans for the coming year.

THE TWO-TONE trend has extended to coats and a most attractive fashion it is, nice for those who want new and interesting details for that all-important Spring model. This useful coat, built on trench coat lines, has a beige top and a honey-tan skirt, and has other clever ideas such as stitched pocket flaps built up over the leather belt. It is single breasted below long revers, and is slit in back from a centre seam that extends from neck to hem.

MAKING BED WITH PATIENT

Today everyone should know a bit about home nursing for one can never tell when an emergency may arise. Particularly in wartime, a knowledge of how to care for a patient at home is absolutely necessary.

Do you know how to make a bed with your patient in it? Some patients cannot be moved out of bed and you have to know what to do. The illustration above is a guide. Full instructions how to do this are included in our 32-page booklet, along with many other necessary things in the daily care of a patient.

Our booklet gives the home nurse the important do's and a few of the don'ts are also in order.

As well as the daily care of a bed patient it gives instructions how to care for a bed patient, how to care for a patient after an operation, a patient with a contagious disease and also how to nurse common ailments such as colds and convulsions.

Send 15c in coins for your copy of WHAT YOU SHOULD KNOW ABOUT HOME NURSING to The Ontario Intelligencer Home Service, 166 Front St., Belleville. Be sure to write plainly your name, address and the name of booklet.

Fashion Flashes

VERY PRECIOUS leisure hours deserve precious clothes. A lovely negligee is in black crepe with ruffles of Alencon-type lace around the deep collar, the elbow-length sleeves and down the skirt from the waist to the point where the hem is slashed, and then around the hem. A clump of roses at the centre waist.

A SENSE of well-being comes with fine lingerie. A lovely slip is of pale pink or pale blue satin with darted bodice and snug diamond-shaped midriff. A scalloped border of tiny embroidered roses and tiny appliqued satin hearts lends beauty to this slim slip.

A REVIVAL is being staged by the old-time hat pin, but modernized and brought up-to-date. Something new is a two-pronged hat-pin, a ball studded with amethysts or aquamarines or peridot. A pair such pins also makes a delightful hair ornament worn tucked into a chignon when not on duty on a hat.

INTERESTING color combinations are now lining up for Spring wear. Violet with deep, bright pink is a smart choice as dove gray and tobacco brown with a touch of heaven blue. The lighter shades are used as accessories, often matching blouse and gloves.

NO MATTER how much the soft suit is promoted, the meticulously done tailor-made still obtains. A smart new model is in gray men's wear suiting with a hairline stripe. It is a one link-button model and has a shawl collar banded with the fabric using the stripes in reverse.

Don't talk about your health—or lack of it—all the time. It is bad manners and very boring.

Wife Preservers

Turn the cloth bag of your vacuum cleaner inside out every two or three weeks and give the inside a thorough brushing with a stiff brush. Be careful not to puncture the bag. Never wash it. If you have a paper bag, change it often.

Girls Beat Boys In Bowling At 'Y' Open House

Whoever said that girls could not beat boys at bowling? Because it so happened that at the Y.M.C.A. Open House on Sunday, the "Y" girls came through with flying colors and thoroughly trounced the boys in that popular sport.

The list of the victors are as follows: Dorothy Evans, 258; Doris McCabe, 234; Margaret Allan, 229; Jean Muir, 223; Evelyn Reid, 210.

Not forgetting their opponents, here they are: A. W. Richardson, Ottawa, stationed at No. 3 S.F.T.S., 229; Ted McDonald, Saskatchewan, stationed at No. 6 R.D., 229; Len Langevin, Montreal, stationed at Mountain View, 226; Harry Caldwell, Barrie, stationed at No. 5 I.T.S., 218.

The hostess girls entertained the airmen at small games, such as cards, Chinese checkers and table tennis and the day was spent most enjoyably by both the girls and the boys. At 9.30 o'clock, late refreshments, provided by Holloway St. United Church, were served.

Trenton Flyers Forced to Come From Behind to Down Mt. View Bombers by 6-4 Count

Both Squads Studded With Named Players From Pro and Amateur Ranks

SMART CONTEST

With both squads studded with named hockey celebrities from all parts of the Dominion, Coach Padre Malka's Trenton 'Flyers' were forced to come from behind with a 3rd period rally to triumph 6 to 4 over Coach "Dutch" Cain's Mountain View "Bombers" in a Bay of Quinte R.C.A.F. service hockey league game played at the Hume Arena. The win elevated the "Flyers" on their league-leading lofty perch with two wins and a tie in three starts. It was the Bombers' first game.

Playing the strongest style of hockey seen in the Market St. rink in years the score stood 3-2 for Trenton at the end of the initial 20 minutes, while Mountain View outscored the Flyers in the middle session, that ended 4-4.

No quarter was sought as hard rugged hockey with speed and scientific passing featured a game that saw high sticks and rugged body checking and one fistic outbreak added for good measure to give some 500 puck patrons a style of hockey that sent them home satisfied that the brand of hockey played each Monday and Thursday nights at the Hume Arena is equal or superior to the senior O. H. A. games that packed the local ice igloo a few short seasons ago. Both teams were bolstered with former N.H.L. stars, to say nothing of senior players of repute.

Took an Early Lead

The fast skating Trenton sextette took an early lead with Ellis scoring on a three-way combination play with Bagnell and Voss. Back Coach Padre Malka's league leaders came with Paul Raymond, former Les Canadiens' ace, scoring on a pretty set up by Ellis. The "Bombers" bounced back into the picture with two quick goals and gained the respect of the civilian patrons. The veteran Dan Cowley, who did yeoman service on the Bombers' defence with a prolific poke check, scored the first Bomber goal on a three-way rapid passing attack along with Aube and Bourdeau. Back bounded the Bombers to tie the score with Fegre scoring, assisted by Bauer and Pat McCreavy, former Boston Bruin ace. However, Raymond made sure of Voss' pass to put the Flyers 3-2 up to end the frame.

Cowley Get His Second

Cowley got his second goal to open the second period from Fegre and the Bombers moved into another tie. Aube rifled Boudreau's pass behind Benson, leaving the Flyers wondering just what was going on as the Bombers took over command to lead 4-3. Ellis, scoring his second goal of the night, put an end to such matters to rap the rubber behind Reading in the Bombers' net on a rebound, with Savard serving time in the sin bin and the Bombers short-handed, when the score moved to 4-4 to end the second.

It was late in the third period when Raymond came out of a corner with Dziura's pass to hit the post behind Reading and have the old boot heel drop into the net. Dziura cinched matters for the Flyers by whipping in Voss' sweet combination pass. The last two Trenton counters were the result of some high-class razzle dazzle passing. Condition took its usual toll as the Flyers out-lasted the Bombers in an all-out effort.

Raymond, with three goals, paced the winners, Ellis getting two and Dziura one. Dan Cowley with two, Aube and Fegre were the Bomber marksmen. Service league hockey continues at the Hume Arena Thursday night.

The line ups—Mountain View:—goal, Reading; defence, Savard and Cowley; centre, Dacquette; wings, Aube and Boudreau; subs, McCreavy, Fegre, Bauer, Platt, Wood and Bailey. Trenton—goal, Benson; defence, Bagnell and Fitzpatrick; centre, Ellis; wings, Voss and Raymond; subs, Dziura, Dart, Tessier, Kelly and Wismer.

CHICAGO HAWKS TO PLAY BRUINS

By The Canadian Press

Two teams whose recent records are diametrically opposite clash tonight in a National Hockey League contest which incidentally supports the theory that one or two good players can make or break a club in wartime.

The opponents are Boston Bruins, who rode the league's top brackets until three of their star performers traded sticks for crutches a few weeks ago, and Chicago Black Hawks, currently on the crest of a four-game winning sequence, which has lifted them one point ahead of the fifth-place Bruins.

The Bruins haven't gained a point in six games since Jan. 15, a week after Bill Cowley suffered his shoulder injury against Toronto Maple Leafs. Chicago, on the other hand, won only one game in nine starts from Dec. 22 to Jan. 22 before starting their upsurge with the arrival of goalie Mike Karakas and defenceman Art Wiebe.

Boston, outscored 30-27 in breaking even in six starts against Chicago this season, will have the advantage of home ice for tonight's game.

Cain and Carr Tied for Top Scorer of Loop

Montreal, Feb. 1 — (CP) — Boston's Herbie Cain pulled into a 1st-place tie with Lorne Carr of Toronto during the last week of National Hockey League play, picking up three points to raise his total to 56.

Carr, who led the point-getting parade alone a week ago, added two points since the previous weekly official compilation, while the injured Bill Cowley of Boston retained third spot, four points behind the leaders, despite another week of illness.

In fourth spot with an even 50 points is Doug Bentley of Chicago, a point ahead of team-mate Bill Mosienko. A year ago today Cowley was leading the field with 51 points, and Carr was second with 49.

Cain's 29 goals puts him in the lead in that department, three up on Carr and four up on Mud Bruneteau of Detroit. Cowley and Buddy O'Connor are tied for assist honors with 33 each, while Elmer Lach of Canadiens and Clint Smith of the Hawks have 32 each.

Mike McMahon of Canadiens continues atop the penalty department, with one hour and one minute served in majors and minors so far.

What's Doing in Sport

New Haven. (AP)—Earning four more points during the week, Thomas Burlington of the Cleveland Barons retained his lead in the American Hockey League scoring race with 52 points, two more than Lou Trudel of Cleveland. Gaston Gauthier of Hershey was third with 48.

New York, (AP)—A graduate of the Shipyards Baseball league, Daniel Gardella, 22-year-old New Yorker, yesterday was signed as an outfielder for the New York Giants. The National Leaguers now have 13 players in the 4-F draft classification while, another, Pitcher Johnny Allen, is over the draft age.

Bridgeton, N.J., (AP)—The police last night placed a ban on the playing of a basketball game in which three American-born Japanese were to have played following warning of impending trouble because of recent news regarding Japanese atrocities one of the Jap players has a brother with the U.S. army in Italy,' it was stated.

BELLEVILLE JRS. HELD TO DRAW BY 'COMBINES'

Stirling - Marmora Team Had Lead Shortly Before End of Game

SCORE IS 3-3

Stirling, Feb. 1 (Special)—Belleville and the Stirling-Marmora "Combines" battled to a 3-3 draw in a scheduled junior O.H.A. fixture here Monday night. There was no scoring in the first period while Coach Toots Holway's Belleville kids bagged two to the Combines' one in the middle session and the scoring was just the reverse in the last stanza, when Coach Neal's homesters notched two to one. When it came to the matter of penalties, however, Belleville drew down 11 to the Combines' two.

The draw match left the Belleville kids leading the group standing with three wins, last night's tie and one loss, while the Combines have two wins and as many losses.

With no scoring registered in a fast close-checking first period Belleville forged to the lead, when Don Barrett scored on a three-way combination play with Moher and Wardhaugh early in the middle frame. Two minutes later Goodchild evened matters for the Combines on a solo effort, but Beleville came back strong with Holway beating McInroy, in the homesters' net, on a pass from B. Meagher. In this period Referee Shannon ruled off four Belleville players.

Early in the last stanza Bert Bastedo evened the count and knotted the game up at two-all when the puck deflected into the Belleville net behind Fitzpatrick. With Semark off Bastedo put the Combines one up midway through the period. Al Gordon broke loose for Belleville and with some nice stick-handling pulled the Combines defence aside and passed to Billie Holway, who made sure of his count late in the last period to tie the score. There was no overtime played. Belleville was given six penalties to the Combines' one this frame. Holway scored two for Belleville and B. Bastedo a brace for the home team.

The lineups:

Belleville: Goal, Fitzpatrick; defence, Rosetti and Bush; centre, Moher; wings, J. Wardhaugh and Barrett; subs, Holway, Gordon, Meagher, Day, Semark, Greatrix and Rollins.

Walter D. Richey of Arnprior Appointed Starter for I.C.R.A.

By The Canadian Press

Walter D. Richey of Arnprior, who officiated on the Quebec circuit last season, yesterday was appointed starter on Ontario tracks under the jurisdiction of the incorporated Canadian Racing Association, succeeding Thomas (Nipper) Rowe who had been sending away the fields for 11 years. Rowe had not applied for re-appointment, it was stated. W. A. Hewitt was again appointed presiding steward while Anthony Simms once more became racing secretary.

President Robert Carpenter of the Phillies suggested at Philadelphia last night major league baseball clubs should invade the pro football field, either by acquiring National Football League franchises or starting an opposition circuit, pointing out that the baseball magnates owned the parks and equipment.

Member of a family of famous sportsmen, Thomas Carroll Boucher, veteran of the First Great War and a linotype operator, died yesterday in Ottawa after a long illness. His father was the late Tom Boucher of the old Ottawa Rough Riders and two of his four brothers are Frank Boucher of the New York Rangers and George Boucher, formerly of the Ottawa Senators in the N.H.L. His son is Sgt. Raymond Boucher, R.C.A.F., Guelph.

Billy Petrolle, 39, former world lightweight champion, has been elected chairman of the Board of the Pioneer National Bank at Duluth, Minn. He is also head of a steel company in Duluth. In his long fistic career, during which he downed many famed fighters of the U.S., Canada and England, he was managed by Jack Hurley.

A Greek who started in a New York restaurant after leaving his homeland, William George Helis promises to be the big noise in U. S. horse racing this year. Rated the richest oil man in Louisiana, Helis bought up 49 yearlings, one for $56,000, in 1943 and his latest acquisition is the British-bred Valdina Zenith, rated the hottest prospect for the Kentucky Derby.

Lightweight Tippy Larkin of New Jersey has replaced Sammy Angott as the opponent for Lulu Constantino in a 10-round bout Feb. 9 in Madison Square Garden. It was announced last night at New York Angott had been forced to withdraw because of a leg injury.

At a U. S. War Bond boxing show in Baltimore last night, ex-heavyweight champion Jack Dempsey sold $10,000 worth of loan bonds to Mrs. Leon Engel of Baltimore for a pair of his boxing gloves with which he had knocked out Georges Carpentier, French challenger, July 2, 1921.

Catcher Gene DeSautels of the Cleveland Indians yesterday passed his physical examination at Springfield, Mass., and was assigned for service in the U. S. Navy. He is married and has a family.

After being discharged from the Navy because of a physical ailment, outfielder John M. Coakley, 25, formerly of the North Carolina State League, was yesterday signed by the Baltimore Orioles of the International League. Third-baseman Jim McLeod of the Orioles passed his Army physical and will be inducted Feb. 14.

Toronto, Feb. 1. (CP)— Doug Vaughan of the Windsor Star has uncovered new evidence of hockey's anticipated rapid growth in United States.. Doug quotes Franklin Lewis, sports editor of The Cleveland Press: "It seems to me that hockey, more than any other sport, is adding fans in these troubled years".

Lewis anticipates terrific expansion of hockey after the war, even to the extent of endangering baseball as the United States major sport. He says football may have a hand. He refers to professional football's August - through-December season, envisages lengthening of the hockey season into May and comments:

"Unless baseball meets the challenge of hockey through April and even through May and of football through August and September, the so-called national sport may be a June-July affair, as far as its monopoly is concerned. Baseball now is no longer a daily sport. It's a night, weekend novelty attraction.

"Comes the revolution and more fun, I'll guarantee".

Soo, Soo, Baby:

One of the famous old hockey circuits of the west, the Soo Line League in Southern Saskatchewan, has vanished with the war. Towns between Estevan and Moose Jaw which once produced players like Nick and Don Metz, Buzz Boll, Ken Doraty, Elmer Kreller, have given their youth to the services and war plants. Only in Wilcox is there an effort to keep hockey alive. There Father Murray, long the sponsor of youthful sport, has organized a four-team league.

Incidentally:

Extension of the service ban to all interprovincial sports upset New Brunswick Basketball calculations. The senior game in that province was knocked kicking because the only two senior clubs were air force teams at Scoudouc and Pennfield. The entire intermediate schedule requires revision. Four civilian intermediate teams remain, two in Saint John and one each in Fredericton and Moncton. . . Jimmy Ward, former Montreal Maroons star, is refereeing minor hockey on Montreal outdoor rinks. . . . Elmer (Montreal Herald) Ferguson recalls one of the great scorers of hockey was the late Marty Walsh of Ottawa. Walsh scored 42 goals in 12 games in 1909, playing with the Ottawa Stanley Cup Champions. That some year Chubby Power of Quebec finished fourth in scoring with 21 goals. Chubby now is Canada's Air Minister.

Jackie Callura Beaten by Lewis

Providence, R.I., Feb. 1. (CP)—A gallant little ex-champion, Jackie Callura of Hamilton, Ont., was pushed back in the weather-weight ruck here last night by a run-of-the-mill 126 pounder, Charles (Cabby) Lewis of New York.

Lewis all but toyed with Callura in hammering out an unanimous decision triumph over the Canadian in a 10-round feature bout that attracted a $4,066 gate, part of which will go to the National Infantile Paralysis' Foundation.

The New York negro speared Callura with straight and curved left and right hand smashes, dropped him to the canvas twice, once in the first round and again in the eighth, and throughout had much the better of the scrap.

Callura weighed 129 3-4 to Lewis 125 1-2.

Callura's stablemate, Tony Brandino of Hamilton, Ont., 148 1-2, knocked out Jackie Collins, of Boston, 156, in the fourth round of a scheduled six-rounder.

ALEMITE LASSIES INCREASE MARGIN OF LEADERSHIP

Remain Undefeated in Cage Loop by Winning From Reliance 27-16

DEACONS WIN

Frank Martin's Alemite lassies increased their margin of leadership in the Belleville Ladies' Basketball League and remained undefeated by taking a 27 to 16 win over the Reliance girls at the Y.M.C.A. last evening. In the curtain-raiser Jack Dickens' Deacon girls registered their first win of the campaign by taking Belleville Sargent into camp to the tune of 25 to 22.

Paced by Adeline "Pee Wee" Lepore, who bagged 21 of their 25 points, the Deacons led Sargents 9-7 at the halfway mark when "Pee Wee" scored all points for the winners. In the second half, Joyce Woodhouse came to her asistance with the only other four Deacon points, as Miss Lepore counted an even dozen. Allison with 14 and Gariepy with six carried the Sargent scoring attack.

Close Heavy Checking

In the second game, that saw close and heavy checking, Alemite led by a scapt margin of 15 to 12 at the halfway mark with the scoring being evenly divided. However, in the second half the Alemite lassies let loose a torrid attack to outscore Reliance 12 to 4, paced by Ruth Oliphant and D. Mansfield. Coach Martin's league leaders set up a strong defence in the second half, that saw much personal contact in a rugged torrid checking game.

Ruth Oliphant paced the winners with 11 points, D. Mansfield getting 8. Kay Coathup with six and Arlie Gilbert with four carried Coach Pryke's scoring threat. The Alemites are unbeaten in three league starts.

(Kids win draw.)

Toots Holway's local juniors came home from Stirling with a 3-3 draw last night to retain the leadership in their junior O.H.A. group. Billie Holway bagged two for his dad, Don Barrett getting the third. Bert Bastedo got two for the Combines, one of which was deflected into the local cage. Goodchild notched the other Combine counter. There was no scoring in the first period, when the fastest hockey of the night was seen. The Combine supporters were out in full strength last night and are giving their pets the support that warrants the continuance of junior hockey in this area for years to come.

Incidentally Belleville drew down 11 penalties to the Combines' two last night. It seems strange that no matter whether the locals are playing on the home ice or away they always seem to draw down the margin of penalties. It just couldn't be that Skipper Holway's charges are that much rougher than the rest of the players in the group, or do the visiting teams get unbiased officiating when they visit the Hume arena? The ombines journey to Trenton for a postponed game on Wednesday night.

(Fans' in error.)

Hockey lovers, who pass up these semi-weekly Air Force hockey games at the Hume area, are only fooling themselves. Take last night's Trenton-Mountain View game as an example. There hasn't been a better sustained hockey game played in these har parts, pardner, in many a moon. Three times the score was knotted before Coach Padre Maika's Flyers emerged 6-4 winners and then it was only condition, that made the ultimate difference on the score sheet. Boasting of some of the best hockey players in the Dominion, the airmen play a rugged style of hockey, the type Belleville puck patrons used to demand in the old days. Sergt. "Dutch" Cain, formerly with the Montreal Maroons, was named coach of the "Bombers" only recently and once Dutch gets acquainted with his charges there'll be some merry times around the Market Street igloo before spring. Incidentally we were told Johnny McCreedy, former Maple Leaf star, was with the Bombers. It isn't McCreedy, but rather Pat McCreavy, ex-Boston Bruin forward starlet.

Besides McCreavy from Boston, Coach Cain has a couple of speedsters in Aube from the Montreal Royals, Lou Boudreau, an outstanding player from the Quebec Aces, a kid named Fegre and another French lad—Ducquette—who took the fans eye. Dan Cowley, who needs no introduction in Belleville, is now playing defence for the Bombers, and his cunningness is as prolific as ever. Besides scoring two goals, Dannie's poke checking was one of the features of the game, as he repeatedly broke up strong Trenton combination plays in front of his own net. And the boys added a fistic encounter for good measure last night.

On the other side of the fence Coach Maika, trotted out Paul Raymond who teamed with Pete Lepine and Aurel Joliat with Les Canadiens, Mike Dziura, another professional in his own right. This kid Ellis from Waterloo is what's commonly called a "whizz," while Voss from Montreal Royals and Kelly from the M-O loop are only a few stars studding the Flyers' roster. With such puck celebrities playing at the Hume area each week, there should be thousands instead of the odd 500 or so on hand. True enough the loop unfortunately has one weak sister, but what of the N.H.L., haven't they got the Rangers?

(Remember when—)

It was just 20 years ago today that the first goal was scored against a Canadian team in Olympic hockey competition. Great Britain scored two goals in the 1924 Olympic match at Chamonix, Switzerland. However, the Toronto Granites, the Canadian team on that occasion, won 19 to 2 and continued on to clinch the world amateur hockey title the following day.

(Girl cagers.)

Coach Frank Martin's Alemite lassies remain undefeated in the city ladies basketball loop after downing Reliance 27 to 16 last night. In the other game, that was much closer in scoring, Jack Dickens' Deacon gals chalked up their initial win by taking Sargents into camp 25 to 22. In this game "Pee Wee" Lepore was the big noise with 21 points. In the other game the scoring was divided with Ruth Oliphant pacing Alemite and Kay Coathup heading Reliance with three baskets.

Horse Sense Bridge

LESSON NO. 291

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

Wottaman is the partner of Ida Nonuttin. For the beating she gives him, he must be a glutton.

Ida will start with an opening bid. Her partner will respond at once with a one-jump that forces her to bid again. But she will pass and say: "I didn't have enough for another bid."

What every young bridge player should know is this: If you had enough for an opening bid, you always have enough to bid again if partner forces with a one-jump signal.

You have this hand:

♠Q 4
♥A Q 10 5
♦7 3
♣A 8 6 4 3

Your opening bid with that hand is one club. If the immediate response from partner is two diamonds, it is a one-jump. And a one-jump is a forcing-to-game signal.

That jump by partner says he sees enough for a game with what your opening has shown. It cries out in accents wild and clear that neither of you should permit the bidding to die at less than game.

It does not say you are expected to bid again if you have something more to show. It says he already sees enough for game even if you have nothing more than you said.

Consequently, an opening bidder always has another bid when partner forces. The second bid is always decided by following the order of choice in T-A-N; takeout, assist, no-trump.

This hand of yours has no fears about making a second bid, even without being forced. It has unshown values. And your second round bid is two hearts, a takeout to your unshown biddable bid.

But even without your additional values, you would have been forced to bid something when your partner jumped. If you had no other bid, your bid would be two no-trump in this spot.

When your partner forces you to bid, he says he has enough for both. Don't let it scare you, kids.

AT THE CAPITOL

"Journey For Margaret"

Against the lurid background of bomb-torn London, "Journey for Margaret", which opened yesterday at the Capitol Theatre, is a dramatic adaptation of W. L. White's memorable book on his experiences as an American war correspondent.

Robert Young and Laraine Day are featured, with five-year-old Margaret O'Brien playing the title role, aided by Billy Severn, a year her junior. They portray the loveable war orphans adopted by Young in London.

Young and Miss Day achieve new dramatic heights as acknowledged craftsmen. The children are magnificent, performing their emotional roles with the artistry of schooled veterans.

Expecting a baby, Nora is injured in a raid on the city. An operation saves her but the doctor informs Davis that she can never have a child. Heartbroken, Nora returns to America. Davis remains to complete his assignment.

Rescues Child

He rescues the child Peter from his bomb-wrecked home and later meets Margaret at an orphanage conducted by Trudy Strauss (Fay Bainter), and adopts them. How he restores their bomb-shattered nerves and with the help of Trudy Strauss, brings them to America, forms an absorbing story.

"Melody Parade"

It is seldom, indeed, that a motion picture is so jam-packed with entertainment as is "Melody Parade", the Monogram musical comedy revue which opened an engagement at the Capitol theatre last night. The entire film is a kaleidoscopic succession of musical numbers, songs, dances, comedy interludes and prodution spectacles, with pretty girls always in evidence.

The cast comprises an exceptional group of entertainers. It would be hard to imagine a better choice for the starring role than lovely, blonde Mary Beth Hughes, who is an accomplished singer and dancer; and the glib light comedy of Eddie Quillan makes him an ideal foil in the leading male role. Also important in the comedy department are Tim and Irene Ryan (the radio comedy team of Tim and Irene), and the colored funmaker, Mantan Moreland. Jerry Cooper is there to sing in his rich baritone, and Armida, the "Mexican bombshell", is a fiery little mite in her songs and dances. Andre Charlot is good in a character role, and two trios who contribute importantly to the general entertainment are the Loumell Morgan group of colored singers, and Ruloff, Follette and Lunard, whose comedy adagio dancing is calculated to bring down the house.

Instrumental music for the production is furnished by the orchestras of Anson Weeks and Ted Fio Rito.

AT THE BELLE

"The Fallen Sparrow"

Hard-boiling love-making, not just to one but to several women, always seems to mix well with a movie's hero's adventures in perilous international intrigue.

You're not likely to see a better teaming of these elements than in "The Fallen Sparrow", which is now on the Belle Theatre screen with Maureen O'Hara and John Garfield as co-stars. It offers romantic adventures and perilous intrigue that are both refreshingly different.

The plot starts with the hero's return to New York City after participation in Spain's Civil war and two years of torture and imprisonment following it. His very life depended upon his not giving up that secret, so he kept both the secret and his life.

In New York, as the picture opens, Garfield finds that agents of his Fascist enemies are awaiting him, and brewing some new scheme which they hope will succeed where torture failed.

They are concealed in a crowd of refugees, some real, some phony, that clutters up all of his old haunts. He swears vengeance upon them for murdering one of his best friends, and even while he tries to track them down, they kill another of his friends.

But it isn't just a campaign of terror. He suspects that Miss O'Hara, blonde Martha O'Driscoll and brunette Patricia Morison (his former fiance!) are in the plot against him. To learn if the surmise is true, he makes love to all three!

In a swift-moving climax, he outwits and traps some of his foes, and ruthlessly deals out long-delayed justice to the most dreaded of all of them, just before a diabolical scheme can be worked out on him.

Robert Fellows produced the big movie for RKO Radio and Richard Wallace directed it. A large supporting cast headed by Walter Slezak, John Miljan, John Banner and Hugh Beaumont does excellent work in varied, colorful roles.

The Canadian Movietone News, a timely and entertaining "Medicine on Guard" and "Flicker Flashbacks" a pleasing novelette will be exhibited on the same program.

AT THE McCARTHY

"Trade Winds"

Night, the air laden with the chill of death; a girl, wanted for murder, sits nervously in her roadster on the front end of a San Francisco ferry; a police car is driven onto the boat, and two officers alight to peer into every car; without a moment's hesitation, the girl drives crazily into the water—and the darkness; the swirling fog silently covers the splash.

This is one of the first thrilling scenes in "Trade Winds" Walter Wanger's adventure romance opening Wednesday at the McCarthy theatre, with Frederick March and Joan Bennett in the starring roles. The girl who seizes this daring chance to escape is Miss Bennett herself. A few days later the San Francisco police are notified that she has pawned a ring in Honolulu.

Thus begins a chase that extends half way around the world, with March, debonair private detective with an inordinate fondness for beautiful girls, in close pursuit of the fugitive. Another exciting romance is contributed by Ralph Bellamy and Ann Sothern, who also do their sleuthing on the run.

2nd feature attraction presents Charles Boyer and Jean Arthur in "History is Made at Night". Leo Carrillo and Colin Clive also have prominent parts in the picture.

General Election Not Likely This Year Says King

Ottawa, Feb. 1 —(CP)— Prime Minister Mackenzie King yesterday gave the House of Commons the most positive assurance yet that there will be no general election before 1945.

Mr. King stressed the importance of concentrating attention on winning the war. He said he hoped to remain Prime Minister until the war was won, emphasized he did not expect that to be soon, and said parliament could run until about June next year.

Neither the people nor the troops overseas wanted an election. While he was opposed to parliament extending its own life, except for the gravest of reasons, he said he would not say what position he would take in that regard when the five-year term of the present parliament elapsed if the war was still in progress.

"A Prime Minister is placed in a very difficult position when he is asked to give any undertaking to the country that he will not, in any circumstances, have a general election. It is running counter to the spirit of British institutions when any government ties itself in any final way in that connection.

Makes Statement in House.

"For that reason I have found it necessary, as I do today, to say that there may be situations arise in which it would be impossible for the government to carry on with the authority it should have at a time of war. Some questions might arise which would make it absolutely necessary that an appeal to the people be made to settle an issue, and get on with the work of continuing to win the war.

"I see no reason for either at the present time. I have no desire for and no thought in seeking to find an issue of the kind. What I am determined to do, if God gives me health and strength, is to stay in the position I am in at the present time until this war is won.

Rests With People.

"Then, if circumstances warrant, the people will be given their full rights and powers to decide as to what form of administration they wish, or whether they wish the present one to be returned to office. It will rest with them to say whether some other administration is to take the place of this one."

He made this statement, he said, so members would feel able to co-operate as much as they could in the business of the session. There was a heavy sessional program, Mr. King said, and he expressed belief the House "should get down to business just as soon as possible."

Conservative House Leader Wants More Information on Conduct of War

ADVANCES CHARGES

By JAMES McCOOK
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, Feb. 1 —(CP)— Gordon Graydon, Progressive Conservative House Leader, said Monday in the Commons that the Liberal government's social security program outlined in the Throne Speech last week represents a "death-bed repentence" and the use of proposals set forth by the Progressive Conservative Party.

The first Opposition Party spokesman to participate in the Throne Speech debate, Mr. Graydon asked fuller information from the government on charges in the Canadian army set-up at home and overseas; a declaration of Canada's determination to hold an important place in post-war civil aviation; effective action to satisfy labor's needs; and reform of parliamentary procedure to speed business.

Of the government program generally, Mr. Graydon said:—

"Our (the Progressive Conservative) criticism of this government in these matters is that for eight years it has not brought down enough progressive social or agricultural or labor legislation, and only now, in an election year, comes forward with these dying declarations."

The government had never been too frank about the conduct of the war, Mr. Graydon said.

Want Satisfactory Answers.

The people demanded "satisfactory answers" as to why the 7th and 8th Divisions were constituted in the first place; what was being done with the "big" home-defence army; whether it was going overseas; and whether its personnel would be directed back into civilian activities if it were left in Canada.

Mr. Graydon said the Chiefs of Staff of the navy, army and air force had all been transferred overseas and replaced in Ottawa.

"Does this mean that the government believes that all danger to Canada has been largely removed?" he asked.

"If so, why the necessity for the maintenance of this big home-defence army? Even at this late date it is essential that the whole story of the home-defence army constitution and its present future role should be explained fully and frankly by the government to this House."

Canadians were "confused" about what was going on overseas, and wondered why the 1st Canadian Army there was constituted in the first place and then "abandoned."

"Many rumors are in circulation regarding the resignation of Gen. McNaughton (Lt.-Gen. A. G. L. McNaughtan, former Canadian Army Commander Overseas)," Mr. Graydon said.

Want Frank Explanation.

"Public interest demands that the Prime Minister should at once give a full and frank explanation of the facts in this regard, letting the chips fall where they may."

Other statements made by Mr. Graydon in his speech were:—

Civil Aviation — "There is grave and general concern throughout Canada that delay and inertia on the part of the government may lead to our position becoming, in the critical period ahead, nothing more than a point of geographical convenience (for international civil aviation) when final arrangements have been concluded."

Agriculture — "The variation of arrangements with Britain regarding bacon has resulted in disappointment and dissatisfaction on the part of the agricultural population of Canada. Since the last session of the House, the wholesale slaughtering of brood sows and the general disintegration of the whole bacon industry have belatedly forced the government to give hog bonuses. The irreparable damage already done is a clear indication that these bonuses were long overdue."

Labor — "The farmer now is having company; Labor is joining him in that great group of forgotten men in the Dominion . . . Schemes for providing social security are not effective substitutes in themselves for higher earning power and continuous employment."

War Assets Corporation — "Before the selling process (of surplus or obsolete war materials) gets under way I believe that a judicial inquiry should be made into the details of materials purchased, cost prices and use made of them insofar as crown assets of Canada are concerned."

Canadian Broadcasting Corporation — "The CBC has lost the confidence of the people of Canada . . . the government deserves the just condemnation of an outraged public for its lackadaisical, happy-go-lucky policy which has allowed this corporation aimlessly to drift into comparative uselessness, instead of directing its course into a field of greater and increasing public service."

Veterans' Rehabilitation — "Our veterans, men and women, will not be content with blueprints, plans and promises, they will demand effective action."

Employment — "To achieve this objective (of full employment), handouts by the Federal government will be neither a sufficient nor a satisfactory solution . . . Despite the optimism of the Minister of Labor (Hon. Humphrey Mitchell), the operation and administration of National Selective Service has been a bitter and disillusioning experience for the Canadian people."

Reconstruction — "I suggest that there should be established a new department of government that will integrate all aspects of our economy in its transition from war to peace (dealing with) problems such as industrial reconversion, readjustment of war workers, demobilization of soldiers and post-war employment."

Supremacy of Parliament — "I charge the government that they have exceeded the limits of vital war necessity and urgency in their rush to bureaucratic government . . . Our democratic form of government is actually in peril. At this stage of the war's development, there cannot any longer be any real necessity for our citizens tolerating the continuance in toto of such a system which might easily be perpetuated into our peacetime economy."

Taxes — "If there shall be some lessening of governmental expenditures in the days ahead, I call upon the administration to give consideration to relieving the small wage-earner in the lower brackets from the comparatively heavy taxation he must presently endure . . . I want to raise my voice in vehement protest against the complicated methods and procedure used in gathering the taxes from our people."

Parliamentary Reform — "I have been disgusted and discouraged over the unbusinesslike way that parliament has been conducting itself . . . I hope the new committee (on House rules and procedure) . . . (will) see that parliament, its methods, its rules and its procedure are taken out of the mothballs, dusted off, and made to work efficiently for the people of Canada."

The C.C.F. — "The Progressive Conservative Party has taken the initiative from one end of the country to the other in the battle against socialism . . . It is pretty generally acknowledged throughout the Dominion that the present tired, weary administration has lost the confidence of the people of Canada."

Mr. Graydon said the Speech from the Throne could be called a combination of the "Winnipeg platform" drafted at the 1942 Progressive Conservative convention; the speeches of John Bracken, Progressive Conservative National Leader; a "death-bed repentance;" and "several dying declarations."

Takes Eye Off War.

The Throne Speech indicated, he said, that Prime Minister Mackenzie King had taken an eye off the war momentarily and was looking over his "broken-down" political fences.

"Let us get this program down out of the clouds to where we can see what it really is," Mr. Graydon said.

"It may well be that these lofty, high-sounding phrases mean very little in the way of reform to the Canadian people. I hope that it will prove more than a smoke-screen to blind the electors so that they cannot see the tragic failure of this government's administration.

"The government has done some attractive political window dressing. Let's see now what they have on the shelves inside. What is on the shelves is what counts."

Mutual aid for destitute populations, expansion of world trade, national security and enduring peace by international co-operation, a national minimum of social security, housing, rehabilitation, children's allowances and other proposals in the Throne Speech were desirable; but the legislation covering them should be made available at once, Mr. Graydon said.

AT THE CAPITOL — "The Woman Behind the Man Behind the Gun" is one of the lavish numbers in Monogram's "Melody Parade," at the Capitol Theatre. The added attraction "Journey for Margaret," stars Robert Young, Laraine Day and "Margaret" O'Brien.

With the R.C.A.F. Somewhere in Britain, Feb. 1 —(CP)— When it comes to cool efficiency, members of the City of Toronto are right in there pitching. The other day, Flt.-Lt. Ken Morham and FO. Seath of St. Lambert, Que., were on a sweep over France with FO. Malcolm Robb of London, Ont.

Calling over the radio-telephone, Robb asked for Morham's position. The St. Lambert boy replied:

"See the pile of flak about two o'clock from you?"

"Yes," answered Robb.

"Well, I'm in the middle of it."

Bits and pieces of German aircraft shot down over the British Isles are not all written off. Some are still highly useful—but not to the Luftwaffe.

Aircraftman Paul Dugas of Alexandria, Ont., a motor transport mechanic attached to a Canadian fighter airfield, is just one of many R.C.A.F. members who put these bits and pieces to good use. But Dugas is a more qualified authority than most, for he's considered tops around his station at converting piston heads into ash trays, perspex into rings and lockets, dural into rings, knives, letter openers, model aircraft. His main forte, though, is the manufacture of cigarette lighters from used cannon shells.

Coincidences are commonplace in the R.C.A.F. overseas—friend meeting friend sort of thing—but the Wolf Squadron goes one better in one particular instance.

FO. Jim Preston and Flt.-Sgt. Norm Cheevers hail from the Ontario cities of St. Catharines and Niagara Falls, respectively. They flew together at elementary school in St. Kitt's a couple of years ago, with Preston as the instructor and Cheevers the student.

Now, led by Sqdn.-Ldr. Robert Buckham of Vancouver, holder of R.A.F. and American D.F.C.'s, they fly side by side on Spitfire sweeps into France.

He's proud of the fact that he was born in Scotland but Flt.-Lt. Norman Gallagher, Roman Catholic padre with the R.C.A.F. in England, wishes jokingly his birthplace, Morar, "was a little closer to the centre of Scottish civilization."

A recent arrival from Canada, the youthful, good-natured padre is anxious to visit the Morar he left 20 years ago but is afraid he'll need more than a week's leave to make it."

"If it was near Glasgow," he said, "it would be a 'piece of cake,' as my be-winged friends phrase it. But," he added, poker-faced, "it's 150 miles north of Glasgow, the last 40 miles of which involve mountain-climbing, one or two portages, and the fording of at least one river."

CHAPTER 17

"I thought this was a land," she said bitterly, "where everyone's innocence was presumed until guilt was proven. Grandpa Carfax told me so. Have you thought of the results to me if I am refused the right to appear tonight?"

"Darnley, Darnley—can't you see I must protect—"

"Is business the highest law? What about the finer law, Chico, that commands us all to protect the innocent? I assure you I will be able to prove I did not steal this coat or anything else—ever!"

Sanson seemed lost in deep, worried thought. Suddenly he declared "Well, Darnley, despite cops or robbers, you compete tonight. That's that!"

"Thank you, Chico," she said simply and passed into her dressing room.

She hung the sable coat on the rack and sat before a dressing table. Others girls arrived, and the room became noisy with conversation. Several of her rivals seemed dangerously beautiful. They made her conscious that to be declared the most beautiful model in New York required something more than ordinary good looks.

A man in evening dress rapped and entered. He held a list in his hand. "There are forty girls in this competition," he said. "You are to appear in groups of ten for the preliminary judging. From each group of ten, two will be selected. In the semi-finals there will be two groups of four, from each of which one will be picked by the judges to appear in the finals." He read a list of names. "These young ladies will appear in the first group. Please be ready to step up on the stage at 8.30 promptly."

Darnley's name was in the third group. At last she stood ready, off-stage, to make her entrance with her section, and could hear the applause from the audience as it greeted the winners of the preceding section. An attendant motioned them on and Darnley followed the girl before her out upon the stage and before the footlights. She looked down upon an area of white faces, vaguely visible through the glare of light. In line the group walked slowly before the judges; then each girl was required to step from line and to walk back and forth across the stage, exhibiting herself to audience and judges.

Some contestants chose to make use of the artificial, undulating slink of the trained mannequin. Darnley, when her turn came, did not do so. She walked as she believed an intelligent girl of good taste would carry herself, not proudly, not with exaggerated movement, but with an effort to be natural, unself-conscious. She reassumed her place in formation, and the ten stood while the judges conferred. One of these stepped forward and took a dark-haired girl from the other end of the line and led her forward. He turned and walked to Darnley, taking her hand and leading her to stand beside the first selection. The room roared its applause.

It was not with a feeling of elation but of relief that Darnley realized she had surmounted the first barrier. She could look, now, down into the audience with greater serenity. Faces ceased to be blurs and became human. It was not pleasant to recognize Lacey Gorse in the fifth row. It was with distinct distaste that she saw Elaine Sanson. But and she felt a pang of disappointment, she could not make out the untidy hair or boyish face of Clyde Farrish.

She was again in the dressing room. The time of waiting seemed interminable before she was called to appear again in the smaller group of four. This time the judges were more deliberate, their scrutiny more severe. Because their task was more difficult. Darnley cast covert glances at her three rivals. They were radiantly young and lovely. The moments that passed while the judges sat buzzing with heads together were unbearable. Finally a tall man arose and walked to the footlights.

"To select honestly," he said, "the most beautiful of these four young ladies is a task that your judges would not willingly assume again. To chose from the quartet the girl for the finals, and to arrive at a unanimous opinion, as we have done, constitutes a miracle." He paused here. Darnley could not breathe. The judge continued: "I present to you Miss Darnley Carfax. . . . Miss Carfax, will you step to the footlights?"

Darnley walked toward him. She felt she was stumbling, groping. The judge lifted her hand and bowed to her.

"Thank you," she managed to say in a whisper. Then she remembered that she must bow to the thundering, cheering audience. She was in the finals; one of two selected from forty.

She never remembered leaving the stage. Suddenly she was at the top of the stairs; then she was in her dressing room. Soon came a rapping upon the door.

COULDN'T SLEEP
COULDN'T WORK

What a relief to settle down to a real night's rest, and awake fully refreshed, ready for the day's duties. I was tortured by fretful nights—tossing, turning—never comfortable. Half awake days—over-tired, driving body and mind to work when they needed rest. "Try Dodd's Kidney Pills," said a friend—"it may be your kidneys". I'm glad I followed his advice as now I'm sleeping like a top—thanks to

Dodd's Kidney Pills

"Miss Carfax!" called a stern voice.

"Who is it?" she queried.

"The police," was the answer.

Darnley closed her eyes. The police. They could not wait another half-hour but must come now when she stood upon the very threshold—when she had come victorious to the final judging.

She walked to the rack, from which she took the sable wrap. With it across her arm she opened the door to face the lieutenant of detectives.

"Lieutenant," she said, "here's the fur coat."

"Yes," he countered, "and here are you."

"I'm here," Darnley responded. "Do you know why?"

"Yes, the beauty show," he said. "Get your things if you want them. We're going downstairs."

"Lieutenant," she began her plea, "did you ever want a certain thing more than everything else in the world?"

"Everyone has," he growled.

"Will another fifteen or twenty minutes make so much difference?" she asked. "Lieutenant, you don't believe I stole this coat. You can't believe it. Would I have shown you how it was taken out of the studio if I were the thief?"

"We were tipped off you had it. That's good enough for me."

"You have the coat now. I can't get away."

"Not from me, you can't."

"Lieutenant, there was but one reason for the thief to—to plant, is the word, isn't it?—to plant this fur in my closet. It was because he was afraid, because we were getting too close to him. Don't you see that?"

"They all say the stolen goods were planted on them," he snorted. "If it was a plant, and if you were innocent, why didn't you tell the police? But did you? You did not. You sneaked out and I'm darned if you didn't wear it here bold as brass."

"I'll tell you why. It was because I had to be here. I had to be here on time. If I had called you there would have been questionings and you would have kept me until it was too late to come. But I was going to report to you as soon as the contest was over. I was. That is the truth." She put out a hand and touched his arm.

"And I've won so far," she said. "There were forty girls at the start and it has narrowed down to only two—myself and another. In a moment we are to be called onto the stage again. Just two of us. In the beginning my chances were one in forty, now they are one in two."

"Yeah?"

"A half-hour will mean nothing. I can't get away. I shan't try to get away. Let me stay, lieutenant, for the final judging—it means everything in my life."

A voice called loudly, "Miss Carfax on stage, please."

She looked up in to the detective's face. "Well?" she asked.

"Go on, kid. I'll give you the break," he grumbled.

She did not pause to thank him, but ran downstairs to the passageway behind the stage. His gray eyes glinted as he peered after her In a moment he followed and stood off-stage where he could watch Darnley and everything that went on, yes, everything . . .

With keen eyes the detective followed every movement of the two models.

A man in plain clothes spoke in his ear. "Everything's set," he said.

"Okay," he answered without turning his head.

The judges walked to their table and conferred, while the two girls remained standing under the eyes of that staring audience. There was suspense while more than a thousand people waited for the final pronouncement. At last the spokesman walked to the apron of the stage.

"Ladies and gentlemen," he began, "I am gratified that the decision, difficult as it was to reach, is unanimous. From it not one of the five judges dissents. We have taken into consideration more than mere beauty of face and figure." Finally he turned and bowed to both girls. "My only regret," he said, "is that we judges cannot choose both of you. But, that being impossible, I shall ask Miss Darnley Carfax to step forward.'

Elated as never before, Darnley stepped down from her stand and was halfway to the spokesman before she halted, turned, walked to her defeated competitor and extended her hand. "I—I'm so sorry. I—you are so beautiful I was—Honestly, if I'd lost I'd have wished you luck."

The other girl smiled, not altogether wholeheartedly, and held out her hand. "Good luck," she said in a voice that was not quite steady.

Then Darnley became aware of the applause that had been rolling up from the floor of the house. The next few minutes were noise and confusion as she was holding a reception on the stage. Adrian De Groot was there. Chico Sanson held her hand and whispered, looking at once happy and depressed. A large man with a moustache was presented to her as Mr. Mitchner.

"Do you think you will like California?" he asked roguishly.

"I am not going to California," she said.

"If I have my way, you are," he smiled guilefully.

"This is Mr. Mitchner of Continental Pictures," interjected the man who had performed the introduction.

"Oh," said Darnley.

"We must talk, eh? When so many people are not around. I am interested. Tomorrow? To make a test for the screen. You have something, Miss Carfax. I think it will come over on the screen. In the morning my secretary will telephone you."

"Yes, yes. Thank you Mr. Mitchner," she said hurriedly, hardly taking in what he said.

After a while Chico guided her from the stage, and at the steps she saw the lieutenant.

"Well," he said, "you made the grade. Fine, but now for that fur job—"

"Must I go to police headquarters?" she interrupted. "Mr. Sanson, here, has got some rooms upstairs. We'll thrash things out there."

Her elation had passed, and depression had taken its place. It was bitter that the high moment of her life should be so tarnished; but, strangely, the thing that hurt her most poignantly was Clyde Farrish's absence.

"Let's get it over," she said.

They walked to the elevator, the police office, Chico and Darnley, and ascended to an apartment on an upper floor.

"Sit down," directed the lieutenant. "We'll get to whizzing as soon as the rest of the cast gets here."

"Shall I stay?" Sanson asked.

"You might slide into the other room for a while," directed the veteran detective.

"Lieutenant," Darnley said, "I did not steal that coat. I found it hanging in my closet tonight before I came to this contest. It was too late to do anything about it I brought it here, meaning to call you as soon as the show was over."

"Sister," said the lieutenant, "I kind of like you. But I got to act on what I see. Now, you claim you was framed?"

"Yes."

"By who and why and how?"

She spread her lovely hands helplessly. "I've told you everything. You know as much as I do."

"Keep your apartment locked?"

"Of course."

"Anybody else got a key?"

"Only my room-mate."

"If," said the lieutenant, "there is only two keys to a door and somebody lugs something through it, why sister, it's got to be one of the two with keys, Eh?"

"But Jerry, she lives with me," Darnley said after a moment, "did not steal the coat. I was with her. We left the studio together. We went home together."

"I didn't say steal it; I mean put it. World's full of reasons: money, love, fear, hate. Does she hate you?"

"I can't believe it."

"Any reason she should be afraid of you?"

"None."

"Who is she in love with?"

"I don't know."

"Does she need money?"

"Who doesn't?"

Before he could ask another question the telephone rang. He lifted the receiver to his ear. "Yeah it's me. It's always me when I say it's me. Who? Where's he at? Now, ain't that nice! And where was you smart boys? Well, how would you like to get over there quick and fetch 'em here? Ask 'em polite to come. What about that tale on the couple we was so interested in? Lost 'em, I suppose. . . . No? Well crack down on 'em diplomatic. Invite 'em here for buns and coffee. Yeah. But get 'em here fast."

He slammed up the receiver, jerked it off again and gave a number. "Morrisy? . . . Yes, it's me. Don't I tell you it's always me? I want that Shafto broad and before she gets so old she loses her figure. Here."

He turned to Darnley. "Maybe it's a break for you. Maybe not. All I know is you got the coat."

"What is it? What has happened?"

"You and your boy-friend wasn't in cahoots to steal that fur?"

"I have no boy-friend."

There was a loud knock on the door and a plainclothes man ushered in Lacey Gorse and Elaine Sanson. "They were down in the dining room," said the officer. "That's how I got them here so sudden."

"What's the meaning of this?" demanded Elaine. "Why are Mr. Gorse and myself brought here? We were going on to a party."

"We got a better party here."

"What have I to do with the police?" she asked.

"Maybe nothin' lady; maybe plenty. Just sit and I'll try to keep you from being bored. You feel like replyin' with a few answers, Mr. Gorse?"

Little Benny's Note Book

I was taking a walk with pop for his appetite, me asking questions and pop smoking, and the wnd was blowing like anything, and I said, Do you think the birds have more fun in a wind like this, pop, or less?

Probably less, pop said, business in life, and business is fun only in rare fortunate cases, pop said.

Which just then I caught my hat just in time to keep the wind from blowing it off, saying, Oh boy, did you see that, pop? I sure worked fast that time. I bet a lot of people would of been chasing their hat up the street by this time with everybody laughing at them, I said.

It's true that our reflexes are more responsive when we are young, pop said. And although I've known instances when you have escaped just retribution by quick and imaginative thinking, you'll have to give credit where credit is due in this particular case, in other words to Nature. When the wind started to lift your hat, your natural reflexes stepped in and saved the situation with practically no help from you at all. A message was flashed to your brain which in turn flashed instructions to your hands, which obediently flew up to your head before you had time to realize what was going on, or rather what was going off. It is true you were present at the time, but that yas your only share in the entire manoover, pop said.

But —jimminy, pop, I mean G wizzickers, if I hadn't moved so fast my hat would of been off anyways, and by that time it would of been too late for my brain to do anything about it, except maybe get mad, I said, and pop said, I still maintain that Nature is wonderful, but in many ways you are quite as remarkable, so let's let it go at that.

Which we did.

LI'L ABNER — The Little Man Who Isn't There

Three Found Dead in Cellar

Albany, N.Y., Feb. 1. (AP)—Bodies of a brother and two sisters, dead several days, were found last night in the fire-scarred cellar of their farm home near here in what District Attorney Johnny Delaney said appeared to be a double murder and suicide.

Delaney said the body of Edward Swartz, 50, was found with a bullet hole in the head and a box of matches in one hand. Nearby were the bodies of his sisters, May, 60, and Hattie, 54, badly burned and with decomposition starting. A revolver was found beside Edward.

Delaney said it appeared the brother had killed the sisters and then attempted to burn the bodies.

Frank Sharpe Completes Fifty Years Service With Bank of Montreal

Fifty years' association with the Bank of Montreal as bank messenger was completed Monday evening by Mr. Frank Sharpe, 185 Church St., who for the past half century has been a familiar sight on Belleville streets as he has gone quietly about his duties. And with fifty years' service completed, he still has no thought of quitting and will stay at his present job until easing of the current manpower shortage enables his replacement. He will be 74 in April

On the first day of February back in 1894, Mr. Sharpe reported for duty as a bank messenger at the Bank of Montreal, then at its former office at the corner of Pinnacle Street and Victoria Avenue. Manager of the bank at that time was Mr. Richardson. At the change of the office from its former location, Mr. Sharpe came with the bank to its present site. For many years he acted as treasurer at the former Griffin Opera House on Bridge St.

Presented with Watch and Pipe

In appreciation of his lengthy service with the bank, Mr. Sharpe today was presented with a gold watch and chain, suitably inscribed, the gift of Mr. B. C. Gardner, General Manager of the Bank of Montreal. Mr. Dredge, manager of Belleville branch, made the presentation, at the same time expressing the donor's good wishes. The occasion was also marked with the presentation of a pipe and tobacco pouch by "Matt" Currie, accountant; on behalf of the Belleville staff members.

Building permits were issued to the following:

Mystery Gas Pervades Home

Coatesville, Pa., Feb. 1. (AP) — Three persons were dead today and two others in hospital after a mystery gas pervaded three homes in the community.

John Refford, 55; his wife Myrtle, 51; and her brother, Charles Johns, 54, were found dead in the Refford home late last night, Deputy Coroner Fred Manship said "A sweet smell" prevailed throughout the house, he added.

Mrs. Elmer Dripps and Mrs. William Cohen, who live on opposite sides of the Refford home, became ill as a result of the presence of the "yet unidentified" gas, Manship said. Neither was seriously affected. The gas, Manship added, is believed to be explosive and its source has not been discovered.

Urges Alliance With Russia, U.K., Revivified France

Baltimore, Feb. 1 —(AP)— If the small countries of Europe wish to survive, they must ally themselves closely with Russia, Great Britain and a revitalized France after the war, says the Czechoslovakian ambassador to the United States.

The ambassador, Col. Vladimir S. Hurban, told a meeting of Methodist Ministers here that the Czechs are determined to back a collective security plan in co-operation with other countries of Europe, and especially Russia.

He warned, however, that the great powers must not take advantage of their strength, declaring that European unity and peace best can be guaranteed by a good neighbor policy among powers of equal strength as well as among countries of unequal size, population and resources.

Col. Hurban explained that the Czechs' post-war foreign policy of co-operation with Russia would be against "Germanism, which proved in the last 100 years to be the arch enemy of the small central and east European nations."

German Incendiary Squad Destroyed Priceless Treasures

London, Feb. 1—(CP)—A German incendiary squad in Italy wantonly destroyed priceless works of art and important archives of European history dating from 1238 to 1811 despite a plea by Italian authorities to save them, War Secretary Sir James Grigg told the House of Commons today.

The outrage occurred Sept. 30 at Livardi, where the Italians had deposited art treasures from Naples —886 cases of selected documents from state archives and a quantity of museum pieces.

Among the objects destroyed were registers of the Hohenstaufen and Angevin kings of Naples, kings of the House of Aragon and the Bourbon dynasty, and 60 to 70 paintings including an early portrait by Botticelli and a Madonna and Child by Luini.

Says Nazi General, Now Dead, in Plot To Replace Goering

London, February 1 —(CP)— Moscow radio broadcast a Tass dispatch from Zurich today asserting Col.-Gen. Hans Jesschonnek, 44-year-old Chief of Staff of the German Air Force, whose sudden death was announced in Berlin last Aug. 20, had been involved in a plot to replace Reichsmarshal Hermann Goering.

The Tass dispatch, as quoted by the Moscow radio, said "Goering discovered that Jesschonnek had been making private contacts with certain air force generals to discuss the replacement of Goering by a seasoned air force general . . ."

After Jesschonnek's death, Tass reported, important changes were noted in the air force command. The Berlin radio reported last August Jesschonnek had died at Goering's headquarters following a "serious illness."

POLICE COURT

Convicted of being found in possession of two beer permits and two permits to purchase wine under his own name, which is contrary to the L.C.A., Pte. Aberdeen Maracle, C.A.S.F., stationed at Camp Borden, was sentenced to serve fourteen days on each charge. Also a plea of guilty brought 14 days in default of the payment of a drunk charge, but all jail terms are to run concurrent and date from the time of his arrest, and Maracle will be turned over to the military authorities at the expiration of his sentence next Tuesday.

Captain K. R. Holmes, adjutant of the Argyll Light Infantry, appeared as observing officer, and informed the court Maracle was reported as being a good soldier with no military crime sheet. Maracle was fined $10 and costs, or 14 days in default on the two permit charges, as well as the drunk count —the sentences to run concurrently in default.

Ross Wannamaker, Belleville, was fined $25 and costs after being convicted on a careless driving charge while Melbourne Barriage, also of this city, was assessed $10 and costs for failing to notify the Highway Department after having purchased a motor vehicle.

When Ray Woods, Belleville, failed to respond to his name when called to face an assault charge, Crown Attorney B. C. Donnan, K.C. asked for a bench warrant for his immediate arrest. His Worship signed the warrant before the next case was heard.

Two inebriates, one a woman, paid fines after pleading guilty to charges of drunkenness.

Frank Goddard, of this city, was given one year in the Reformatory after being convicted of non-support. "This case has been in the courts for months on end. This man doesn't intend to support his wife and child and I recommend he be severely dealt with," stated Crown Attorney Donnan in moving for sentence.

Work Stoppage Ends Before Noon

Detroit, Feb. 1 —(AP)— A stoppage of production of centre wing bomber assemblies at the Ford-operated Willow Run plant ended shortly before noon today, a company spokesman said, after 625 of approximately 925 employees who demonstrated in favor of a wage demand, returned to their jobs.

The Ford Motor Company spokesman said 300 other workers had left the plant after the demonstration began.

The wage dispute, he said, involving the workers' demands for a 10-cent hourly wage increase, is to be submitted to the Regional War Labor Board.

The spokesman said 169 workers on a night shift started a demonstration half an hour before the end of their shift, and that the 925 day shift workers milled about for several hours this morning before they started work.

Says Hitler Agents Filter Into Canary Is. And Rio de Oro

New York, Feb. 1—Moscow radio quoted advices from Lisbon today saying 250 "Hitlerite agents" had filtered into the Canary Islands and the Spanish west African colony of Rio de Oro during the last four months through the Spanish port of Cadiz.

"Most of these agents were transported to the Canary Islands and to Rio de Oro by air," said the broadcast, recorded by the United States Foreign Broadcast Intelligence Service.

"Moreover the Spanish authorities did not hinder them in any way. Among the spies who left Spain are some Germans and many Spanish and French nationals.

"Lisbon quarters say that these agents are assigned especially to wrecking work in French West Africa and in Equatorial Africa."

The colony of Rio de Oro adjoins French Morocco on the south. The Canary Islands are located about 60 miles off its coast.

Government Crisis Believed Brewing In Argentina

Montevideo, Feb. 1. (AP)— A government crisis is brewing in Argentina as a result of her break with the Axis, private reports said today, but predicted that President Gen. Pedro Ramirez would remain in power with a reshuffled cabinet.

At the same time it was reported that Gen. Arturo Rawson, who recently quit as Ambassador to Brazil, had been denied permission to return to Argentina. Rawson, co-leader of the June Argentine revolution, was president for two days.

(An Associated Press dispatch from Buenos Aires said Foreign Minister Alberto Gilbert had accepted the resignation of Ruiz Guinazu as Argentine Ambassador to Spain and that Felipe Espil, former Ambassador to the United States would succeed him. Guinazu said he was quitting for personal reasons.)

Claims Damage For Husband's Death in Crash

Montreal, Feb. 1 (CP)—For the first time since the war started a damage action yesterday was presented in Superior Court by the widow of an accredited war correspondent.

Mrs. Edouard Baudry, claims $8,375 for the death of her husband who was killed when the aircraft in which he was going to the Casablanca Churchill-Roosevelt conference was fired upon by anti-aircraft guns over Spanish territory.

The action was taken against the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation for which, Mrs. Baudry said, her husband was to broadcast to Canada from the historic meeting place in Jan. 1943.

Mrs. Baudry claims that her husband had a $10,000 insurance policy but that it was not in force because an extra war risk premium had not been paid.

She claims the extra premium should have been paid by the C.B.C. or the C.B.C. should have protected her husband otherwise to the extent of $10,000 while he was on duty as a war correspondent.

The insurance company, she said, granted her $3,500 under her husband's policy.

BRITAIN AND U. S. SHOULD CONTINUE TO WORK TOGETHER

"If We Are Together, Nothing is Impossible," Says Sir Godfrey Haggard

CANADA'S PART

Toronto, Jan. 31 — (CP)—Britain and the United States have always stood together against aggressors, Sir Godfrey Haggard, British Consul-General in New York, said today, advocating that the two powers continue to work together in the future.

In a speech prepared for delivery to the Canadian Club of Toronto, Sir Godfrey recalled lend-lease aid and the exchange of leases of British West Indies and Newfoundland bases for over-age American destroyers.

"Cannot we capitalize on this innate capacity for sensible agreements between us?" he asked. Quoting from Prime Minister Churchill, he added "If we are together, nothing is impossible; if we are divided, all will fail."

Canada as Interpreter

Sir Godfrey said the "spreading Dominions" of the United States had grown up "under exactly the same internal impulses as our empire has — the outward thrust of a strong united people against weaker and less advanced neighbors." He pictured "the Empire of the United States...growing simply because it had to, to the west coast and beyond; to Alaska and Hawaii; to the Philippines and Panama; and; because the war must be won, even to bases in the British West Indies, Newfoundland, Greenland and Iceland."

The Consul-General called upon Canada to try to interpret the British Empire to the people of the United States — "to say to them that our society of British nations stands ready as ever hand in hand with the United States to march on together 'in majesty, in justice and in peace.'"

British Empire is a Hard Fact

"The British Empire...is a hard, hard fact, one of the really hard facts of the world today. It is fighting a total war now and after the war it will still be there, fighting for a total peace. When we say we mean to maintain our empire it is a defensive 'stabilization war aim. For British strength is American strength. We support each other."

Turning to Empire relations, he said "the Statute of Westminster recorded so many declarations of independence peacefully won and gladly accorded. They are also now seen to be declarations of inter-dependence. If self-determination can mean an act of separation, it can also, the Dominions say, mean an act of association...we have taught the world something new there between us; an idea that is going to play a great part in the history of the years to come."

Sir Godfrey concluded his speech with a tribute to Canada for her support of Britain in the war, mentioning the $1,000,000,000 gift to the United Nations, the Commonwealth Air Training Plan, the role played by Canadian airmen in the Battle of Britain and "the priceless assistance of the great Canadian navy."

Swedish Naval Circles Anxious Over Red Advance

Think Russian Fleet Units May Soon Break Into Baltic and Threaten Sweden's Traffic With Germany and Finland

By ROBERT STURDEVANT
Associated Press Staff Writer

Stockholm, Jan. 31 — (AP)—The Russian advance toward Estonia created uneasiness today in Swedish naval circles, which speculated that powerful Russian fleet units might soon break into the Baltic and threaten Sweden's traffic with Finland and Germany.

Since 1942, the Russian Baltic fleet has been bottled up in the Gulf of Finland and restricted to limited operations from its base at Kronstadt. With the occupation of Estonia, the Germans threw an extensive minefield and submarine booms across the narrow neck of the gulf from Baltisch port (Baltiski) to Finland.

A Swedish naval officer, E. Oeberg, writing in the Stockholm Tidningen, said the Russian advance opened the possibility of an early Russian occupation of Baltisch Port.

The Russian fleet and air force operating from Estonia could isolate Finland and Germany from traffic with the eastern Baltic countries and make traffic between Finland and Sweden difficult. Swedish iron ore is one of the main raw materials of the German arsenal.

Oeberg named the following ships as comprising the Russian Baltic fleet: the 33,000-ton battleship October Revolution; the 8,000-ton cruisers Kirov and Maxim Gorky; the 2,000-ton destroyers Leningrad and Minsk; 10 other destroyers of 1,700 tons each; numerous torpedo boats and some submarines.

Oeberg urged a strengthening of the Swedish destroyer force and asserted that in 1942 Russian submarines attacked Swedish merchant ships in Swedish waters. He warned that the Russians might even occupy the Aaland Islands in the southern part of the Gulf of Bothnia between Finland and Sweden.

ROVNO AND LUTSK IN POLAND ABANDONED, NARVA IN ESTONIA EVACUATED BY NAZIS

10 Nazi Divisions Trapped As Two Red Fronts Joined

Stalin in Order Of Day Proclaims the Capture of Smela In Dnieper Bend

45-MILE GAIN

(By E. D. BALL)
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

London, Feb. 3 (AP) — In a triumphant order of the day, Marshal Stalin announced today the joining of the first and second Ukrainian fronts, traping ten German divisions, after the German high command had acknowledged the loss of Lutsk (Luck) and Rowne (Rovno) in pre-war Poland.

Stalin proclaimed the capture of Smela, rail centre in the Dnieper Bend and said the two mighty Red armies of Gen. Nikoliai Vatutin and Gen. Ivan S. Konev had made gains of u pto 45 miles in a 100-mile break-through of the German lines.

"As a result of these operations troops of the second and first Ukrainian fronts joined up in the area of Zvenigorodka and Shpola and thus closed a ring of encirclement around an enemy group operating north of this line, numbering nine infantry and one tank divisions," Stalin announced in his proclamation, broadcast from Moscow.

Stalin did not mention Lutsk, 70 miles inside the pre-war Polish frontier, or Rowne (Rovno), thirty miles west of that border. Evacuation of these places had been admitted earlier in a sweeping acknowledgment of losses by the German high command, broadcast in the daily German communique.

To the north the Russians had reached the Narova River within Estonia.

The Nazi withdrawal from Lutsk was surprising, since last previous reports from this sector of the eastern front had placed the fighting in the area of Rowne, 40 miles to the east, and there had been no indication that Lutsk was yet menaced.

The High Command's communique, broadcast by D. N. B., said:-

"Rovno and Luzk were evacuated in the course of embittered defensive fighting."

(Luzk is the German spelling; luck the Polish, Lutsk an anglicized form.)

Berlin Announcement

An earlier announcement by the Berlin radio said:-

"In the course of German movements on the eastern front Rovno and Luzk were abandoned by German troops yesterday. The German troops have taken up new positions west of the two towns."

Although the Russians themselves have not disclosed a new offensive in this region, Berlin reported last night that an intensified Soviet drive had been launched and said the Red Army had crossed the middle Gorin river which runs west of Rowne.

Farther to the southeast the communique sait dhe Russians were attacking Shepetovka. New Soviet thrusts also were reported on the Nikopol bridgehead while southwest of Dnepropetrovsk the Nazis were heavily engaged against advancing Soviet tank formations.

Heavy Battles in Progress

A German military spokesman in a mid-afternoon broadcast from Berlin said:—

"Very heavy battles are in progress along almost the entire length of the eastern front.

"Continued Russian thrusts carried forward from Sarny and Polonnoye caused the German high command to abandon the town of Rowne and to take positions farther to the west. Luzk (Lutsk) also was abandoned . . .

"Fighting is so fluid it is very difficult to give a detailed picture on the various front sectors."

Lutsk, capital of the Polish province of Volhynia, is 50 miles east of the Bug river which forms a portion of the "Curzon Line" recently proposed by Russia as the basis for a post-war boundary with Poland. Thus its capture would place the Red Army approximately two-thirds of the way across the section of Poland which the Russians apparently expect to hold permanently.

Both Lutsk and Rowne are important rail and highway centres with pre-war populations in the neighborhood of 35,000. Loss of Lutsk would mean the Germans have lost the use of a major railway from Warsaw to Odessa, although a more southern route still is available.

There was a possibility that the withdrawal from Lutsk meant the Germans are preparing to take up positions along the Polish Bug river, 240 miles from the German frontier, for a decisive stand.

Drive Along Gulf

The Germans also were being pushed back inside Estonia, where the Red Army driving along the gulf of Finland west of captured Kingisepp, reached positions along the Narva river, northwest of the seaport of Narva itself. This indicated that the Russians now are battling on Estonian soil.

While the Moscow advices did not specifically say the old Estonian frontier had ben crossed, the inference was implicit, for the Narva river—which flows through Narva into the gulf of Finland—is well inside the former border.

A heavy snowfall over this northern area made operations easier for Russian ski troops and the dispatches said they had penetrated behind the enemy's lines and cut their way into the network of highways serving as his supply system.

Ice over the rivers in this area was reported heavy enough to support infantrymen and machine-guns, but engineers were forced to build pontoons for artillery. The situation was similar, it was said, on Lake Peipus, where the Narva river originates southwest of the city of Narva.

The Russians captured more than 40 towns in their approach to Narva, rail junction and northern gateway to Estonia.

New Pincers Attack

Berlin reported not only a new Russian break-through in the Dnieper bend but also a new Soviet drive upon Rowne (Rovno) 30 miles inside pre-war Poland.

The Russians appeared to be developing a new pincers attack such as that which wound around the German 6th Army at Stalingrad a year ago yesterday and squeezed it out of existence.

One army was driving south from the Kingisepp-Narva area and swinging toward Luga from the northwest, the spearhead reaching Osmino, 35 miles northwest of Luga.

The other arm, advancing up from Novogrod in the southeast, was within 14 miles of Luga at Yugostitsi.

Prize of the pincers' tips, less than 50 miles apart, would be all the German troops north and east of Luga in a great pocket still held by the Germans.

Drama, Humor and Excitement In Canadian Patrol Activities

By FOSTER BARCLAY
(CP War Correspondent)

With the Canadian Forces in Italy, Feb. 3 — (CP) — There's drama, humor and excitement behind the daily routine reports of patrolling activities along the Adriatic coast as the Canadians and Germans jockey for position.

Most night patrols are routine affairs with both sides just crawling far enough into no man's land to ensure that positions have not been changed overnight and that no surprise sortie or attack in being planned. But it is out there in the darkness and gloom that some of the war's dramatic incidents are enacted.

There was the night, for instance, when a central Canadian patrol was ambushed during an attempt to retrieve the body of an officer. Only five returned to their own lines — the rest were killed, wounded or taken prisoner. Then the next evening eight members of a western Canadian regiment volunteered to rescue a Maritime soldier to lay on the battlefield, wounded and without food. They got back.

The Westerners told their story as they stood outside a sniper's hut near battalion headquarters, nestled at the crest of a gully in one of the front's hot spots.

Spotted Maritimer Signalling.

Between ducks and explosions, Pte. Bernard Meagher, Peterborough, Ont., said he had spotted the Maritimer crawling about at dawn, now and then flashing a mirror in the sun, hoping to catch the attention of an observation plane which crossed the area occasionally.

"All day long we watched him," recalled Jerry Zastre, Winnipeg. "At first we thought he might be a German trying to pull a fast one, but it soon became evident he was one of our own men. We couldn't understand why he didn't crawl toward our own positions, but apparently he had lost his direction and wasn't taking any chances of walking into the enemy's lines."

When dusk fell a party, including Meagher, volunteered to go out and bring him in.

Jerries Didn't Interfere.

"We didn't have much trouble," shouted Zastre as a mortar bomb exploded outside, sending hunks of dirt through the doorway. "We could hear the Germans talking in their slit trenches, but they didn't interfere.

"Three other persons were huddled in a hole and when we asked the Maritimer how they were he replied: 'They're dead—dead as doornails.'"

The rescuers agreed that the Maritimer had plenty of stuff the army calls guts. One leg was badly wounded, but he didn't complain.

"Why," recalled MacKay, "when somebody asked him if he would like a cup of tea he raised his head and whispered: 'Sure would, but without cream or sugar.'"

(The name of the Maritime soldier was not released, presumably because at the time the dispatch was written his relatives had not been informed.)

Allies Are Within 500 Yards Of Cassino From North

ROI AND NAMUR ISLANDS SAFELY HELD BY MARINES

Triple-Runway Roi Airstrip Falls Four Hours After Terrific Bombardment

HARBOR THREATENED

Namur Island, Kwajalein Atoll in the Marshalls, Feb. 3—(AP)—United States marines were mopping up the last enemy resistance yesterday on Roi and Namur islands, all but levelled by the great naval bombardment that cleared the way for the invasion forces.

Massed graveyards of littered Japanese blown from pillboxes and heavily-reinforced concrete blockhouses told the story of the heavy, deliberate and accurate pounding from the sea.

There is plenty of evidence that the Japanese were completely surprised. Those who survived the inferno of shell-fire had only small arms to fire from battered blockhouses as the marines landed shortly before noon Tuesday. Shore batteries had been blown sky-high.

The marines ran into sporadic resistance in the interior during the first day. The triple-runway Roi airstrip fell in four hours. Mild opposition from snipers on Roi was quickly suppressed. Harassed remnants of the Japanese troops escaped over a causeway to join their forces on adjacent Namur.

Blast Out Enemy

The Americans stormed nearly 200 yards across Namur on their first blow, then methodically began blasting out the enemy, pillbox by pillbox the rest of the way across the little island.

I landed shortly after the assault waves Tuesday on Namur. The Japanese snipped from trees and ruins of pillboxes. The marines picked off hundreds of them before nightfall the first day. After dark, the enemy began infiltrating, but they were systematically thwarted. The marines took some prisoners, including crack naval guard forces. The Japs' cockiness was gone.

RATS IN ABUNDANCE

Toronto, Feb. 3 (CP)—"There are rats, rats, big as alley cats in the stores—stores of scrap metal in an unenclosed yard in the Dundas-Humbercrest district, complain residents of the area. Deputy Reeve Robert Gray reported to York township council this week that residents fear the rodents may spread disease.

'We Will Finish War This Year' Says Montgomery

A Southeast England Town, Feb. 3—(CP)—Gen. Sir Bernard Montgomery told his troops yesterday, that they could finish the war in Europe this year "and we will."

"I want you men to know," said the commander of British Ground Forces in the invasion command, "that I never put an army into battle until I am quite certain it is going to be a good show. We won't have any question of failure. If there is any question we won't start . . .

"This war began a long while ago. I am getting fed up with the thing. I think it nearly time we finished it. We could not see at the beginning how it would end. That is not so today. Definitely not.

"Today we can see how this business is going to end. The only thing we cannot see is exactly when. But I would say we must make a great effort to finish it off this year. We can do so—and we will. You and I will see this thing through together."

RADIO MECHANICS, R.C.A.F. AIR CREW ARRIVE IN INDIA

Detachment Weathers Sustained Air Attack En Route by Sea

TELL OF TRIP

A West Coast Indian Port, Feb. 3—(CP)— Weathering sustained air attacks en route by sea, a detachment of R. C. A. F. air crew officers and radio mechanics has arrived to take up the battle against the Axis in Southeast Asia command.

Nine fliers, members of the R. C. A. F. flying boat crews who served previously with coastal command in the United Kingdom, told of their experiences when their convoy was subjected to two attacks by German bombers. One lasted two hours.

The Germans used their new glider bomb in the attacks, the fliers said, but the closest the enemy came to the ship in which they were travelling was 200 yards. In both attacks the enemy was driven off with a tremendous ack-ack barrage.

In the same convoy, however, were seven radio mechanics who were not so lucky. The ship in which they travelled in a previous convoy was struck by an aerial torpedo but all passengers were removed at Leisure and there were no casualties. An escorting destroyer took them to a port where they later joined the convoy that brought them to India.

Canadians on the torpedoed vessel, all of whom are safely in India, included: LACs. Lloyd Boyd, Frederickton, N. B., John Mcdonald, Lion's Head, Ont., Don Duncan, Green River, Ont., and Sgt. Don Reid, Drayton, Ont.

In the convoy which they later joined, their vessel helped materially in driving the enemy aircraft to cover.

"I saw our gunners blast the daylights out of one of the attacking planes and it exploded right in the air," Boyd said.

Telling of these attacks, the flying boat officers said the first lasted two hours and the enemy came in three waves. They came over a second time in a one-wave affair that lasted less than a half-hour.

Watch Through Portholes

During the first raid, the fliers, all of whom ferried flying boats across the Atlantic from Newfoundland, were on deck and "saw quite a bit of the surprise show before they hustled us below." They had to be content to watch the second attack through the portholes.

RUSSIAN ENVOY TO LEAVE FOR MOSCOW SHORTLY

Algiers, Feb. 3—(AP)—Russian envoys Alexander E. Bogomolov and Andrei T. Vishinsky will leave shortly for consultations in Moscow, it was learned today.

While there was no indication of the nature of the conferences, their departure will coincide with the growing split between French communists and Gen. Charles De Gaulle who has refused to give Communist party members a representative on the French National Committee.

3,500,000 Pounds Bombs Dropped Prior to Invasion

Honolulu, T. H., Feb. 3 —(AP)— More than 3,500,000 pounds of bombs were dropped on Japanese bases in the Marshalls preparatory to invasion.

In announcing the figures today, United States 7th Army Air Force Headquarters said the bombardment was supplemented by cannonading with the new rapid-fire 75-mm. cannon mounted in medium bombers, and by frequent fighter-bomber and fighter strafing attacks.

The bombs ranged from 25-pound fragmentation bombs to one-ton explosive bombs.

Flying missions up to 2,400 miles, or four times the distance from London to Berlin, heavy bombers carried out more than 680 sorties between last Nov. 12 and Jan. 31.

Medium bombers flew 240 missions in an 80-day period, and more than 2,000 sorties were made by fighter-bombers and fighters.

SAYS PROPOSAL MADE TO SWEDEN DID NOT INTEREST

Minister Tells of Unusual Suggestion to Occupy Denmark and Norway

MADE IN LATE 1943

Stockholm, Feb. 3 — (AP) — Foreign Minister Christian E. Guenther said today in a statement to the official Swedish news agency that a prominent Danish citizen had approached the Swedish government with a proposal that Sweden occupy Denmark and Norway and guarantee their neutrality in the event of a German withdrawal. Guenther asserted that Sweden was not interested.

The Foreign Minister revealed the proposal after the newspaper Eskilstuna Kuriren had published a story saying it had been made by Rudolf Christiani, head of the Copenhagen engineering firm of Christiani and Nielsen toward the end of 1943.

The article said the unusual proposition had been inspired by the Germans and that Christiani had acted as an emissary of Werner Best, Nazi puppet leader in Denmark.

Guenther said Christiani came to Stockholm with such a proposal, but that there was no suggestion that he was representing Best. In any event, Guenther said, the proposal was "not interesting for Sweden."

It was pointed out here the sorely pressed Nazis stand to gain by any such arrangement whereby Denmark and Norway would be neutralized.

Christiani is a former Conservative member of the Danish parliament.

Two Children Are Asphyxiated

Toronto, Feb. 3—(CP)—Two young children were asphyxiated last night while their mother shopped at a corner store.

Mrs. Dorothy Calver found her two children, Yvette, 2½, and Noel, 17 months, unconscious in the attic of their Gerrard Stret home in Toronto's East End. Police said one of the children had turned on two jets of a gas range.

The father, Cpl. Noel, was informed at his R. C. A. F. station at St. Thomas, Ont., and left for Toronto.

ANTI-FASCIST ITALIANS PRAISE FRENCH TROOPS

New York, Feb. 3—(CP) — The BBC said today that the Italian anti-Fascist congress meeting in Bari had sent a message to Gen. Charles De Gaulle, chairman of the French committee of National Liberation, expressing its admiration for French troops now fighting in Italy and calling for friendly collaboration between France and Italy "in order that peace, freedom and democracy reign in Europe." The broadcast was recorded by CBS.

1,100 AMERICAN PLANES ATTACK WILHELMSHAVEN

Large Nazi Shipbuilding Centre Was Last Bombed by U. S. Forces on Nov. 3

CLEAR WEATHER

London, Feb. 3—(CP)—More than 1,100 American bombers and long-range fighters attacked targets at Wilhelmshaven, in northwest Germany, today, United States Army headquarters announced.

The sixth operation in seven days by Britain-based American bomber and fighter forces was made in clear weather against the German U-boat and shipbuilding centre. The flight represented a 700-mile round trip.

Wilhelmshaven was last hit by the Americans Nov. 3 by 560 bombers, believed to have been a record force of four-engined craft up to that time.

The target is one of Germany's major ports.

The shattering daylight assault followed R. A. F. Mosquito attacks on targets in Western Germany Wednesday night, keeping the greatest sustained Allied offensive of the war rolling around the clock.

The announced force of 1,100 bombers and fighters making up today's striking force fell short of the record force of 1,500 American bombers and fighters which made the 1,800-ton raid on Frankfurt last Saturday.

Hours after the American heavy bomber had left the smoke and flames of Wilhelmshaven behind them, other Allied bombers and long-range fighters kept streaming acros the channel in what appeared to be one of the heaviest offensives in weeks.

One watcher said one large group of the late returning channel raiders required three-quarters of an hour to pass the coastline.

British aircraft also laid mines in enemy waters during the night, the announcement said. No planes were lost in the forays, which followed a series of daylight assaults by United States heavy bombers yesterday on the invasion coast of northern France.

Transportation First Difficulty Of War Correspondents in Italy

Montreal, Feb. 3—(CP)—The story behind the front-page dispatches from the war theatres was told here today by J. W. G. Clark, director of information for the Armed Services, back from a tour of inspection in Britain and the Mediterranean.

Delivering a prepared address before a service (Kiwanis) Club luncheon, Mr. Clark paid tribute to Canadian war correspondents and told of his department's efforts to "make dead sure" that newsmen got "precisely what they want."

"But," he said, "the Army, the Navy and the Air Force are not bestowing a great favor on correspondents by allowing them to circulate among the troops at war. I regret to say that there are still some military minds who do not yet grasp the significance of this fact."

First among the correspondents' difficulties in Italy was transportation. Roads were torn by war; pocked by mines, bombs and shells; muddy, narrow and congestd 24 hours a day by lorries, ambulances, jeeps, carriers, tanks, guns and refugees. And there isn't enough transport to go around.

Then there was the difficulty of keeping up with a swift-moving attack—"and they must slep, eat, write their copy, wash their laundry in between." The battalions and batteries had rests between actions but there was "no rest or let-up for the conscientious war correspondent."

Stay at Front All Day

The difficulty of transmission also was great. "They stay at the front . . . During the day, return at dusk to their mess, where, tired, hungry and exhausted, they type their stories. They eat, perhaps they bathe, then crawl into their bed rolls . . .

"Two hours before dawn the next day their copy in handed to a dispatch rider. After a wicked journey over incredible roads the D. R. arrives at dawn at an advance air-special courier aircraft takes the field. Here the pilot of a swift, copy bag . . . And flies to a cable-head, 150 miles in the rear.

" . . . The bag is taken to the field censors, where it is carefully scanned for any possible breaches of security. Passed by intelligence, a public relations officer files it with the cable people. Sometimes the copy is in the newspaper office in Canada in a few hours. But there are all sorts of things, strange and mysterious, happening in wartime, and sometimes it is days before the story turns up . . ."

As for living conditions, Mr. Clark described them as "pretty grim." He suggested: "When you read a story in your paper, signed by one of them (the correspondents), or with the Cp (The Canadian Press) or bup (The British United Press) initials on the dateline, that you quietly say to yourself 'wel done.'"

Seriously Threaten Core of Germans' 'Gustav Line'

Anzio Bridgehead Enlarged in Face Of Strong German Counter-Attacks

8TH ARMY ON MOVE

By DON WHITEHEAD
Associated Press War Correspondent

Allied Headquarters in Italy, Feb. 3 (AP)—Allied troops had battled to within 500 yards of Cassino from the north today and Allied headquarters announced that the core of the German's Gustav line was "seriously threatened."

American and French units tore wide gaps in the Gustav line in bloody fighting in the mountains to the rear of the stronghold despite fire from German six-barrelled Nebelwerver mortars and self-propelled guns manned by a "last-ditch" garrison fighting from the ruins.

At the same time other Americans were making a direct frontal attack on the city, guarding the Liri valley.

To the north, meanwhile, Allied troops enlarged their Anzio bridgehead in the face of German counter-attacks and engaged in hard fighting in several sectors. One of the German counter-attacks thrown back was just west of Littoria.

With their Cassino front near collapse the Germans were throwing attacks against the beachhead with increasing strength as new elements arrived in the enemy line in an effort to seal off the most serious threat to Rome.

Enemy Jumpy, Nervous

On the comparatively quiet British 8th. Army front along the Adriatic the Allies had the enmey jumpy and nervous. The Nazis were shooting off flares frequently at night, and there was much movement of enemy transport behind the lines. Units of a Canadian corps forming the 8th. Army's right flank from the Adriatic inland were reported yesterday to have reached a crossroads 1½ miles from Tollo.

German nervousness frequently is a sign of an impending Allied offensive.

Fighting grimly to halt the 5th. Army at Cassino, the Germans threw in counter-attack after counter-attack on the flanks.

But the Americans and French to the north widened the breach in the Gustav line to three miles, capturing several heights near Terelle. The Americans crossed the Cassino-Terelle Road and Terelle itself was almost surrounded after the capture of a series of heights on Mount Castellone, a 2,300-foot peak where 100 prisoners were taken.

Cassino faced encirclement if the Germans continued to fight to the last man as they gave every indication of doing. Allied troops coming down from the mountains were in a position to cut Highway No. 6 to Rome behind the defenders. The highway was of little use to the Germans since it was under command of Allied artillery on the slopes above.

Contest Every Inch of Ground.

But despite the threat from every side the Germans contested every inch of ground and burrowed in the ruins like the Russian defenders of Stalingrad.

They had to be cleaned out of coves and dugouts one by one in the vicinity of Mount Manna, and out of the Monte Villa barracks to north of the town.

The British destroyers tumult and tenacitus meanwhile supported the 8th army by selling Porto Recanti and Pedaco just south of Ancona.

The enemy sent beaween 20 and 30 bomb-carrying Focke-Wulf 190s to strike at Allied shiping through cloud formations, but two were destroyed.

OFFICIAL SILENCE IS CONTINUED ON RUSSIAN STEP

British Press Speculates on Probable Significance of Greater Autonomy

VARIOUS VIEWS

London, Feb. 3 (CP)—Official quarters maintained continued silence on Russia's new program of greater autonomy for her 16 constituent republics as the British press still speculated cautiously today on its probable significance.

Political observers awaited a possible statement on the subject by Foreign Secretary Eden in the House of Commons, but it seemed likely he was delaying comment pending receipt of further information from the British Ambassador in Moscow, Sir Archibald Clark Kerr.

The News Chronicle described the Moscow decree giving each Soviet Republic the right to conduct its own foreign affairs a demonstration of immense confidence by Russian leaders "in the strength and cohesive unity of the U.S.S.R."

Soviet Union's Confidence.

The News Chronicle commented that "the more powers the government undertakes to delegates, the more confidence it must possess in the loyality of its constituent parts."

The newspaper Observer, however, that "the main power" will remain under federal control and that it "seems probable that in practice the independence will turn out to be of minor significance."

The Daily Herald said "it clearly is not intended that there shall be, for instance, in London 17 Soviet ambassadors or ministers (one for the Union and one for each Republic) and a British ambassador or minister in every capital of the Soviet Republic. That would be mere waste of manpower and a source of perpetual confusion."

HOLD TORONTO YOUTH ON THEFT CHARGES

The report was made by Miss Norma Huyck, proprietress of the Cole Beauty Parlor, that was entered recently and $14.70 stolen.

Today before police Thomson flatly denied having entered the beauty parlor, but he was held on the milk bottle charge after residents at 303½ Front St., provided a description of a young man seen in the vicinity prior to the money being found missing. ## Parks Board Approves Estimate $4,000 for 1944

C. B. Colling was elected chairman of the Belleville Parks Commission at the inaugural session of the Board held in the City Hall last evening. Chairman Colling has been a member of the Commission for the past five years and chairman of the Exhibition Park for a period of three seasons.

The principal business of the meeting was the matter of striking estimates, a subject that brought forth considerable discussion. As the result of the high water level reached in 1943, the highest in record in many years on the shores of the Bay of Quinte, much damage resulted to Victoria Park as the result of inundation for practically the entire season.

Upon motion of Mayor Rollins, and seconded by Commissioner M. J. Callaghan, the Parks Board estimates of $4,000 was approved. However, the Board reserved the right to petition the city council for additional revenue for the repairs to Victoria Park in the event such was necessary.

City Saved $21,895.

"In 1923 the taxpayers of Belleville voted the Parks Commission one mill. However, in 1933, when depression was at its height the council asked the Board to curtail their expenditures and since that time the Board has been operating on fifty per cent of its original allowance. This makes a savings to the city of $21,895 made by the Board in the past ten years. Personally I believe some sort of a fund should be created to look to the future for our parks, which are not the asset to the city that parks are supposed to be", said Chairman Colling.

"I might add that the citizens have never been acquainted with the savings the Parks Board has made in this measure. When the council or Board of Education makes a savings it is well publicized in the press. Why shouldn't the public be acquainted with the savings this Board has made in the past decade?" continued Commissioner C. J. Symons. Some discussion was heard relative to the erection of a municipal sports and recreation park before Mayor Rollins pointed out this matter was being considered by the Post-War Planning committee.

Recondition Mowers.

Commissioner Frank Potter moved that all lawn mowers the property of the Board be reconditioned, after it was learned new machines could not be obtained until after the war.

When the Board moved to accept the same estimates as in 1943, Commissioner O. A. Pinkston, who is, also, secretary and treasurer, pointed out that had it not been for revenue derived from the buildings at the Exhibition Park in 1943, the Board would have operated at a loss.

Officers for 1944.

The election of officers of the Parks Commission for 1944 resulted as follows:

General Chairman—C. B. Colling.
Sec.-Treasurer—O. A. Pinkston.
Victoria Park—M. J. Callaghan.
Exhibition Grounds—C. B. Colling.
Parks in General—O. A. Pinkston.
Horticulture—C. J. Symons.

Other members of the Board include A. B. Baird, Frank Potter and Mayor Rollins by virtue of office.

The Board will convene the second Tuesday in each month.

Address on Value of Photography In War and Peace Given Rotary Club

Trenton — (Special) — Wing Commander J. R. Cairns of the R.C.A.F., Trenton, was guest speaker at the Trenton Rotary Club on Monday evening giving a most interesting and informative talk on "Photography."

He commenced by giving its root from the Greek words 'photos' meaning light, and 'graphos' meaning 'I trace', and told that even up until the time of the Great war the camera was just beginning to take its great place in the world. First photographs were not of such importance until a picture taken by a sergeant showed up so clearly the trenches of the enemy that this proved valuable information to direct the attack against the foe. The first cameras for air photography were fixed to the side of the planes and were of the fixed focus type.

Since the last war, however, air photography has played a very important part in the developing and mapping out of north country and areas in Canada which would normally take three years to survey and map but can now be done, in the matter of one month by air.

The speaker gave a concrete example of this when he said in July 1924 he took off with a party to survey a large area stretching from Victoria Beach on Lake Winnipeg to Reindeer Lake, photographing the whole of Reindeer River to Pr. Albert then circling their Vickers Viking craft in an arc to the north, returning to their base on August 14th. They covered a distance of 2,500 miles and took 1,700 photographs all of which material has proven of great value in the maps we use to-day of that very territory.

In concluding he spoke of the very great part aerial photography is playing in this war and of the tremendous strides which have been made in improving the types of camera for this work.

Wing Commander Cairns was introduced by Rotarian Jim Holmes and a vote of thanks was expressed by Captain Holmes.

Red Cross Asks For Sweaters

Trenton, (Special)—Mrs. J. H. Redick, work convener of the local Red Cross, has received from headquarters an urgent appeal for more and more sweaters and is asking that any who possibly can will assist in this great work. The bulletin received of estimated requirements for England alone is frightening in its size and it is stressed that the vast majority of sweaters will have to be made of wheeling wool, as it is utterly impossible to procure Scotch fingering or special service wool in sufficient quantities to meet more than a very small fraction of the number needed. Headquarters states that in view of the enormous demands and the short supply of wool it has reached the point where women will either have to knit with wheeling or take the responsibility of knowing that some of our men in the service will go without sweaters and socks.

Knitters are urged not to purchase their own wool in the shops to knit for Red Cross as the wool available in these shops is for people knitting for their own men in the services and Red Cross must meet its demands from the wool assigned to their society, most of which is wheeling simply because it is in the largest supply.

It has been suggested that two or three women collaborate in the making of a sweater, thereby speeding production, also that those who do not knit canvass their friends and try to find some one who will take out wool and bring it back as quickly as possible in finished product.

An antique glass plate raffled at Tuesday's meeting in the work room, which was donated by Mrs. J. H. Tinney, was raffled and won by Mrs. J. Parker. $1.60 was realized in cash.

Nephew Reported Missing

Mr. and Mrs. Dougall Bleecker, Dundas St. West, Trenton, have received official word from Ottawa that their nephew, Sergt. Pilot John Bleecker Mill has been reported as missing following flying operations over Germany on January 22, 1944.

Sergt. Pilot Mill was born in Belleville twenty-one years ago and attended school there, the elder son of Mr. John Guthrie Mill and the late Mrs. Bleecker Mill. His father now resides in the Yukon. Sergt. Mill has spent much time, however, at the home of his aunt and uncle in Trenton and has a wide circle of friends here.

He enlisted in Vancouver and following his graduation was posted overseas in February, 1942. A sister, Mrs. Helen E. Rowe, resides in Linden, N.J.

Miscellaneous goods to the value of $3,939.68 were reported lost and of this amount goods to the value of $1,311.09 was recovered and returned to the rightful owners. Other goods to the value of $2,856.09 were found and returned to the owners.

126 transients and soldiers were given shelter for the night at the police station, the number gradually decreasing as in 1942 there were 182.

Business and other property is checked each night by the officers on duty and in 142 instances doors and windows were found insecure. This denotes an increase in the negligence of property owners in seeing that their property is secure for the night as in 1942 only 83 doors and windows were found insecure. In all cases the owners of the property were notified before serious loss occurred.

38 children and 6 adults, reported missing from their homes, were all located and returned.

45 summonses were served in Trenton and the immediate vicinity for other police departments, and 56 fingerprints taken and forwarded to the Royal Canadian Mounted Police Fingerprint Bureau at Ottawa for identification purposes in connection with various cases handled.

Officers assist in regulating traffic at practically all fires and especially during the night hours assistance is given to fire engineer. 22 fire alarms were answered during the year.

Much Patrol Mileage.

19,339 miles of patrol and transportation of prisoners to and from the county goal were made during the year. The radio unit to the cruiser has been in operation throughout the year. daily, and in numerous cases arrests were made within minutes after teh call was made over the radio. It has proved itself a valuable asset in helping to control crime.

The financial statement showed fines and fees collected and handed to the Magistrate to be $8,012.70 (subject to division); Amount of fines and fees paid to the town by the Magistrate (after division) $3,006.69; Amount of court costs and attendance collected and paid to the town $821.40.

The following sums were collected for licences, dogs $436; bikes $92.75; Taxi $100; trucks $80, all others (restaurant, tobacco, etc.) $1,411.60. Total paid to town $5,950.44.

Need More Cell Accommodation.

The annual statement suggested that more cell accommodation be arranged for as the present accommodation is the same as when the town hall was built about 100 years ago, and is entirely inadequate for the present day. The report also suggested that other means be provided for heating the building. Another subject taken up was the repairing and painting of "No Parking" signs and "Stop Street" signs, also that safety zones be marked on the streets in order that pedestrians may cross in safety and thereby eliminate the hazard to motorist and pedestrians.

The Chief Constable thanked the Mayor, Council, citizens and the press for their kind co-operation and assistance during the year, also the many donors for their gifts to the Police Radio Fund and for the exceptionally splendid gift which was given for the floor of the police station. He also thanked the Central Bridge Company and the Canadian Pacific Railway for the very efficient co-operation which they gave from their police forces.

Hanson Asks Greater Freedom For Private Enterprise In Civilian Aviation in House

By FRANK FLAHERTY
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, Feb. 3—(CP)—Demand for a more liberal policy on private enterprise in the field of civil aviation, from Hon. R. B. Hanson (PC—York-Sunbury) in the House of Commons yesterday, opens up a subject which is expected to be debated at length during the present session of parliament.

Mr. Hanson, former Opposition leader and a veteran member, said the present practice of restricting private enterprise is "dwarfing the progress of Canadian air transportation."

At yesterday's short sitting Prime Minister Mackenzie King announced the government hopes to have a conference with the provinces "before very long" to "deal with some of the social problems and financial questions that they have had necessarily to consider along with ourselves."

The conference is expected to attempt to solve the issues of relative federal and provincial jurisdiction in social and labor legislation, and take up the financial relationship between the Dominion and the provinces where it was left at the Dominion-Provincial conference of 1940 when Ontario, Alberta and British Columbia objected to consideration of recommendations made in the report of the pre-war Royal Commission on the subject.

Some Ready to Meet

Mr. King said he understood some at least of the provinces now are ready to meet. Recently it was reported from Toronto that Premier George Drew of Ontario proposed to ask for such a conference and the step was recommended in the report of the advisory committee on reconstruction tabled in the House at the start of the session.

The Prime Minister said he was unable to say whether parliament would be asked to adjourn during the coming conference of Prime Ministers in London or during the planned Dominion-Provincial conference.

He said the bills to be dealt with this session would be brought in roughly in order of immediate importance: 1, Urgent war measures; 2, Measures on such things as soldiers' rehabilitation dealing with the transition period immediately after the war; and 3, Those dealing with social problems in the post-war period.

Mr. King said he could not undertake to bring in all legislation immediately. No government ever did. The bills would be brought in at the appropriate time.

If the House were agreeable, he could undertake to have all committees set up this week. He could not say when the budget would be brought in.

The 1944-45 estimates would be ready soon, Mr. King said.

May be Other Bills.

He could not indicate what legislation there would be in addition to that outlined in the Throne speech. There might be a bill in respect to disposal of war materials.

Only three speakers took the House floor in the Throne Speech debate yesterday—Mr. Hanson, Dr. Pierre Gauthier (Bp-Portneuf), and Walter Kuhl (Ind-Jasper-Edison).

Dr. Gauthier expressed opposition to any immigration while there was any prospect of unemployment. He said he sees in appeals like that made in Lord Halifax' Toronto speech the makings of an "Imperialistic crisis" for Canada in the near future.

Mr. Kuhl questioned "full employment" as a post-war objective. He said that with recent technological progress it should be possible sharply to reduce hours of work and that the objective of an economic system was not employment but the maximum of goods and services with the minimum of work and trouble.

Refused Franchise.

Mr. Hanson based his criticism of civil aviation policy on the refusal of a franchise for an air route between Saint John, N.B., and Halifax. He said the reason given was military necessity but that it was not convincing.

Munitions Minister Howe interjected that he took responsibility for the action. It was not a refusal; the application had not been dealt with.

"It was turned down because we believed that the valuable air Franchises should be held by the people who are fighting our battles overseas," he said.

Oil Suspension Clears Streets and Highways Of Motorcars, Trucks

Madrid, Feb. 3 —(AP)— The entire Madrid press yesterday interpreted the Anglo-American agreement suspending oil shipments to Spain as a move to force this country to abandon its neutrality.

Throughout Spain streets and highways were cleared overnight of all motor driven vehicles as the government met the suspension with the most severe gasoline restrictions Spain has ever known.

Some of the newspapers printed attacks on the suspension, mainly against Britain. All asserted that economic pressure on Spain and what they termed a press and radio campaign against her was the wrong way to obtain the country's friendship.

Mrs. G. B. Shaw Left Estate of $667,500

London, Feb. 3 — (CP) — Mrs. George Bernard Shaw, wife of the playwright left an estate of about £150,000 ($667,500) upon which Shaw paid more than £40,000 in death duties, the Evening Standard said today.

Income tax specialists, it added, estimated Shaw's income at present as about £24,000 on which he pays £20,000 annually in taxes.

In a letter to the times yesterday, Shaw urged abolition of the excess profits tax and exemption from surtax of all income above £20,000 annually, and declared "windfalls" should not be taxed at the same rates as settled income. He complained he had been transformed from "a prosperous playwright" into a "tax collection" working for a commission of sixpence on every

Claim Fruit is Wasted By Limit to Trucking

Toronto, Feb. 3 —(CP)— Seeking to have the 35-mile truck limit raised or abolished, members of the Ontario Fruit Merchants' Association, meeting Tuesday elected a committee to visit Ottawa this coming weekend and discuss the matter with Donald Gordon, chairman of the Prices Board. Great quantities of fruit and vegetables are being wasted, it is said, by the limit on trucking.

Mr. Bankoff, of the Twin City Produce Co., of Kitchener, states that early this winter he was caused a loss of $300, through a shipment from his firm being left out in freezing weather on a transport which he had been forced to engage, rather than run his own equipment beyond 35 miles.

Kamloops, B. C., Feb. 3 —(CP) —Alex Walker of Calgary, Dominion President of the Canadian Legion, in an address here Tuesday evening commended the Federal government's announced intention of establishing a Department of Veterans Affairs.

The Legion is urging the government to establish insurance for members of the armed forces serving anywhere in the world, Walker said, rather than insurance confined to men serving overseas only.

The Legion is also asking that the disability pension for women in the armed forces be placed at par with that already in effect for men, he added.

FARM PRODUCTS IN SHORT SUPPLY, CATTLEMEN TOLD

President of the Holstein-Friesian Association Calls for Help on Dairy Farms

Toronto, Feb. 3 — (CP) — Most farm products are in short supply with the shortage probably most acute in dairy articles, it was noted in the report of President George C. Jackson of Downview, Ont., presented Wed. to the 61st annual meetings of the Holstein-Friesian Association of Canada.

Increased demands for whole milk and butter for home consumption and for cheese and all types of powdered milk and condensed milk for Britain are not being met satisfactorily, the report said.

Referring to the shift of labor farms, forests and mines to the manuacture of goods for war purposes, the report stated "if great Britain and our Allies are to receive the dairy products they require, when they need them, competent help must be directed to the dairy farms and price ceilings on such products may have to be revised upwards."

Secretary-Treasurer George M. Clemens of Brantford, Ont., reported 999 new members in 1943, bringing the total to 8,547, of which 6,628 are in Ontario.

The extension service committee, headed by J. J. E. McCague of Alliston, Ont., reported a record allocation of $50,000 for its work last year. A special grant was made to assist the New Brunswick Branch in purchase of 110 Ontario cattle, Mr. McCague said.

Whitby, Ont., Feb. 3— (CP) — Isamu Tamai, 23, Canadian-born Japanese, electing trial by jury, was committed for trial in police court here yesterday on two charges to which he pleaded not guilty.

He was charged with being in possession of an explosive substance for an unlawful purpose and with throwing or placing an explosive into or near a building with intent to damage the building. Request by Tamai's counsel for a reduction in bail of $3,000 was refused by Magistrate F. S. Ebbs.

ROI AND NAMUR

All buildings on Namur were razed except one badly battered concrete structure. Only the steel framework of hangars at Roi were left standing. Coral runways there were pocked with bomb craters as was Namur's cocoanut grove and beach area. Marines used the craters for foxholes until they had time to dig in.

Slept in Foxhole

I slept in a foxhole. Enemy bullets whined overhead through the darkness. Our casualties appear light.

I saw one pillbox where 18 Japanese, including several officers, had been exterminated by the naval bombardment. Their charred and broken bodies were buried in debris. Two prisoners were taken from the pillbox.

The pier at Namur was left a mass of debris. A giant steel crane at its end was twisted like so much wire. Ammunition dumps were still exploding when I walked to the beach.

Barracks once dotted Namur and it was marked off by streets. But they're hard to find now. The maps given us to find our way around were outdated after the savage salvoes from the Navy's big guns the day before the marines landed on Roi and Namur.

By CHARLES H. McMURTRY,
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Pearl Harbor, Feb. 3. (AP)—The four-day-old United States invasion of the heart of the Marshalls, a tactical surprise so complete that a vital air base for bombers and fighters was captured in less than a day, threatened the Japanese today with imminent loss of a fine harbor.

The four-runway airfield at Roi, on the northern end of Kwajalein Atoll, was overrun Tuesday, the second day of invasion and on the same day that forces went ashore at that point. The deep anchorage of boomerang-shaped Kwajalein Islet on southern end of Kwajalein Atoll is seriously menaced, with one-third of the Islet already in American hands. The airfield and the anchorage are the keys to Kwajalein, world's largest Atoll.

Capture of Roi airfield and invasion of Kwajalein Islet were announced yesterday by Admiral Chester W. Nimitz. His communique made it clear the choice of Kwajalein for the invasion scene had fooled the Japanese, who for 25 years had been on the mandated Marshalls.

Taken by Surprise.

Parallel lines of Eastern and Western Atolls make up the Marshalls, with Kwajalein near the centre of the Western group. Apparently the Japanese looked for an attack on the Eastern group—the chain facing Hawaii more than 2,000 miles away—or at the southern extremities of either chain in the direction of the recently-captured Gilberts.

"It is now apparent that the attack took the enemy completely by surprise", Admiral Nimitz said.

American troops also landed Tuesday on Namur, adjacent to Roi on the northern end of Kwajalein Atoll, and connected by a causeway with the Roi air base.

In the preparatory assaults, more than 5,000 tons of explosives hit Roi and Namur and an equal number smashed at Kwajalein Islet. Such furious attacks enabled all landings to be achieved against what was described officially as "little resistance".

Other Atolls Attacked.

While Marines and Army veterans of the Aleutian campaign expanded their holdings on Kwajalein, invaded Monday other fortified Atolls in the Marshalls were kept under heavy attack from naval artillery and Allied planes.

The attack apparently has isolated thousands of Japanese troops which now may be conquered at leisure or left to die of starvation.

These troops are garrisons—believed to be of considerable size—stationed on the chain of Atolls which form the eastern limits of the Marshall group and in which the principal enemy bases are battered Wotje, Jaluit and Maloelap.

The attack, judged by reports of "moderate losses" this far, is gaining important objectives at a cost relatively much lower than that of the conquest of Tarawa in the Gilbert Islands two months ago.

Mighty Naval Power Used

One of the most powerful fleets ever assembled was that which has attacked the Marshall Islands in the Pacific theatre of war and the only fleet to which it can be compared is that which had part in the invasion of Sicily last July 10th. Hundreds of vessels took part in the Marshalls invasion. An AP writer says naval strength of two million tons of ships is the measure of the attack.

Much depends upon the success of this offensive by the United States against the Marshalls' position in the mid-Pacific territory.

This is another demonstration to the Japanese militarists what force can be hurled against the Japanese occupation forces.

The Allied Nations are everywhere striking hammerlike blows. Nothing like the blows which they have delivered and can deliver are recorded in history.

Belgian Underground

Almost a fourth of the population of Belgium is actively engaged in the underground; the rest are passively doing what they can, according to the chief of the Belgian underground in America whose story is told by Don Eddy in the February American Magazine.

The underground works along military lines and if one command is cut off another takes over, the Belgian chief explains. If one man dies there is another to take his place—"the flame never flickers; resistance never ceases."

"Of the armed force, I can assure you it is one of the best small armies in the world. By day, its members are farmers, tradesmen, teamsters. By night, they are mobile, well-equipped troops trained to strike with deadly speed and skill . . . Nowhere in the world is there more implacable hatred for the Germans, more determined opposition to them, more intelligent organization to combat them.

"When the hour strikes, you may be confident that courageous Belgians will be waiting to lead your troops to the German strongholds, for every one is known and charted."

Real Vandals

How well authenticated are the reports of German vandalism is shown in the statement made in the British House of Commons on Tuesday by War Secretary Sir James Grigg. A German incendiary squad at Lavardi on September 30th last utterly destroyed priceless gems of art and historical archives of Italy though Italian authorities pleaded that these be spared. The treasures had been removed from Naples by the Italians for safekeeping.

One part of the treasures destroyed was a number of registers of the Hohenstaufen and Angevin Kings of Naples. kings of the House of Aragon and of the Bourbons. These should have been of great importance in the eyes of people of any races but it is not so of the Germans, even though the records were of the Hohenstaufen, a branch of a German royal family, founded by Frederick of Hohenstaufen who was rewarded by the Emperor Henry IV with the Duchy of Suabia and his daughter in marriage for the courage he had displayed in the eyes of the Emperor in the battle of Merseburg in 1080. Frederick's son Conrad, Duke of Franconia, was raised to the German throne in 1125 as Conrad III, but in 1254 the German throne passed from the hands of the Hohenstaufen to the Angevins under Charles of Anjou.

People supporting the Hohenstaufen family called Conradin from Bavaria to ascend the throne but in 1268 at the battle of Tagliacozza, Conradin was captured by his rival who had him publicly executed at Naples. The possessions of the Hohenstaufen fell after Conradin's death to Bavaria, Baden and Wurtemberg.

The province of Anjou was in possession of the English kings until 1204 when King John lost it to the French King Philip. In 1226 Philip bestowed Anjou on brother Charles but in 1328 it was united to the French crown. John I raised it to the rank of a ducal peerage and gave it to his son. Henceforth it remained separate from the French crown until 1480 when it fell to Louis I.

The Germans' destroyed registers of the kings of the House of Aragon and the Bourbons. The latter were descended from the Spanish Bourbons. So Naples had been under the sway of the Normans, the emperors of Germany and the Kings of France and Spain as can be seen by these registers. The Italians had treasured these for their historic importance but the Nazi Huns as typical vandals saw no value in them and gave them to the flames.

Of great loss are the sixty or seventy paintings that were also destroyed, one being an early work of the great painter Botticelli and a portrait of the Madonna and Child by Luini, the latter being regarded as the best painter of the Milanese school and one of the followers of the great Leonardo da Vinci. One of Luini's works is owned by the National Gallery, London.

The Germans are reported to have plundered works of art from Rome and other Italian cities and from the capitals and museums of Europe. In this war they have as in the First World War, destroyed churches as shrines of faith and national buildings closely related with the historic developments of various peoples.

They have robbed the farms of Europe and lived on the food stocks and livestock of overrun Europe, leaving the peoples without sufficient food.

The Old Adage

The bear and the groundhog saw their shadows on Wednesday, even if according to report, they have been seen sunning themselves on some of those bright mild days of last week without waiting for Candlemas Day. To move about in the sun or lie basking in its warmth was something odd for the hibernating species of the animal kingdom on any other day but February 2nd is unusual to say the least, just as the first half of this winter has been unusual. By all accounts hereabouts the two animals that have been set up as weather prophets saw their moving shadows either according to fast time or standard time, for the sun was bright here at least from twelve o'clock until near two o'clock.

How true to fact the old adage will run will be watched closely. Normally in view of the light winter so far, it would seem abnormal if there were not more severe weather ahead. On the other hand the fairly small amount of precipitation might indicate a continuance of the trend so far witnessed of a season of less snow or rain than usual.

Hero's Kin

Grandmother of a hero, she lived just long enough to fondle the Victoria Cross he won. Mrs. Makere Ngarimu was critically ill when her son, Hamuera Ngarimu, was being presented by Governor-General Sir Cecil Newall, of New Zealand, with the decoration awarded to his son, 2nd Lt. Ngarimu, killed in action. The old Maori lady—she was 78—became gravely ill at Ruatoria the day of the ceremony. She was exhorted by her daughter, Mrs. Materoa Reedy, to hold on to life until after she had seen her grandson's medal. She said that she would try. As soon as possible after the ceremony the Victoria Cross was taken to her deathbed. With a smile, she touched the cross and said as she breathed her last, "I am happy to join my grandson."

Written for Him!

(Edmonton Journal)

A biography of John Barrymore has been published, under the title "Good Night, Sweet Prince," by his close friend, Gene Fowler. His early triumphs, which brought him recognition as the finest actor of his time, and the steady deterioration that followed made his career a singularly tragic one. Somebody once asked his brother Lionel if he believed John was sincere when he said that Hamlet was the easiest of his roles. "Of course, he was," came the reply. "You must take into account that, when the bard wrote 'Hamlet,' he had Jack in mind."

Florida

(Letter from Judge Deroche.)

St. Petersburg, Fla.—Here we are back in Florida after four years of gypsying — California, Nassau in Bahamas, Jamaica, and Victoria, B.C., it feels like getting back home. It gives me a thrill every day just to feel I am here, and particularly after a tough time in Toronto for some weeks before I left, when I almost passed out under one of my several physical ailments.

We chose St. Petersburg as our city this time largely because Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Reid are here. They own a very pretty little home with a fine garden with flowers and shrubs and three grapefruit trees well laden each year. They keep us supplied with grapefruit and we eat a lot of them.

Mrs. Malott and sister arrived here last week for the winter.

Bowling on the green. . .I was bowling one day last week when Alex Crawford of Wingham, Ont., came along, shook hands and said: "I was down to your town last summer and won your main trophy".

The home bowlers need not be discouraged to be beaten by Crawford. When he spoke to me he was on his way to play the final in the main full rink event in the tournament here, and a large gallery watched him win it. He won it also last year. Of all the good bowlers here from all over the American continent he is considered the Number One bowler.

The bowling club here has about four hundred members with about seventy Canadians with a women's club in addition of about eighty members including several Canadians. They have a separate club house and green of their own adjacent to the men, but separated by a high hedge. The bowling green here is not green—no grass—but made of marl with a thin layer of sand spread over it, so it will not be too keen, but even then it is twice as keen as the grass and the draw twice as wide, so it makes a very difficult game. When a grass bowler first sees a bowler throw his bowl he at once thinks, that is a lost bowl, but it sweeps around unbelievably and lands at the kitty. The rinks (eighteen of them) are practically full up every morning and every afternoon and bowling also in the evening. They are a fine bunch of men. No unseeming language is heard—good nature—good sportsmanship, and laughter abounds. The spacious club house has a large open fireplace for cool days, a good library and cards and dominoes are played the whole day through.

Baseball.

There is organized here a Half-Century Club and a Three-Quarter Century Club. Each club, men and women, meet periodically in the tourist centre for a social time. The Half-Century Club has two baseball teams, "Sea Gulls" and "Pelicans" who play twice a week in the morning, each man of course over fifty years of age. The Three-Quarter Century Club, also, has two baseball teams, "Kids" and Kubs" which play twice a week at 10.30 a.m. I went over to the waterfront on Saturday morning to see the "Kids" and "Kubs" play. They are all dressed in white, long pants, coat, and black bow tie. The "Kids" have blue caps and the "Kubs" red caps. There is always an opening ceremony. The teams line up from first through second to third. One man on second-base holds a large American flag. Everybody stands and sings the National Anthem. Then the flag man starts towards home plate and the players fall in behind him in pairs and march to home plate. Then, 'Play Ball'—they play three innings, then take a collection (some one man put a two-dollar bill in the plate) then another three innings complete the game, and it is enough for some of the old cogers who are over eighty. It is great fun to see them run, or attempt to run. There were two thousand people present that morning—pretty good, remembering there are four games each week throughout the winter.

In the club house in large black letters is painted this motto, which speaks volumes, I think, as to the character of the men and the play: "WHEN THAT GREAT SCORER COMES TO WRITE AGAINST YOUR NAME IT WON'T BE: DID YOU WIN OR LOSE, BUT HOW YOU PLAYED THE GAME".

Canadian Scene A Century Ago

By J. L. G.

"Oh wad some power the giftie gie us to see oursel's as others see us!"

* * *

Guess whether this statement is true or false: "Scented powder has always been used exclusively as a face powder." Sorry, but it's false. A pure white powder, made from pulverized starch, and perfumed with violet or other fragrance, was put on the coiffures of both men and women right up to about 100 years ago. To make the powder hold, the head was usually greased with a pomade.

* * *

This curious custom persisted in Canada for many years after the settlers had cleared their lands and begun farming. Soldiers were not considered properly dressed unless their hair was powdered and worn tied in a long queue or pig-tail hanging down the back. The fashion was abolished in the army about 1809.

* * *

It stands to reason that no coiffure of these far off times could stand the "finger-tip" test. Perhaps people got tired of seeing a fluff of white on dark coat collars. At any rate, a tax of guinea was put on the use of hair powder in Great Britain in 1795, and sales of the "beauty" aid fell considerably. The French Revolution, which brought about the downfall of many institutions, helped also to bring a return of natural, unpowdered hair. The tax on hair powder was repealed in England in 1869.

* * *

Like the brave of our own time, the early settlers were always ready to lead the way in tasks requiring fortitude and courage. They have their recognition in the chronicles of colonial achievement.

* * *

Who was Canada's first settler? There is no doubt that this enterprising person was Louis Hebert, who, at Champlain's suggestion, took possession of a piece of land on the plateau above the tiny settlement at Quebec. By unceasing labor he cleared and tilled his property. In that era there were no horses and ploughs to ease the job of making the ground arable so that it is a minor miracle that Hebert was able to whip his plot into cultivable state in five years. Persevering in his efforts, Hebert was granted title of "seigneur" and given the title-deeds to additional terrain.

* * *

Today if you want to own a stone house you call up your favorite architect and contractor and tell them to "go to it." Not so in the days of the early settlers. Then you pulled the boulders from your lot, hauled them to the site of your new home and put the walls up yourself, stone by stone. Louis Hebert's stone house was constructed chiefly by his own labors. It was about 20 feet by 40, one storey tall, simple in line but comfortable as an abode. In the annals of the period, mention is made of the hospitality of Monsieur and Madame Hebert—and their pretty daughters.

* * *

When Louis Hebert became a seigneur of New France he could at long last take it easy. His tenants—the habitants who occupied his farms—made annual payments. These seem more like gifts than rents to us who are used to the high cost of living. Imagine!—twelve sous and six chickens, or a single bushel of grain, was all that was expected for the use of fifty acres of land!

THAT BODY OF YOURS

JAMES W. BARTON, M.D.

Most Old People Should Eat More.

One of the beliefs that has been handed down for generations is that as we grow older not only should the amount of our food intake be reduced but it should be reduced in variety. Man starts with milk and bread and so as he grows old he should come back to bread and milk if he wishes to continue to live and avoid disturbances of digestion, heart, blood vessels, and kidneys (it was thought).

It may come as a shock then to learn that our research workers in nutrition and food are finding that as men and women grow old they should continue to eat a variety of foods and should eat animal proteins—meat, eggs, fish—to the end of their lives.

In these days when food values, food requirements and foods available is of the utmost importance to the health of the nation, more research work is being done in laboratories and in experiments on workers, on the very young and the very old, than at any previous time.

I am mentioning again the diet suggestions for elderly people by Dr. Edward L. Tuohy, Duluth, Minn., who is doing special work under the auspices of the Council on Foods and Nutrition of the American Medical Association. It is very much worth while that the elderly should again be reminded of these food facts.

Among the suggestions about food and the aged are the following:

1.—Elderly people should start the day with a good breakfast. It should include some substantial animal protein—meat, eggs, fish, milk—and whatever else is needed to maintain the body size and working ability.

2.—As work or effort lessens, if weight increases less starch food should be eaten; if weight decreases more starch food—whole cereals—should be eaten. Potato is the next best starch food.

3.—For the overweight, fruits and vegetables should act as the "fillers" and provide zest and appetite for eating by being prepared and served in an attractive form.

4.—The elderly should eat fat sparingly. The fats to be cut down in amount are egg yolk, cream, and animal fats, particularly where there is a family history of high blood pressure.

5.—Food and water (hot drinks) taken at regular intervals revive the old. Food becomes the best sleep producer even though early wakefulness follows. Fruit juices give needed vitamins.

6.—Hunger lessens with age so that foods that are not rich in food value but attractive to the eye, taste, and smell ((condiments, broth, relishes), have a definite place in the diet of the aged.

PROFESSIONAL JARGON

When a group of lawyers, doctors, scientists, preachers, newspapermen or other professional people get together they are likely to "talk shop" and use a lot of words and phrases that are not familiar to the average person.

Professional argon or the peculiar phraseology of a particular class, sect or trade is called "cant."

In 1711 Joseph Addison, in his "Spectator" said that "cant" in this sense is derived from the surname of Andrew Cant (1590-1663), a noted Presbyterian divine and leader of the Scotch Covenanters, who was notorious for the whining tone in which he delivered his sermons.

The same story was later told of Andrew Cant's son of the same name, who was principal of Edinburgh University from 1675 to 1685 and who died in 1728.

But there is no evidence to support this notion.

Although the surname of two Cants may have been popularly associated derisively with canting, "cant" in the sense of trade language is undoubtedly derived from Latin "cantus," meaning song, singing or chant.

The exact development of the word from the Latin root is not known, but, according to the Oxford dictionary, "cantare" and its Romance representatives were used contemptuously in reference to church services as early as 1183.

So far as the evidence indicates, the verb "to cant" first appeared in English about 1540 and was applied to the sing-song tones and languages of beggars.

This usage probably came down from the religious medicants who walked about chanting.

Next the term was applied to hypocritical or perfunctory religious language employed to create an impression of piety, and then to any affected or unreal religious words or phrases.

Finally it was extended to the stock or technical words and phrases of a particular class, trade, sect or profession.

Milford School Closed Due To Scarlet Fever

Point Traverse, Feb. 3 — An outbreak of scarlet fever in the village of Milford has caused school officials to close the school for an indefinite period. The epidemic, which has been classed as a mild form by the local medical officer, has forced two families into quarantine. Two children attending the Milford school were the first to contract the disease, and as a preventitive, trustees have ordered the school closed. A pupil attending a school outside of Milford has also been taken ill by the disease, but the school remains open.

Wolf Hunt.

Hunters who have been waiting their chances to stage a district wide hunt for wolves in the South Marysburgh township may have the opportunity to do so this week as the heaviest snowfall to date this winter has blanketed the area leaving a perfect setting for such an event.

Residents of the Black Creek vicinity, near here, report that a pair of wolves are inhabiting the woodland of that district as their nightly howling has been heard on many occasions. Farmers in the community are keeping close watch over their flocks of sheep as one farmer here reports the loss of a valuable ewe, which was destroyed in his barnyard.

Brig. Graham Awarded Bar To His D.S.O.

Trenton — (Special) — Brigadier Howard Douglas Graham, who was awarded the Distinguished Service Cross for his brilliant leadership in the battle of Sicily has now been awarded a Bar to the D.S.O., according to a letter from Italy to his wife here. It is understood Brig. Graham is the first in the Canadian army to be so decorated and it is presumed this award has been made for gallantry and devotion to duty during his brilliant leadership in the battle of Italy.

He is a veteran of the last war and one of the highest ranking of the non-permanent officers who went active at the outbreak of war. Born in the United States 45 years ago he moved with his parents to Trenton at an early age and attended public and high school there and in the spring of 1915, before he was 18 years of age, he enlisted in the Canadian army and served three and a half years in France and later with the army of occupation in Germany.

Returning to Canada in the spring of 1919 he entered Osgoode Hall and shortly after his graduation started practising law in Trenton. He was Mayor of Trenton for two years and on the council for several. A few years later he was made a King's Counsel and in 1934 assisted Col. Young of Picton reorganizing the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment, and having enlisted therein as a second lieutenant in 1920 devoted much of his time to the work of this unit. He attended military camp and also took the officers' staff course.

At the outbreak of this war he went overseas with the First Division as a major, second in command of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment and was awarded the Canadian Efficiency Medal in 1940 with a promotion to Lt.-Col. soon after. A few months after his arrival in England he was given command of the regiment, one of the youngest Canadian officers to be placed in such an important post. He took his regiment to France, was evacuated at Dunkirk, and lost his entire belongings there. In the summer of 1941 he was promoted to Brigadier and in the Sicilian campaign was Brigadier of the First Brigade, 1st Division, a position which he still held in the battle of Italy.

Brigadier Graham's wife and 10-year-old son, Peter, reside on Queen Street in Trenton.

Canadian Soldier Hanged for Crime

Leeds, England, Feb. 3 —(CP Cable)—Mervin Clare McEwen, 35-year-old soldier from Forest, Ont., was hanged early today for the murder a year ago of Mark Turner, 82, retired postman who had befriended him.

McEwen was convicted Dec. 3. At his trial, defence counsel urged that McEwen's mind was so confused by liquor at the time of the attack upon Turner that he was incapable of forming an intention to kill.

Turner, of Halifax, England, was killed by a blow from a hammer, defence counsel said a craving for liquor led McEwen to break into the old man's house last Feb. 2 to steal a bottle of liquor.

Major and Mrs. Alderman Carry On Fine Work in Newfoundland

In a report clipped from the Globe and Mail January 31 edition Homemaker column a letter from Grand Falls, Newfoundland is quoted, giving a fine picture of the work carried on there by Major and Mrs. Alderman, formerly adjutant of the Salvation Army in Belleville, and now in charge of Red Shield Work in Newfoundland. Major Alderman and Mrs. Alderman left Belleville three years ago last September for Sussex, N. B., where he was stationed for about a year before proceeding to his present post. The report of their work is made by Mrs. G. W. Peacock, chairman of the Red Shield Women's Auxiliary.

Major Alderman writes that he received a great thrill when he opened a bundle of socks which his wife had actually helped pack in Canada, not thinking that they would be giving them sermselves to the boys at some overseas station. Mrs. Alderman said that hundreds of socks and sweaters have been given out since the Winter began there, and she says that it is real winter, with piles of snow, blocked trains and zero weather.

They took the ditty bags right to the boats where they were handed to the men before sailing. Several of the ships told them that they had been serviced at other ports and this took care of a shortage they experienced. Mrs. Alderman said that the sailors told Major Alderman that they had been in several service centres around the world but none had been as clean and fine as the one at Grand Ralls.

Sailors Enjoy Winter Sports

A few sailors came into the centre at Christmas from a boat in a port some distance away. They were mostly English and Scotch lads, said Mrs. Alderman. They had never seen a real white Christmas and, after their Christmas dinner, arrangements were made for them to go sleigh-riding. They enjoyed themselves in a good-natured way, although considerable damage was done to clothes and buttons which had to be sewn on when the party returned to the Centre. These boys returned for New Years with high spirits. The Major furnished them with navy high-neck sweaters and socks and hoods. They were feeling our winter and were pleased to get the very things they needed.

Mrs. Alderman said she wished the women who work so hard to make the warm things could see the faces of the boys when they receive them. It is fun to see the boys, comparing the size of their socks and especially when they put them on. Several of the boys wanted to take up a collection and present it to Mrs. Alderman, but she told them they were to keep their money for other things they needed. They promised that they would not forget the Salvation Army in the days that are to come.

The Hostel was crowded out over the holiday, some were sleeping in the reading rooms. It was the largest crowd ever to be at the Grand Falls Centre. There were a good number of girls at the Hostess House and, while they were tired, they felt that they had helped the boys physically and spiritually.

Reinforcements Steadily Arrive In Netturno Area

By SHOLTO WATT
(Montreal Star Correspondent representing the combined Canadian Press Distributed by The Canadian Press.)

Nettuno, Italy, Feb. 2. (Delayed.)—Reinforcements are constantly arriving in this sector of the Allied invasion beachhead south of Rome.

Tuesday a convoy arrived which was of surprising size when it is realized the landing place and the whole bridgehead are within range of enemy shells.

For the first time in four trips the landing craft in which I travelled did not use its anti-aircraft guns. Supplies for the forces here are well ahead of schedule.

The most extraordinary feature in this area is the towns, consisting principally of substantial villas of the wealthy which are virtually empty of civilians. The people were all evacuated by the Germans to centres in the country and had taken their valuables. Every house since had been systematically ransacked by the Germans.

Extra Strength Piles Up.

Extra strength piles up daily behind the forward troops. Air cover is giving great satisfaction.

Hardest fighting Tuesday and Wednesday was around the Cisterna Junction on the road between Rome and Littoria. The road itself is under Allied fire anr very little German movement has been observed on it.

The Germans were ordered to hold Cisternia to the last man but their troops to the south are already in a difficult position as the only alternative route of supply or withdrawal is by a roundabout mountain road.

Information which I believe reliable is that Rome is greatly overcrowded with perhaps double its normal population of 1,000,000, and is under strict German military law. Even bicycle travel is prohibited. Civilians are not allowed to move from one quarter to another. There is no electricity and food supplies are dangerously low, probably a fortnight's supply being available.

Rome's principal art treasures and those of many other Italians are still in Rome, the most precious being deposited in the Vatican. It is thought unlikely the Germans will be able to move much away due to the scarcity of petrol.

W.C.T.U. War Gifts

The National Women's Christian Temperance Union, with every province co-operating, has erected and furnished Fellowship lodge, Petawawa Camp, as a permanent Home Centre, where boys in uniform may meet for fellowship and help, and as a centre for personal Christian work under the Soldiers' and Airmen's Christian Association, which maintain a permanent staff of a Minister and his wife, according to a report in "the Canadian White Ribbon Tidings". This meant a War Gift of $6,000 British Columbia, in 1941, gave a Mobile Canteen for Britain, at a cost of $2,000, Saskatchefan gave $929 to War Services in 1943, as well as $500 before that, Manitoba has given a Victory Bond, Ontario has donated two Mobile Canteens costing over $2,000 each, one in use in England, and another in Newfoundland, Toronto District has donated an ambulance to the Red Cross, Quebec has sent money for two canteens of different design, and many separate unions have made generous contributions to the Chinese Red Cross, Russian Relief and Milk for Britain Funds.

Treatment for Freckles

Laraine Day has a beautiful clear complexion

By HELEN FOLLETT

SOME FRECKLES come in the summer time, do a fade-away when the leaves begin to fall. Others arrive in early childhood, stick around for years. Some people think they're cute and sassy, others hate them.

Of all complexion ills, if ills they are, permanent freckles are the most difficult to combat. She of the yallery polka dots can have a skin peeling treatment that separates her from the epidermal coat and that costs like sixty and is no fun anyhow; and when she has a nice new face and exposes it to the sunlight, out pop the little spots again. One might as well know the dreadful truth.

Seasonal freckles are a different matter. One can keep them in hand by taking protective measures. The skin surface should be oiled freely at night, a foundation cream put on during the day. The more the flesh is lubricated, the less likely is it to be speckled by rays of the sun. A foundation cosmetic, together with powder, will act as a protective barrier.

A mild bleach made by combining equal portions of peroxide and strained lemon juice is effective. This should be applied with pledgets of cotton after the nightly face washing and allowed to dry. Half an hour later a cream can be tapped and patted into the flesh.

Little Freckle Face should not use soap and water just before exposing the complexion to sunlight or strong winds, nor should she use soapy water just after coming in from out-of-doors. If she must freshen her appearance, she should apply a thin cleansing oil, remove it with tissues, put on her foundation cream and play with the make-up kit.

Freckles are terrible only when you think them so.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

No One Wants Your Cold Germs

Of course you don't like your sniffles and your snuffles and your sneezes and your coughs. But remember . . . neither does anyone else like them or want them. So, if you have a "catching" germ, it's only decent and fair of you to do everything you can to keep the enemy as much as possible on the home field.

You feel miserable? Well then, if you have the slightest human consideration for other people, you'll take every precaution not to pass on your misery to other people, members of your family, friends, strangers. And you and I know that there are many precautions you can take, if you'll be self-less enough to think about them.

One thing you needn't do and shouldn't do, is to take your germs to a party. They are not welcome party-companions. Any hostess, no matter how important her party, would infinitely prefer to have you break an engagement rather than to have you broadcast your germs into the air that she and her other guests have to breathe. Politeness forbids her or her guests saying what they are thinking of your complete lack of consideration. In your misguided point of view you may regard yourself a martyr coming to the party with your sniffles and sneezing and other unattractive manifestations of a cold, but those who have to sit near you and talk with you will consider you downright thoughtless of other people's comfort and health. As unpopular as you will inevitably be that afternoon or evening . . . think how unpopular you'll probably be the following day!

Of course the wisest thing to do during the "catching" possibility term is to stay quarantined in your room. If you can't do this . . . and it is a luxury in which most of us in this demandingly busy world can't indulge, at least we can avoid as much as possible being in crowds, for example going to the movies or concerts. We can avoid breathing into another person's face. And if we have to travel in crowded buses, we can try to be careful how we stand, so as to keep our sniffles as much as possible to ourselves. We can fortify ourselves with a generous supply of fresh handkerchiefs, or tissue handkerchiefs. And when we sneeze or cough, we must take particular care to cover our mouth. And let's be such decent citizens that we'll not only be considerate of our family and friends and coworkers, but also of strangers, for strangers are even more dependent on our "quality of mercy."

Introducing Boy Friends

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

When I am introducing a boy of fifteen or sixteen to my father, what form of introduction should I use?

Myra

Say, "Father, this is Arthur Russell."

Pass Along Pleasant Thoughts

Do you encourage and inspire others by telling them the pleasant things you think about them or have heard about them? Passing along to others these kind thoughts and words may be just the tonic needed by some heavy-burdened hearts.

The Marry-Go-Round

Getting What You Want

Lots of young women are planning new lives and careers after the war. Some are looking forward to making new homes for new husbands; some have found new work and new professions; and some are just hoping to give up their jobs and become housewives again. They have had a taste of "independence" and they much prefer domesticity. They have found that out!

That is the trouble with many girls. They are not quite sure of what they want from life at the start. Never before have women had such a wide choice of careers, of jobs, of aims, as they have today. It confuses them.

If a man has any character, he always knows what he wants in life—and goes right after it! He stays on the beam until he gets there!

A girl, on the other hand, knows she wants something, but she's not quite sure what it is! Usually she wants a little of everything. A little love, a little freedom, a little home-and-family, a little career, and a little fun and adventure.

A man concentrates on the one big thing in life he wants, whether it's fame, power, money or just ease and amusement—but a girl so often scatters her forces on a variety of little things. She cannot stay on the beam!

While she's playing bridge, she's carrying on a snappy conversation; while she's in church, she's looking at the women's hats and mentally remodelling her own; while she's taking letters she's thinking what nice eyes the boss has; and while she's flattering one man—she's probably thinking of another. She mixes things so that sometimes all she gets is—hash.

The successful women, whether they are career-women or home-women, are those who concentrate, those who keep their eyes on the ball. Every year more young women are learning that secret of getting what they want in this world. The art of concentration!

Make up your mind what you want most. If you want love, go after it. But don't look for yachts, emeralds and ermines along with it. They may be thrown in, but most men who can play Santa Claus have hardening of the arteries, and a varicose vein of sentiment.

If you want money, work for it or marry it. But if Fate does not hand you romance or a serene and glamorous life attached to your bank account, just remember that a bank account doesn't read like a love-story.

If you want fame or a Hollywood success and have what it takes, you can get it by hard labor and often the sacrifice of nearly everything else worth having, but never by hanging around night clubs and sleeping until noon.

Choose your course in life—and stay on the beam! That's what a man does! And that's why a man nearly always gets what he wants, while a woman gets only—what she gets.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Draws the Line When it Comes to Sharing Her Husband

Dear Miss Fairfax:

We've been married seven years and have a child of six. Our home life has been very happy until about a month ago when my husband started going out with one of the girls who works in the same plant where he is employed.

He denies that he spends money on this girl, but he will never take me any place and spends his off time in a beer parlor with his men friends and they meet the girls there.

I think he still loves me and I love him very much. I have no one to ask for advice, and am coming to you with my troubles. I'm willing to share anything I have with anybody but I draw the line when it comes to sharing my husband.

W. W.

Matrimonial chaos is one of the results of war. This is true from the beginning of time. Even so-called holy wars have not been exempt from causing domestic disruptions—consider the Crusades.

I'll agree, it's pretty tough on the little woman who keeps house well and takes care of the children, not to be able to call on her husband for an occasional movie or restaurant treat. Don't nag, try and plead your cause when he's in good humor. Any fair to middling husband will take his wife to a movie.

Can a Soldier be Sued for Breach of Promise?

Dear Miss Fairfax:

You know how a guy runs on, if the time, the place and the girl are O.K. I met a girl on a blind date one night and ran on with a lot of stuff about love in a cottage and how she'd be waiting for me when I came home evenings and did she know how to make apple pie, to which I was addicted.

That girl was as dumb a dame as I ever came across. I hardly remember her name. When I got back to the post, I was swamped with letters from her, still harping on love in a cottage and apple pie. I didn't answer her letters. Then she told a buddy of mine we were engaged. Her last letter suggests a breach of promise suit, if I don't "fulfil the agreement." Has she got anything on me? I never met her but that once, and I've never written her a line. My buddy says she's after that monthly allowance.

G. L. G.

She hasn't got a thing on you, my dear service man and don't let her bluff you. You were out on a blind date, talked a lot of nonsense, have never written her a line. She has nothing to bring into court; don't worry.

HEALTH CHATS

DR. HERMAN N. BUNDESEN Health

A New Method of Diagnosing Heart Disease

X-ray pictures are really shadow pictures. If the rays meet a dense object, such as bone, the rays do not penetrate this object as much as objects of lesser density, such as muscles and blood vessels. Thus, the picture of the bone on X-ray plate is outlined clearly. For many years, it has been common to introduce into the food of animals, substances which block the X-rays, and thus make clear outlines for study of conditions in the intestines. A great new step has now been taken to do the same for the study of heart disease.

Dr. Rodolfo Perez de los Reyes and his co-workers of Havana, Cuba, have devised a method of injecting a substance into the blood which does not permit the passage of the X-rays. By means of this procedure, they not only get a clear picture of the heart, but also of many of the blood vessels coming from the heart.

In carrying out this method, the substance used is injected into a vein in the elbow. The amount of the substance used depends on the age of the patient. The injection is made quite rapidly and the X-ray picture is taken just before the injection is completed. X-rays are taken of the heart both from the side and the front.

The most important use of this procedure would seem to be in diagnosing what is known as congenital heart disease or defects in the heart which are present at the time of birth. One of these conditions is known as stenosis of the pulmonary arteries, a condition in which there is blocking or narrowing of the opening in the arteries which lead from the heart to the lung.

There is another condition in which the septum which divides two sides of the heart may have an opening through it. This is called patent interventricular septum. In fact, almost any one of the many varieties of congenital heart disease which occur may be diagnosed by this method.

Dr. de los Reyes and his co-workers have used this procedure over a period of three years, and no accidents have occurred as a result of it. Of course, all of the other methods of examining the heart should be used together with this procedure. It is safe, rapid and accurate.

Thus, whenever a child has heart disease, and the exact type cannot definitely be determined by ordinary means, the injection of a substance into the blood which does not allow the passage of the X-rays and the taking of the necessary X-ray plates of the heart, will make it possible to decide what disorder is present. Then, the most effective treatment may be carried out.

Fashion Flashes

BUSY GIRLS have discovered that no workaday or country wardrobe is complete without a simply but perfectly tailored topcoat. A beauty is in winter beige wool fleece with a five-button closing of simulated amber buttons that start at the threadline.

OUT TO MAKE THE GRADE is a date dress of black velvet with two rows of ermine tails at the throatline.

PRECIOUS LEISURE deserves the right attire. Nice for an evening at home is a suit consisting of corduroy with black velvet faced collar and notched, shawl lapels.

ONE WAY to achieve a dress-up effect without much bother is to dress up a simple sweater a little bit. One suggestion is to place three or four gilt or gilt covered silver stars at the shoulder of a sweater or else two or three tiny gilt leaves veined in rhinestones.

A BOON for these chilly times is a well-handled frock of cosy flannel. Sky blue or dusty rose flannel is used for a delightful dress made with collarless deep surplice-closed bodice and a skirt with a row of buttons down either side.

EASY GOING for Sunday morning brunch with the aid of a wrap-around brunch coat of beige or coral corduroy, below-knee length and held by a tied belt of self fabric.

MARINES DO "THE IMPOSSIBLE" IN SOUTH PACIFIC RAID

Working in the rough surf, U. S. marines are shown laying a sandbag road through the shallows off the beach at New Guinea to permit fast unloading of equipment from landing craft. The big LST's were unable to get close enough to the beach to unload their cargo of bulldozers, trucks, etc., so the marines brought the beach to the LST's, making it possible to drive the rolling stock from ship to shore.

Raymond Clapper Loses Life In Plane Accident

Washington, Feb. 3—(AP)—Raymond Clapper, the well-known Washington columnist and political commentator, has lost his life in a plane accident while covering the invasion of the Marshalls in the Central Pacific. He was 51.

A brief navy announcement here said:

"The commander-in-chief of the Pacific fleet has reported that a plane in which Mr. Raymond Clapper was a passenger, engaged in covering the Marshalls invasion, collided with another plane while forming up. Mr. Clapper was in the plane with the squadron commander. Both planes crashed in the lagoon. There were no survivors."

The exact time and place of the accident were not given. Clapper, long associated with the Scripps-Howard newspaper syndicate, left here on Dec. 28, going to Honolulu and Australia and subsequently joining the Pacific fleet.

A native of Kansas, he attended the University of Kansas before going into newspaper work. His wife and two children live in Washington.

He began his career as a reporter on the Kansas City Star in 1916, later joined The United Press, eventually becoming its chief political writer and manager of its Washington bureau.

Clapper subsequently became a special writer for the Washington Post and went to the Scripps-Howard newspapers in January, 1936, as columnist and political commentator.

He was the author of the book, "Racketeering in Washington."

POLICE COURT

The lengthiest docket of the year was presented before Magistrate J. L. Lloyd at County Police Court held at the Court House this morning when 37 cases were listed for hearing with the court having to adjourn at noon to continue later in the day. Both Crown Attorney B. C. Donnan K.C., and Assistant Crown Attorney S. G. Robertson were present to present the charges.

Numerous highway traffic cases were heard with pleas of guilty being accepted and fines paid prior to the opening of the proceedings. Edward Puddy, Toronto, paid $17.50 including costs, after pleading guilty to a charge of speeding preferred under the War Measures Act. The sum of $16.50 was assessed M. S. Woods, Napanee, after a plea of guilty to a careless driving count was read. A speeding charge cost Albert Smith of this city, $7.50 in all, while driving with inadequate lights saw Gordon McCulloch of Campbellford, pay $4.50, including costs.

Tom Polless, Deseronto, pleaded guilty to a charge of being found in the illegal possession of liquor, contrary to the L.C.A. and was fined $100 and costs after pleading guilty. Chief N. Langton preferred the charge. Minor liquor charges were read against Carol Benko, Belleville, Amazon Wallis of Frankford, Ed Brennan of Deseronto, and Vincent McMahon, R.R. No. 2, Belleville and the minimum fines collected in each case. Edward Nash of Deseronto, faced a charge of selling liquor, but his case was enlarged for one week at the request of Mr. James Simpson, K.C., Napanee solicitor, who represents Nash.

Alonzo A. Fox, Belleville, pleaded guilty to a charge of failing to notify the National Selective Service registrar of a change of address and was fined $25 and costs. Fox was given a fortnight in which to raise the assessment. A charge of speeding preferred against Gerald Foster of Demorestville, was enlarged for personal service. Traffic Officers Milton and Caldwell preferred the highway traffic charges.

W. J. Harrison, investigator for the Wartime Prices and Trade Board, entered a charge of having loose coupons against J. S. Johns of Wellington, but as the latter had only been served with a summons by mail the matter had to be adjourned for personal service. The court is proceeding this afternoon.

No New Pronouncement Involved in Speech Says Mr. Churchill

London, Feb. 3 — (CP-Reuters)— Prime Minister Churchill told the House of Commons today that Lord Halifax's speech in Washington on Jan. 28, that the British government would not overrule any decision taken by India not to remain in the British Commonwealth after the war if the people of India had established an agreed constitution, involved no new pronouncement on the part of the British government.

When asked if this speech represented the British government's policy Mr. Churchill said that British government declarations on this and other matters were on record.

In reply to an inquiry as to who gave the declaration regarding India, Mr. Churchill said all declarations on this matter had been made in the House.

Chinese Take Taipha Village In 6-Day Battle

New Delhi, Feb. 3 —(AP)— Chinese forces driving across northern Burma have captured Taipha Ga, defended village on the main Japanese supply route after a six-day battle, Allied Headquarters announced today.

The strategic village fell Tuesday after a battle that began about Jan. 26. The victory placed the Chinese forces about third of the way across North Burma in their drive to clear Japanese forces from the route of the new Ledo road to China which will connect with the old Burma Road to the southeast.

The Chinese are consolidating their forces within the village area and are striking on southward, the Allied communique said.

Other Allied successes were reported farther to the south, where more than 200 Japanese officers and men were killed when they attacked Allied positions in the Mualbem area.

Allied artillery fire broke up an enemy attempt to strengthen positions in the Tiddim area of the western Chin Hills front.

Allied aircraft continued their heavy attacks on Japanese shipping and installations.

Ontario to Lighten Real Estate Of Education Costs

Ottawa, Feb. 3 — (CP) — Premier George Drew, paying a brief visit to the capital, said in an interview last night that immediately after the opening of the Ontario Legislature the government will move "to lighten real estate's financial burden of educational costs."

Premier Drew said he did not anticipate any great difficulty arising from his lack of a full majority in the Provincial House, and would proceed with the legislative program he had pledged for the province.

"We will proceed with our legislative program and let the chips fall where they may," he said.

The Premier said he was "gratified" by Prime Minister Mackenzie King's announcement that a Dominion-Provincial conference on social security problems would be called. He said he had pressed for such a conference in recent correspondence with Mr. King.

Drive for Clothing and Shoes Opened By Local Greek War Relief Com.

Need Is Urgent in Greece Where Nazis Have Robbed People of All Necessities

CARS WILL CALL

The Greek community of the city, headed by Messrs. Sam Pappas, president of the Greek War Relief Committee of Belleville, and Nick Panos, have opened a campaign in aid of the Greek War Relief commencing today and running to the end of the month. The headquarters of the committee will be located in the old Income Tax Office at Bridge and Front Streets where voluntary workers will be on duty from 10 a.m. until 8 p.m. each day until the end of campaign.

The campaign is for the purpose of collecting clothing and shoes, which will be shipped from here to Montreal where they will be included in a shipment being made up by the Canadian Red Cross.

For the past three years the people of Greece have been living under the most difficult circumstances, the country occupied by the Germans who have taken everything, down to the barest necessities, for their own use. Greeks are forced to accept the rule of the enemy on peril of their lives, and the only relief they may look for comes from their fellow countrymen who raise funds and food in others lands, which they ship through the International Red Cross to their homeland.

The local Greek community is behind this drive in full force and urge their friends and the citizens of Belleville to aid them in this worthy effort to send help to their oppressed people. If anyone has old clothes they wish to dispose of, or have anything in this line they can spare, a telephone call to either 123, 1422 or 2004 will bring a car immediately to pick them up.

Recently, the Greek community of Belleville donated the flags of the 34 United Nations to the Bridge Street United Church at an impressive ceremony.

Young Henry Ford Busy Learning to Run Company

By DAVID J. WILKIE
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Detroit, Feb. 3 — "My grandfather and my father devoted most of their lives to building and running the company . . . if I can carry on their hopes and their ideals—well, I'll have reason to feel proud and satisfied . . ."

Thus speaks earnest young Henry Ford II, now undergoing a course of intensive training in office and factory to head the industrial empire his famed grandfather built.

Task as Challenge.

Friendly, but reluctant to talk about himself, the future head of one of the greatest family-owned industrial enterprises the world has known regards his task as a "distinct challenge," about which he has no illusions.

"I'd be sunk before I started," he says with an engaging smile, "if I didn't have the whole-hearted help of everybody in the organization. And don't forget I have a couple of brothers who will come in here when they've finished their jobs in the armed services."

The brothers are Benson, 23, a lieutenant in the army, and William, 18, a navy air service cadet.

Precipitated into his position of heir-apparent to the Ford Motor Company by the death of his father, Edsel Bryant Ford, last spring, young Ford was released from the navy with a lieutenant's commission after two and one-half years of service.

"My one regret about the navy discharge," he says, "is that I didn't get to go overseas. I understand it was in the cards, too."

Much Like Father.

Young Henry has many of the characteristics of his late father. He is democratic, wholly frank in his conversation, makes friends easily, listens intently and talks seriously.

There is nothing in his bearing, mannerisms or viewpoint to stamp him as a scion of great wealth. He is eager to learn and realizes there is much to learn.

While he has a wholesome respect for the tremendous job ahead of him, he is approaching it unafraid. "It wouldn't help to be scared," he says. "After all, no one man could handle it alone and I'm lucky to have a lot of sound advice now and the assurance of a lot of very capable help."

Twenty-six years old, a little under six feet in height, young Ford weighs about 190 pounds. He has blue eyes and dark brown hair. He seldom wears a hat.

To learn the things he believes he should know, he is applying himself diligently to the work of the company's offices and shops. Yet the office and shop are not new to him. Before entering the navy early in 1941, he spent a year in the company's experimental dynamometer department and one of its larger garages.

"But don't ask me too much about machinery," he pleads, "because I've a lot to learn about it."

His office is a quietly furnished space similar to dozens of other glass-partitioned sections on the first floor of the company's administration building adjoining the huge Rouge plant in suburban Dearborn.

"Good Head on Him."

Dozens of long-time associates of his grandfather in the plant and offices as well as the elder Ford himself, have taken it upon themselves to offer guidance to him, and all of them declare him to be "100 percent all right."

Said one who has been with Ford for 40 years

"He's going to be all right here; he has a good head on him. Certainly he is willing and eager to learn. He may be just a bit too modest."

Young Ford is concerned lest the part his brothers will have in the future of the Ford Company be overlooked. He explains:

"I just happened to be discharged from the navy first. They are going to have big jobs on their hands when they come back here."

Declining to be led into a discussion of company policies, he says:

"Grandad founded the company and he's running it." The elder Ford, now in his 81st year, asserts that he never felt better. He returned to the company presidency following the death of Edsel Ford.

Autos and Planes.

But the youthful Henry Ford does have personal convictions—and he emphasizes they are strictly his own—about the future of the automobile industry. He does not believe, for example, that post-war aviation is going to cut into the automobile business.

He says that a broad post-war expansion in aviation is to be expected. He adds, however, that obviously everybody who has been making aircraft during the war cannot continue making them on the same scale in the post-war period.

But he is interested in aviation and he is learning to fly a plane. His tutor is his lifelong friend, Harry H. Bennett, close adviser to the elder Henry Ford, who holds a pilot's licence.

Henry Ford II was born in Detroit on September 4, 1917. He was educated at the Detroit University School, Hotchkiss School at Lakeville, Conn., and at Yale, where he had a year of engineering, then switched to sociology and business administration.

His principal diversion is hockey and football. He sees virtually every home game of the Detroit Red Wings of the National Hockey League.

Young Ford was married on July 13, 1940, to Miss Annie McDonnell, at Southampton, L.I. They have two daughters.

Accused Woman Fails to Remember 'What Happened'

Toronto, Feb. 3—(CP)— Testifying in her own defence, Evelyn McDonald told a Toronto court yesterday that "I don't know what happened" after Thomas McLaughlin "called me dirty names" an "struck me in the face" just before he fell, stabbed fatally, to a sidewalk in East-Central Toronto last Nov. 25. Mrs. McDonald is charged with his murder.

Mrs. McDonald told the story of her association with McLaughlin after she left her husband, about seven years ago, and said that she had loved McLaughlin despite many instances of ill treatment. But within the few days preceding his death, he had told her he was leaving her.

"I asked him why," Mrs. McDonald related. "He said he had found a good girl, and wanted to get married."

She told her story of the scene other witnesses described earlier in the hearing — how McLaughlin, with pretty, 18-year-old Laura Keats and her aunt, were walking along a street when she came up. Previous evidence said Mrs. McDonald and McLaughlin went a few yards away from the others to talk, and that after a few minutes McLaughlin fell to the sidewalk. Miss Keats, who had met McLaughlin while working in Kingston, testified yesterday Mrs. McDonald bent over McLaughlin at that point and exclaimed: "Oh, I've killed him."

Mrs. McDonald said McLaughlin had something in his hand when he was striking her, and that once "when he went to hit me, I put my hand up to defend myself." Then, she said, not realizing there was anything the matter with him she went on along the street towards a bingo game she had planned to attend, but turned in a short time to see a crowd of people gathered about McLaughlin. She went back.

"I saw Tom lying on the sidewalk and knelt down beside him and wiped the blood off his neck. I tried to pull the knife out with my hand, and couldn't, so I took it out with my teeth."

She replied: "I don't remember" when questioned on a statement by another witness, Mrs. Eva Grills, that she had struck McLaughlin.

U. S. Troops in East Bring Vengeance Closer to Japan

Washington, Feb. 3 —(AP)— Americans fighting in the Far East and the Pacific islands had assurances from their commander-in-chief yesterday that they are bringing vengeance closer to the Japanese torturers of their comrades.

Those guilty of atrocities against the defenders of Bataan, President Roosevelt told a news Conference, will be tracked down and punished as surely as will those responsible for killing American fliers who were captured after bombing Tokyo.

The primary American objectives in Asia and the Pacific, he said, are expulsion and defeat of Japan, in closest collaboration with the Allies. He emphasized the military rather than the political or civil nature of this task.

"Nobody in India or anywhere else in Asia," he said in a statement, "will misunderstand the presence there of American armed forces if they will believe, as we do at home, that their job is to assure the defeat of Japan, without which there can be no opportunity for any of us to enjoy and expand the freedom for which we fight."

That declaration apparently was intended to counter enemy propaganda that American forces, as well as British, are in India to stay and that the United States is supporting British imperialism.

Will Make Dental Survey in Madoc Area

Toronto, Feb. 3 —(CP)— A discovery by investigators of the Ontario Health Department that residents of the Ripley district near Kincardine have scarcely any tooth decay was announced yesterday by Deputy Health Minister B. T. McGhie as a possible long step forward in dental medicine.

Dr. McGhie said the investigators first determined the presence of such elements as fluorine and phosphorus in drinking water and home-grown foods in this district, and probed their relation to prevalent dental conditions. He said fluorine and phosphorus is abundant in the Ripley area and "the teeth of the people were found to be exceptionally good."

Dr. McGhie said that the investigations in the Ripley district are almost finished and that the investigators have turned their attention to the Madoc district, north of Belleville, Ont., where fluorine and phosphorus is believed to exist.

DOUG RUNIONS SCORES 4 GOALS AS MAJORS WIN

Hamilton Beats Toronto Navy and Goes to Top of Senior O.H.A.

SCORE IS 11-6

Hamilton Majors, at home to Toronto Navy last night, chalked up their 20th victory of the Senior O. H. A. season to recover leadership in the standing one point to the good against St. Catharines. The one encounter of the evening resulted in an 11-6 score for Majors.

Hamilton notched eight goals in a row before Hugh Barlow of Navy connected after more than 15 minutes of the second period. The second period closed with an 8-2 score and, in the final frame, the Sailors ran in four tallies to Hamilton's three to complete the contest.

Doug Runions of Hamilton was way out in front as a sniper, beating goalie Red Gilbert on four occasions, while Clarence Shillington and Johnnie Conick grabbed two apiece. Dillon Brady, Stan Robertson and Davey divided the other three tallies.

Leading the Tars in the score column was the former Hamilton player, Hugh Barlow, with two while singles were registered by Laycoe, Livingstone, Thompson and Benson.

Whip Pittsburgh Hornets to Pull Within Two Points of Cleveland

(By The Canadian Press)

Hershey Bears moved up to within two points of the American Hockey League's leading Cleveland Barons when they whipped Pittsburgh Hornets 7-2 on home ice last night.

Both teams have played 36 games this season. Barons won 24 and tied five, while Hershey won 23 and drew five.

After a scoreless first period last night Hershey bagged four goals in the second before Pittsburgh finally counted three seconds before the end of the frame.

Billie Moe started the parade at 5:53. Bud Jarvis acounted for two goals in the second and another in the third period. Fred Hergert also tallied in the same periods.

Leo Richard and Tony Hemmerling counted for Pittsburgh.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

(Associated Press Sport Writer.)

New York, Feb. 3 (AP)—Baseball men likely will raise a howl about Alva Bradley's statement that he'd rather close the Cleveland ball park than present anything but "high quality" baseball (and he'd better start overhauling the padlocks now), but they all are giving serious consideration to possible shortages.... One of the likely moves will be to relax the rule against trading after June 15, except by waivers....If a club should lose its only shortstop, for example, it would have to make a deal in a hurry and not wait for the three-day waiver period to expire.

In his first full year in his new profession, Bill has written over $1,500,000 worth of insurance. M. P. Jeffry, a Tampa, Fla., fan, writes to nominate Hank Gowdy for baseball's Hall of Fame not only because Hank was the first major leaguer to enlist for the First Great War and because he reenlisted for this war, but because he "was a great ball player over many seasons." Only Ruth and Gehrig ever beat Hank's .545 world series batting average of 1914.

Amateur Athletic Federation Officially Recognizes Records

(By The Canadian Press.)

President J. S. Edstrom and Secretary Bo Ekelund, both of Stockholm, yesterday announced in the Swedish capital the official recognition of a number of athletic performances in the United States and Sweden as world's records by the International Amateur Athletic Federation, including belated acceptance of a British mark established practically 10 years ago which Ekelund said, had been forgotten. President Sam Breadon of the Cardinals announced at St. Louis last night most players of the National League championship team had been granted salary increases for 1944.

BIG ED WALSH DOESN'T APPROVE OF 'RABBIT BALL'

Former White Sox Hurler Pleads for Return of Spitball

ATTENDS BANQUET

Chicago, Feb. 3. (AP)—This vitamin-filled "rabbit ball" the major leagues are using—now, there's something big Ed Walsh, the old Chicago White Sox pitcher, does not approve.

Walsh came to Chicago from his Meriden, Conn., home to be guest of honor at tonight's annual old-timers baseball banquet—an event attracting some 1,000 yarn-spinners. He's carrying the torch for the outlawed spitball, wants it reinstated or the lively ball kicked out.

"Only one in 20 pitchers can throw a real curve today", says the "Big House", who was drafted by the late Charles Comiskey for a mere $750 in 1904 and turned into an amazing 40-game winner four years later. "Put the spitball back in and let 'em get their curves with it. Or put a ban on this danged rabbit ball. This generation is getting too home-run conscious. The spitter acts just like a curve, but breaks more in the end".

The 195- pound master of the spitball will be 64 years old in May. He is one of baseball's all-time greats as well as all-time bargains and is confident he could win 50 games or so today despite the revigorated ball.

"Course, I couldn't step up on the mound and do it right now", he contends, with some restraint. "But if I had the arm I had back in the good old days. . . "

DETROIT WINGS TO MEET RANGERS

Adams' Squad Can Take Over Second Place With a Victory

By the Canadian Press

Detroit Red Wings, transformed almost overnight into a prominent challenger for the Stanley Cup they won last year in four straight games, meet New York Rangers tonight in the National Hockey League's only scheduled contest.

In fifth place less than a month ago, the Wings will be solidly favored to suppress the tailend Rangers and climb into undisputed possession of second place ahead of Toronto Maple Leafs. Toronto and Detroit now are deadlocked with 35 points apiece.

The Detroit revival dates roughly from the addition of Murray Armstrong, slim centre who has collected 20 points in nine games since Jan. 6, when he joined the Wings after receiving a discharge from the Canadian Army. About the same time Manager Jack Adams acquired two valuable players in Conny Dion, discharged by the Army at Cornwall, Ont., and Flash Hollett, received from Boston Bruins in a trade for Pat Egan.

Looking back on a streak which has seen Detroit beaten only once in their last 10 games, Adams concedes Montreal Canadiens probably will win the league title, but says the Stanley Cup is "something else again."

Sorry, No Dates.

On Tuesday evening Chief Petty Officer White, of H. M. C. S. Cataraqui at Kingston, called Coach Toots Holway seeking an exhibition hockey game for his junior Sailors. However, it was impossible to accommodate the "Sailors" at the Hume Arena as all available dates for the next fortnight are already taken up. The local juniors play in Trenton Friday night, there is R. C. A. F. service league hockey at the Market St. igloo Monday night and next Wednesday the Stirling-Marmora "Combines" conclude the junior schedule, while on Feb. 11th, a week from tomorrow night, the junior play-offs start. Naturally Coach Holway was unable to accommodate Petty Officer White, despite the fact the Cataraqui training sailors agreed to come to Belleville without expense to the locals, that is aside from meals. "Maybe later in the season we will be able to arrange a game with the Sailors, who boast of a strong junior team I hear," commented Coach Holway today.

Hockey Chatter.

There'll be another of those Air Force specials at the Hume Arena tonight when the second place No. 6 Repair Depot tangles with the Deseronto "Mohawks" . . . The latter squad has strengthened its playing roster since absorbing a 15 to 4 shellacking at the hands of the Trenton "Flyers" . . . Local fans seem to have taken a shine to the style of hockey played by Flt. Sergt. Dickens' "Sixardee" pucksters, as they go all out for offensive hockey, which was proven in their 1-1 game with Trenton . . . Last night F/O. Stan Jackson's Trenton juniors kept pace with the local kids by beating the "Combines" 6-3, the loss giving Coach Neal's Hastings County kids no chance to finish in first place . . . Lemorre bagged two for Trenton, as the homesters took a two-goal lead in the initial period and were never headed . . .Doug Patterson scored two of the Combines' three counters.

Calling a Bluff.

An interesting sports anecdote was related by Arthur Daly in his New York Times sports column recently. Although it partains to American football of Jim Thorpe's time, it still makes good reading and goes something like this—"Football stories have a habit of changing often in the retelling. They switch glibly from one locale and cast of characters to other entirely different ones. Not so long ago it was reported here that Bob Zuppke had balked an attempt of a rival team to employ deceptive elbow pads by threatening to paint the football which they resembled a gaudy green.

But Harry Von Kersburg, crack gridiron official, chimes in with a mild dissent. "That tale may be correct," he says. "But I can give you one I'm sure is the original. I was Percy Haughton's assistant coach at Harvard in 1908 when we were tipped off that the Carlisle Indians wore elbow pads that were driving enemy defenders crazy. It almost was impossible to tell which Indian had the ball.

"The night before we played Carlisle I accompanied Percy to the Boston A. A., where the Indians were quartered. Percy asked Pop Warner to discard the pads. But Pop countered that there was no rule prohibiting them. So Percy snapped back. 'The rules also permit the home team to choose the ball and if you don't remove the pads I'll paint the ball red, white and blue.' Pop grinned at him, shrugged his shoulders and said, 'You've beaten me to the punch, Percy. The pads come off.' They did and we took the Indians the next day in a mighty tough game."

This and That.

The first Cuban to make good in the big leagues was an outfielder, Armando Marsans, who played with the Cincinnati Reds under Clark Griffith in 1910 . . . "Those early imports were interesting to watch," Griffith recalls. "They had their Spanish customs. Whenever one of them came to bat, he doffed his cap and bowed first to the pitcher, then to the fans, if any, in the grandstand" . . . Because of physical limitations the transition from jockey to star in other sports is a rare occurence . . . One notable exception was Harry Wills, who started as a rider and ended up as one of the best heavyweight battlers of his era . . . A more recent one is Teodulo Espejec, 19-year-old Mexican jockey who until recently was a star in the bull ring . . . Officials of the Sugar do not announce official financial figures but New Orleans sports writers estimate that Tulsa and Georgia Tech took home approximately $50,000 each from the 1944 game . . . Rose Bowl contestants received $35,000 apiece and the Cotton Bowl entries $27,032 . . . Soldiers on furlough in the United States report that Corporal Zeke Bonura is the best known individual in North Africa and Italy.

Toronto, Feb. 3. (CP)—They say sailors can't resist a fight and about 250 tars in a crowd of 800 at a Windsor Hockey League game did their best to prove it. Colonial Tool was well on its way to a 10-2 sudden-death, semi-final win over Navy when a free-for-all began between players of both teams. In a jiffy sailors were swarming over the boards in all directions to get into the scrap. The players gave one frightened glance at the intruders and immediately took it upon themselves to restore order.

Horse Sense Bridge

LESSON NO. 293

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

You hear it often said that bridge players are not permitted to talk across the board. Don't you believe it. Of course they may. They have that legal right. Only, they must use bids to do it.

You are south in this pair of partnership hands:

SOUTH
♠Q 4
♥A Q 10 5
♦7 3
♣A 8 6 4 3
NORTH
♠A K 5
♥K J 9 4
♦A K 8 4 2
♣7

The bidding between you and your partner has gone this far:

| SOUTH | NORTH |
|---|---|
| 1 C | 2 D |
| 2 H | 4 NT |

Your partner's four no-trump bid is the convention signal for asking you how many aces and kings you have. That signal is not used unless a player sees 12 tricks, knows what's trump, and has two aces and a king, or better.

So, you know your partner has discovered 12 tricks in your pair. You also know he has two aces and a king, or better. And you know he has decided on the trump suit.

To bid four no-trump, a player need not wait until the desired trump suit is assisted or otherwise announced. The fact that he bids four no-trump says he has already found the desired suit.

You did not support his suit. So, you must assume he can assist one of your suits. It may be clubs. It may be hearts. You will not know until he announces it later.

Meantime, you are forced to answer to four no-trump. You must use a convention signal. If you use The Kibitzer's convention, you would show how many aces and kings you have.

Your reply in this case would be six clubs, the signal for a hand with two aces and no kings. After that, your partner decides the bid for your pair.

After your reply to four no-trump, crawl into a hole and stay there. The four no-trumper is the boss from there on.

AT THE BELLE

"Above Suspicion" Thrilling

Joan Crawford and Fred MacMurray run the gauntlet of Gestapo spies, Nazi intrigue and counter-espionage in a hectic adventure in M-G-M's "Above Suspicion" now at the Belle Theatre. They play an Oxford professor and his wife who, as honeymooners, carry out a dangerous mission for the British Foreign Office.

From Paris Through Germany

The action occurs just prior to the outbreak of war and the trail leads from Paris through southern Germany.

Richard Thorpe directed the thriller with a cast that includes Conrad Veidt, Basil Rathbone, Felix Bressart, Reginald Owen, Richard Ainley, Bruce Lester and others. It marks the first picture together for Miss Crawford and MacMurray and also MacMurray's first appearance on the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer lot.

"Old Mother Riley Joins Up"

Arthur Lucan, famous British comedian, who is being introduced to Canadian audiences in the film "Old Mother Riley Joins Up" can do as many tricks on a bicycle as a cowboy can on a horse.

Old Mother Riley is an old dame who may look decrepit, but can ride like a demon. At the start of the picture, which is being shown at the Belle Theatre as the added feature attraction, she quickly jams up traffic for a whole military parade, then wins an argument with the traffic cop.

High comedy spot is when Mother Riley in a sleep-walking scene jumps on the nearest bike and with bonnet strings flying whirls through the streets and swings around corners without a hand on the wheel. She catches up with a bunch of German spies and puts them to rout.

Audiences agree that only a man could play the determined old dame with the same athletic zip as Lucan. Kitty McShane, who has the role of the old woman's daughter, is Lucan's wife.

Your hits of yesterday and tomorrow are in the new Community Sing, presented at the Belle Theatre every week as a special added attraction.

The management requests that you please sing Loud!

AT THE McCARTHY

"Trade Winds"

One of the most provocative and exciting motion pictures to reach the screen within recent years was unreeled last night at the McCarthy Theatre under the title of "Trade Winds". Produced by Walter Wanger for United Artists release with a well chosen cast headed by Frederic March and Joan Bennett, the new film is a fast-moving, romantic melodrama smartly fashioned to contain all the elements of fine entertainment.

Miss Bennett, portraying the role of Kay Kerrigan, flees San Francisco after a murder of which she believes herself guilty. Dyeing her blonde hair black, as a disguise, the girl travels half-way around the world in her flight from the law. Her steps in and through the fascinating Orient are dogged by Frederic Mach, appearing as Sam Wye, a blase detective with a grand sense of humor and an excellent appreciation of the beautiful female. Ralph Bellamy and Ann Sothern, teamed as the second romantic leads, contribute rich comedy performances—he as a stolid, book-trained sleuth, she as a scatter-brained but stunningly garbed secretary.

Among the varied and colorful backgrounds against which the action unfolds are included such countries as Hawaii, Japan, China, Indo-China the Malay Peninsula, Ceylon, India and the little known Laccadive Islands. Tay Garnett, director of "Trade Winds" spent two years filming the unusually impressive "location shots" revealed in the picture.

Perhaps one of the most interesting and arresting contributions to the filming of "Trade Winds" is the introduction of Joan Bennett as a vivid and flashing brunette. The dark tresses somehow make her seem more mysterious and add considerably to the force and sincerity of her perforance throughout.

Second feature attraction stars Charles Boyer and Jean Arthur in "History is Made at Night" with Leo Carrillo and Colin Clive.

AT THE CAPITOL

"Seven Sweethearts"

"Seven Sweethearts" opening tonight at the Capitol is a sweetheart of a picture! What a parade of pep and pulchritude! Seven gorgeous girls . . . running after romance . . . bring you love and laughter in a big, big way! It's another triumph from Joe Pasternak, who produced those wonderful Deanna Durbin hits! "Seven Sweethearts" stars Kathryn Grayson, Van Heflin, Marsha Hunt, Cecelia Parker, Peggy Moran, Diana Lewis, and S. Z. Sakall. Hear Kathryn Grayson sing; "Little Tingle Tangle Toes", "You and the Waltz and I", "Tulip Time".

"Canyon City"

The added Western "Canyon City" stars Don "Red" Barry who smashes a Desperate outlaw gang that threatens to destroy a thriving frontier town! Your favorite action ace in a gripping, fast-shooting drama of the Old West.

A funny cartoon and the 8th Chapter of the thrilling serial "Secret Service in Darkest Africa" makes up one of the finest entertaining programs shown at the popular south end theatre.

CORBYVILLE WINS FIRST START IN HASTINGS LOOP

Down Centenary 3-1, While Zion Hill Takes West Huntingdon 3-2

SMART GAMES

Corbyville, a new entrant in the Central Hastings Rural Hockey League, made an auspicious start in the first game of the season played at Stirling Tuesday night, when as part of a doubleheader they demonstrated too much punch for the Centenary pucksters and defeated them by a 3-1 score.

In the other half of the doubleheader Zion Hill locked horns with their arch enemies of the ice lanes, West Huntingdon, and after sixty minutes of sizzling hockey emerged victors by scoring the odd goal in five. Both games were especially clean with referee Earl Wallace having no occasion to hand out a single penalty.

Scoring three goals in the initial period Corbyville sewed their game up early with Martin, Sheffield and Gray sinking the bootheel behind Gordon "Wimpy" Gay in the Centenary net. There was no score in the second period but in the final canto in a do-or-die effort Centenary averted a shutout when Ike Bellis eluded the Corbyville defence to pick an unprotected corner.

Lineups:

Centenary: Goal, G. Gay; defence, Fred Waite and Ray Hall; centre, A. Donnelly; wings, Ike Bellis and Stan Cousineau. Subs, Mac Waite, Don Harder, Don Hubble, Doug Waite, Ross Marshall and Walt Harder.

Corbyville: Goal, Dick Martin, defence, Doug. Martin and Borden Forsyth; centre, G. Denyes; wings, Earl Gray and Norman Ritz. Subs. Carl Haines, Don Sills, Carl Sheffield, Leroy Sills and Lyle Walker.

Nip and Tuck Affair.

The nightcap was a nip and tuck affair with Zion and West Huntingdon re-opening hockey wars of former years to battle from gong to gong. Evenly matched the two teams battled through a scoreless first period but in the second Dr. Jack Empson put Zion one up when on passes from Thompson and Brough he scored at the two minute mark. Huntingdon battled right back and four minutes later Don Tucker got the equalizer on a solo effort but Floyd Ray put the eventual winers back in the lead at the half-way mark.

The third period was fought on equal terms with Lorne Jarrell sinking the bootheel for Zion on a double pass from Empson and Thompson and Dave Fargey counting for Huntingdon on a pass from R. Sills just as the bell went.

Lineups:

Zion Hill: Goal, K. Hicks; defence, N. Guay and G. Walt; centre, L. Jarrell; wings, M. Brough and O. Thompson. Subs, Dr. J. Empson, G. Tummon, E. Tummon, F. Ray, E. Simms and D. Sills.

West Huntingdon: Goal, B. Hagerman; defence, H. Thompson and Lindsay Sills; centre, R. Sills; wings, D. Pyear and D. Tucker. Subs. C. Wright, Ken Kingston, G. Kirkey, A. Hassal, A. McCurdy, J. Donnan and D. Fargey.

The teams tie up in another doubleheader on Friday evening.

Gen. McNaughton Back in Canada

Ottawa, Feb. 3 (CP)—Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton, retired commander of the 1st Canadian Army, is back in Canada, an announcement from defence headquarters said today. The anouncement did not say where Gen. McNaughton was.

The official statement said: "Lt.-Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton and Mrs. McNaughton are now in Canada having returned from Engand where Gen. McNaughton was commander of the First Canadian Army. He was granted leave of absence late in December owing to ill health."

Yesterday an Ottawa report said he was expected to reach Ottawa within a few days.

AT THE CAPITOL—Kathryn Grayson and Van Heflin are the two young lovers in M-G-M's "Seven Sweethearts," now playing at the Capitol Theatre. On the same program "Canyon City" starring Don "Red" Barry.

The script of "The Robe," the Lloyd C. Douglas best-seller, will be written in Basic English, which has 850 words. Millions of South Americans and Asiatics who have been studying Basic English as the language of tomorrow will now be able to understand what the actors are saying.

There is something to the contention that there are no delinquent children—just delinquent parents. A theatre manager heard an uproar in the theatre and left the lobby to find out what it was. Standing on the stage beside the screen were two little boys who had come up for a better look. The manager chased them back to their seats—beside their father. He didn't see anything wrong with the children acting as they did.

Another manager found a lost three-year-old girl wandering around. Her mother, watching the film, allowed her to seek out the ladies' room all by herself.

Perhaps you saw the all-star film, "Forever and a Day," when it was around. Hollywood's British actors contributed their talents and the profits were designated for British and American charities.

Last week a delegation, headed by Sir Cedric Hardwicke, presented President Roosevelt with a cheque worth $250,000 for his pet project, the Infantile Paralysis Foundation. Another $50,000 went to the Los Angeles Community Chest and $30,000 for theatre charity. Contributions to British causes haven't been announced yet.

Sir Cedric Hardwicke, one of those responsible, put in 18 weeks for nothing when he could have been earning a high salary.

In the days of the silent films actors and actresses had a great time saying anything they pleased. A lip reader who saw one of these silent films, at a revival reported that, during a deathbed scene, the leading player said "I'll die and no mistake if they shoot this scene once more."

The quirky Hollywood atmosphere has given rise to the saying that "You don't have to be crazy to get along in Hollywood—but it helps." And recently a famous Canadian lawyer, addressing movie men, referred to "this weird, wonderful and sometimes crazy business." Another claimed that "Hollywood is a place where artists try to be business men and business men try to be artists."

It is this sort of publicity which gives the visitor a letdown. There are, of course, many beautiful girls about and the odd character but mostly it's a sleepy town where people go to bed early so that they can be up in time for early shooting in the sunlight.

Actually, most of the humorous derogatory remarks are made by Hollywood folks about themselves. The nervous atmosphere of the place is the result of being in a business where guessing wrong about the fickle public can cost millions of dollars.

Some actors make so much money in a few years that they have to look for new ways of spending it. What a problem!

Lon Chaney, Jr. has just bought a ranch on which he will erect a rest home. Who will inhabit it? Friends down on their luck who helped him when things were tough.

It just become known that Bob Hope presented 50 hams at Christmas to the Hollywood Canteen—each one named for an actor.

Little Benny's Note Book

The Gils had a meeting at our house this afternoon, Gils being short for Give Lifts to Servicemen and only being 6 ladies in it including ma, and after supper pop was just getting in back of the sporting page, and ma said, I dont know, William, I used to think that if we could put an end to the powerful interests and just let all the little people of the world alone, they would automatically be peaceful and law abiding, but now I'm not so sure. I mean I suppose after all the world does need some sort of a Ligg of Nations or universal police force, she said.

I'm afraid you're right, pop said. Until the millenium comes, the innocent kids in the front street will be up to some devilitry the moment they know there's no possibility of a cop being around the corner and the innocent villagers around the cracker barrel will start to fill their pockets as soon as they hear the news that the office of town constable has been discontinued. And it's the same way with all the innocent little countries. They'll get into mischiff if there's nobody around to smack them on their little boundary lines, he said.

That's the conclusion I came to at the meeting of the Gils this afternoon, ma said. The entire 6 of us are equally high ranking officers just expressly so that nobody in the organization can get obnoxiously officious Well my dear this afternoon an important question arose concerning some minor changes in our uniforms, and everybody had a diferent suggestion of their own and everybody was sweetly obstinate in not giving in to anybody else, and the result was we wouldn't of got anywhere if we hadn't appointed Blanch Hipple dictator for a day and let her make the final decision. So that's what convinced me that the world needs some final supreme authority,, ma said.

Being the end of the subject.

CHAPTER 1

It was a little after midnight when Antony Bigelow, columnist on the New York Record, stepped from a taxi in front of Max's place. The doorman saluted respectfully as he swung the cab door shut.

"Good evening, Mr. Bigelow," he said.

"Good evening, Tim. Cold, isn't it?"

"Mighty cold for April, Sir. Must be near freezing."

"All quiet tonight?"

"All quiet, Sir. A big crowd, well-behaved."

Bigelow nodded, strode across the sidewalk to the modernistic entrance and passed on through into the vestibule. The hat-check girl greeted him with a warm smile.

"How are you, Katie?" he asked as he slipped out of his coat. "Tim tells me that you've got a nice quiet crowd tonight."

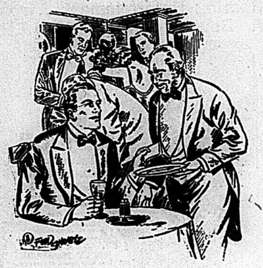
"They're sort of low and jittery," Katie explained. "All they can think about is that Wall Street fellow who was sentenced to Sing Sing today."

"Of course they're jittery," Bigelow agreed. "They hear the tumbrills rollin'."

"What's the tumbrills?" Katie inquired.

"Busses to the guillotine. These people know that if Dick can be sent up the river, anybody can."

"Oh, they'll snap out of it," said Katie cheerfully. "Give them a few more drinks."



"Give this to that gentleman over there," Tony said.

"Sure," Bigelow nodded, and walked on into the restaurant.

There was nothing especially distinctive about it, and yet it was one of the most popular in New York. It was par excellence the place to be seen. Nobody knew why this was so, but everybody went there—everybody, that is, who had the price and who belonged or wished to belong to the inner circle of cafe society: the semi-sporty, man-about-town, broker - theatrical - movie crowd, with its mixture of shop-worn debutantes and third-genertion wastrels, rapidly working their way back to the shirt sleeves of their grandfathers.

Bigelow paused at the door for a glance around, and then the headwaiter saw him, came hurrying forward to lead the way to the columnist's favorite table at a corner of the dance-floor.

"Hello, Tony darling!" called a voice, and a soft feminine hand caught his. He looked down to see a brightly-rouged mouth and a pair of melting blue eyes smiling up at him. "How cruel of you to call me plump—'The plump Mrs. Leslie Ballantine'!"

"Hello, Lena," Tony smiled back. "It wasn't cruel—it was a compliment. I like 'em plump. So do you, don't you, Leslie?" he added to her table companion.

Leslie merely grunted without taking the trouble to look up.

"You will never have a chance to call me that again," Lena rattled on. "I'm going on a diet."

"On a diet?" and Tony glanced at the confection heavily overcoated with whipped cream which she had in front of her.

"Tonight I'm on a binge," she explained. "I start the diet tomorrow morning."

"Don't go too far," Tony warned her. "I'd hate to cut myself every time I put an arm around you."

"I'll never cut you," Lena chortled, ignoring her husband's scowl. "You must test it every day."

Tony, who hadn't the slightest intention of testing it at any time, squeezed her hand and passed on. The headwaiter was holding out his chair for him.

"Big crowd tonight, Jules," he said as he sat down.

"Yes sir, very nice crowd. Everybody drinking champagne. What shall I order for you, sir?"

"A Carnera, as usual. Tell Max I want to see him," he went on rapidly in a carefully guarded voice as the headwaiter bent close above him, pad in hand. "Is Jack McKibben here?"

"Yes sir. He came in about ten-thirty."

"Who is with him?"

"Lily Edgerton and a girl I've never seen before."

"Where is his table?"

"Third to your right."

"Okay," Tony nodded, and Jules hurried away.

Columnist Bigelow lighted a cigarette, and cast a leisurely glance around. The dance-floor was clear for the moment, and he looked first to see who had the tables on the other side. Several people seemed to be waiting to catch his eye, nod and wave—one couple especially, a big, handsome man of about forty-five and a woman five or six years younger, still pleasant enough to look at, but a trifle too fat and too facialed. Tony returned their nods.

"Let me have your pad," he said to the waiter who had just placed in front of him a big wicked-looking highball which Tony had christened a Carnera because, in spite of its formidable appearance, it packed practically no punch. Tony took a pencil from his pocket and wrote rapidly:

> It's refreshing to know that there are two sensible people left in the world. Bless you!

He tore the sheet off, folded it, and handed it to the waiter.

"Give this to the gentleman with the lady in black over there," he said, and took a sip of his drink. The words were already arranging themselves in his mind as they would appear in his column next day:

> Rye, not Reno:—The Harry Michelsons, who haven't been seen around together recently, were dining seul a seul at Max's last night, the lady very striking in black. Rumor has it that their lovely place at Rye, which has been closed for more than a year, will be opened as soon as spring does.

It was common knowledge that Max's place was one of Tony Bigelow's favorite hunting grounds, and that he spent an hour there every night, always at the same table, which had become a sort of flame about which publicity-seeking moths fluttered, often to their destruction. No stranger, looking at him, would have suspected that he was the favorite columnist of New Yorkers really in the know. He had no mannerisms and no affectations! He was a slender, intelligent-looking fellow of thirty-one, whose digestion was evidently in good order, and whose spirits required little artificial stimulation.

In fact he was something of a mystery to the habitues of Max's and the Stork and the Colony and Lindy's and all the rest of them, for he seemed to know everything about everybody, while nobody knew anything about him. It was a mystery which Bigelow cultivated. He had his own theory about how a column should be run and how a columnist should live.

Comme en sa tour d'ivoire, . . . looking through all the roofs of the town and penetrating all its secrets — especially its bedroom secrets, in which his clientele was so eagerly interested. So he played up to his public and frequently regarded himself with contempt.

There was a blare of brass, a rattle of skins, a clash of cymbals, and soon the dance-floor was crowded. A pale young fellow and a lovely little blonde stopped at Tony's table.

"Evening, Mr. Bigelow," he said. "Let me introduce Judy Priest. I'm going to marry her."

"You're lucky," said Tony, as he rose and took the girl's eagerly outstretched hand and looked down at her admiringly. "But I thought you were married. It just shows how out-of-date I am."

"Oh, that's all settled," laughed the boy. "The pay-off was today."

Tony looked at the girl again. She was very young. Her eyes were fixed upon his adoringly and her cheeks were flushed with excitement.

"I'm so glad to meet you, Mr. Bigelow!" she cried, and patted his arm. "I think you're wonderful!"

"That's enough of that!" said the boy and dragged her away toward the dance-floor.

Tony sat down again with a faint sickness about his heart. Another paragraph was forming itself in his mind:

> Third Time Charm?—Phil Adams announced last night that he has freed himself from present entanglements and is taking the beaten path to the altar once again, this time with the lovely Judy Priest. His third venture in three years. Let's hope there's really luck in odd numbers!

A heavily-handsome man in his late thirties, with an ethereal wisp of a girl in clinging gray, circled past his corner and nodded to him. The man was typical of Max's place—anyone could tell he was a broker by just glancing at him—but the girl was different. In fact she was unique for she looked shy, modest and a little frightened.

Tony followed them with his eyes for a moment; then rose and walked over to the third table to his right. A thin blond woman of thirty or so was sitting there by herself moodily drinking a highball and watching the dance-floor with eyes distinctly venomous.

"Evening, Lily," said Tony, stopping beside her chair. "Who's the infant with Mack?"

"I don't know."

"Not even her name?"

"He calls her Leda."

"Leda? Well I swan!"

"Is that supposed to be a joke?" asked Lily coldly.

"Not in our set, my dear," smiled Tony. "Newcomer, isn't she?"

"Scarcely out of her rompers."

"What's she scared about?"

"Can't you guess?" sneered Lily. "Now run along. Im busy."

And she turned back to her moody contemplation of the dancers.

"Tell Mack I want to see him," said the columnist.

"He won't tell you anything."

"Perhaps not," Tony agreed, "but I can tell him something."

As he turned away, he came face to face with two men who had just risen from a neighboring table and started for the door. He recognized them—Herschel Schneider, criminal lawyer and divorce specialist extraordinary and Allan Guthrie, whose marital and extra-marital difficulties had won even more space in the tabloids than those of Philip Adams.

"Hello, Herschel," said Bigelow. "How are you, Guthrie? Been celebrating? The suit must be settled then."

"It is," smiled Schneider. "It will be withdrawn tomorrow. I've convinced the lady that there was no promise of marriage."

"With a solacium, of course?"

"Ladies always have to be solaced, don't they?" Schneider grinned and the two men passed on.

Tony, glancing at Guthrie's heavy-jowled face, wondered how long he could keep it up. Three women were already living expensively off the alimony which he provided, and a number of others had received solaciums more or less substantial—and Herschel Schneider's fees were anything but modest. Guthrie's salary as president of a big importing house was perhaps sixty thousand a year, but he must be hard put to it to make ends meet.

Before he could formulate a paragraph covering the case, he was back at his table where he found Proprietor Max Riley waiting for him—blond, pink-cheeked, almost cherubic, and as tough as toe-leather. His air of careless detachment was perfect, but no smallest detail of what went on in the place escaped his eye, for he lived on the edge of a volcano which a drop too much of alcohol might set going at any moment. It was a tribute to his resourcefulness that eruptions were so few, for the alcohol was always plentiful.

"Look here, Max," said Tony softly, " I had a tip that there'd be trouble here tonight in connection with Jack McKibben."

Max's expression of pleasant interest did not alter in the slightest.

"What sort of trouble?" he asked. "I don't know. Plenty of people would be glad . . ."

"Sure," Max agreed. "Thank you Tony."

"Who's the girl with McKibben?"

"I don't know. She's never been here before.'

"She looks frightened.'

"Yes, I noticed it," Max agreed. "Maybe that's where the trouble is coming from. I'll have an eye out," and he turned away to intercept the headwaiter and give him a order.

A moment later, two additional waiters appeared in the neighborhood of McKibben's table. They were very vigorous-looking, with unusually well-developed shoulder muscles.

There had been a short encore, but now the blare of the music stopped and the dancers edged back to their tables.

Tony followed McKibben and the Leda girl with his eyes. She was certainly something to look at. He must find out who she was and where she came from and what she was doing in this gallery, especially with McKibben. And with Lily Edgerton. No wonder Lily looked moody.

A man whom Tony could catch but a glimpse of loomed suddenly in front of McKibben and rasped, "You swine!" Then the two tuxedoed bouncers were beside him, edging him toward the door. It was all over before anybody had noticed. Except Tony and the Leda girl. She slumped into her chair as though her legs had crumpled under her.

DODDS KIDNEY PILLS
A TREATMENT FOR BACKACHE HEADACHE RHEUMATIC PAINS BLADDER TROUBLES

Had Rheumatic Pains, Headaches, Stomach Pains; Praises Syntona!

Condition Followed Attacks of Influenza and Lasted Until He Rid His System of Excess Acids and Impurities This Safe, Natural Way.

"Syntona surely has been a wonderful tonic for me and I advise any one who is feeling rundown at this time of year to take it," said Mr. James Barrtt, well known London man, residing at 331 Simcoe Street.

"I had different attacks of the flu and it left me weakened and rundown. My appetite was poor and what food I did eat only upset my stomach. After eating I was troubled with stomach gas, acidity, heartburn and cramps. Soon after that, I began to have dizzy spells and headaches. Then, the pains spread into my legs and back and I felt tired out and listless.

"That condition hung on so long that I thought I would never get over it, when one day my wife persuaded me to try Syntona. I was only taking it a couple of days when my stomach began to feel better and I got relief from the headaches and dizzy spells. After a few weeks the pains left my back and limbs. I could eat and sleep fine and I felt better in every way."

Syntona produces these results without the aid of harsh drugs or depressors. It is made ony from the pure extracts of Herbs, Roots and Barks. It aids in the proper assimilation of food for energy and resistance and in the elimination of excess acids and irritating waste matter.

Syntona is sold and recommended in Belleville at DOLAN THE DRUGGIST.

Benes Working For Slav Alliance

London, Feb. 3 —(CP)— President Edouard Benes told the Czechoslovak state council today that Russia and the Czechs were working for a Slav alliance including Poland to ensure peace in central and eastern Europe.

He said the treaty he signed recently with Russia not only was a Soviet-Czecholovak affair but was "part of a great political entity and one of the links in a post-war security system of which the Anglo-Soviet agreement is another particularly important part."

"The treaty means for us a permanent assurance against the recurrence of pan-Germanism," he continued.

"It is a guarantee of our frontiers and of the independence of our republic."

KILLED BY TRAIN

Grimsby, Ont., Feb. 3. (CP) — Arthur S. Greenwood, 73, of Grimsby, was killed today when his car stalled on the railway tracks on Depot Street here shortly before noon and was struck by a fast Canadian National Railways freight.

Force of the impact hurled the car 132 feet onto a siding.

Two Former Air Gunners at No. 5 I.T.S. Escaped From Enemy Clutches

Already having approximately 126 operational trips over enemy territory to their credit, four Ontario R.C.A.F. officers, formerly air gunners with bombing squadrons overseas, this week commenced training at No. 5 Initial Training School at Belleville to become pilots.

Two of the former air gunners, Flying Officer Jack Otten of Kingston and Pilot Officer Phillip Whitnall of Peterborough, were shot down over enemy territory, but ultimately escaped Nazi clutches to rejoin their units in England.

The other two, Flying Officer Bill Rowland of Brussels, and Pilot Officer Floyd Morrison of Navin, near Ottawa, have both seen German night fighter planes crash to the earth before their flaming guns. All four have completed their operational tours and deciding they would like to "steer the crates" were repatriated home to Canada to commence training as pilots.

To have his torpedo bomber shot into the sea from a height of 100 feet with eighteen months spent in an Italian internment camp has been the experience of F/O. Otten. Crashing into the sea off the coast of Greece when ack-ack fire got their plane Otten floated for three and one half hours before he was picked up by a Greek fisherman. Half-drowned in the dark seas he was placed in a Greek hospital to recuperate and later taken to a prison camp in Italy.

Escaped From Prison Camp.

Just how he escaped from that prison camp 18 months later or where he rejoined Allied forces, F/O. Otten would not say. "Some of my gang are sitll interned in occupied territory", he said. "Telling how I escaped would do no good". Still only 22 years old this remustered air gunner enlisted in 1940 and had been overseas over three years.

He paid splendid tribute to the work of the Red Cross in supplying food and parcels for interned airmen. Speaking of treatment in Italian prison camps he said 50 per cent of the boys would have died had it not been for food sent by the Red Cross. Sports equipment supplied also had been much appreciated, he said.

One of a crew of an R.A.F. medium bomber, P.O. Whitnall was forced to bail out at 1,000 feet over enemy territory when Nazi anti-aircraft fire knocked out the plane. "I hardly remember anything about jumping", he said. "It seemed that no sooner had I pulled the ripcord than I had hit the 'deck'."

At Large Six Months.

From the time he landed in enemy territory until six months later when he was able to get back to his unit it was a deadly game of hide and seek between P/O. Whitnall and the Germans. He was never taken prisoner by Nazis but managed to escape detection until he made good his escape.

Asked how he managed to keep from being captured, the flier noncommitally returned "just put it down that I was able to run a bit faster than the Germans." He would not state in what part of occupied Europe he was forced down. He enlisted in 1940 and had been overseas approximately two years.

Veteran of 32 Operational Trips.

A former army man, Flying Officer Rowland remustered into the R.C.A.F. from the Army Service Corps and trained as a wireless air gunner. Now veteran of 32 operational trips he has a German Junkers-88 to his credit and is itching to have wings pinned on his tunic that he may get back into the fray. He and Pilot Officer Morrison were crew members of heavy Allied bombers.

Pilot Officer Morrison had well on to two operational tours to his credit when he remustered to train as a pilot. He stated he had 43 trips over enemy territory, "about three-quarters of them over Happy Valley". This was the term by which he referred to the much-bombed Ruhr Valley. He has official confirmation of shooting down one German night fighter and has another "damaged" to his credit.

Soviet Republics Given Power To Make Agreements

By EDDY GILMORE
(Associated Press Staff Writer.)

Moscow, Feb. 3. (AP)—The Soviet Press said today that the Soviet Union's 16 republics will establish relationships with foreign countries and will have the power to conclude agreements with them as the result of reorganization of the foreign affairs commissariat.

(The 16 Soviet republics are the Russian (Moscow), Ukrainian, White Russian, Armenian, Georgian, Azerbaijan, Uzbek, Turkmen, Tadjuk, Kazakh, Kirghiz, Karelo-Finnish, Moldavian, Lithuanian, Latvian and Estonian Socialist Federated Soviet republics.)

Red Star, organ of the Red Army, said the reorganization was a "new victory for the policy of Lenin and Stalin" and declared the "National needs of the republics will be better satisfied by direct relationships with the separate countries'.

This seemed to indicate that each of the 16 republics would send envoys to the countries with which Russia has diplomatic relations and that the way would be opened for each foreign country to send an envoy to each of the 16 republics.

Each republic will have its own commissariat of foreign affairs as well as its national army formations, Red Star made clear in its explanation of the law passed by the supreme Soviet.

The paper added that single representative abroad no longer could reasentative aboard no longer could fully answer the growing needs of the 16 republics, and that all-union pacts and agreements with other nations also no longer sufficed.

Red Fleet, the navy newspaper, and Izvestia, government organ took the same line.

Dr. Fred Thomas Gives Testimony

Detroit, Feb. 3 (AP)—Dr. Fred W. Thomas, Detroit physician charged with violating the Wartime Espionage Act, testified under cross-examination at his trial in Federal Court today that he suspected as early as 1939 that his mail had been opened and examined.

He told Chief Assistant District Attorney John W. Babcock that he thought this was because "the Federal Bureau of Investigation was interested in some of my patients."

Dr. Thomas identified a notebook containing sketches of German societies in the United States as one taken from his office when he was arrested on August 24, 1943. He said the sketches were made during 1933 or 1934 and that the notebook was given him because it was thought at that time that he would soon become a member of the central committee of the German-American society in Michigan. It was prepared by a committee member, he said.

Vice-Commissar Relieved of Duties At Own Request

Moscow, Feb. 3 (AP)—A. E. Korneichuk, Vice-Commissar of Foreign Affairs and husband of Wanda Vassilevskaya, President of the Union of Polish Patriots, has been relieved of his official duties at his own request, the Soviet press said today.

Korneichuk has been prominent in opposing Poland's claims to her pre-war eastern frontier. In an article published by the Russian Embassy information bulletin in Washington on Feb. 26, 1943, he vehemently rejected Poland's claims and declared "only a hopeless fool can believe that Lwow and the population of the western regions of the Ukraine are waiting for return to Polish rule."

The Union of Polish Patriots was organized in Moscow There has been much speculation that it might assume a role in rivalry to that of the Polish government in London in the event the Russians decided the London administration would not be reorganized to exclude elements which Moscow regards as anti-Soviet.

Korneichuk, 38-year-old native of the Ukraine, is one of Russia's best-known political writers and dramatists.

The German agency D.N.B. said in a broadcast that Berlin political circles believed Korneichuk's resignation was connected with the impending delegation of foreign affairs autonomy to the separate republics of the Soviet Union and that he would become head of the new foreign commissariat of the Ukraine.

Under the proposed setup it is likely that the conduct of some of Russia's most important foreign relations will be entrusted to the Ukraine, those with Poland, Rumania, Czechoslovakia and possibly the Balkan states.

Britain Regards European, Jap Conflicts As One

London, Feb. 3 (CP)—Labor Minister Ernest Bevin told the House of Commons today that Britain regards the European and Japanese conflicts as one war and that the National Service acts still will apply to British manpower until Japan is brought to her knees.

The point arose when Ellis Smith, (Labor), speaking on postwar demobilization, said: "When the war with Germany is over, as many as possible of our men will want to come home. Then I suppose volunteers will be asked for the deal with Japan."

Bevin interrupted:

"I think I ought to correct that false impression. There will be no volunteers called, for Japan. It is one war and the National Service Acts will be applied until the whole thing is seen through."

West Defence Wall Ready for Invasion Says Marshal Rommel

London, Feb. 3 (CP)—The Paris German-controlled raio today quoted Marshal Erwin Rommel as saying "the final touches have been given to German defence works in the west and the west wall now is completely ready for the Allied invasion force."

Gen. Alfred Jodl, Hitler's personal military aide, inspected the fortifications yesterday, the radio said, adding that "there is considerable nervousness on both sides of the channel."

"The coastal defences are a formidable affair of steel, iron and stone," the broadcast continued. "The whole coastline is studded with an array of heavy batteries of all calibres."

Need to Maintain High Standards In Dairy Industry

Saskatoon, Feb. 3 —(CP)— The importance of Canada's dairy industry maintaining high standards for its products was outlined today by W. C. Cameron of Ottawa, Acting Chief of Dairy Products, Department of Agriculture, in an address prepared for delivery to the Inter-Provincial Dairy Conference here.

"It would seem that whatever the pattern of future developments in the industry may be, it will be closely women around the demand for products of high quality at a price within the means of all," he said.

Every one of the United Nations emphasizes quality as well as quantity in the production of dairy products, and by no means the least of these is the United Kingdom.

"It is of vital importance, not only to the present welfare of the cheese industry, but also to the future status of the entire Canadian dairy industry, that the quality of Canadian cheese be not only maintained, but improved."

Brilliant Highlight Of Canada's Effort Seen in Air Force

Montreal, Feb. 3 (CP) — For every Canadian fighting as aircrew in R.C.A.F. squadrons overseas, there are 10 other R.C.A.F. men flying with R.A.F. squadrons, J. W. G. Clark, director of information for the armed services, told a service club luncheon here today.

"This is a brilliant highlight in Canada's war effort," he said in a prepared address. "I am not sure, however, that Canadians, or for that matter British and Americans, fully realize this fact."

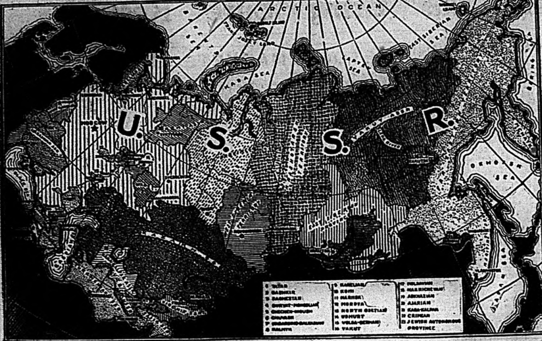
SIXTEEN INDIVIDUAL REPUBLICS ARE CREATED WITHIN THE SOVIET UNION



Sixteen republics within the U.S.S.R. have been empowered to deal directly with other countries and raise their own army units under a plan adopted unanimously by the supreme Soviet. The plan was placed before the Soviet by Foreign Commissar V. Molotov, with Premier Josef Stalin present. In the new constitution the 11 original "union republics" and five other "union republics" become a Russian commonwealth of 16 nations similar to the British commonwealth. The five new republics are Lithuania, Latvia and Estonia along the Baltic Sea south of Leningrad but not shown on this map, the former Karelian autonomous republic, now Karelo-Finnish, and Moldavia, the shaded area shown to the west of the Ukraine, but unnamed on this map. Eleven original union republics now given dominion status are Russian, the largest state on the map, with Moscow its capital, Ukraine, White Russia, Armenia, Georgia, Azerbaijan, Uzbekistan, Turkmenia, Tadjikistan, Kazakhstan and Kirghizia. These are all found on the left half of the above map. The sparsely settled and largely undeveloped Asiatic areas, consisting of nine autonomous provinces, five territories and 34 provinces, roughly grouped into the administrative districts shown here, now become "colonies" of the Russian republic.

Systematic Dispersal Of Tokyo's 8 Millions Reported Raid Plan

London, Feb. 3.—(CP)—A D.N.B. broadcast from Germany today quoted the Mayor of Tokyo as saying officials of the city "anticipate and are prepared for air attacks".

"We are using not only the experience gained through the bombing of Berlin and other German cities but above all our own practical lessons learned from the great earthquake of 1923", he was quoted as saying.

"Along with obvious air raid protection measures there also is a systematic dispersal of the population of this city of 8,000,000".

RUSSIANS WELL INFORMED

Moscow, Feb. 3—(AP)—The Moscow radio kept the Russian people informed today of the progress of the United States invasion of the Marshall islands, devoting a portion of its regular news programs to details of the lates American successes and the losses inflicted upon the Japanese.

The War Today—

Sovereignty Extension Is Seen As Freighted With Possibilities

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
(Associated Press War Analyst,

The Soviet Union's startling extension to the sovereignty of its 16 component republics to include military and diplomatic affairs has left the outside world in the position of the scientist who has witnessed a phenomenon which he recognizes as having momentous potentialities but which he isn't able to explain with finality.

Moscow's gesture patently has as many possibilities as a hedge-hog has quills. In yesterday's column I mentioned briefly what looks like the most far-reaching of these, and I invite your attention to it again because of the effect which it may have on the world's changing political situation. This is: The Soviet reorganization may result in additional countries joining this Red Commonwealth of Nations.

The reconstruction tends, it seems to me, to create a commonwealth of such flexibility that other nations may become members irrespective of whether they are geographically contiguous to Russia. I cited merely as examples, the cases of Yugoslavia, Bulgaria and Greece, all of which have developed communist parties. Should they adopt the Soviet form of government, there would seem to be no reason why they shouldn't become members of the Soviet Union with the same degree of sovereignty as the present members have.

Melting Pot of Nations.

This also might be true of other countries where the political complexions have become doubtful since the war. We musn't forget that the pre-war governments of many European countries are in the melting-pot. Even great nations like Germany, France and Italy are on the uncertain list.

In short, the end of the European conflict might find the Soviet Union with considerably more than its present 16 members. The late fanatical Leon Trotsky, fiery exponent of Red world revolution, could hardly have envisaged such possibilities as exist now. It was Stalin who shelved Trotsky's wild-eyed dream and turned to development of Russia's resources and army —a program which has resulted in the Soviet's present strength.

Amazing Change.

Whatever may happen in the matter of multiple voting power, the autonomy of the 16 Soviet Republics will give the Union great bargaining strength. That certainly is an amazing change in the position of a government which was barred from the League of Nations for a long time, and which was refused diplomatic recognition by many countries, including Britain and the United States.

Battle's Progress Described to Crew By Bridge Officer

Aboard H. M. C. S. Prince Robert, Feb. 3—(CP)—More than 80 ships—convoy and escort vessels—blasted at Marauding enemy aircraft when the largest-scale glider-bomb attack launched against a convoy by the Nabis was beaten off with damage to only two of the convoy's ships during a recent running battle in the Atlantic.

Lt.-Cmdr. Peter MacRitchie, aboard the anti-aircraft cruiser Prince Robert, stood on the bridge throughout the action, and said in a Navy press release last night that it occurred as Prince Robert was steaming up to rendezvous with the convoy.

His job was to tell Prince Robert's crew of the progress of the battle through the ship's public address system. In describing it he restored to baseball and boxing parlance, describing a bomb falling far from the target as a "ball" and a near miss as a "strike."

"Fortunately," he said, "not one ship struck out."

The Nazi planes, favored by good weather, evidently considered the convoy an easy mark, but the resistance put up by Prince Robert, and the Canadian corvettes Snowberry and Calgary changed the picture.

Some estimates had it that 32 enemy aircraft swooped down upon the convoy but "certainly not all of them returned to their base on the French coast of the bay of Biscay."

CALLED FROM BANQUET

Preston, Feb. 3 (CP)—Time and tide—and fire—wait for no man Preston fire department learned Tuesday evening. An impatient chimney fire on Kress Hill called firemen away from a fire hall banquet they were giving in honor of two retiring colleagues, Boniface Fisher and Irvin Eaton.

Health Ministers Campaign Against Social Diseases

Ottawa, Feb. 3—(CP)—Ministers of Health in the martime provinces have joined Health Minister Mackenzie in urging an all-out campaign against venereal diseases, termed by Mr. Mackenzie "the greatest public health problem in Canada today."

The spread of venereal diseases was dependent in very large measure upon ignorance, Mr. Mackenzie said in an address prepared for delivery over the trans-Canada network of the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation last night as part of a "National Hygiene Day" campaign by the Health League of Canada to educate the public of the seriousness of these diseases.

Dr. C. W. MacMillan, Chief Medical Health Officer for New Brunswick, said in a radio address following Mr. Mackenzie that some 200,000 persons in Canada suffer from syphilis.

Dr. Henri Groulx, Quebec Minister of Health and Public Welfare, said at Montreal that Quebec intends through a carefully studied social hygiene program to prevent venereal diseases and to furnish appropriate informaton on their cause, nature and seriousness.

At Toronto, Dr. Gordon Bates, chairman of the Health League of Canada, last night said there has been a serious increase in syphilis cases in Toronto over the last six years.

He told a meeting sponsored by the league in connection with social hygiene day that 995 cases of early syphilis and 3,752 cases of late syphilis were reported in Toronto in 1943 compared with 373 and 3,266 shown in a 1937 survey. Total cases of syphilis and gonorrhea in the city during 1943 were 6,342, a rate of 8.7 cases per 1,000 citizens.

At Halifax, Dr. F. R. Davis, Nova Scotia Minister of Health, said the defence department and health authorities have launched the greatest campaign against venereal diseases ever attempted in Canada.

6 Nazi Columns Smashed by Tito In Slovenia Area

London, Feb. 3—(CP)—Yugoslav troops have smashed six German columns attempting to break through Partisan defences into liberated territory in Slovenia, Marshal Josip Broz (Tito) announced today.

Tito said these recent successes against the Germans had been aided materially by a substantial incease in supplies sent him by the Allies during the past month and by Allied sea and air assaults against German positions in Yugoslavia.

"These increased deliveries have fulfilled the hopes expressed at the second session of the council of the Yugoslav government of liberation," a spokesman said over the Free Yugoslav radio. "Our Allies may rest assured that these war materials will be put to the best possible use, as they are in the hands of seasoned fighters. It is hoped that the greatest possible quantity of supplies will be received in the future."

Richard K. Law, British Minister of State, said recently Tito was receiving the bulk of Allied help because he was doing most of the fighting against the Germans in Yugoslavia.

German attacks so far have been scattered, Tito's communique said, but it added grim fighting continued.

Tito's bulletin said fierce struggles were in progress along the Croat and Dalmatian coastal areas, where the Nazis were trying to prevent the landing of Allied supplies for Tito's forces.

RATS IN ABUNDANCE

Toronto, Feb. 3 (CP)—"There are rats, rats, big as alley cats in the stores—stores of scrap metal in an unenclosed yard in the Dundas-Humbercrest district, complain residents of the area. Deputy Reeve Robert Gray reported to York township council this week that residents fear the rodents may spread disease.

FUTURE OF CANADA THREATENED

Oakville, Feb. 3 (CP) — "The future of every Canadian is being crippled by the spread of the buying fever," said Mrs. Ryland H. New of Oakville upon her return from a five-day national conference of the consumer branch, Prices Board, Ottawa. She warned Canada's buying spree is letting the nation in for "a depression much blacker and more terrible than that of the 30's."

London, Feb. 3 —(CP) —If the methods of Gandhi will stimulate interest in feeding the children of Europe then Dr. Alfred Salter is quite willing to risk his health, sapped by a chronic heart ailment, and his years, 71, in employing them.

For two days the labor member of parliament for the London Borough of Bermondsey went without food in an attempt to "arouse public opinion to the sufferings of starving Europe." At the end of that time he said that he hadn't felt better "in a long time" and prophesied: "Next time it is possible that I will fast for a week."

It's not that the good doctor believes his fast will move Britain in any great degree. He laments "christian public opinion is horribly obtuse . . . The public is callous . . . No longer affected by brutality."

But "food for Europe" remains his No. 1 interest in life now that his role in parliament is more or less that of a silent onlooker.

His fast was in line with a plan devised by the peace pledge union which wants food sent to the starving people of the continent. It called upon 20 prominent people to fast and to remain anonymous, to "avoid personal publicity."

People:

The new Lord Ammon of Camberwell, first trade union official to attain peerage rank, is reported likely to be offered a colonial governorship. Widely travelled, the former labor member for Camberwell has a particular interest in Newfoundland and as Charles Ammon, M. P., led the recent parliamentary mission to that colony . . .

The death of Labor Party Chairman George Ridley returned to the administrative committee—nicknamed the "opposition cabinet"—of the parliamentary Labor Party Emmanuel Shinwell. His new interest in the Empire has fellow M. P.'s guessing at the future course of this outspoken, strong individualist. Shinwell's defeat in the original elections to the administrative committee was a surprise . . .

Ex-schoolmaster, ex-taxi-driver, ex-cafe owner, ex-company director Eric Troward has brought forth the latest in parties—the liberator centre movement. Troward left the common wealth party because it was "too extreme" but his claim to have taken 80 common wealth branches with him is sturdily denied by that party. His platform is studded with slogans like "landlords to be abolished . . . Unemployment to be abolished . . .better salaries . . ."

ANNIHILATION OF 10 NAZI DIVISIONS UNDER WAY

German Efforts To Dislodge Beachhead Repulsed

10,000 of Trapped Germans Already Have Been Killed

Messages of Despair Inditate Condition Of the Enemy West Of Cherkasy

NARVA BY-PASSED

By EDDIE GILMORE
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Moscow, Feb. 4 (AP) — Systematic extermination by the Red Army of ten encircled German divisions in the Upper Dnieper bend was well under way today, the army newspaper Red Star said, while the main Soviet forces continued to forge westward from the Ukraine to the Baltic.

The midnight communique indicated nearly 10,000 of the trapped Germans already were killed.

The situation west of Cherkasy, where nine infantry and one tank divisions have been trapped by a great five-day offensive, presented "the same picture as Stalingrad," Major Pavel Orender said in a Red Star dispatch.

Groups of Wanderers

Thousands of German units have become "groups of wanderers" within the ring which the troops of Gens. Nikolai Vatutin and Ivan S. Konev are tightening around them, Orender asserted.

The Germans were said to be in an exhausted condition, although dispatches said nothing of their surrendering in any large numbers. Generally the Nazis were trying to congregate on the banks of swollen streams and in swamps.

No dispatches estimated the number of surrounded Germans, but it seems safe to assume the total was in the neighborhood of 100,000.

Rivers within the encirclement include the Olshanka and Sukhoy Tashlik emptying into the Dnieper and various streams which pour into the unfrozen Irdyn swamps north of captured Smela.

The weather was springlike, correspondents said.

Messages Intercepted

A dispatch to Izvestia said the situation of the trapped Germans could be gauged from some of their messages which had been intercepted.

"Conditions critical, what shall we do?" one asked.

The reply was, "assemble near railway."

"What shall we do with guns?" then asked the commander.

"Abandon guns, save your lives," came the answer.

The dispatch said the Russians were capturing tremendous amounts of guns, tanks and machine-guns. Photographs from the front showed big artillery pieces apparently in perfect condition taken by Gen. Konev's troops.

There were no Russian reports from the sector farthest west where Gen. Vatutin's 1st. Army of the Ukraine was last reported closing in on Rowne from three sides, but there was reason to believe that this front was active again.

(The German high command announced yesterday that Rowne and Lutsk (Luck), 50 miles from the Bug River, had been abandoned by Nazi troops.)

May Have Waited Too Long

At the Baltic end of the 1,200-mile front the Red Army commanded by Gen. Leonid A. Govorov by-passed Narva on both the north and south and indicatins were that the Germans had waited too long to evacuate the city. There may be another large loss in lives and equipment, since the Soviets hold at least five villages in the Estonian Republic and that number should be increased by nightfall.

German resistance was fierce in places, but the commanders appeared unable to execute any clear plan of defence.

A Red Star dispatch from the Volkhov front said units of Spanish battalions had suffered another heavy defeat and that one captive testified his battalion of the "Blue" division had lost about 850 men killed and captured. Stores and equipment had been abandoned, he said.

Between Lake Ilmen and Lake Peipus the Germans were being rolled back, but fought stubbornly, especially striving to protect the Leningrad-Pskov railway from being cut below Luga.

MAY COME TO CANADA

Toronto, Feb. 4 —(CP)— British aircraft manufacturers are coming to Canada after the war to establish large manufacturing plants, Agriculture Minister T. L. Kennedy of Ontario told the Ontario Vegetable Growers' Association at their annual banquet here last night. Col. Kennedy said he hoped soon to announce "glorious news" of the establishing of new industries in the coming summer.

R.C.A.F. Fighters Down Two Planes

London, Feb. 4 — (CP Cable) — R.C.A.F. fighters destroyed two enemy aircraft last night — one over Great Britain and one over northern France — an R. C. A. F. communique announced today.

Canadian bombers laid mines in enemy waters, it was reported.

No Canadian aircraft are missing from these operations.

The enemy plane destroyed over northern France was a Junkers 88 shot down by the Mosquito-Intruder team of Lt. Tommy Anderson of Winnipeg and FO. Frank Cadman of Victoria. The Junkers went down in flames and exploded.

Both Anderson and Cadman are recent arrivals from Canada and were on their second operational flight.

Details of the destruction of the enemy aircraft shot down over this country were not immediately available.

Woodring Says Hull for President

Chicago, Feb. 4 (AP) — Harry H. Woodring, former Secretary of War, proposed today that the Democrats nominate someone like Secretary of State Cordell Hull for president, and announced he would call a national convention of "loyal" party members to consolidate their forces.

In a speech denouncing what he termed "the palace guard," the former Kansas governor also suggested that Hull—if elected—could appoint President Roosevelt chief of the American delegation to the peace conference.

The erstwhile Roosevelt cabinet member, conferring with associates here on plans to bring together party members opposed to a fourth term for the president, defined his views in an address prepared for delivery before the executives club.

Prisoner Wanted To Join R.C.N.

A British Port, Feb. 4 (CP) — Survivors of the German submarine sunk in the Atlantic recently by the Royal Navy Frigade Nene, and the Canadian Corvettes Snowberry and Calgary may have been disturbed by the British Broadcasting Corporation news broadcasts to which they were permitted to listen every day—but it didn't affect their appetites.

The prisoners were so impressed with the treatment accorded them aboard Snowberry that one of them asked to see the commanding officer, Lieut. J. A. (Hamish) Dunn of Montreal and Victoria.

He wanted to join the Royal Canadian Navy, stay with the Corvette, and fight out the war on the side of the Allies. His request was not granted, and he was packed off to a prison camp with his fellow survivors.

Moping Up Scattered Jap Forces On Namur Is. Grim Work for Marines

(By GEORGE E. JONES)
(Distributed by Canadian Press)

Namur Island, Feb. 4—Scattered snipers and unseen enemy wounded remain on this shattered, stinking island, but the actual end of sustained combat came at 1 p.m. Wednesday as the Marines pressed in for the kill.

Organized enemy resistance was ended, and even the toughened, battle-hardened Marines were disgusted with the task of wiping out Japanese troops who hovered on the borderline of insanity as the result of the Allied bombardment and the ensuing hopeless retreat across the island.

Only a few score Japanese of the original force whho garrisoned Namur and the adjoining island of Roi were left as a ring of Marine gunfire tightened about their defensive position, which probably was a command post.

Their fight was hopeless from the very beginning. It was a murderous bombardment, then an inevitable retreat in the face of superior marine fire power. Light mobile artillery, flame throwers and bazookas thundered and rocked against the crumbling concrete pillboxes and then thhe Japanese were surrounded.

End Came Quickly

Most remained in hiding, waiting the end which came quickly in most cases. Only a few tried to break the engagement, and they could not make it.

It was on this battlefield when the staccato chatter of machine-guns and the resonant thumps of Marine mortars died away. For more than four hours I had been dodging sniper bullets as I poked among the ruins, and the silence seemed unnatural.

In their two-day battle, the Japanese resorted to a few of their favorite tactics. During the night some crawled back into wrecked pillboxes and had to be killed yesterday morning.

The most ambitious manouevre of this kind involved a half-dozen riflemen who sneaked into a dugout and harassed rear echelons until an unidentified sergeant walked inside alone with a garand and killed them all.

The Marines brought aahore a large assortment of heavy weapons past the wrecked beach defences. The battle, however, became like French-and-Indian warfare — tree to tree, men flopping into the coral soil behind available protection when hidden enemy rifles and machine-guns opened fire, then circling the flanking pocket of resistance and finally destroying it with grenades and bullets.

CONQUEST OF ALL KWAJALEIN ATOLL NEARLY IN SIGHT

Core of Japanese Defence in Marshalls Under Pressure by U.S. Fighting Men

LIGHT CASUALTIES

By CHARLES H. McMURTRY
Associated Press Staff Writer

Pearl Harbor, Feb. 4 — (AP) — Fighting men, tanks and guns, pouring ashore to annihilate the dwindling forces of Japanese defenders, appeared today to be on the verge of conquering All Kwajalein, largest Atoll in the Marshalls and core of that enemy defence system.

As the invasion moved through its fifth day, preliminary reports told of light, American losses during the achievement of a strong entering wedge into mid-Pacific positions Japan has held for 25 years.

Rear-Admiral Richmond K. Turner, commander of the amphibious operations—as he was last November during the bloody investment of the Gilberts—said assault losses were far under what had been expected.

American casulaties were placed at 27 dead, nine missing and 190 wounded.

Roi Quickly Overrun

The north end of the Atoll, with the airdrome at Roi and the adjacent repair and dispersal base of Namur, were entirely in the hands of United States marines. Roi was quickly overrun Tuesday and yesterday. Preliminary estimates of American losses at Roi and Namur were less than 100 killed and 400 wounded.

On the basis, it seemed unlikely that the full report would show marine losses anything comparable with the casualties of approximately 3,000 suffered in capturing the air base of Tarawa in the Gilberts.

The bulk of Kwajalein's more than 32 islets now are in American hands.

The only remaining enemy opposition of consequence appeared to be on Kwajalein island at the southern end of the Atoll. There, where an airfield and a deep anchorage are the prizes, army troops which landed Tuesday pushed the Japanese against the northeastern end of the island.

The surprisingly light losses among the invaders were accounted for in large part of the devastation of the intensive, preparatory naval and air assaults.

Three Heavily-Laden Nazi Blockade Runners Sunk, Rubber Salvaged

Washington, Feb. 4 (AP)—Three German blockade runners laden with war materials from Japanese-held Pacific ports have been sunk by American destroyers in South Atlantic.

The United States navy, announcing this today, said that the holds of the enemy ships were filled to capacity with thousands of tons of rubber, tins, fats and strategic ores. Some of those materials, particularly hundreds of tons of baled rubber, were salvaged and many prisoners were taken.

Seeking to sneak through the Allied blockade, the three ships — The Burgenland, Rio Grand and Weserland—were sighted and sunk within a 48-hour period "early in January," the navy reported.

The blockade runners were chased down by the Cruiser Omaha, which already had one blockade runner to its credit; the Destroyer Jouett, which bagged a German submarine in the Atlantic several months ago, and the Destroyer Somers.

First surface contact was made by the Somers, which ran down the Weserland in the darkness of early morning, identifying the vessel as an enemy. The Somers immediately opened fire.

The initial salvo hit the German ship and the crew hastened to abandon ship, but first they carried out their orders to scuttle the ship.

Internal explosions blasted the Weserland but she remained afloat. Shells from the Somers' guns completed the job of sending the blockade runner to the bottom. Many of her crew were picked up when daylight came.

The Cruiser Omaha and the Destroyer Jouett accounted for the second of the three enemy craft.

A lookout in the Omaha's foretop and the pilot of her scouting plane sighted the 6,062-ton Rio Grande almost simultaneously.

Racing in, the Omaha and Jouett were drawing near to the stranger when she burst into smoke and flames. Demolition charges, the Navy said, had been placed and fired by the crew of the Rio Grande. Again the American warships turned their guns on the vessel and she soon sank.

The Omaha-Jouett team joined again in sinking the 7,320-ton Burgenland. As they sped in for attack, internal explosion of demolition charges rocked that enemy ship and again destruction was completed by shell fire.

MOSQUITOS RAID MANY TARGETS IN WEST GERMANY

Germans Stage "Pocket Blitz" on London With 70 Planes

FOUR PLANES DOWNED

London, Feb. 4 — (CP) — Strong formations of American heavy bombers escorted by Allied fighters bombed Germany for the second straight day today, hitting at targets in the western Reich, United States Army headquarters here announced.

The United States attacks followed a night during which R. A. F. Mosquito bombers also attacked targets in western Germany.

R.A.F. and R.C.A.F. Intruders ranged over northern France last night, and minelayers invaded enemy waters, it was announced today.

While the Allied offensive on Germany was continued, the Nazis staged a "pocket blitz" on London.

Striking in two waves for the first time since Jan. 21, the Germans sent about 70 planes in their attacks against London, but only about 20 reached the London area.

The first wave came in from the south about 9 p.m. and fanned out over three counties. Eight hours later a slightly larger force concentrated on the Thames Estuary district, touchedd off a thunderous anti-aircraft barrage and dropped bombs haphazardly in some districts causing an undisclosed number of casualties.

This second group scattered hundreds of incendiaries in a path across shops and streets in one London district and started several fires. All but one of them was extinguished by fireguards, however, before the first engines arrived.

A 19-year-old Canadian private was among 12 persons requiring hospital treatment in the London district struck during the second raid.

British ground defenders shot down three Dornier 217's and a Junker 188.

An Allied communique last night said all operations yesterday, which included medium and light bomber attacks on the French invasion coast in the afternoon after the American 1,100-plane morning attack on Wilhelmshaven, had cost the Allied air forces four heavy bombers, nine fighters and two fighter bombers.

Nine Nazi planes were knocked down as the Americans rumbled to Wilhelmshaven and dumped 1,500 tons of bombs on the shipbuilding and naval base.

WOMAN SPENDS TWO HOURS FOR CONTEMPT OF COURT SENTENCE

Windsor, Feb. 4—(CP)—Two hours in jail was a contempt of court sentence imposed by Judge J. J. Coughlin here yesterday upon Mrs. Sylvia Boydan, who sought revenge against a $5.80 divisional court decision awarded Mrs. J. Birau of Tecumseh. No sooner outside the court room were the two principals when Mrs. Boydan tackled Mrs. Birau, pulling her hair in a wild affray.

SPAIN REAFFIRMS STRICT POSITION OF NEUTRALITY

Cabinet in Special Session Under Franco Studies the Situation

BRITAIN CRITICIZED

Madrid, Feb. 4—(AP)—The Spanish cabinet, its way prepared by a host of editorials accusing the British of trying to high-pressure Spain into abandoning her neutrality, reaffirmed "a position of strict neutrality" Thursday night after a special meeting at which it reviewed the international situation.

The cabinet, meeting at the urgent call of General Franco, also announced it had studied means of making this neutrality respected and that it planned to make all foreigners in Spain as well as Spanish nationalists conform.

"The government is prepared to submit to no pressure under any circumstances whatever its right to maintain firmly such a position of neutrality," the communique said. "Every country is obliged to respect this attitude as an act of indisputable sovereignty."

(The Spanish reaffirmation of neutrality provoked speculation in London as to whether Franco had made a deal with Germany to obtain oil which the Allies now are withholding.

(Recent British press attacks on Franco were given strength yesterday by Parliamentary Secretary Dingle M. Foot's disclosure of German penetration in Spanish industry. The Laborite Weekly Tribune hinted that British leaders have further steps in mind in an action "only one degree less momentous than that which launched our country on the war against Nazism.")

In the flood of editorials in the Spanish press in the past week in connection with Spain's position not one attacked the United States. All criticized Britain.

The communique mentioned no names, but coming on top of the press comments there was no doubt what inspired it and to what it referred.

No Canadians Aboard Ship

Halifax, Feb. 4 — (CP) — No Canadians were aboard a coal-laden steamer lost on a voyage from Halifax to Saint John, N.B., last week, authorities here said today.

The vessel, carrying 26 men, was believed to have struck a ledge and foundered near the mouth of the Bay of Fundy with all hands. Nine bodies have drifted ashore in the area about Digby, N.S.

Identification of the ship and her nationality was still being withheld. Officials said an investigation was being made in an attempt to determine how she was lost.

Eight of the bodies that drifted ashore have been identified as members of the ship's crew. Four of the men were to be buried here today.

GERMANS RENEW PRESSURE ON POPE TO ABANDON ROME

Nazis Give Warning They Intend to Defend Capital Step by Step

POPE WILL NOT LEAVE

London, Feb. 4 —(CP)— A thinly-veiled warning that the Germans intend to defend Rome step by step, whatever the destruction entailed, is reported to have been conveyed to Pope Pius XII by the Nazis, who apparently have been trying for some time to persuade His Holiness to go to Germany.

The Ankara radio said the warning had been handed the Pope by Baron Ernst von Wiezsaecker, German ambassador to the Vatican, in the form of a statement from Field Marshal Albert Kesselring, saying the ultimate fate of Rome necessarily will be "subject to military considerations."

Vatican Makes it Plain.

At the same time the Vatican radio made it plain the Pope has no intention of leaving Rome. In a broadcast recorded here last night by the Associated Press the Vatican said:—

"Pius XII, since the very beginning of the war, has refused to abandon his Rome, always wishing to be present and partake in all the moral and material sufferings of the world, bleeding from the great torture.

"The Pope has always wanted Rome to be in the front line of spiritual resurrection. He has given the most tangible proof of his profound pastoral charity during the raids on Rome, bringing to the stricken inhabitants words of faith and of resignation as well as material aid profuse with sovereign generosity."

Whether this broadcast was intended as a response to the message said to have been given the Pontiff by Von Weizsaecker was not clear. The tone of the statement, however, seemed to confirm recurring reports that the Germans have been trying to prevail upon the Pope to come to Germany.

Would Like to Defend Pope.

German propagandists, who have pictured Hitler as Europe's great bulwark against Communism, presumably would relish an opportunity to represent him to the world as the defender of the Pope's person.

Dispatches from Berne quoted the newspaper La Suisse of Geneva as saying that Vatican City is following closely the campaign of the Soviet press accusing it of Fascist leanings. In reply to this accusation, La Suisse said, Vatican circles cite the fact that the Fascist press is continually attacking the Holy See on the grounds that it opposes the new Fascist government of Benito Mussolini.

These opposing accusations, it was argued, demonstrate that the Vatican has actually kept aloof from politics.

General Wilson Undertakes Tough Assignments Without Excitement

By HAL BOYLE
(AP War Correspondent)

An Advanced Command Post in Italy, Feb. 4 — (AP) — His name is Sir Henry Maitland Wilson, but everyone from general to private refers to the top Allied commander in the Mediterranean theatre by his nickname, "Jumbo," but only when he's out of earshot.

He is not the kind of man with whom you try to take personal liberties. He is garguantan physically, and officers who admire him say he has proportionate military ability. He stands well over six feet. His weight is an empire secret. He is 62.

He looks like a kindly overgrown Mister Pickwick right out of Dickens, chiefly because of the intent way he peers over his old fashioned tortoise-shelled half lens glasses.

When you enter his office for a press conference he is on his feet waiting to welcome you with a nod and a word. There is a floodlighted relief map of Italy on one wall. Pictures of non-military subjects adorn the other whitewashed walls.

The general works alone behind a flattop desk. It has on it an "in" box and an "out" box, and in and out of these two go reports affecting the lives of hundreds of thousands of Allied troops. He commands a whole theatre of war over one telephone.

Sir Henry speaks without a strong British accent and has a tonal quality slightly resembling that of President Roosevelt. He speaks precisely and vigorously but without emotion and discusses a military operation as if he were viewing it from the moon. He thinks well on his feet and, if the information sought isn't secret, gives a quick, direct answer.

The general has had some of the toughest assignments of any British military officer. Until now he has always been asked to do much with little, as in the Greek campaign. His friends say that as assistant to Wavell his generalship was a large factor in the early successes in Libya, when a small British force knocked out 10 times as many Italians, forcing the Germans to extend into Africa.

Support Assaults With Heavy Guns And Tank Charges

Attack and Cassino Resistance Part of Plan to Fight Off Threat of Trap

BLOODY FIGHTING

By RICHARD G. MASSOCK
(AP War Correspondent)

Allied Headquarters in Italy, Feb. 4 —(AP)— Marshal Erwin Rommel was reported back in Italy directing Nazi strategy today and Allied Headquarters disclosed that the Germans have launched their expected big offensive against the Anzio landing head below Roe, supporting their assaults with heavy fire power and tank charges.

On the main 5th Army front Americans were fighting fiercely in the outskirts of Cassino, using tanks against Germans who had to be cleaned out of dugouts and cellars in methodical fashion.

The offensive aimed at driving the British and American troops back into the sea from their beachhead and the tough house-to-house resistance offered at Cassino appeared to be the twin parts of a German strategy to fight off the Allied threat at trapping a large part of the German 10th Army.

On the 8th Army front there was vigorous patrolling and British troops occupied Toricella, south of Orsogna and 20 miles inland, where the Germans withdrew from a mountain wedge and left the Allied line running almost straight south from Casolini to Saint Angelo.

The Germans, reinforced along the perimeter of the Anzio bridgehead, struck four times against British and American troops who are reported to have more than six divisions ashore. The German air force, almost absent from Italian skies for several days, returned to support the thrusts.

In each case, Allied Headquarters said, the Germans were repulsed with heavy losses and the Allies improved their positions slightly.

The enemy opened his offensive with three successive thrusts north of Padiglione, eight miles north-west of Anzio. They also lunged out at the Americans who, in the area west of Cisterna, had driven to the outskirts of that Appian Way town 14 miles northeast of Anzio.

MANY PARCELS NOT DELIVERED

Vancouver, Feb. 4—(CP)—Because of Japanese refusal of supply necessary transportation for Red Cross parcels from a Russian Port, or to distribute those that do reach Japan, many parcels for Canadian prisoners-of-war in Japanese territory are not delivered, Col. J. H. Wood, of Toronto, Assistant National Commissioner for the Canadian Red Cross, said yesterday.

PLANE WRECKAGE REPORTED

Hollywood, Feb. 4 —(AP)— Two fliers reported they had sighted wreckage of a plane near Hollywood Lake. Police rushed to the scene with an ambulance and found the plane. It was an old one used as a movie "prop."

British Aircraft Production In Healthy State

London, Feb. 4—(CP)— Aircraft production, which since the early days of the war has had first priority on British labor, soon will undergo a reduction in its personnel because the "program is in such a healthy state," the Daily Mail said today.

"Thousands of men and girls long employed in the aircraft industry," the newspaper added, "soon will be called into the services or will be transferred to other war work. The production program is in such a healthy state and the labor position has been so successfully dealt with that the industry can afford to dispense with some workers.

"This follows the biggest output year in British aircraft production history."

Fijian Troops Fighting Japs At Bougainville

Bougainville, Feb. 4—(AP)—Fijian troops, commanded by New Zealand officers, are fighting the Japanese for the first time and the battle-hardened United States marines have developed a profound respect for their Allies' jungle fighting skill.

To these Fijians, with 3½ years of intensive training behind them, the Japanese are mere amateurs in the ways of the jungle. Whenever they have met a Jap, the Fijians have caught the enemy off balance.

The first time the Fijians went out on patrol they met seven Japs, three the second time. The score: ten Japanese were killed and not one Fijian injured.

Captain J. W. Gosling, one of their Fiji-born white officers, is proud of his men, who can ghost through the jungle with the silence of lizards, and who have been known to set out on a two-week patrol with food for only four days.

Even the Jap is known to prefer trails, but these men shun trails as the devil. The marines know what a slow, tortuous job it is to cover distance in the vine-barbed, swampy jungle. Yet the Fijians have been known to make 35 miles through the brush in three days.

The Fijis are a group of some 250 islands, but actually only 80 are populated. The islands, first discovered in 1643, became a British crown colony in 1874.

Izvestia Taken To Task by Times

New York, Feb. 4 (CP) — The New York Times today took to task the Moscow paper Izvestia for its charge that the Vatican is pro-Fascist.

Noting that Izvestia "ought to be well enough informed" to know that that Vatican is a neutral state with which Britain and the United States have "friendly and confident relations," the Times' editorial said:

"Izvestia's attack is damaging to the unity on which victory depends. It is all the more disconcerting because it comes at the very moment when an Allied army stands at the gates of Rome and when an Allied commission, in which Russia is a full partner, must soon accept new responsibilities for salvaging what can be saved in Italy."

NUMBER OF PARCELS BEING SENT OVERSEAS

Whether or not the almost entire lack of season winter weather has local residents slightly mixed up about the season and as a result are thinking that Christmas is still to come, is a question which is being pondered by stamp officials at the Belleville post office these days.

At any rate there has been a tremendous influx of parcels being posted for soldiers and other servicemen overseas and they are not merely small parcels of cigarettes. Practically all day Thursday residents lined up in front of the stamp wicket at the post office waiting to have parcels weighed for shipment overseas. "And there were very few small parcels," commended one stamp vendor. "Practically all were heavy parcels destined for soldiers overseas."

RECEIVES WOUNDS ON ANNIVERSARY OF ENLISTMENT

Exactly four years to the day from the time he enlisted in the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment, Sgt. James R. McCaw, of this city, was wounded during the fighting in Italy, it has been learned by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. William J. McCaw, 268 George St., Belleville. Fortunately the wounds were slight and after medical attention returned to duty, it was stated.

Born in North Hastings, Sgt. McCaw enlisted December 26th, 1939, but on account of not yet being 18 years of age, he was not despatched overseas with the First Contingent. He was still under 18, however, when he went across early in 1940 with a reinforcement unit. Married since going overseas, his wife resides at Bognor Regis in Sussex, England.

Associates Present Him With Lounge Chair

An employee of the Civil Service since February, 1920, Mr. Hugh A. Ross, 66, has retired from the Belleville Customs and Excise Service after 24 years' association with the office. Following his official retirement appreciation of his lengthy term of service was tendered this week by the combined staffs of the Belleville and Corbyville offices when they presented him with a lounge chair.

Formerly a farmer in Prince Edward County, Mr. Ross is a veteran of the First Great War, going overseas with the 59th Battalion. On his return to Canada he was appointed to the Soldiers' Settlement Board at Kingston and in 1920 entered the Civil Service at Belleville. He served progressively as customs and excise clerk; express and postal clerk and as cashier and computing clerk. He was appointed as chief clerk in 1938.

"Mr. Ross was a most loyal employee of the service," he said. "All members of the staff express to him their heartiest wishes for a happy retirement."

Child Delinquency Theme of Discussion

Dr. and Mrs. A. J. Myers acted as host and hostess to the January meeting of the Young Women's Guild this week. The business meeting included a report of the recent Citizen's Committee meeting to which Mrs. M. Buck was appointed as representative. It has been decided to hold the regular meetings on the fourth Monday in order to avoid conflicting with the C.B.C. listening groups.

Miss Hazel Thompson led a short worship service with a Scripture reading from Proverbs and enlarging on the fatherly care of God towards all His children; she also spoke of the children's responsibility to obey the Father's wishes. This service closed with a prayer for guidance.

The topic of the evening "Child Delinquency" was led by Miss Marjorie Robins whose assistants were Dorothy Kirkpatrick, Mrs. R. Gibson, Mrs. W. Hurst and Mrs. G. Wishart. Various members read clippings describing different acts of delinquency. Statistics were presented to get a picture of the situation in the Dominion, in Toronto, and in Belleville.

Causes.

The causes of delinquency were discussed under the following heads:

Overcrowding and bad housing, Inadequate and improper recreation, Broken homes, Absence of constructive influence of father, Mother working without adequate arrangements for alternate care, Slack or irresponsible parental supervision, Inmature adolescents with considerable wages to spend and overdose of battle news and bloodshed from radio, paper and movies.

Defines Delinquency.

Miss Kirpatrick defined delinquency as a state of being, delinquents being those who have made wrong adjustments to life, sometimes through contacts with wrong people.

In studying what is being done for delinquents now Juvenile Courts were mentioned and the main difference between regular and juvenile ones is that juvenile ones have power to convict adults, if they are contributing to a child's delinquency.

Mrs. Hurst described the modern Training School as positive, constructive and helpful, with rewards and punishments for behaviour. Homes should be carefully prepared for their homecoming as cures. Unfortunately public opinion is still prejudiced against trainees. It is to be deplored that the regular training schools are not available now to delinquent children.

Mrs. Gibson told of the good work done by such groups as "Big Brothers,", "Big Sisters," "Neighborhood Workers", "Family Agencies" and Foster Homes.

Constructive Aids.

Better enforcement of school attendance. Development of school curricula to provide adequate training for present day needs. Development of extra curricular activities. structive recreational facilities with structive recreational facilities w skilled leadership. Utilization of schools as adolescent centres under adequate leadership. Satisfactory day care program for children of working mothers, particularly school age group. Strengthening of home life, building up family relationship through greater sense of parental responsibility through parent education classes and case work treatment of family problems, also greater responsibility of church and community leaders re needs of youth and for development of plans to meet them.

A description of the way a community met their local problems with a constructive program of recreation for adolescent children to keep their minds and hands out of mischief closed the topic of the evening.

A social hour with simple refreshments was enjoyed by the members and guests. Those who wish to entertain the Guild please contact Mrs. Andrews (nee Muriel Wardner).

Acting Sgt. Phillips Believed Killed in Action in Italy

Harold Boy One of First to Land at Kiska—Went Overseas Last November

LETTER OF TRIBUTE

Acting Sergeant Earl D. Phillips, R.R. No. 1, Harold, is reported as "missing and believed killed in action" on December 3. A/Sgt. Phillips was 24 years old last May, and was a native of this county. He was formerly in the Canadian Army stationed at Peterborough and in October, 1940, transferred to the First Special Service Force, proceeding overseas during November, 1943.

Mrs. Mabel Irene Phillips, wife of Sgt. Phillips, had received official word from Ottawa announcing that her husband had been reported missing about seven weeks ago, and a second telegram from The Director of Records dated December 27, stating that information received from Canadian Military Headquarters Overseas reported her husband believed killed in action on the 3rd day of December, 1943.

Letter From Headquarters.

A letter from the headquarters, First Special Service Force, New York City, was received later by Mrs. Phillips which read: "It is with deep sympathy that I am writing you about your husband, E. D. Phillips, who has been missing since December 3rd. Your husband was a member of this command and went with his unit into combat against the enemy. He and his comrades behaved bravely and well in the face of danger and acquitted themselves proudly. The unit successfully accomplished its battle missions but, as must happen when brave men engage in combat, some of our comrades were lost.

"Your husband has not been seen or heard from since December 3, at which time this command was in action against the enemy in Italy. It is possible that he may later be found as a prisoner of war in the hands of the enemy, but to this time we have no trace of information of him. We can only hope that he may return safely.

Acting Sergeant Earl D. Phillips, Harold, believed killed in action.

"The loss of your husband is deeply felt in this command. While we fully realize the magnitude of your loss and the degree of your sorrow, be assured that our feeling of loss can be second only to that of our missing comrade's loved ones.

"Canada and the Army can well take pride in the gallant service of your husband. He shall remain in our memory and shall inspire us in the fight against a ruthless and dangerous enemy.

"Please accept our sincere and heartfelt sympathy and know that we pray for your husband's safe return". The letter was signed by Colonel Robert T. Frederick, Officer Commanding the First Special Service Force.

Sgt. Earl Phillips had the unique experience of being the first man in the second rubber boat to land on Kiska Island during the Allied occupation of that Island last year. His unit spent five days on Kiska when they were relieved by a holding unit. Sgt. Phillips brought home some interesting Japanese souvenirs.

He has four brothers Norman, living in Brighton, and Russell, Robert and Leonard, at home and four sisters, Mrs. Don Buck of Trenton, and Lulu, Hazel and Betty at home.

Besides his parents, brothers and sisters and his wife, he has a ten-months-old daughter, Joan.

A.L.I. 'R' Battalion Praised By Inspecting Officer At Annual Inspection of Unit

Col. L. W. W. Slack Also Compliments C. W. S. F. Who Paraded With the Reserve Battalion

INSPECTS ARMOURIES

Not only did Col. L. W. W. Slack, M.C., V.D., officer commanding the 33rd Reserve Brigade, compliment the First Battalion Argyll Light Infantry Reserve on their general drill, but he personally remarked it was the complete training exemplified last night that was "far better than one could anticipate." The occasion came at the annual inspection of the Argyll Light Infantry at the Armouries with Col. Slack as chief inspecting officer, assisted by Captain J. C. Joslyn, staff officer of Military District No. 3 Kingston.

With a goodly number of civilian spectators in the gallery to watch the inspection, Lieut.-Col. B. C. Donnan E.D., officer commanding the unit, led the battalion for the general march past when Col. Slack took the salute and included in the reviewing party was Lieut.-Col. A B. Gribble, former O.C. of the unit. The reviewing party paid special attention to the equipment of the unit, the Argyll pipe band and the C.W.S.F., under Major Marion Harden, as the reserve army women's unit marched smartly in review. The inspecting officer had a special word of praise for the pipe band, as he observed women pipers and drummers included in the numbers.

Impressed With Physique.

"What impresses me here tonight is the fine physique of the men of this unit. It is remarkable what can be accomplished with so little training that is afforded the members of the reserve army," Col. Slack stated.

"Our idea in reserve army training is principally to teach civilians how to use and take care of gas equipment and weapons. You have here all up-to-date equipment and judging from the inspection of classes you and your officers are taking a keen interest in your training.

"I might add that this training will definitely be a benefit to all in your civilian life," added Col. Slack as he revealed the fact Canada has a reserve army strength of over 100,000 men. Col. Slack addressed the officers of the unit and congratulated them on the fine marching following the general review and explained there was a more urgent need for reserve training not with the active forces in a world war. He added that the reserves would be an important part in the future as a foundation of Canada's military strength.

In Full Battle Dress.

The Argyll Light Infantry appeared in full battle dress for parade and following a general inspection of the Armouries, that took him into stores and the armory, Col. Slack expressed satisfaction upon the general condition of all equipment now available for reserve army training in Belleville.

While class in Bren gun, map reading, small arms and rifle drill was in progress, Lieut.-Col. Donnan took the inspecting officer upon a general tour of the Armouries. One of the feature drills was an impromptu fire drill that saw the building vacated in a matter of seconds.

Major A. Ketcheson and Captain K. R. Holmes, battalion adjutant, assisted Captain Joslyn in his inspection of the orderly rooms, where activities were carried out in general order.

C.W.S.F. Praised

The reviewing party paid special attention to the local unit of the C.W.S.F., who joined the Argyll for inspection, under Major Harden. Col. Slack paid special tribute to the reserve ladies' army. "Their marching and general appearance is to be commended upon as it shows they are taking a marked interest in their training. I was also pleased to see ladies in the pipe band," stated Col. Slack.

City Food Merchants to Participate In War Savings Stamp Campaign

The food merchants, retail and wholesale, of Belleville and district will participate in the second annual war savings stamp campaign to be sponsored by the food industry of Canada. The campaign will be launched immediately and will continue throughout the month. The national objective is $2,000,000 in war savings stamps and certificates, and the local objective is set at $20,000.

That means that the people of Belleville and District are going to be asked this month to lend a further $20,000 to the Dominion of Canada, at three per cent compound interest, as an additional investment in the victory of the Allied Nations.

Employees of the food industry are undertaking to ask the public in the stores, in restaurants, and along the delivery routes to buy these Victory Stamps. Also participating in the city drive will be hotels, milk and bread companies, all of which have promised to give their full support to the promotion of war stamps and certificate sales during February.

The retail food merchants and their suppliers are in an ideal position to reach all Canadians with a War Savings appeal. They have an opportunity to emphasize the importance of continued saving and of unrelenting care in restricting expenditures to what is essential.

Savings Stamps will be available at all grocery stores, butcher shops, dairies, and from drivers of milk and bread wagons. The committee for the promotion of this campaign have made arrangements to sell stamps at every dance held in the city during the drive. These stamps will be made up attractively with a carnation boutonnierre which may be bought from the "Miss Canada" salesgirls for the sum of fifty cents.

Minus Military Insignia, Pte. Auld Pleads Guilty

Minus his galaxy of military insignias, Pte. John Auld, 18, of Toronto, a deserter from the Canadian army, was sentenced to six months in the Ontario Reformatory by Magistrate J. L. Lloyd in police court here today after he had pleaded guilty to two charges of theft.

Auld was arrested by P. C. Evans last Sunday after L.A.C. John K. Mark of No. 5 I.T.S., had reported his wallet, containing $61, had been stolen. Later police recovered the wallet after arresting Auld and today $45.80 was returned to Mark.

"This young man is wanted for theft in East York, Orillia and St. Catharines as well as being a deserter from the Canadian army," revealed Assistant Crown Attorney S. G. Robertson. Capt. K. R. Holmes, adjutant of the Argyll Light Infantry, appeared as observing officer and informed the court Auld was wanted by the military authorities, having been absent from his unit since last July.

Appeared in Rightful Rank.

When arrested last Sunday Auld wore a Canadian army uniform, but had three stripes up indicating the rank of a sergeant. He also wore wings on the tunic to leave the impression of a paratrooper and wore a highland regiment forage cap, general service stripes and numerous other military insignias that were against regulations. Today in court he appeared with all of these insignias missing in his rightful rank as a private.

Pleads Guilty.

Auld pleaded guilty to the theft of Mark's wallet and a second charge of stealing a purse in Toronto when introduced by Deputy Harman at the request of Toronto authorities. Auld pleaded guilty to this count also and was given six months on both charges, to run concurrently.

Mr. Robertson read his list of previous convictions which included several counts of theft. "You have been through the juvenile court mill but it has apparently done you no good," remarked His Worship before meting out sentence.

In the expenditures it was revealed that $295 had been paid on the parish hall mortgage, $260 on the rectory mortage, $341.39 for the new furnace and $162 on the mission's appointment.

The report of the Laymen's Association showing receipts of $175.44 expended on the rectory mortgage and another financial indebtedness was given by W. J. Cottrell secretary treasurer. On behalf of the canvassers, he also furnished the report of the furnace and basement repair fund revealing that $425.45 had been received from 185 subscribers and from other sources with cost of installation and incidentals thereto amounting to $343.14, the sum of $83.11 remains to be applied on necessary basement repairs.

A third report presented by Mr. Cottrell dealt with the recent triple canvass showing receipts in 1943 of $364.50 towards an objective of approximately $750.00.

Miss Jennie Gray Sunday School secretary treasurer, Mrs. Percy Gray gave the financial report. Receipts were $141.38 and expenses $123.29. The creditable sum of $63 was raised for missions.

The rector's report was as follows: Number of services 101, celebrations of Holy communion 15, mid week services 7, Easter communicants 64, baptisms 29, confirmed 10, marriages 6, Burials 10, Sunday School sessions 52 with average attendance of 32. Very gratifying was the report of the Ladies' Guild as given by Mrs. R. E. Bonter. The receipts for the year totalled $772.04 and of this $727.40 was alloted to parochial needs.

The report of the Chancel Guild was presented by Mrs. R. G. Winters $18.30 was received for the Flower fund and flowers were purchased for the festivals of the church. The election of wardens was deferred by motion until a later meeting when the auditor's report will be presented. H. R. Pearce retiring lay delegate was re-elected for three years and Miss M. Savage was re-appointed auditor.

Votes of thanks were extended the officials of the church and the Ladies' Guild.

Shortly before the session adjourned H. R. Pearce rector's warden, read an address and presented a beautifully inscribed fountain pen and pencil set to W. J. Cottrell who was completely taken by surprise and found suitable expression of thanks difficult.

The address read:

"Dear Mr. Cottrell: :

"We your friends and fellow members of the parish of Marmora, consider this a favorable opportunity for us to show you in some small degree our appreciation of the work you have done in this parish. During the years you have been associated with us, no task has been too difficult for you to take a full share in the undertaking, no objective too high for your unsparing support, and we feel that this help has been given most unselfishly and willingly often at much sacrifice of your time and energy. Please believe that all this has earned our sincere appreciation and regard.

We ask you to accept this pen and pencil set and as you use it may you remember that regardless of world wide upheavals the truth still stands that the pen is mighter than the sword.

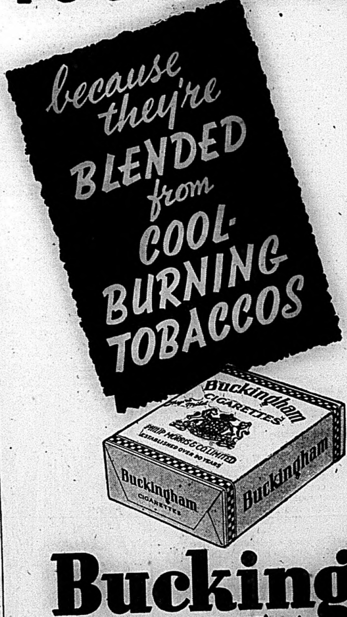
THE MILDEST CIGARETTE YOU CAN SMOKE



ANY tobacco expert will tell you that Burley tobacco is a cool-burning, cool-smoking tobacco. Nature made it that way. In Buckingham, a proportion of Burley is scientifically blended with Virginia and Turkish tobaccos in such a way that the entire blend of tobaccos is cool-burning, cool-smoking.

That is why a blended Buckingham is cool-burning, cool-smoking, and more pleasant to the taste. That is why a Buckingham is definitely milder.

Smoke a Buckingham and enjoy a mild cigarette—a cigarette that is "Throat Easy". You will find it the most satisfying cigarette you ever smoked.

The Great Effort

Britain's famous General Montgomery, who has a command of English which is very striking because behind it are wit and a high intelligence, has spoken words of high encouragement to the troops with the prediction of victory. In his own way he drives home the point, "I have never put an army into battle until I am quite certain it is going to be a good show. We won't have any question of failure. If there is any question we won't start it."

Britain is fortunate in having such men as Prime Minister Churchill and General Montgomery and other great leaders at this time. They are men that encourage and fortify the spirit of their people and their men. The general speaks of a great effort that must be made to finish the war off this year. "We can do so and—we will."

General Montgomery is so much a part of the great striking armies he has led and there is a reason. He has expressed it in his words, "You and I will see this thing through together."

The conviction of victory he creates is something that marks him out as a born leader. "We won't have any question of failure," he says. That sounds somewhat like what Mr. Churchill expressed a few days ago in a letter, "there is a vain and foolish thing that this war will soon be over, that it is now as good as won and that anyone is free to push personal or party ends without regard to the common interest" and he added "an unwarranted optimism has taken hold of large numbers of the people."

Both know how the war will end, "but the only thing we cannot see is exactly when," remarked Montgomery and added that "we must make a great push to finish it off this year," and he added "we can do so—and we will." Both men believe in the all-out effort without the slightest relaxation of zeal and enthusiasm in the cause.

Nemesis Crowds Dictators

In the multitude of counsel the democracies have shown that they are wise and safe. The self-sufficient Hitler, dictator, aggressor and tyrant, took no recognition of the voice or the conscience of the world. Hitler, by becoming the final voice of Germany, shut off the voice of others and made his mistake when he decided to put his view against the free world. Then Mussolini made his gigantic mistake, for nothing but loot and lust for praise and power dominated the now fallen despot to try to go the road of conquest with his tricky associate Hitler. Tojo, trusting to his false intuition as Hitler did to his on many an occasion, decided December 1941 was time to show the world what Japanese treachery and strength were like and jumped into the war against Britain and the United States, as he thought it was just the right time. He has since found that Hitler has not been able to help him and that Hitler as well as Tojo himself is having a hard time.

One of the trio is now a worthless hulk, a fugitive from Italy and is now in German hands victim of his aggrandizement. Another is the representative of the brutal soldiery of Japan and he is on the defensive and is shrewd enough to know that he is on his way to doom and so with the third, Hitler, the model of dictatorship, the plight of whom with his tigerish associates should appear so clear that no other men in all history will dare to bother their heads and nations against the solid fact of the conscience of mankind, which stands today dominant over the three aggressors because democracy is the way of co-operation and fraternity as against the way of selfishness.

Fate or nemesis has taken Mussolini and is handling Hitler and Tojo roughly, so roughly that they have lost their offensive power and are forced to fight with their whole might and strength and yet without hope against the power that is still growing for the Allies.

Never have tyrants in history been so totally evil and depraved and so linked and inevitably led to their own destruction as these three, the fallen Mussolini, the treacherous Hitler and the brutal militarist Tojo. Every deed of evil they foster and encourage but makes their course to destruction so much more steep and their end more disastrous. They set themselves against justice and mankind. They are supreme fools, whom life is going to crush and with them all their works of evil. Hitler's atrocities in Europe and his ill-treatment of the Russian civilian population, Japanese deeds of atrocity which should merit them the lowest levels of the pit, Mussolini's gross betrayal of France and Italy, are the whips of scorpions which have lashed and will lash these ignoble men, these enemies of mankind, so that the greatness of their ruin will testify to the truth that there is a divine justice in humanity and also an innate sense of right in civilization that works for good—in the case of this war for the peace and security of the world.

Time Mocks Hitler

Hitler, the aggressor who looked to have all humanity under his foot by this time, now has to hide in an armored coach, making a speech or a record of his speech with no one to see him but his guards. He has not even the freedom today of speaking by broadcast to his fellow Huns in assembly, but in some dark retreat he must make his frantic plea. What a fate for a man that thirsts for vengeance and for glory with the extra disadvantage that as sure as the world moves the day is coming nearer when he will be brought, a defeated and crushed tyrant, to answer for his crimes against humanity. Life and the hearts of oak of the peoples and the servicemen of the Allied Nations are making Hitler pay a price which must be an agony to that gangster spirit, who will be caught like a rat in the trap with no means of escape.

Chemistry's Part

(New York Sun)

In our swiftly changing global warfare of mechanism and new materials is it not possible that casual readers often get an impression of home-front industrial magic which is so simple as to be illusory? The question is suggested by a recent comment in Chemical and Engineering News to the effect that our chemical industry is basic to a war economy. This organ of the American Chemical Society, after indicating such uses of industrial chemistry as in the output of synthetic rubber, smokeless powder, camouflage paint, drugs and plastic parts for military equipment, cites some remarkable figures on formulas.

The constant need for quinine in war areas in the tropics is commonly known, of course, yet who but a chemist considers that 39 different chemicals are required to produce its synthetic substitute, astabrine? We read frequently of the protection of human life on the battlefronts by the use of sulpha drugs, yet seldom consider that 40 different chemicals are required for production of those drugs. Nor does public information on the technology of mechanized warfare usually include what Williams Haynes cites in his new book, "The Chemical Front," namely, that "not one of the vaunted machines of modern war could be built" except for rayon, nylon, synthetic insulations, plastics and other products of chemical industry. We wage a war of mechanization, but in more complex fashion than some of the current accounts may imply.

It is by vivacity and wit that man shines in company; but trite jokes and loud laughter reduce him to a buffoon.—Chesterfield.

He who has provoked the shaft of wit cannot complain that he smarts from it.—Johnson.

MRS. AMATEUR MAGICIAN

'Tis well they cannot see ahead
Or few of us would women wed.
Could they behold what tortures lie
In wait for them as time goes by,
Than share man's lot, let come what may,
Most girls would rather single stay.
For who would choose to be for life
An amateur magician's wife?

I'd think myself 'twere rather hard
To hear that pleading: "Take a card!
Don't let me see and put it back.
And if you care to, mix the pack!"
Day after day, night after night,
Until he gets the trick just right.
And that severer time to know:
When he's preparing for a show.

That constant riffling of the pack;
That ever changing red to black
I think would make a woman wish
His hobby had been tropic fish.
That egg within the little bag,
Those kerchiefs changed into a flag,
Imagine being condemned to view
Where'er they go a lifetime through!

Yet patient woman jogs along
And smiles at the admiring throng,
And smiles at him and lets him think
He changes water into ink,
And in a lemon finds (he will)
A marked and borrowed dollar bill.
Knowing he's fooled her from the start:
Her man is just a boy at heart.

It would seem that the mining industry in Hastings County has secured a new lease of life judging from the activity which is being shown. Near Cloyne at the North Star mine a fifty stamp mill is to be erected. E. J. Cowan, who represents a wealthy Detroit Syndicate, has the work in charge. At the old Crescent mine at Malone, O. R. Sprague is installing a fifty stamp outfit in place of the present ten stamp mill.

Miss McCaw of Toronto, formerly with the Ritchie Company here, is visiting friends in the city.

Mr. J. Earl Halliwell of Stirling was in town today.

The entertainment given by the Ladies' Aid of Christ Church in the Oddfellows' Hall last evening was an enjoyable and successful affair. Mr. S. G. Retallack gave a number of beautiful lime light views from Enoch Arden and the Rector of the parish, the Rev. S. Daw, described them in an entertaining manner. The proceeds will be used for charitable work.

It is expected that the city council will appoint three assessors at $150. each, in place of the present system.

Dr. and Mrs. Dixon (nee Minnie Downs), Toronto, are spending a few days in town.

February has started in to sustain its reputation for furnishing the coldest weather of the winter.

Washington Spotlight

(By C. R. BLACKBURN)
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Washington, Feb. 4 (CP) — Russia's cool attitude toward American and British concern over the Polish border question is like a black cloud hovering over the White House—a portent of troubles to come.

President Roosevelt and State Secretary Cordell Hull are reluctant about answering questions on this subject. Probably they do not know the answers.

The Washington Star says editorially that this problem will call for "statesmanship of the highest order," and that, probably, is a fine piece of understatement, but none the less true.

Sam Grafton, New York columnist, sagely comments that the Russians are not very much impressed with American views on it because the Americans live a long way from Poland and their main interest is to finish their war job in Europe and get back home.

But the Russians have to live in Europe. They are having a hard time to maintain their right to live there peacefully and free, and they have little experience or interest in high diplomacy.

Grafton describes American interest in Europe as like that of the welfare worker examining a tenement. If she was looking it over as a future residence for herself she would search more carefully under the beds and in the closets.

SOCIALIST DOMINION: Is Canada going Socialist? Almost every American meeting a Canadian in Washington asks the same questions "is Canada going Socialist?" and "What is the C.C.F. Party going to do?" It was unfortunate that when M. J. Coldwell, C.C.F. leader, was here a short time ago, his only spare time for a press conference was 10.30 in the morning. Either Washington correspondents seldom get down town that early or the conference notice did not get around. Only two Washington correspondents were on hand to get his answers to the leading Canadian question down here. He said Canada was going C.C.F. and the C.C.F. was going to nationalize monopolistic financial and industrial organizations.

AERIAL BARNACLES: Seaplanes of the naval air transport service have presented a new and unforeseen problem. When the big craft are forced to lie on the water a number of days for repairs or weather the hulls become encrusted with barnacles. Then they have to be taken to the nearest boom rig or naval airport to have their bottoms scraped, just like the old sailing ships.

Canadian Scene A Century Ago

By J. E. G.

Who owned the seigneuries? Settlers who came from all parts of France, and all classes. They were given grants of land in the new world on promising to spend money in clearing the territory. Most seigneurs had more terrain than they could use . . . often 12 square miles fronting on the St. Lawrence. In turn, the seigneurs gave title deeds of lands to habitants, the customary frontage being from about 1000 to 200 feet and the farm extending ½ to 3 miles back. It was natural that everybody wanted to be right on the shores of the big river. The stream was the Great Highway, dotted with canoes and bateaux in summer, with carrioles (sleighs) in winter.

* * *

The "string" attached to the job of homesteading in seigneurial days was . . . the habitant must, within a year, make a substantial start in clearing his farm of timber. Otherwise, at the end of that time, the land would be forfeited to the seigneur. In spite of the royal decree, farming went ahead very slowly in New France.

The seigneurial system had outlived its usefulness in Canada by the end of the 18th century. However, it lingered on until 1854, when an "Act for the Abolition of Feudal Rights and Duties in Lower Canada" became law. This deathblow to the old tenure was popular with the habitants who decided, then and there, to become landowners. Yet things did not work out that way. Very few of the habitants took advantage of a provision which allowed them to pay a lump sum instead of an annual rent.

* * *

We are inclined to think of the Maypole dance as a purely English institution, but it was the custom for French Canadians, also, to celebrate May Day in this fashion. They carried to the seigneur's manor house a towering fir tree deprived of bark and branches, but with a cap of green leaves left at the very top. After the pole was firmly set in the ground the company danced gaily around it. When all were weary, refreshments were handed about. By noon the gathering had dispersed, well satisfied with themselves and their hospitable seigneur to whom they had just paid deference.

FORMER BATTERY O. C. RECIPIENT OF RARE TRIBUTE

Members of Battery Overseas Call Themselves "Jones' Boys" in Honor of Major Ewart Jones

WELL KNOWN HERE

(Contributed.)

Canadian artillerymen, like elephants and tax collectors never forget. No matter the exigencies of service, the rigor of modern army training, and the various phases of army life that tend to relegate memories of former associations in the limbo of forgotten things, the Canuck gunner always remembers and honors efficiency, friendliness and loyalty.

For instance there is the case of Major Ewart G. Jones, former officer commanding the 56th Field Battery, R.C.A. and now training officer of the 44th (R) Field Regiment with headquarters at Gananoque.

Before being appointed to his present post Major Jones was officer commanding the 56th Field Battery R.C.A. He spent days and months in training with his men. His efficiency, friendliness and loyalty gained for him a never-to-be-forgotten spot in their collective hearts.

But inexorable regulations stepped in at the last moment. Came the day, the proudest day in the history of the unit. They were ordered overseas. Cheers rang out. Faces gleamed with anticipation. The long looked for moment had arrived.

But, out of the traditional blue came a sad note. The news spread like wildfire. "Jonesy" was being left at home. Their popular O.C., bowing to regulations, was forced to stay behind.

But the boys never forgot. Overseas, they gave their unstinted loyalty to their new O.C. hey were and are proud of him. But deep-rooted in their hearts was an undying regard for the man who helped convert them from civilians into superbly trained artillerymen.

Nor was their devotion confined to officers. B.S.M. Fred Pullen, Lindsay, likewise hold a high esteem in the hearts of his men.

This remembrance and loyalty was exemplified in a drama of the Canadian artillery enacted somewhere in England a short time ago, according to a letter received from the Old Land.

Relieved from duty from the battery because "I was too old for field duty (40)", B.S.M. Pullen writes, "the boys gave me a great send off. They presented me with a silver flash".

But the real drama came, when in a splendid tribute to his sergeant major, the commanding officer paraded the entire unit in battle order and before the eyes of high ranking officers, walked to where his sergeant major stood, saluted, and asked him to inspect his battery.

It was a thrilling moment for S.M. Pullen. There was a lump in his throat as he slowly walked along the ranks of the boys he had lived and trained with, since the organization of the unit.

"That", he writes, "was my greatest moment of this war. I never felt prouder of the 56th Battery than I did that morning".

In a fine tribute to Major Jones, Sergeant Major Pullen writes, "They are a fine bunch of men and will always carry the honor of being the "Jones' boys" as they so proudly call themselves. We all know we can never thank you enough for what you did for us. Many times I have heard 'If only Jonesy was with us now'."

"I can't tell you what they are now, but I can tell you this", the sergeant major continues, "when the boys go into action on one of the guns will be the name 'Jonesy' in honor of you. Personally I am proud to have done my part, (too old, bah), and prouder to have served with you".

Major Jones is a former business man of Belleville and is well known here. He is popular with the men of the 44th Field Regiment of which the 34th (R) Field Battery, Belleville, is an integral part.

GUINEA FOWL FLESH

Many people believe that fright or excitement of any kind causes the flesh of the guinea fowl to turn blue.

For this reason some poultrymen used to shoot off the heads of these fowls while they are feeding instead of catching them and chopping off their heads as they do in the case of other barnyard fowls, such as ducks, geese and chickens.

The meat of the guinea fowl, especially the pearl variety, is naturally darker than that of other common fowls, and this fact probably gave rise to the notion that the darkness is caused by fright at the time of killing.

Those experienced in preparing guinea fowls for the market on a large scale report that there is no more difference in the color of the flesh of different individuals of this species than there is in the different individuals of other fowls.

There is, however, a slight basis for the popular belief that fright or excitement affects the color of flesh, and it is not improbable that the effect of fright on the flesh is more noticeable in some fowls than in others.

No animal or bird bleeds well if it is killed in an excited or overheated condition.

It has been observed that the beef from animals not properly bled does not keep as well as beef from animals properly bled.

Guinea fowls, like other birds, should be bled by removing the head or severing the vein in the roof of the mouth and allowing the bird to hang head downward.

Their flesh is tender, fine in texture, game in flavor, and said by many to be similar in quality to grouse, quail, pheasant, partridge and other similar game birds.

As a rule the flesh of the pearl guinea is considerably darker than that of the white and lavender varieties.

All domesticated guinea fowls are descended from "Numida meleagris," a species of wild bird native to Africa where it is still prized by hunters as a game bird. They derive their common name from Guinea on the west coast of that continent and have been domesticated since the days of the ancient Greeks and Romans.

McNaughton Says He Is Feeling Fit On Arrival Home

Tells Newspapermen He Has No Idea What Reasons Given for Resignation Here

TO TAKE HOLIDAY

Seigniory Club, Que., Feb. 3—(CP)—Lt.-Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton, former commander of the Canadian Army overseas, arrived here today for a brief rest before reporting to defence headquarters in Ottawa and told newspapermen "I am feeling absolutely fit—there is nothing wrong with me."

When Gen. McNaughton stepped from the train which brought him from Montreal he declined at first to answer questions.

"I had a pleasant voyage and I am feeling very fit, and I intend to spend a few days here for a holiday," he said. "We shall see what comes after that."

An Ottawa reporter said that when Gen. McNaughton had been given leave of absence from his army command the reason given was his health. The reporter asked, "Is that actually the reason for your resignation?"

The General teetered on his heels and drew his greatcoat back with his thumbs in characteristic gesture.

"There is nothing wrong with me", he said. "I have no idea what reasons for my resignation were given here. It is up to those who made the statements regarding my health to explain them".

Gen. McNaughton indicated he plans at some future time to hold a formal press conference. When asked if he had any comment on the overseas army's spirits and whether it was still as anxious as ever to get at the enemy, he said:

"I don't think I have the right to make any comment on the situation. I will, however, as soon as I am free to do so.

"When I call in the press and give them an opportunity to cross-examine me, you can count on it that I will follow the same procedure that I have followed during the past four years and that is that I will be entirely frank and truthful".

Still in Army.

A newspaperman asked: "While you have left the army command you are still in the army, aren't you?"

"So far as I know." I'm still in the army," Gen. McNaughton replied.

To a query as to whether he contemplated entering politics, the General said that was a leading question to which he could give no answer.

Another question asked him was: "Gen. Montgomery (Gen. Sir Bernard Montgomery, designated commander of British invasion forces) has stated that the war will be over within a year. Do you agree with him?"

"Much depends on high strategy," Gen. McNaughton said.

Gen. McNaughton said he did not know exactly when he will report to Ottawa headquarters.

Wife Accompanied Him.

In the General's party were his wife, his aide-de-camp, Lieut. G. A. Raw of Windsor, Ont., and his liaison officer, Maj.-Gen. R. Turner.

On the train also were a group of army officers who had met the General in Montreal: Col. G. S. Currie, Deputy Minister in the Defence Department; Maj.-Gen. J. C. Murchie, Maj.-Gen. Maurice Pope, senior Canadian military representative in Washington; Brig. H. J. B. Keating, Director of Movement Control; Col. F. X. Jennings, Director of Army Public Relations.

Group-Capt. T. K. McDougall of Ottawa, the General's son-in-law, and Mrs. McDougall were here to meet Gen. McNaughton.

Sentences Given For Jail Break At Deseronto

Theresa Black Given Year in Reformatory and W. Shannon Six Months

FIVE CHARGED

The five young persons who broke jail at Deseronto on Jan. 25, three teen-aged lads from Toronto and two young girls, pleaded guilty to charges of jail breaking before Magistrate J. L. Lloyd this afternoon.

One of the girls, Theresa Dick, was given one year in the Mercer Reformatory and one of the boys, William Shannon, was sentenced to six months in the Ontario Reformatory. The remaining three, Dorothy Saylors, Pat Kelly and James Dillanger, all of Toronto, were given two years' suspended sentences. Holding charges of vagrancy were withdrawn by Assistant Crown Attorney S. G. Robertson.

The three young men also faced charges of attempting to break and enter Mastin's garage in Deseronto but only Kelly pleaded guilty to this count and a concurrent sentence was given.

Chief N. Langton, of Deseronto, who prefered the charge, told the court that he had apprehended the quintette in a parked motor car east of Deseronto on Jan. 25 after reports had been received regarding an attempt to enter Mastin's garage had been received. While incarcerated in the Deseronto jail, one of the five procured a poker, from outside the cell block and forced the cell lock effecting escape. The quintette were later recaptured by Chief Langton and Traffic Officer Morden west of Deseronto, but only after five warning shots were fired, Chief Langton testified. Provincial Constable James Driscoll also testified as to statements made by Kelly and Shannon, which were not read in court.

Repatriated Airmen Welcomed Home

By JACK BRAYLEY
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

Ottawa, Feb. 3 (CP)—Flt. Lt. Ron McNichol, 24, of Grandview, Man., squatted under an olive bush on an Italian mountainside and reviewed the German army retreating before a Canadian push and he doesn't think there is "anything formidable" about it.

McNichol was one of a half-dozen repatriated R.C.A.F. prisoners-of-war arriving here today with 150 other airmen back from the war zones of Europe and North Africa.

Most of them are destined for instructional work or air schools where they will be remustered into other departments.

Representatives of the Governor-General, the city and high air force officials were on hand to welcome them and a corps of pretty Red Cross girls served up hot coffee and doughnuts.

McNichol escaped from the Sulmona prison camp near Pescara in Italy. He was with the fighter umbrella over the 8th army in North Africa when he was shot down and captured. When Italy captitulated, an Italian army officer informed the prisoners and they decided on a mass break.

"But just as we broke through the wall at the back of the camp, the Germans came in the front door firing their automatics," McNichol said. "They shot down a lot of our guys before they got away but a lot of us made it."

Fire Wipes Out Shipbuilding Plant

Portland, Ore., Feb. 3 —(AP)—Fire wiped out one of the nation's $2,000,000 key liberty-ship engine-manufacturing plants here last night.

Eleven firemen were injured slightly in fighting the flames. Two of 400 workers suffered minor injuries.

Firemen, able to save only a machine shop and a welding and pipefitting shop, said there was "no apparent cause" for the fire.

Estimate of $2,000,000 loss, covered by insurance, was made by E. C. Sammons, company vice-president, and Fire Investigator William Goerz.

General G. Catroux Is Studying English

Algiers, Feb. 4 — (AP) — After many years in several important posts throughout the French Empire, General Georges Catroux —currently Governor-General of Algeria and Commissioner of State for Moslem Affairs—is learning English. This lends credence to widespread reports that he will be given a diplomatic post in London or Washington in a reshuffle of the French Committee of National Liberation.

How Our Warships Get Their Names

Buy Your Share in "Our"
Corvette "Belleville"

The uninitiated may well think that to give a new name to a ship is really no problem at all. Actually is it quite a complicated procedure involving knotty points as to duplication of names and many other considerations.

Naval Service Headquarters have devised after much study an excellent system which is equally fair to all districts and communities in Canada.

For example, a certain class of destroyer is given the names of Indian tribes that we read about in the early histories of Canada. Names such as H.M.C.S. Iroquois and H.M.C.S. Athabaskan are almost household words among those who follow with pride the achievements of the Royal Canadian Navy, whose ships are "Not so old in the Navy List, but not so new at the game," if we may paraphrase Kipling.

Then we have the River Class, such as H.M.C.S. Ottawa, Skeena, Saghenay, etcetera.

• •

Another group of destroyers are those turned over to Canada from among the lot of fifty which were ceded by the United States to Great Britain shortly after the outbreak of war. These bear names of either municipalities of the same name in both countries, or sometimes border rivers. In the first case we have say, Annapolis, which may be either Nova Scotia or Maryland, and in the second case, Niagara, or St. Clair.

Frigates, Corvettes, Algerines and Bangors are given names (in order of date of their commissioning) of cities arranged, not alphabetically, but according to their population. Examples of these are H.M.C.S. Ville de Quebec, and H.M.C.S. Port Arthur, .. or, as will soon be the case .. H.M.C.S. "BELLEVILLE"

• •

It may not be out of place to give a word of explanation concerning Algerines and Bangors. These two names were given to two of His Majesty's ships and for purposes of classification, subsequent vessels of the same contruction and armament were referred to as being of the "Bangor" class, let us say, although naturally they had their own individual names.

Interesting cases arose when it was the turn of two Ontario municipalities, Perth and Cornwall, to have ships named in their honor, as they were next to be so favored on the basis of their population.

• •

It so happened that there were two ships in the Royal Navy already bearing those names, and the world is getting to be so small now due to the revolution in means of transport on the sea and in the air, that particular care is taken to avoid the duplication of names of ships of the United States Navy, Royal Navy or the Dominions. The confusion that might arise in signalling at sea when two warships bore similar names is obvious.

Thus when a new ship is commissioned, up-to-the-minute cable or telegraphic advice must be obtained to make sure there is no other ship in any English-speaking Navy.

So the Mayors of Perth and Cornwall received polite letters from Ottawa over the signature of a high-ranking naval officer explaining the situation and asking them to select alternative names. These chief magistrates chose the names of the counties in which they were situated, viz.: Lanark and Stormont.

• •

An interesting complication arose when it came the turn of the City of Verdun. When the Mayor and Council understood that the name was already borne by a ship in the Royal Navy, they recommended H.M.C.S. Dunver.

When this was announced there was an immediate howl by some newspapers who said that this was an awkward attempt to anglicize a French name that would live eternally in human memory. An immediate explanation of the circumstances was made by Naval Service Headquarters.

There will be no danger of such a controversy arising in Belleville when the time comes to name the ship the city is sponsoring. It has already been threshed out with the Navy Department and there is no other ship in either the U.S.N., or the R.N., bearing the name Belleville.

• •

The $3,500 objective of H.M.C.S. "Belleville" fund will be expended in purchasing much needed comforts and equipment for the ship which will be placed aboard before commissioning. There are many individual articles such as the government does not supply that will be bought and installed in the crew's mess and the officers' ward room aboard the H.M.C.S. "Belleville" which will be in continual use for many years to come.

• •

The committee for the H.M.C.S. "Belleville" Fund has undertaken to purchase these necessities and comforts in the near future which will be taken to Kingston, where the ship is under construction, and personally see that they are incorporated into the ship's inventory. Responding to this campaign is a personal matter with every citizen of Belleville. It means that the good people of the city will live in the memories of the ship's personnel for as long as they live and, under the plans laid down by the committee, the H.M.C.S. Belleville will be turned out as one of the finest equipped corvettes in the Royal Canadian Navy, a most worthwhile factor in the life of the men who will fight and live aboard her.

• •

From the naming of war vessels after Canadian municipalities has arisen the happy practice of "adoption" of the ship's company by those at home. Exchange of letters between the ships and corresponding cities, remembrances at Christmas, all make for a feeling of pride in the achievements of "their own ship" and the officers and crew know that they are ever in the thoughts of their "god-parents."

So those who think that the naming of ships is as easy as assigning nomenclature to a few hundred railway Pullman cars, should now realize that there is a very definite procedure at Naval Headquarters to ensure complete fairness to all concerned.

He recommended that a competent engineer be employed by the town to draw up plans for a sewage system and a sewage disposal plant here. The matter will be taken up by the Committee with town council next week. # Chinese Infantry Fanning Out From Captured Town

New Delhi, Feb. 4 — (AP) — Chinese infantry fanned out north and west of captured Taipha Ga in northern Burma yesterday and exterminated nests of Japanese isolated in dense jungle, an Allied communique said today.

Farther south in the Kabaw Valley on the upper Chindwin, Ngapun, 20 miles southeast of Tamu, was occupied without opposition Feb. 2, with R.A.F. fighter-bomber formations co-operating by blasting enemy troop concentrations.

Yesterday R.A.F. bombers of the tactical air force attacked Japanese positions near Maungdaw. Single and twin-engined R.A.F. bombers ranged over the waterways of the Mayu peninsula and as far south as Rangoon, attacking a land transport and river traffic. Five large troop-carrying sampans were hit.

American fighter-bombers concentrated on Irrawaddy river bridges between Prome and Taungup in southern Burma yesterday.

Cultivate Qualities Needed To Have a Beautiful Voice

Vocalist Rose Blaine speaks as beautifully as she sings

By HELEN FOLLETT

WE LIFT up our voices, and the manner in which we lift them has much to do with personality and popularity—or lack of popularity as the case may be. Talking goes on all the time, men, women and children gabbing at a great rate.

A good deal of the speech making is all about nothing, but that is neither here nor there. The big fact is that if people are going to be always vocal they should endeavor to cultivate a pleasing voice.

Sharp, rasping tones bring goose flesh to the listener, make his or her nervous system unhappy. Droning along on one key is like listening to a buzzing fly and just about as interesting a pastime. Women who speak with too much emphasis are also tiresome; that practice is a strain on the vocal cords, bringing them together with spasmodic actions that may result in hoarseness.

The rapid talker is no charmer. The shriller pummels the ear drums. The loud speaker is a pest. There are a host of these offenders; they should get wise to themselves and reform.

A beautiful voice is musical, carries expression and nuances. Enunciation is clear. It is fluid, never jerky. It is an expression of culture; only those individuals who lack breeding ever shout or shrill.

Training the Voice

If you are wondering whether your voice qualifies or not, read poetry aloud. Note if you let words run together. Don't forget that the commonest cause of an unpleasant voice is the use of too much volume.

To help enunciation say the vowels slowly, pausing after each one.

One voice offender that everybody dislikes is the man or woman who shouts over the telephone. For the sake of the other fellow at the end of the line, speak quietly.

Morocco Echo

By ALICE ALDEN

DESIGNERS ARE always on the lookout for new ideas to translate into fashion terms. Walter Florell, taking his inspiration from a movie laid in Morocco, has created a series of hats, one of which is shown here. Named the "Riff," it is made of burnt straw in the general shape of a fez. Green silk cord in which pink camellias are caught descend from the fez and encircle it.

BEAUTY By Helen Jameson

Give Your Hair The Air

There are women who seem always to be hatted. One wonders if they wear their chapeaux to bed. If they attend a bridge party, they keep the lid on all afternoon.

It won't do to keep your head blanketed. It is a crime against the hair. Hair loves the air, should have plenty of it. With the finger wave plastering locks close to the scalp, pin curls in order all starched with a heavy setting fluid, the poor tresses must be well night suffocated.

A tight-fitting felt hat causes sebaceous and sweat glands to carry on to the limit. The result is a devitalized scalp. Upon the health of the scalp the health of the hair depends. Excessive heat tends to reduce tissues that soon get thin and snug. Circulation slows p. The hair is likely to moult. Those pretty shafts live on the blood streams that bring them food and drink. Anything that interferes with the nutrition of cells is a detriment.

With sebaceous oil and sweat exuding faster than normal, the finger wave goes flop and ringlets uncoil.

Some women are hat mad. Millinery is a passion with them. They buy bonnets in flocks, fancy they look best when hatted. The hat is an important detail of the wardrobe. When it takes on chic lines and the colors are flattering it is a factor in the cause of fashion and good looks. But, even so, unless it is a tabloid — as some are— it does not do well by the hair. Those snuggies are not to be worn for hours on end. Perhaps some day our hats will be air conditioned. Then all will be well.

Girls is grade and high schools who never seem to own hats have luxuriant locks. They're husky babies, these modern lassies who got their vitamins in early childhood, now growing taller than their mamas. Those vitalizing food elements had a favorable effect upon hirsute growth. More and more we find that certain beauty griefs are due to a food deficiency.

Sunlight is good for the hair. Remember that when spring busts forth in all its sunny glory. Sunshine is the source of energy. Every cell in the human body is benefitted by it. Note how the housedog and the cat seek the spot of sun when they go to sleep. The nervous system finds it a cure for jumpiness. Even a sour disposition will sweeten under its warm influence.

Before you say your prayers and jump into bed, give your hair a brisk brushing, friction the scalp for five minutes by the clock.

A FAVORITE color scheme for Spring will be gray with brown. Dove gray moire is used. for a simple frock made with deep, square neckline with tiny cut-steel buttons down the snug bodice. Dark brown suede ankle strap shoes and matching brown suede gloves add to the picture which is completed by an apricot yellow satin sailor.

NO END to the interesting novelties designed for Spring wear. Black silk crepe with a tiny pink rose print is used for a frock made with a very deep square neckline both fore and aft. To make it right for street wear there is a brief bolero that ties in a big self bow in front to balance the bow draping at the waistline.

Right for Any Clime

Gray woollen suit

By VERA WINSTON

HERE'S a neat little number that's nice for resort wear, but that is quite prepared to stay in a colder latitude snuggled under a fur coat. It is a suit of lightweight dark gray woollen with light gray wool yoke collar and pocket flaps. Snugly fitted with three button single-breasted closing. It is worn with a pale gray short-sleeved, low-necked jersey blouse.

Holloway Y.P.U. Entertain At Social Evening

A social on Tuesday, Feb. 1, in charge of Miss Noreen Frederick and her Christian Missionary group was an eventful evening for the Holloway Y.P.U. The guests who attended were from Tabernacle and Bridge St. churches and from two rural Y.P.Us., Thomasburg and Bethel.

Dwight Dilts, master-of-ceremonies, opened the program with a reading entitled, "Example." A lively sing-song led by Dwight and assisted by Keith Frances, Ross Greene, Bruce Woods, Max MacGuire and Army Boyle, who sang several selections in parts, created the right spirit in the crowd for the contests and games which followed. Keith Frances of the I.T.S. and Ross Greene conducted "Truths or Consequences" which caused many laughs as the various ones suffered the penalties of a false answer. At the intermission of this game, Miss Frederick explained the mission project and that the free will offering each one gave was to be given for missions in India.

Delicious refreshments were served in buffet style, while Harry Denton supplied appropriate music on his recorder.

Mr. Frank Foster, president of Thomasburg and Bethel Y.P.U., extended a vote of thanks for the enjoyable evening, to which Miss Noreen Frederick responded in a voice of thanks to all for their good attendance which helped to make the evening a success.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Engagement-Announcement Party

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am planning to have an engagement-announcement party. It was a day after our plans had been made before I had an opportunity of calling my fiance's parents to tell them about it. I was criticised by them for not asking them if my plans for the announcement party were agreeable to them.

I contend that because I am making the plans for this announcement party it is not necessary to consult with them in the matter other than to invite them. Please tell me whether I am right in taking this attitude.

Katherine.

I agree with you that it was ungracious of your fiance's parents to criticise you about not consulting them as to your plans but still I can understand that they would have liked to be taken into your confidence before your plans were actually finished.

However, if I were you, I'd learn a lesson from the fact that they were so outspoken in their reactions to your plans. Apparently they are the kind of people who like to be consulted about things, and so, to promote peace and harmony and good will in the future, you had better make a special point of talking plans over with them.

It's very important, as you may now realize if you think seriously about this happening, to start things off on the right foot when you are to have such close relationships with people, and it will take only some wise forethought to take them into your confidence and thus keep them contented and happy. This "attitude" of wise and practical adaptation is more valuable than all the chip-on-the-shoulder attitudes. Especially with in-laws, present or prospective!

How to Sign Your Name

Dear Mrs. Bleeckman:

Please give me some advice on this business of signing one's name so as not to be mistaken for something you're not. I dislike always writing "Miss" before or below my signature on a note or letter to someone who doesn't know me, but otherwise I am always mistaken for a Mister. What's the rule? My name, you will admit, could be taken for a man's name as well as for a woman's name. The question is especially important to me these days, for I have recently took a position in an office where my duties sometimes mean that I have to sign my name to letters and to office memoranda.

Leslie

I'm afraid, dear girl, that you'll just have to go on writing "Miss" in parentheses at the left or under your signature when you sign letters or memoranda to persons who wouldn't have any other way of knowing how to reply to you. There are many Marions, Sidneys, Shirleys and others with the same problem!

THAT BODY OF YOURS

JAMES W. BARTON, M.D.

Absenteeism of Industrial Workers.

One of the foes of full production of any industrial plant is absenteeism; that is the regular or irregular absenting of themselves from work of small or large numbers of employees.

That a great amount of absenteeism has nothing to do with the health of employees is known because of certain factors in these busy times. But there is a definite health hazard at weekends reported by many industrial plants.

In the Michigan State Medical Society Journal, Dr. A. T. Court presents charts from which he analyzes absenteeism among industrial workers. All the increase in disability rates has been in nose, throat, and chest ailments. From 1939 to 1942, nose, throat and chest ailments were both the most frequent and the only ailment that was increasing over previous years.

It was found that there was most absenteeism on Saturdays and Mondays. Thus it appears that the type of absenteeism mostly found is caused by sickness which reaches epidemic proportions around the weekend. Another striking fact about personal lost time is that absenteeism is concentrated among a few workers "who compose a chronic fringe who have more than their share of time off —usually the youngest employees'.

Just how much of this weekend "sickness" among younger employees is genuine is not for me to say but before these present days of industrial activity it was known and I pointed it out several times, that there was more absenteeism on Monday morning than on any other morning of the week. And the cause of the absenteeism was not lack of desire to work but due to colds, tiredness, weakness, indigestion.

What brings on this "blue Monday" to so many industrial and other workers?

It is the "irregular" life lived over the weekend eating more, and rich food, resting and sleeping more with no exercise outdoors to work off this excess food. Excess food means excess wastes in blood and tissues. Excess wastes from foods cause tiredness just as do excess wastes from hard work, and leave the body more ready for nose, throat and other infections.

If at the weekend we would take the extra rest we need after a hard week's work, and eat a little less over the weekend instead of more we would feel more spry on Monday morning with less coughing, sneezing and indigestion.

The Marry-Go-Round

Wives of Tomorrow

Only a decade ago, it was quite the popular thing for the gilded sons of the leisure classes to marry night-club dancers, chorus beauties and artists' models. Susie, the lovely checkroom girl, had more chance of landing the millionaire playboy than had the wealthiest debutante.

There was no mystery about it; the reason was as obvious as a loose front tooth and as patent as a glass eye. The old traditions were crumbling, and men were going for what they liked. And what men like in women is novelty—"something different."

But now most of the one-time playboys have gone to war and most of the ones you sometimes see around the night clubs are those home on furlough. And they have seen and known and come to admire a still newer and more "different" type of woman. It is the woman with a purpose in life. War workers, WAAFS and CWACS, nurses, ambulance drivers — these are a refreshing change from the hot-house flowers of the ballroom and the night club.

A man who has been surrounded all his life by suave, over-groomed, bored-looking girls, with carefully "manicured" smiles, finds any young woman with a different lingo, a natural, spontaneous manner, a new line of repartee and a genuine object in life, a delightful change. A girl who is vitally alive and doesn't mind frankly expressing her opinions and emotions, a girl who stands for something significant, wakes him up like an alarm clock. She is as exhilarating as a cold shower.

Another charm she has for men, is that he feels at ease with her. She understans men, because she meets more types and varieties of men in a day than a hot-house debutante meets in a lifetime. She meets them in her work and at the canteens, when they are at play. And she meets them on their own ground, when they are off their guard and not all dolled up in top hats, white ties and pretty manners. Oh yes, she knows them—and HOW. With her, a man can be "himself" and if there is anything a man enjoys it is being natural!

There is nothing so novel and intriguing to a gilded scion of the Idle Set, as to find a woman busy! Busy about something besides amusing herself, or reducing her waistline or being popular and "glamorous." To any man, a woman is always most interesting when she is interested in something else—something more important to her than he is. It may shock his vanity; but at the same time, it stills his fears that she may be hanging around, waiting to slip the halter on him.

She's there for a vital, absorbing purpose and the purpose is not him or matrimony—not just now. And that is the most startling surprise that any girl can give a man! That's why the wives of tomorrow will be a brand new type, who understand men.

FASHION FLASHES

YOU CAN'T BEAT the white, frilly blouse for charm and for doing things to a tailored suit. White starched chiffon makes a pretty blouse with a deep ruffly frill collar trimmed with rows of hand-drawn lattice work. Tiny pearl buttons.

NO USE ARGUING the earring seems to be growing in popularity rather than diminishing. Something different is the earring that follows the outline of the ear from the lobe to the top. We saw this done in gold finished with a fine gold fringe.

The War Today—
Hitler's World Shrinks Rapidly, His East Front Is in Fresh Jeopardy

By DeWITT MACKENZIE
Associated Press War Analyst

Hitler's world is shrinking so dangerously that the time isn't far distant when he no longer will be able to find a place in which to hide from the vengeance which is closing in on him.

The Red armies — striking fiercely and unceasingly in order to make every hour count before the spring arrives to turn the steppes into seas of mud — have placed the German front in fresh jeopardy in three sectors:—

1. Most sensational is the operation in the far south, within the Dnieper Bend, where two Red armies have pinched off the Smela salient and trapped 10 Nazi divisions — probably more than 100,000 men. It's a great feat of generalship and valor. Fierce fighting continues as the surrounded Germans battle to escape, and Moscow reports that 10,000 already have been slain. That's what the Russian front means these days—annihilation.

Russian Thrust Into Poland

2. In the south-central zone the Muscovites have continued their thrust into pre-war Poland, threatening a disastrous severance of the Nazi line. The Germans say they've abandoned the important railway cities of Lutsk and Rovno. If that's true, it brings the Reds still closer to the great railway junction of Lwow (Lemberg) which lies on Hitler's sole remaining railway communication with Odessa and his big army in the Dnieper Bend.

3. In the northern end of the line the Russians have driven still further into Estonia and are menacing the strategic city of Narva, which Berlin says is being evacuated. Thus the German left flank is being swung back, and the Red advance casts its shadow clear across the Baltic states.

One of Great Dramas of War

All three operations may be expected to produce far-reaching results, but I invite your attention specially to the Dnieper Bend battle. It looks very much as though here is approaching a denouement of one of the great dramas of the entire war.

Probably you often have wondered why Field Marshal Von Mannstein has persisted so doggedly in hanging onto that great bulge along the lower Dniester. So have the military experts. The tip of that sharp salient is some 400 miles from the apex of the Red advance into Poland, far to the west. There has not been a day for months when Von Mannstein wasn't in danger of being trapped in that vast bend—and within it he has perhaps 500,000 men.

I ventured the view in this column some weeks ago that the Nazi commander probably was bent on protecting the 'Bessarabian gateway to the Balkans. Veritas, the sound British commentator, is among those leaning to that view, although characterizing Von Mannstein's campaign as one of the enigmas of the war, which it certainly is.

Nazis Carry Off Gold From Rome, Ship It to Germany

Ottawa, Feb. 4 (CP)—The CBC listening post here today recorded a broadcast from the radio at Bari, Italy, saying the Nazis have taken all the gold out of the Italian state banks in Rome and have shipped it to Germany.

The BC also heard a broadcast by the CBC reporting that Rome's ordinary population of 1,000,000 has been doubled since the Allied landing in Italy. It added that food supplies in the Italian capital have reached a dangerously low level.

Norwegian Poet Flying Over Berlin With R.A.F., Killed

London, Feb. 4 (CP)—Capt. Nordahl Grieg, 41, Norwegian poet and author, was killed Dec. 2 when he flew with the R.A.F. on a Berlin raid. A press observer, the Norwegian government's information office announced today.

Capt. Grieg was the third press representative who failed to return from the raid. His identity was withheld until the Norwegian government felt sure he was dead.

The other two correspondents who did not return were Lowell Bennett of International News Service, later reported to have escaped from a German prison camp, and Norman Stockton of the Sydney (Australian) Sun.

JAVANESE TELLS OF JAP CRUELTIES

Nipponese Forced Prisoners to Walk Night and Day, Kicked, Beat and Prodded Them With Bayonets

London, Feb. 4—(CP)—New details of Japanese atrocities appeared today in Vrij Neredland, a Dutch newspaper published in London, which related the story of a Javanese who escaped from a Japanese concentration camp.

The Javanese said he and many other prisoners were transported in a dark, airless Japanese troopship to Guadalcanal to load ammunition before American forces occupied the island. From Guadalcanal they were shipped to another Pacific isle where they were forced to walk day and night for two weeks over nearly-impassable jungle trails, and those who lagged on the way were "kicked and beaten and prodded with bayonets."

The only food the prisoners were given while on this trek was two handfuls of rice a day, the Javanese said.

"Two Dutch officers and an Indonesian who tried to escape were tied to a stake, bayoneted and then shot," the Javanese added. He carried a three-inch bayoneted scar on his own back, the paper said.

Japanese Leader's Statement

New York, Feb. 4 —(AP)— The Tokyo domestic radio said today Kumaichi Yamamoto, Vice-Minister for occupied areas in Asia, had made a statement to the Japanese diet yesterday saying Allied Nationals interned in China are being treated properly "according to moral principles."

"However, in some circles I believe there are instances in which our treatment is too lenient in comparison to the treatment given by the enemy nations," Yamamoto was quoted as saying.

The broadcast, reported by United States government monitors, said Yamamoto's statement was made in response to a question from the floor.

Is Japan Trying To Split China From North to South?

Chungking, Feb. 4 —(AP)— The possibility that the Japanese are organizing a drive to occupy the whole route of the railways linking Peiping, Hankow and Canton, thus splitting China from north to south, was suggested today by a spokesman for the Chinese army.

Success of such an operation, it was said, would provide the Japanese with an overland route that would compensate in some part for shipping losses off the China coast and keep open supply lines despite potential bombing of enemy bases east of the railways.

The spokesman also said that in Burma the Japanese now have amassed eight divisions—four more than they used for its conquest—and have placed four facing the Allied advance from Assam, two along the Salween river facing China, and two in the vicinity of Rangoon to repel a possible Allied landing.

Partisans Winning Decisive Battles For Communications

London, Feb. 4—(AP)—Sharp battles are mushrooming all along Yugoslavia's many fighting fronts, Marshal Josip Broz (Tito) announced today as the Germans were reported massing reinforcements from Bulgaria and Greece for their seventh effort to smash Partisan resistance in that war-torn country.

The Yugoslav Partisans scored decisive triumphs on two fronts, Tito's war bulletin broadcast by the Free Yugoslav radio said, routing the German Prince Eugen division in Hercegovia and smashing Nazi and Chetnik attacks in Montenegro.

It was a battle for communications, Tito reported, and the Germans were throwing in everything they had to prevent the Partisans from gaining control of their vital road and rail supply lines.

North of the Bosnian capital of Sarajevo, the Yugoslavs battled the enemy to a standstill and cleared the Doboj-Derventa area of roving German and Chetnik columns.

The Germans fought desperately to gain possession of the strategic Prijedor-Bosanski Nova railway line in Western Bosnia, bringing up tank battalions to crush the Partisan forces, the Yugoslav communique said, "but all attacks were held and the railway line was cut at six more points."

Sgt. Jack Milne Given Mention In 'The Red Patch'

A Hastings County boy, Sgt. Jack Milne of Bancroft, member of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment, is given mention in "The Red Patch", Canada's front line newspaper with the First Canadian Division in the Mediterranean war theatre, it is revealed. The particular story concerns how the Bancroft boy, together with other members of his platoon resorted to a bit of successful camouflage to get out of a tight spot on the Italian front.

We quote the Red Patch story which is headed "Tricky Camouflage."

"Canadian ingenuity has been severely taxed at times but never more so than the time that some lads of the H. & P. E. Carrier Platoon, Sgt. Milne of Bancroft, Cpl. Sexton of Montreal, Pte. Torrence of Peterborough and Pte. Reed of Trenton, found themselves in an advanced post under German shellfire.

"Their position was bad enough but it got rapidly worse when they were signalled to move as a British barrage was to be laid down in that area and found that every time they attempted to leave the enemy lobbed over a few more shells. The sergeant (Sgt. Milne) had a bright idea which they at once put into effect.

"Cpl. Sexton and Pte. Reed bent forward and were covered with blankets. Their packs were thrown over them so that the appearance was that of a donkey with panniers. Pte. Torrence draped the blanket over himself and stooping like an Italian peasant boldly led this strange animal over the skyline to safety without a shot being fired, bringing even their own weapons with them under cover of the blankets.

"In the acount given no mention is made as to how the doughty sergeant got back but it is presumed that he was in one of the packs."

The four-page edition of the Red Patch in which the above story was carried was the New Year number published on Christmas Day, the cover of the single sheet paper being liberally splashed with red ink wishing a Happy New Year. Special articles of interest to service personnel are carried, together with comments on the mail service and the National Hockey League standing.

Quebec Members Oppose Entry Of Immigrants Into Canada Until Veterans Re-established

By FRANK FLAHERTY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Ottawa, Feb. 4 — (CP) — Opposition from Quebec members to the admission of refugees or other immigrants until all members of the forces are re-established in civilian life yesterday drew the support of one Ontario Progressive Conservative, but he said he was speaking for himself and not his party.

Gordon Fraser (PC—Peterboro West) took a view of the situation similar to that expressed earlier in the Throne speech debate by such French-speaking members as Maxine Raymond, Bloc Populaire leader, and Ligouri Lacombe (CDN — Two Mountains) and last night by Emmenuel D'Anjou (L—Rimouski), Armand Choquette (BP — Stanstead), and Eugene Durocher (L—Montreal St. Jaems).

"Not one refugee should come in until every man and woman now serving in the forces is returned to civilian life and has secured a job," said Mr. Fraser.

Be Given Advantage

"I do not think these people should come in now and be given the advantage of jobs over men who are overseas fighting for you and me, and I will fight the entrance of these people to Canada to the last ditch."

Mr. Fraser said immigration should be stopped until members of the forces are back and workers in war factories obtained other jobs.

"I shall be criticized throughout Canada for saying this but it is my belief and I know there are thousands of others who feel as I do," he said.

He also suggested the most rigid physical and mental examination for intending immigants, including x-ray examination. They should be examined by two doctors and at two different points. Those admitted should be "morally and mentally well."

Private Members Heard.

Private members occupied the floor throughout yesterday. So far no cabinet minister has spoken. Members, however, look for a statement from Defence Minister Ralston on Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton's relinquishing the overseas army command and other army matters, perhaps today.

A demand for an end of government monopoly in radio came from Douglass Ross (P.C.-Toronto St. Paul's), who was critical of the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation.

He said the "absolutism of the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation is becoming intolerable and it is becoming more dangerous all the time."

The CBC no longer was controlled by its board of governors and by the government and the Liberal party. There were two vacancies on the board of governors and there was no general manager. The acting general manager now acted as a referee to determine what public men should speak on the radio.

At the same time certain forum discussions were carried on which were "most misleading" and "often very inaccurate." On the new CBC chain an American speaker was heard discussing Indian politics to the effect there was persecution of nationalist leaders. If that sort of thing were broadcast there should be an opportunity for other speakers to state the other side of the case.

Wants Independent Commission

John Bracken had been refused the air "simply because he was the leader of the Progressive Conservative party." Yet ministers were allowed to speak over the air.

Mr. Ross said there should be an independent commission like the Board of Transport Commissioners to act as a referee in radio matters, to decide questions as to use of the air by public men, and to decide issues between private stations and the C.B.C.

There was plenty of room in Canada for two competing systems and an all-powerful radio monopoly should not be allowed, Mr. Ross said.

Mr. Ross said the CBC had gone into an increased advertising business in a "most unfair way," increasing the demand for consumer goods in spite of the prices board requests that consumption be held down.

Wilfrid LaCroix (Lib.-Quebec-Montmorency) praised Prime Minister Mackenzie King's rejection of Lord Halifax's suggestion for closer integration of the Empire on foreign policy, but said he blamed Mr. King for creating the atmosphere which made it possible for Lord Halifax to advance his views in Canada.

The War Today—
Hitler's World Shrinks Rapidly, His East Front Is in Fresh Jeopardy

By DeWITT MACKENZIE
Associated Press War Analyst

Hitler's world is shrinking so dangerously that the time isn't far distant when he no longer will be able to find a place in which to hide from the vengeance which is closing in on him.

The Red armies — striking fiercely and unceasingly in order to make every hour count before the spring arrives to turn the steppes into seas of mud — have placed the German front in fresh jeopardy in three sectors:—

1. Most sensational is the operation in the far south, within the Dnieper Bend, where two Red armies have pinched off the Smela salient and trapped 10 Nazi divisions — probably more than 100,000 men. It's a great feat of generalship and valor. Fierce fighting continues as the surrounded Germans battle to escape, and Moscow reports that 10,000 already have been slain. That's what the Russian front means these days—annihilation.

Russian Thrust Into Poland

2. In the south-central zone the Muscovites have continued their thrust into pre-war Poland, threatening a disastrous severance of the Nazi line. The Germans say they've abandoned the important railway cities of Lutsk and Rovno. If that's true, it brings the Reds still closer to the great railway junction of Lwow (Lemberg) which lies on Hitler's sole remaining railway communication with Odessa and his big army in the Dnieper Bend.

3. In the northern end of the line the Russians have driven still further into Estonia and are menacing the strategic city of Narva, which Berlin says is being evacuated. Thus the German left flank is being swung back, and the Red advance casts its shadow clear across the Baltic states.

One of Great Dramas of War

All three operations may be expected to produce far-reaching results, but I invite your attention specially to the Dnieper Bend battle. It looks very much as though here is approaching a denouement of one of the great dramas of the entire war.

Probobly you often have wondered why Field Marshal Von Mannstein has persisted so doggedly in hanging onto that great bulge along the lower Dniester. So have the military experts. The tip of that sharp salient is some 400 miles from the apex of the Red advance into Poland, far to the west. There has not been a day for months when Von Mannstein wasn't in danger of being trapped in that vast bend—and within it he has perhaps 500,000 men.

I ventured the view in this column some weeks ago that the Nazi commander probably was bent on protecting the Bessarabian gateway to the Balkans. Veritas, the sound British commentator, is among those leaning to that view, although characterizing Von Mannstein's campaign as one of the enigmas of the war, which it certainly is.

Nazis Carry Off Gold From Rome, Ship It to Germany

Ottawa, Feb. 4 (CP)—The CBC listening post here today recorded a broadcast from the radio at Bari, Italy, saying the Nazis have taken all the gold out of the Italian state banks in Rome and have shipped it to Germany.

The BC also heard a broadcast by the CBC reporting that Rome's ordinary population of 1,000,000 has been doubled since the Allied landing in Italy. It added that food supplies in the Italian capital have reached a dangerously low level.

JAVANESE TELLS OF JAP CRUELTIES

Nipponese Forced Prisoners to Walk Night and Day, Kicked, Beat and Prodded Them With Bayonets

London, Feb. 4—(CP)—New details of Japanese atrocities appeared today in Vrij Neredland, a Dutch newspaper published in London, which related the story of a Javanese who escaped from a Japanese concentration camp.

The Javanese said he and many other prisoners were transported in a dark, airless Japanese troopship to Guadalcanal to load ammunition before American forces occupied the island. From Guadalcanal they were shipped to another Pacific isle where they were forced to walk day and night for two weeks over nearly-impassable jungle trails, and those who lagged on the way were "kicked and beaten and prodded with bayonets."

The only food the prisoners were given while on this trek was two handfuls of rice a day, the Javanese said.

"Two Dutch officers and an Indonesian who tried to escape were tied to a stake, bayoneted and then shot," the Javanese added. He carried a three-inch bayoneted scar on his own back, the paper said.

Partisans Winning Decisive Battles For Communications

London, Feb. 4—(AP)—Sharp battles are mushrooming all along Yugoslavia's many fighting fronts, Marshal Josip Broz (Tito) announced today as the Germans were reported massing reinforcements from Bulgaria and Greece for their seventh effort to smash Partisan resistance in that war-torn country.

The Yugoslav Partisans scored decisive triumphs on two fronts, Tito's war bulletin broadcast by the Free Yugoslav radio said, routing the German Prince Eugen division in Hercegovia and smashing Nazi and Chetnik attacks in Montenegro.

"It was a battle for communications, Tito reported, and the Germans were throwing in everything they had to prevent the Partisans from gaining control of their vital road and rail supply lines.

North of the Bosnian capital of Sarajevo, the Yugoslavs battled the enemy to a standstill and cleared the Doboj-Derventa area of roving German and Chetnik columns.

The Germans fought desperately to gain possession of the strategic Prijedor-Bosanski Nova railway line in Western Bosnia, bringing up tank battalions to crush the Partisan forces, the Yugoslav communique said, "but all attacks were held and the railway line was cut at six more points."

Sgt. Jack Milne Given Mention In 'The Red Patch'

A Hastings County boy, Sgt. Jack Milne of Bancroft, member of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment, is given mention in "The Red Patch", Canada's front line newspaper with the First Canadian Division in the Mediterranean war theatre, it is revealed. The particular story concerns how the Bancroft boy, together with other members of his platoon resorted to a bit of successful camouflage to get out of a tight spot on the Italian front.

We quote the Red Patch story which is headed "Tricky Camouflage."

"Canadian ingenuity has been severely taxed at times but never more so than the time that some lads of the H. & P. E. Carrier Platoon, Sgt. Milne of Bancroft, Cpl. Sexton of Montreal, Pte. Torrence of Peterborough and Pte. Reed of Trenton, found themselves in an advanced post under German shellfire.

"Their position was bad enough but it got rapidly worse when they were signalled to move as a British barrage was to be laid down in that area and found that every time they attempted to leave the enemy lobbed over a few more shells. The sergeant (Sgt. Milne) had a bright idea which they at once put into effect.

"Cpl. Sexton and Pte. Reed bent forward and were covered with blankets. Their packs were thrown over them so that the appearance was that of a donkey with panniers, Pte. Torrence draped the blanket over himself and stooping like an Italian peasant boldly led this strange animal over the skyline to safety without a shot being fired, bringing even their own weapons with them under cover of the blankets.

"In the acount given no mention is made as to how the doughty sergeant got back but it is presumed that he was in one of the packs."

The four-page edition of the Red Patch in which the above story was carried was the New Year number published on Christmas Day, the cover of the single sheet paper being liberally splashed with red ink wishing a Happy New Year. Special articles of interest to service personnel are carried, together with comments on the mail service and the National Hockey League standing.

Quebec Members Oppose Entry Of Immigrants Into Canada Until Veterans Re-established

By FRANK FLAHERTY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Ottawa, Feb. 4 — (CP) — Opposition from Quebec members to the admission of refugees or other immigrants until all members of the forces are re-established in civilian life yesterday drew the support of one Ontario Progressive Conservative, but he said he was speaking for himself and not his party.

Gordon Fraser (PC—Peterboro West) took a view of the situation similar to that expressed earlier in the Throne speech debate by such French-speaking members as Maxine Raymond, Bloc Populaire leader, and Ligouri Lacombe (CDN — Two Mountains) and last night by Emmenuel D'Anjou (L—Rimouski), Armand Choquette (BP — Stanstead), and Eugene Durocher (L—Montreal St. Jaems).

"Not one refugee should come in until every man and woman now serving in the forces is returned to civilian life and has secured a job," said Mr. Fraser.

Be Given Advantage

"I do not think these people should come in now and be given the advantage of jobs over men who are overseas fighting for you and me, and I will fight the entrance of these people to Canada to the last ditch."

Mr. Fraser said immigration should be stopped until members of the forces are back and workers in war factories obtained other jobs.

"I shall be criticized throughout Canada for saying this but it is my belief and I know there are thousands of others who feel as I do," he said.

He also suggested the most rigid physical and mental examination for intending immigants, including x-ray examination. They should be examined by two doctors and at two different points. Those admitted should be "morally and mentally well."

Private Members Heard.

Private members occupied the floor throughout yesterday. So far no cabinet minister has spoken. Members, however, look for a statement from Defence Minister Ralston on Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton's relinquishing the overseas army command and other army matters, perhaps today.

A demand for an end of government monopoly in radio came from Douglass Ross (P.C.-Toronto St. Paul's), who was critical of the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation.

He said the "absolutism of the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation is becoming intolerable and it is becoming more dangerous all the time."

The CBC no longer was controlled by its board of governors and by the government and the Liberal party. There were two vacancies on the board of governors and there was no general manager. The acting general manager now acted as a referee to determine what public men should speak on the radio.

At the same time certain forum discussions were carried on which were "most misleading" and "often very inaccurate." On the new CBC chain an American speaker was heard discussing Indian politics to the effect there was persecution of nationalist leaders. If that sort of thing were broadcast there should be an opportunity for other speakers to state the other side of the case.

Wants Independent Commission

John Bracken had been refused the air "simply because he was the leader of the Progressive Conservative party." Yet ministers were allowed to speak over the air.

Mr. Ross said there should be an independent commission like the Board of Transport Commissioners to act as a referee in radio matters, to decide questions as to use of the air by public men, and to decide issues between private stations and the C.B.C.

There was plenty of room in Canada for two competing systems and an all-powerful radio monopoly should not be allowed, Mr. Ross said.

Mr. Ross said the CBC had gone into an increased advertising business in a "most unfair way," increasing the demand for consumer goods in spite of the prices board requests that consumption be held down.

Wilfrid LaCroix (Lib.-Quebec-Montmorency) praised Prime Minister Mackenzie King's rejection of, Lord Hallifax's suggestion for closser integration of the Empire on foreign policy, but said he blamed Mr. King for creating the atmosphere which made it possible for Lord Halifax to advance his views in Canada.

Syd Howe of Detroit Wings Establishes N.H.L. Record By Scoring Six Against Rangers

Detroit Defeats Rangers 12-2 to Take Sole Possession of 2nd Place

ALWAYS ON TOP

By the Canadian Press

Syd Howe seems determined to prove that the first 200 goals are the hardest.

He made it look that way last night, scoring six goals to establish a National League record as Detroit Red Wings routed New York Rangers 12-2 before 8,147 spectators. The result shunted the rehabilitated Red Wings into sole possession of second place, two points ahead of Toronto Maple Leafs.

Howe scored his goals in pairs, connecting 18 seconds apart in the first period, 62 seconds apart in the second and within 57 seconds in the final. This rapid work was in sharp contrast with the plodding fashion in which he reached the 200-goal mark through 10 seasons with three N. H. L. clubs.

The 32-year-old Perth, Ont., centre who now works in a Detroit war plant this stands in the hallowed company of a dozen or so N. H. L. greats headed by Nels (Old Poison) Stewart, who is generally estimated to have scored 323 goals. Howe's total of 207 goals is exceeded among players still active only by Harvey (Busher) Jackson of Boston Bruins, now edging toward 250.

Record Stands Since 1917

In accomplishing the double hat trick, Howe smashed a league record of five goals established in 1917 by Harry Hyland of Montreal Wanderers and equalled eight times by such notables as Howie Morenz, Charley Conacher, Pit Lepine and Ray Getliffe of Montreal Canadiens, who did it last year.

It was a smashing victory for Detroit, who less than a month ago floundered in fifth place. They scored three goals in each of the first periods and ran the count to 9-0 before Bucko McDonald beat Conny Dion for the first Ranger score against Detroit in three games. The scoring jag, following Detroit's 15-0 triumph over New York a fortnight ago, gave the Wings a total of 50 goals in seven games against the Blueshirts this season.

Carl Liscombe with two goals and Don Grosso, Cully Simon, Mud Bruneteau and Flash Hollett with one apiece padded their averages, Grosso compiling six assists as well. Bruneteau's goal was his 26th of the season, setting a club record for goals in one season. Fernand Gauthier got the other New York tally late in the third period.

Ken McCauley handled 39 chances in the Ranger nets compared with 21 by Dion, who has lost only once in nine starts since obtaining a medical discharge from the Canadian Army.

Player Situation Rapidly Becoming Acute in Majors

(By the Canadian Press)

The hot-stove league season reaches its zenith tomorrow at New York when baseball's leaders will gather for the first meeting of the Post-War Planning Committee and also to be guests at the annual dinner of the New York Baseball Writers Association where plans and policies are likely to be unfolded to exterminate talk of breakers ahead for both major and minor leagues.

The prediction was made last night that consideration of the Post-War program for the diamond sport would be subordinated to more immediate difficulties when the committee opens its discussions Saturday. The player situation is rapidly becoming acute and it was suggested the club-owners would modify the June 15 deadline for player trades and adopted measures for quick transfer of ball-tossers to meet unexpected developments anytime during the 1944 season. The International League will meet over the week-end for pre-season business while the National League schedule meeting has been arranged for Tuesday.

President Alva Bradley of the Cleveland Indians last night qualified his previous statement of intention to close his ball park if high-class baseball could not be offered the public by saying "if we ever reached the point where we'd have to put catchers in the outfield, I'd be in favor of suspending".

Emery Hresko, 17-year-old pitcher of a Flint, Mich., junior team, yesterday signed a contract with the Detroit Tigers of the American League and was ordered to report to the team's spring training camp at Evansville, Ind., March 10. He won 12 straight games last summer with the junior outfit.

Bolingbroke, Eurasian and Sun again yesterday was established as favorites for the $25,000 Widener Handicap at one mile and one quarter at Hialeah Park track March 4. Second choices included Princequillo, Alsab and Marriage.

Dominick Dimaggio, Boston Red Sox outfielder now with the U.S. Navy said last night time spent in the armed services by big league players should count as part of their baseball careers to enable them to reach the 10-year classification after which they cannot be returned to the minors.

Returning to Winnipeg after winning the Quebec bonspiel with the rink which was originally skipped by John Bracken, National Leader of the Progressive Conservative Party, Gordon Hudson declared eastern curlers were improving but had much to learn from the westerners. Even Quebec curlers were forgetting about irons and taking up granites, he said.

After learning President Branch Rickey had made arrangements for Coach Chuck Dressen to handle the Brooklyn Dodgers until he returned from a camp tour overseas, Manager Leo Durocher made it known at Tampa, Fla., yesterday he would be on hand at Bear Mountain, N.Y., when the team opened its spring training March twelfth.

Canadian Sport Snapshots

By CHARLIE EDWARDS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Toronto, Feb. 4—(CP)—Death of Carroll Boucher in Ottawa this week recalls one of the most prolonged family sport feuds on record—the friendly war between those two Ottawa sport clans, the Bouchers and the Lowreys.

Bill Gladish, a CP editor in Toronto and long-time sports observer, recalls that, although the Boucher-Lowery challenges were frequent, bursting out at irregular intervals for no apparent reason, the families never met in hockey combat and confined themselves to verbal arguments as to their respective merits.

There were six Bouchers including Tom, the father, who won renown principally for rugged play with the famous old Rough Rider football teams. The sons are Frank, still coaching and playing a bit with New York Rangers although he is 41; George (Buck) of the Ottawa Senators, whose hips tossed many a forward into the boards; Billy, whose scraps with Sprague Cleghorn were a show in themselves until the two played together with Canadiens; Joseph, who had little or no interest in hockey; and Carroll.

Of Carroll, Bill Westwick of the Ottawa Journal says: "He's enjoyed a varied career, one that had carried him around the race tracks across the border, with some of the bigger circuses and a turn on the dog tracks down south . . . An unfailing sense of humor, the knack of telling a story and the ability to always see the lighter side of life won him hundreds of friends."

There are seven Lowrey brothers: Tommy of Ottawa munitions hockey fame and now an Ottawa newspaperman; Jerry, who played for many professional teams; Fred (Frock), formerly of the N. H. L.; Eddie, for many years coach of the University of Michigan hockey team; Rev. Robert, who starred in hockey before entering the priesthood; Frank, a pre-war puckchaser; and Bill, the youngest, who did his hockey chores mostly for Ottawa Valley teams. Incidentally, Fred, Frank and Father Robert now are overseas.

All the Bouchers and Lowreys on the ice together would have set a modern N. H. L. manager's eyes popping. They had color, talent and that old Ottawa fighting spirit that meant sport drama.

SIX-ARDEES NOW IN SECOND PLACE OF SERVICE LOOP

Deseronto "Mohawks" Give Repairmen Quite a Scare Before Losing 6-4

SMART HOCKEY

Six-Ardee more firmly entrenched themselves in second place of the Quinte R.C.A.F. Service Hockey League at the local arena Thursday evening when in meeting a vastly improved team of pucksters from No. 1 Instrument Flying Training School at Deseronto they eked out a nice 6-4 win, the margin of victory about indicating the play.

Mohawks trotted out several new players for the pastime, including Gariepy in goal, who stopped the proverbial million pucks as the Trenton forwards swarmed around to fire rubber at him from all angles. The fact, that his team did not finish on the long end of the count was not through any fault of this lad. McClelland at centre ice for the losers turned in the best effort offensively collecting three of his team's four counters. Scoring for the Trenton team on the other hand was more evenly divided with wingman Goddhue being the only player to account for more than one goal.

The first half of last night's tussle between the two service teams was as nifty a scrap as has been seen in this neck of the woods this winter with the play being practically even. The first period ended one-all and although Mohawks went into a brief lead to start the second canto, the more experienced Trenton lads soon overcame the advantage and were one up when they came out for the final canto.

Condition then began to tell and the Trenton boys swarmed in on Gariepy to run in two goals without a return. In the dying moments of the game, however, Mohawk came through with the final counter to give warning that with a few more games under their belts they will be a threat to the other teams in the league.

Teams:

Mohawks: Goal, Gariepy; defence Wicken and Boyd; centre, McClelland; wings, Flookes and Huggins; subs, Zatelny, Himmelrich, Cross, Desforges, Lalonde and Alcombrack.

Six-Ardee: Goal, Jackson; defence, Stewart and Pfaff; centre, Landriault; wings, McGinnis and Goddhue; subs. Derry, Campbell, Dixon, Howes and O'Connor.

Referees: "Toots" Holway and "Speedy" St. Louis.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, Jr.

New York, Feb. 4—(AP) — In spite of Commissioner Landis "stay-out-of-Washington" order, baseball men would like to get an official ruling that would permit players to leave war jobs without becoming draft bait. It would help the game's manpower situation a lot to have a few of those guys to mingle with the 4-F's. . . Pro-football, you recall, asked the question last fall and received word that the players' real business was football so they didn't have to be "unfrozen."

One-Minute Sports Page

The International League will consider adopting Warren Giles' plan of having the decisions on all doubtful baseball plays announced over the loud speakers. . . Southwestern grid experts are plugging Norvell (Red) Smith, New Mexico halfback, for a national football league job and promise he'll be a sensation by the end of his first season. . . . If he's 4-F he's in. Did you know that the original purpose of the basketball backboard wasn't to provide bank shots or rebounds but to keep spectators on the balcony from knocking the ball away from the basket? . . That was before they had players who could reach up and do the same thing.

13 ARMY AIRMEN DIE IN LOUISIANA CRASH

Shreveport, La., Feb. 4 —(AP)— Thirteen army airmen from nearby Barksdale Field were killed yesterday following a collision of two twin-engined medium bombers near Garland City, Ark., 775 miles north of here. There were no survivors.

CASUAL COMMENT by K.J.C.

A recent movie comedy showed on the screen a bevy of shapely girls disrobing for a plunge in the "old swimming pool." They had just taken off their shoes, hats, coats, dresses, and were beginning to remove their more intimate garments when a passing freight train dashed across the screen and obscured the view. When it had passed the girls were frolicking in the water. An old railroader sat through the show again and again. Near the close of the show late in the evening, an usher tapped him on the shoulder and asked:

Usher—Aren't you ever going home?

Man (unhurriedly)—Oh, I'll wait awhile. One of these times that train's going to be late.

(Yes, but when.)

In the press account of the inaugural meeting of the Parks Commission in yesterday's issue there was some mention of a proposed civic recreation centre of park. Mayor Rollins informed the members of the Parks Commission that such a program was being considered by the local Post-War Planning committee.

Some years ago a committee was set up here known as the Belleville Beaches Association. Plans for a mammoth recreation centre and pleasure park were drafted and blue prints passed around the city. The program was doubtless a splendid one, but what's happened to the Beaches?

What this city needs is a central recreation centre to house practically all sports, even to a curling rink, and the site set down by the Beaches Association along the city waterfront is the most ideal, regardless to opinions relative to the marshes, etc.

(Ideal situation.)

The bay front from the foot of George Street straight through to Foster Avenue would be ample space. Here the bay could be utilized for boating, swimming, etc., in the summer with the buildings being available for skaters and skiers in the wintertime. Such a recreation centre would easily become a year around rendezvous for the lovers of sport.

According to yesterday's Commission report the Parks Board felt such a venture should come under their jurisdiction, but when Mayor Rollins intimated the Post-War Planning committee was considering such a program naturally the Board left the matter in abeyance. So here we go again—isn't procrastination the thief of time?

Down in Kingston they are planning for the finest sports centre in the Dominion of Canada. A centre that will feature the International Hall of Fame, but also include a mammoth grounds to house grounds for football, softball, baseball, open air rinks, as well as an artificial one, curling rink and other such like sports.

Out in Peterborough plans are completed for a new hockey rink and a sports centre that will take care of lacrosse, softball and other games of civic interest and pride.

But what of Belleville? True enough we have the Exhibition Park, but with the Fair coming around each year at play-off time in the fall and other drawbacks this park is not adequate for what is actually needed after the war. Namely a civic sports and recreation centre situated in the most central position possible.

While other cities throughout the Province of Ontario forged ahead to modern recreation centres is Belleville to remain in the pre-war category and wind-up in the village class? After all this old world is advancing with more rapidity than meets the human eye, can Belleville afford to lag behind now that we boast of a population of over 15,000.

(Hockey chatter.)

Coming from behind in the middle session No. 6 Repair Depot eked out a 6-4 win over the Deseronto "Mohawks" in one of those up-and-coming Air Force service league games last night.... The "Six-ardee" lads are in second place now, but they meet the strong Mountain View "Bombers" next Monday night when the fur should really fly.... The "Mohawks" iced an improved sextette last night with a new goalie named Gariepy in the nets, while McClelland bagged three of their four counters.... However, the Repair Depot lads carried a little too much speed and condition and swarmed over the Mohawks in the latter stages.... Tonight Coach Toots Holway's local juniors can cinch first place in the junior O.H.A. group standing with a win in Trenton. However, beating FO. Stan Jackson's Trenton kids on their home ice is quite a night's job, but Toots says his boys have what it takes.

(Low down trick!)

Although many fans laughed at the antics of Steve Evans, funmaking Irishman in Pittsburgh who wanted to choke him, relates Willis Johnson in the St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Whenever the Cardinals visited Pittsburgh, the Irishman, 75, always visited the railroad station to talk with Manager Roger Bresnahan when the team was leaving. On one occasion the entire Cardinal team was gathered around the elderly fan when the conductor yelled "Board!" All the players drifted away, except Steve, who remained behind, keeping an eye on the train.

Finally, as the train started to move, Evans suddenly grabbed the clay pipe out of the Irishman's mouth, tossed it on the concrete, and said, "You talk too much."

Then Steve ran for the slowly-moving train, with the old Irishman in hot pursuit, screaming, "I dare yez to come back!"

Horse Sense Bridge

LESSON NO. 294

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

I often wonder are there queens my partner is concealing. But when he uses Horse Sense means, oh boy, are they revealing!

You are north in this pair of partnership hands:

SOUTH
♠Q 4
♥A Q 10 5
♦7 3
♣A 8 6 4 3
NORTH
♠A K 5
♥K J 9 4
♦A K 8 4 2
♣7

The bidding has progressed this far:

| SOUTH | NORTH |
|---|---|
|  | 2 D |
| 1 C |  |
| 2 H | 4 NT |
| 6 C | ? |

The six clubs response to four no-trump is the convention signal for showing two aces and no kings. A lower ranking suit is bid first only when it is longer than the higher ranking suit.

An opening bid of one in a suit shows at least five suit tricks (high cards and short cards), four high cards (aces, kings, queens), two sure tricks (ace or K Q).

Now, without looking at the south hand, picture partner's holding from his three bids. He shows five clubs and four heart. So, no more than four of his cards are in the other two suits.

With no kings, his other two high cards must be queens. One of them must be in hearts to make that four card suit biddable. With your heart help, that suit is solid as trumps.

Your top spades and diamonds will take his four. The rest of your little side cards can be trumped by his four trumps. His club ace can take your lone club and you can trump his other four clubs.

Seeing things that way, partner may take all 13 tricks if he does not get a trump lead. So, it would not surprise me if your next bid was seven hearts.

You might like to see the opponent cards in this deal. Also the problem that came up in the play. Let's do that next week. You must come and see us again, dear.

AT THE McCARTHY

"Always a Bridesmaid"

Six song numbers ranging from the popular hit "Mr. Five by Five" to the favorite of 1925, "Thanks For the Buggy Ride", will be heard when Universal's "Always a Bridesmaid" opens this weekend at the McCarthy Theatre.

The Andrews Sisters, reigning swing-singing favorites of stage, screen and radio, revive the old hit in modern style and also sing "Ride On", "That's My Affair", "As Long As I Have You", and "Yoo-hoo".

Musical authorities expect "Thanks For the Buggy Ride" to resume a spot among the song favorites of the day.

"Mr. Five by Five", one of the most notable novelty song hits of recent years, is performed by the Jivin' Jacks and Jills, youthful jitterbug group prominently featured in several recent musical film hits.

"Always a Bridesmaid" presents the Andrews Sisters as singing hostesses in a Lonely Hearts' Club, which is suspected by authorities of constituting a "front" for racketeers. Romantic leads are played by Patric Knowles and Grace McDonald as rival investigators. The remainder of the cast includes Charles Butterworth, Billy Gilbert and Anne Rooney.

Second feature is "Having a Wonderful Time", with Ginger Rogers, Douglas Fairbanks Jr., Red Skelton, Lucille Ball, Peggy Conklin, Anne Miller, Lee Bowman and Donald Meek.

AT THE CAPITOL

"Seven Sweethearts".

Van Heflin, rapidly taking his place among Hollywood's abler actors, brings another of his distinctive characterizations to "Seven Sweethearts", which opened yesterday at the Capitol Theatre.

As Henry, breezy newspaperman covering a tulip festival in Little Delft, Michigan, Heflin brings a charm to the part not identified with his previous screen portrayals.

Prettiest Starlets.

Seven of the screen's prettiest and most promising starlets are featured as sisters who run a hotel owned by their eccentric Dutch father, played by S. Z. Sakall.

Marsha Hunt as the spoiled, stage-struck eldest daughter who traps Henry into an elopement, handles her difficult part with dispatch.

Kathryn Grayson as Billie, Henry's real love in the film, brings a delightful piquancy to her role.

Cecilia Parker, Frances Raeburn, Dorothy Morris, Frances Rafferty and Peggy Moran reveal new talents as the five remaining sisters.

Two new song hits are highlights of the picture. "Little Tingle-Tangle Toes" and "You and the Waltz and I" were written especially for the film.

Quaint Dutch Village.

The background of the quaint Dutch village, the tulip festival, and the charming Hollandese landscape have been achieved with artistry by Director Frank Borzage.

With the style and originality which marks his past offerings, Joseph Pasternak makes this his first production for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer.

The combination of young romance and beauty against a pastoral background makes this film refreshingly new entertainment.

"Canyon City".

"Canyon City" the added western attraction starring Don 'Red' Barry in another fast-action range adventure loaded with thrills and excitement. Barry smashes a desperate outlaw gang that threatens to destroy a thriving Frontier town.

A funny cartoon and the serial "Secret Service in Darkest Africa" makes this worthwhile entertainment for the entire family.

AT THE BELLE

"Above Suspicion"

Joan Crawford and Fred MacMurray bring Helen MacInnes' characters to life on the screen of the Belle Theatre, where they are now co-starring in M-G-M's "Above Suspicion".

Joan and Fred play a honeymoon couple who take advantage of their position as typical tourists traveling in Germany before the outbreak of war to track down a mysteriously missing British agent. The trail starts in Paris, leads them to Salzberg, where bookshop owner Felix Bressart gives him the next clue. In Salzberg they become friendly with Conrad Veidt and Basil Rathbone and receive the clue leading to the end of the trail.

"Mother Riley Signs Up" Funny

In the days where laughs are being recommended as an antidote for the anxieties of war time, Belleville and district screen lovers can take a large dose in one capsule by seeing "Mother Riley Signs Up", the added laugh attraction featuring Arthur Lucan and Kitty McShane.

Your hits of yesterday and tomorrow are in the new Community Sing a special extra attraction every week.

"A Lady Takes a Chance"

The laughing romance of a girl from a New York bank and a boy from the Great Open Spaces is the theme of "A Lady Takes a Chance", coming to the Belle Theatre this weekend, the screen's newest comedy hit with Jean Arthur and John Wayne co-starred.

The girl, who has dreamed for years of seeing the sights of the west, finally saves enough money to take a 17-day-all-expenses-paid bus tour to the Coast. But the trip is a bore until, watching a rodeo in an Oregon town, she is knocked flat as a rider is catapulted off a bucking pony. The rider, in apology, shows her the sights of Farifield, which is wide open and full of surprises. She misses her bus, falls in love, quarrels with her new-found friend, hitch-hikes across the desert to catch the bus on its return trip and altogether has an exciting time not specified in the prospectus of the 17-day tour.

The story gives both of its stars exceptional chances to display their talents for light-hearted love-making.

Charles Winninger heads the supporting cast as Wayne's loyal partner who tries to break up the impending romance, and Grant Withers, Grady Sutton and Hans Conried portray Miss Arthur's New York boy friends. Phil Silvers and Mary Field have important roles.

The Canadian Paramount News with highlights from world battlefronts, a funny Walt Disney color cartoon "Pelican and the Snipe" and a unique and entertaining multiple-reel featurette "Age of Flight", will also be exhibited. A new chapter of "The Batman" serial will be presented Saturday matinee.

AT THE BELLE — Jean Arthur's new starring picture is RKO Radio's "A Lady Takes a Chance," which also stars John Wayne. Jean wears this costume to show how she'd look if she were a rodeo rider, at the Belle Theatre.

Little Benny's Note Book

Ma was looking at her mail at breakfast, saying to pop, So, Bertha Cornhouse didn't send me an invitation to her bridge tea in honor of her new daughter in law, just as I thought. In fact I thought so yesterday, but today was the last possible day I could of received an invitation. Well, I had fully decided not to accept in any case because I have no wish to be under any obligation to Bertha Cornhouse, even the doubtfull obligation of having to write her a firm letter of refusal. So in a sense I'm highly relieved, although in another sense I'm rather furious, ma said.

I suppose you mean you have a sense of victorious frustration, pop said, and ma said, I mean it's just like one of her double face schemingtricks to leave me coldly off her list, even though she might of known I'd of declined with very chilly thanks, or possibly ignored the invitation altogether like so much dross in the mail. It's sure to be a gassly boring affair, so all in all I'm really to be congradulated, ma said.

Congradulations, my dear, pop said, and ma said, It would serve her right back in her own coin if I sent her an anonimous unsigned postcard, saying on it, Thanks for nothing, and let her guess who sent it, though naturaly I wouldn't give her even that cheap sattisfaction.

What's this mixed up among my bills, it's addressed to you, pop said, and ma said, Why I believe that's it, I believe that's the invitation from Bertha Cornhouse after all.

Which it was, and pop said, I hope you have a nice time staying away, and ma said, Who said I'll stay away? Now I'll just go to spite her because I'm sure she sent the invitation with the full expectation that I'd refuse it, she said.

It's all too deep for me, pop said, Well, the best of luck and have a miserable time, he said.

And he folded his paper and left for his office.

The Red Carnation

By Burton Stevenson

CHAPTER 2

Tony heard McKibben grumbling as he scowled after the back of his assailant. And then Lily Edgerton pulled him down and whispered something to him. "Mack" turned around and nodded to Tony and started a little unsteadily toward his table. Tony saw that, as usual, he had a white carnation in his buttonhole. Also that he was quite tight, as he lowered himself into a chair.

"Lily says you want to see me. Something important?"

"Not so very important. I just wanted to advise you to take care of yourself."

McKibben's glance was suddenly intent. Then he looked quickly around the room.

"Thanks," he grunted. "I will."

"Who was that fellow called you a swine just now?"

"Never saw him before," McKibben answered, but from his eyes Tony knew that he was lying. "Just some drunk. They put him out."

"I saw they did. And, do you know, Mack, I have a hunch that one of these days somebody will put you out."

"He'll have to get the drop on me first," McKibben sneered. "Who do you think will try it?"

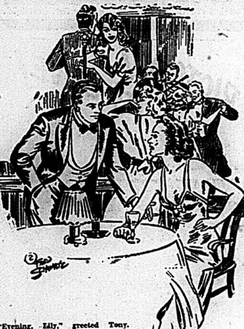
"Oh, it might be any one of a number of people," said Tony lightly. "It might be some fellow whose wife you've been playing around with, or some woman you've double-crossed—"

"Just what do you mean?" McKibben demanded.

"You know what I mean," retorted Tony. "Lily is itching to take a shot at you this minute."

"Don't worry about Lily," McKibben grunted. "I'll look after her. Besides, I'm going away. This town makes me sick."

"It's not quite as healthy for brokers as it used to be," Tony agreed. "Havana might suit you better."



"Evening, Lily," greeted Tony. "Who's the infant with Mack?"

"Havana!" McKibben echoed. "It's Monte Carlo for me, next."

"Well," Tony suggested with sarcasm, "wherever you go, don't rob a cradle. It isn't done."

McKibben looked at him and gradually a wide grin spread across his face.

"So that's it," he said. "Lily told me you were acting sort of curious about my new girl. You won't get anywhere, take it from me. But just to show you there's no hard feelings, Ill give you some news for your nosey column."

"What is it?"

"Lily's starting for Reno in the morning.

"I wouldn't call that news exactly," Tony commented. "You going to marry her?"

"Who, me?"

"But you and Lily . . ."

"I find my taste is changing" and McKibben grinned again. "I'm beginning to have a yen for the young. Must be I'm getting old."

"I don't believe you'll have a chance to get much older," said Tony. "And since you're so fond of carnations, I suppose I'll have to send a bunch to put on the coffin."

"That's sweet of you, Tony! Be sure they're white ones."

"Why do you always wear a white carnation, Mack?" Tony asked.

"You'd never guess. Know anything about the language of flowers?"

"I don't know what the carnation means."

"It means pride, disdain," McKibben informed him. "And white, of course, is for innocence. Hence my affinity for it." He wagged his head triumphantly and pulled himself to his feet. "I've got to be getting back or there'll be an assassination at my table. Beautiful maiden slain by jealous divorcee."

"You've got it wrong," said Tony. "It's a crooked stockbroker who is going to be slain." But McKibben only kept on grinning and lumbered back to his place.

Tony, looking after him, composed another paragraph in his head:

Reno not Rhino:—Lily Edgerton starts today for Reno on the usual quest. Whether husband Reinhardt—commonly known as "Rhino" because of his size, callosity and other characteristics—will contest the case, deponent sayeth not. "Net" is probably right.

He saw that McKibben did not sit down at his table, but leaned over and said something to the two women and then called a waiter and asked for his check. A moment later the party had left the restaurant.

Tony looked after them gloomily. His tip had been wrong, then—nothing was going to happen to McKibben after all. Calling him a swine wasn't anything. However, he might as well find out who the fellow was and perhaps he could also pick up some information about the Leda girl.

So he visited around a little. Everybody was glad to see him but nobody could tell him who it was had attempted to assault McKibben, nor the name of "Mack's" latest conquest. They had all noticed, of course, how angry Lily was. That little dame had better look out.

It was fifteen or twenty minutes later that Tony got to the entrance and remarked to the doorman, as the latter whistled for a taxi, "Jack McKibben went out awhile ago, didn't he?"

"Yes, sir; some time ago."

"Anybody been asking for him?'

"Why, yes, sir. Just after he left a young fellow drove up in a taxi and got out and asked if he was here."

"What sort of young fellow?"

"Might have been a college boy. Young and handsome, anyway. South by his accent. Dark and sort of excited."

"Was he tight?"

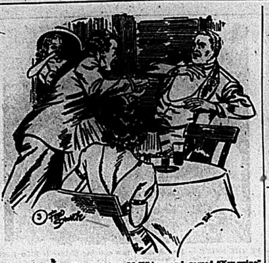
"I don't think so. But he had something heavy in the side pocket of his overcoat. I noticed it when he got out of the cab."

"What did he do when you told him McKibben had left?" Tony asked the doorman.

"Asked me where he had gone."

"Tell him? No. I don't know where anybody goes."

"Of course not," Tony agreed with a chuckle. "Nor where they come from. You're the perfect doorman, Tim. I suppose this young fellow drove away then?"



A man had loomed suddenly before McKibben and rasped, "You swine"

"Yes. He got back into his taxi and told the driver to take him to another club."

"Which one?"

"He didn't say which one."

"Evidently doing the town," Tony commented. "Good night, Tim," and he climbed into the waiting taxi and gave the driver his address.

So somebody had been driving around to the night clubs hunting for Jack McKibben—some young, handsome Southerner — something heavy in his pocket. The girl had looked sort of southern, too. Had it anything to do with her? A new angle of the old game McKibben loved to play? Usually he picked married women — their husbands hadn't done any hunting. On the contrary, most of them had been delighted. But McKibben had remarked that his taste was changing. What had he said? A yen for the young . . . .

Something over an hour later he was writing his final paragraph:

Oh! Ever Thus from Childhood's Hour:—Jack McKibben, attired in his usual white carnation, was swanning around Max's dance-floor last night with a charming little Leda, a newcomer. Tip was out that somebody was going to bop him. But nobody did.

A year before this story opens, Antony Bigelow had been a good police reporter. Then one afternoon George Handley, the managing editor, had called him into his office. "Sit down, Tony," he said. "I've got an idea I want to put before you. What this paper needs is a column and it's got to be different," Hadley explained. "Not political—that's overdone; no hogwash about the downtrodden proletariat, no economic-socialogical bunk."

The Managing Editor paused, then continued:

"We already have some good columns—sure-fire stuff for women but we've got to have something that will appeal to men. Now tell me this: what sort of stories do men read, when they read any at all?"

"Detective stories," answered Tony promptly.

"Right! Well, there's the idea," and Hadley leaned back triumphantly in his chair.

"But just what is the idea?" Tony queried. "A detective story every day?"

"Something like that. We're going to have a column that will know just a little more about the crime going on in this town than the police do, that will tell them where to look and what to look for."

"Fine!" Tony applauded. "Only it won't last long."

"Why not?"

"Because the first time any real cops get the columnist in a dark corner, they'll bash his head in, and then report that he was drunk and fell down and hit it on something."

"Of course we've got to have police co-operation," Hadley agreed. "You have always had it, haven't you?"

"Sure I have. But there's only one way to get it. You've got to give the police the credit."

"We'll give them enough of the credit to keep them playing along," said Hadley. "Besides, we'll have one of them with us."

"You mean you're going to have a detective write this column?" Tony queried incredulously.

"No. Most detectives can't write. They can't solve crimes, either, except the easy ones."

"Neither can reporters," Tony pointed out. "If they could, more crimes would be solved. They work on them harder than the police do."

"I'm not expecting miracles," said Hadley, more calmly, "but I do think that a well-written, snappy column, with a distinct crime angle, would be a knockout. Of course it will have to be more than that, because we want to catch the women, too. The surest way to catch them is with gossip—inside gossip. Not malicious gossip, you understand—satirical, ironical perhaps, but good-humored — and only about New York, where our circulation is. Nothing about Wallie or Eleanor—just New York. We'll call it "All Around the Town."

"And remember this, Tony," Hadley went on impressively: "To run a successful New York column a man has to understand New York psychology. He has to realize that by and large, this is the biggest hick town on earth—perhaps in the universe. No piece of flimflam is too raw to succeed here, no show too corny. New York thinks it's sophisticated, but at the bottom it's as callow as a college sophomore. What are you smiling at?"

"I'm from the Middle West too," said Tony, who knew that his chief came from Indiana.

"Well, it's the truth," Hadley protested. "You know it as well as I do. Now I want you to begin to get your stuff together right away and be ready to start in next Monday."

"Sure," Tony nodded. "But what do I get for myself?" Tony queried.

"A hundred a week extra to begin with. If the column is a success after three months, two hundred extra. If we can syndicate it, we'll divide with you. Good enough?"

"The question is whether I'm good enough."

"Do you think I'd take the chance if I wasn't sure of it?" Hadley demanded.

"I suppose you're right," Tony frowned. "But where am I going to get the stuff for a column every day?"

"Don't worry about that. The first week or two will be a little hard, but after that you'll have more stuff than you can use. You will get more mail than a Hollywood 'hunka man.' If you need help, let me know. One thing you will have to be careful about—libel. There are a lot of sharks on the lookout for it all the time. We've got the best lawyer in town to advise us about that—Herschel Schneider. Know him?"

"Of course," Tony nodded. "Clever fellow."

"Go and see him if there's ever the slightest doubt in your mind. He can give you a steer how to keep out of trouble and still say whatever you want to say. He can also put you wise here and there—he knows everybody and has a finger in everything. Your raise starts today and I want you to take Tom Garrity down to Headquarters and show him the ropes."

Tony's eyes were gleaming a little, in spite of himself.

"I'll try it," he said, "but remember, you told me you didn't expect miracles."

Mining Activities Threaten Mansion

Drive for Coal Supplies Engulfs Parkland of Huge Yorkshire Estate

Rotherham, England, Feb. 4.—(CP)—Wentworth House, Yorkshire seat of Earl Fitzwilliam and the biggest private house in Britain, is threatened with despoliation from open-cast mining instituted to ensure coal supplies for the year of invasion.

Already much of the surrounding parkland of the huge estate has been ruined, and the fast-approaching workings will soon be only 150 yards from the famous pillared portico where several kings and queens have been welcomed.

The house itself covers several acres. It has 365 rooms and five miles of underground passages. It is so vast it is said to have been the custom at one time to give guest packets of wafers to strew along the corridors so that they could find the way back to their rooms.

Queen Victoria, King George V and Queen Mary and King Edward VIII, when Prince of Wales, have been among the guests of Wentworth House.

BOMB PARAMUSHIO BASE

BRITAIN CONFIDENT ABOUT OUTCOME OF INVASION

Britain Will be Financially Poor After War But Richer Normally, Says Elias Warburton

SCIENTIFIC ADVANCE

Ottawa, Feb. 4 (CP)—Eliot Warburton, Chief of the United Kingdom Information Office here, said today upon returning from a month's visit to Britain that neuroses produced in peacetime by idleness and by "tiresome and futile jobs" have been noticeably absent during "these years of hard and intense work and close comradeship of all classes."

In an address prepared for delivery to an Ottawa service club (Kiwanis) Mr. Warburton said the British public and general staff are "very confident" about the outcome of the forthcoming invasion.

While tough fighting is to be expected, casualties such as those suffered at Dieppe provide no criterion of those to be expected in the invasion of Europe.

"In a successful invasion, even the first wave would not suffer the heavy losses in prisoners that resulted from our inability to bring troops away from Dieppe," Mr. Warburton said.

The British people are anxious to see an international organization, such as a reformed League of Nations, established for the maintenance of peace as soon as possible, but they realize the difficulties and "want to keep their tried and trusted friends as a basis for this wider organization."

Richer Morally and in Industrial Skill

"Britain will be financially poorer after this war, but richer morally and in terms of industrial skill. The scientists that have evolved the best airplane engines in the world, the most effective planes, the almost magical supersonic devices and have kept not only Britain but her Allies ahead of the enemy in so many spheres will provide the ideas.

"The management and labor that have worked so well together to produce the highest output of war material per head of any country in the world will be able to turn those ideas to good account for the benefit of the world after the war.

"It will not be a luxurious world, but people in Britain are not looking for that. They expect and intend to have the possibility of leading full, useful and constructive lives."

Senator Lodge To Serve Overseas

Washington, Feb. 4 —(AP)— Henry Cabot Lodge, Jr., resigned today as Republican Senator from Massachusetts in order to return to active service as an army officer.

In a letter to the Senate the 41-year-old Lodge, who holds a reserve commission as a major, said he felt that in view of impending "large scale ground fighting" and his age, he could best serve his country as "a combat soldier overseas."

Weekly Livestock Report

Toronto, Feb. 4 (CP)—Cows and bulls gained 25 to 50 cents cwt. in cattle trade on the livestock market here this week. Steers and heifers were unchanged. Veal calves were 50 cents to $1 cwt. higher. Hogs, lambs and sheep were steady.

In cattle trade, with the exception of cows and bulls which recovered most of the previous week's decline, trading was slow on a small supply. Beef continued to move slowly to consumers. Weighty steers sold at $11 to $12.75 strictly choice steers at $13. Butcher steers were $10.50 to $12 and heifers $10 to $11.75 Fed yearlings were weak at $11.75 to $13. Butcher cows closed at $7 to $8.75 with canners downward to $5. Bulls closed at $7.50 to $8.75. A few lots of medium to good stockers sold at $8 to $10.50 cwt. Milkers and springers were steady at from $85 to $160 each according to quality.

The calf run was very light and prices advanced on all grades. Tops closed at $16.50 to $17 with common downward to $10 and bulk of sales between $14 and $16.50.

Sheep and lamb receipts were mostly from western Canada. Good western lambs were $13 with one load making $13.25. Local feed-lot lambs of plain to medium quality sold $6 to $12.50 cwt. Sheep were slow sellers at $2.50 to $6 cwt. according to quality.

Hogs were $17.15 dressed for the basic grade with sows at $13 dressed. Several loads of western sows were unsold.

Weekly summary of receipts:

Show Cause Order Signed by Chief Judge Will Delay Executions

New York, Feb. 4—(AP)—A show cause order, delaying the scheduled execution next week of Louis (Lepke) Buchalter, convicted head of Murder, Inc., and his two associates, was signed yesterday by Chief Judge Irving Lehman of the Court of Appeals, Arthur Garfield Hays, a defence counsel, announced today.

Buchalter, Emanuel Weiss and Louis Capone have been sentenced to die in Sing Sing Prison's electric chair Feb. 10.

Counsel for the trio appeared Wednesday before Governor Thos. E. Dewey in a clemency plea.

They were convicted in 1941 for the murder of Samuel Rosen Brooklyn candy store owner.

Lepke, who has been serving a Federal sentence on a narcotics conviction, was turned over to New York recently by the U. S. Attorney General with the proviso that he be returned to Federal custody if not executed.

Mustering-out Pay Bill Is Signed By President

Washington, Feb. 4 (AP)—President Roosevelt signed today legislation providing mustering-out pay of $100 to $300 for members of the United States armed services.

At the same time, he called for action on additional portions of his program to "ease the period of transition from military to civilian life".

Mr. Roosevelt mentioned specifically measures to let servicemen continue their education, to provide social security credits for the period of military service, and to set up machinery for unemployment allowances.

The mustering-out pay law limits the maximum sum of $300 to service men and women who have served overseas or in Alaska. Payments of $200 are provided for those serving sixty days or more in the United States and $100 for those serving less than 60 days in this country.

All receiving no more than $200 a month base pay are eligible to the mustering-out benefits.

This allows payments to captains of less than 17 years service, and excludes majors and higher officers from the benefits.

CANADA MERITS FULL SHARE IN SHAPING PEACE

Right is Earned by Part in Fighting the War, Says Claxton

PEACE FOUNDATIONS

Toronto, Feb. 4 —(CP)—Canada must have a full share in shaping the peace, because "it is a right we are earning by the service of our fighting men, by the magnitude of our material contribution, and by our spirit of mutual aid," Brooke Claxton, parliamentary assistant to Prime Minister Mackenzie King, said today.

"The Canadian people expect our country to have a share in world responsibility which is in proportion to our share in fighting the war," Mr. Claxton said in an address prepared for delivery to a service (Rotary) club luncheon.

"Two wars in a generation have convinced all but the blindest among us that Canada, that the United States, that the new world, cannot live in isolation from the rest of mankind.

"Since we cannot keep out of wars, we are filled with a growing resolve so to shape the peace that wars will not happen."

Canada's part in the First Great War raised her to the status of a nation, Mr. Claxton said. Canada's part in this war has given her the opportunities and responsibilities of world-wide interests. Today Canada stands in the shadow of no other land.

So far, the major strategy of the war has been in the hands of Britain, Russia, China and the United States, and no one questions the necessity for the close association of the three or four supreme powers as the foundation of lasting peace, he said.

"But they are not enough. They do not represent the world. They cannot speak for the world. They have no monopoly of intelligence, experience, or good will. The beauty and strength of France have not been finally destroyed. The international record of Czechoslovakia is equal to that of any country.

Widest Foundations.

"Lasting peace must rest on the widest foundations. Those foundations must be planned and built now. Now is the time when steps must be taken to begin work on this organization."

Canada's prosperity depends in part on trade. There should be no ceilings on trade; there cannot be too much trade.

Reach the Mouth Of Narova River Inside Estonia

German Attempts To Relieve Trapped Forces in Ukraine Are Repulsed

DESTROY 84 PLANES

By HENRY C. CASSIDY
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Moscow, Feb. 5 (AP) — Major decisions were being won all along the Russian front today with the onslaught against Hitler's battered armies continuing full swing from the Baltic to the middle Ukraine.

Gen. Leonid A. Govorov's Leningrad army had reached the mouth of the Narova River, nine miles inside the border of Estonia on the coast of the Gulf of Finland, and had advanced to Lake Peipus, 35 miles to the south, thereby sealing the land trap which forms the gateway to the Baltic.

The Narova River running across this bottleneck parallel to the border offered the Germans a natural defence line, however, and there was no information yet as to whether the railway and highway running parallel to the Gulf of Narva from Rval (Tallinn) to Riga had been cut.

Squeeze Tactics

Govorov's army, in conjunction with the Baltic army of Gen. K. A. Meretskov, was squeezing the Germans tighter against Lake Peipus and the Latvian border.

To the south in the Dnieper bend Red Army groups drew closer the noose thrown around ten German divisions believed to number more than 100,000 men between Cherkask and Kanev.

The German air force sought to extricate Hitler's best generals and officers as extermination of the Nazis within the encirclement mounted.

This hope of escape by air explained why the Germans were not surrendering in mass. The same attempt to evacuate their forces by air was attempted by the Germans at Stalingrad.

But the Red air force held supremacy in the Ukraine and it appeared likely that the only result would be the sacrifice of thousands of lives.

The Paris radio quoted German military quarters as saying 250,000 Russian troops were attacking the German hedgehog position at Vitebsk in another sector of the front to the north.

The German communique reported that Russian pressure had slackened in the north, from Nevel to the Gulf of Finland, but said the Soviet attacks had been intensified against the Nikopol bridgehead on the lower Dnieper.

13,000 Enemy Killed

German attempts to relieve these encircled troops believed to total more than 100,000 were decisively beaten back. The Russian communique reported destruction of 84 big Junkers-52 transport planes and 58 tanks. Nearly 13,000 German troops were killed trying to fight their way out of the cordon, which now has held them for 48 hours.

North of Zvenigorodka and Shpola, where the 1st and 2nd Ukrainian armies under Gen. Nikolai Vatutin and Gen. Ivan S. Konev closed their pincers around the enemy, the Russians rolled the Germans back to the shores of the Dnieper, where they faced either death or surrender.

One attempt by Nazi units outside the trap to break the Russian Cordon cost them 32 tanks, destroyed by Soviet artillery and tank destroyers. A second attack resulted in 26 German tanks being wiped out.

In the sky Russian dive bombers and fighters denied all attempts at rescue or relief by air. Twenty-four big tri-motored Junkers transports and ten escorting fighters were shot down. Sixty other transports were destroyed on the ground.

In the north Govorov's drive into Estonia was supported by other Soviet forces which pushed south from Leningrad and swept to within 19 miles of Luga on the Leningrad-Luga-Pskov railway, capturing the town of Mshinskaya on the way.

Meretskov's Volkhov army, pounding west from the Lake Ilmen sector after clearing the Leningrad-Moscow trunk railway, wiped out the last Germans on the line from Leningrad to Novogord, second north-south railway freed since the northern offensive.

BREAKS WITH SATELLITES

Buenos Aires, Feb. 5 — (AP) — The Argentine Government announced today it had broken off diplomatic relations with Vichy France, Bulgaria, Rumania and Hungary — all Axis satellites—following up its rupture with Germany and Japan last month.

Nazis Offering Excuses for Defeat

Stockholm, Feb. 5 (AP) — The German press has begun to use what it described as the imminence of an Allied invasion of western Europe to explain continued reverses in the east to the German people, Swedish dispatches from Berlin said last night.

Defence of the west is "Germany's main task in 1944 because it not only guarantees a defence with prospects of a favorable outcome but also provides a chance to gain a decision in the war," the newspaper Nachtausgabe said.

Therefore operations in the east must be limited, the newspapers added, with the aim of inflicting the heaviest losses possible on the Russians and hindering a decisive Russian break-through while Germany is preparing for the attack in the west.

URGE SUPPORT GOV'T CANDIDATES

British Coalition Leaders Concerned Lest By-Election Should Give World Wrong Impression

London, Feb. 5 (CP) — Prime Minister Churchill and other leaders in the coalition government expressed concern last night lest a by-election in a single district would give the world a wrong impression of British unity and urged voters to stand behind government candidates.

Their statement followed the Feb 3 by-election in traditionally Conservative Brighton in which the government candidate, Flt. Lt. William Teeling, won by only a narrow margin in a light vote. Mr. Churchill's conduct of the war was not an issue in Brighton where the whole question centred on the extent the government should intervene on behalf of candidates.

With another by-election, in West Derbyshire, coming, leaders of the parties in the coalition government, Mr. Churchill, Clement R. Attlee, Labor party leader, Air Secretary Sir Archibald Sinclair, Liberal leader, and Ernest Brown, who heads a group of National Liberals, told the voters that the "verdict recorded by a single constituency is flashed around the world as though it were the voice of Britain that had spoken."

They added: "West Derbyshire will realize that it has the responsibility at this moment of indicating to the United Nations and to neutral countries that we are united among ourselves in our unflinching determination to organize our total resources for victory."

PRESENCE DISCLOSED

London, Feb. 5 — (CP) — The presence in London of Maj.-Gen. Lewis H. Brereton on Feb. 1 was disclosed today by the appearance of his name in the Times of London in a list of guests at a dinner given by the Lord Mayor to senior Allied commanders.

Use of Jet-Propelled Airplanes In War Against Nazis Ruled Out

By SYDNEY GRUSON
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

London, Feb. 5 (CP) — British aeronautical experts have put a damper on the enthusiastic wishful thinking that the newly-developed jet-propelled airplane will take the place of all propeller-equipped machines in the near future.

The use of the new machine in the war against Germany has been pretty well ruled out. That war is expected to be finished by the time sufficient jet-propelled planes are in production.

But the statement of an American officer that the new plane will be a "priceless asset for the American navy's carrier-based operations against Japan" is echoed here in somewhat more cautious estimates that it will be a factor in the far eastern war.

Commercially, the jet-projelled plane is said here to be between five and 10 years from existence.

However, there has been no attempt by aviation interests and experts to minimize the importance of Group Capt. Frank Whittle's invention toward the science of flight One estimate was that it had advanced aeronautical thinking 50 years.

"The greatest invention of the air age," was the description, of Prof. D. S. Sinnart of the R.A.F. Cadet College under whom Whittle studied.

Believed to be driven by the violent expansion of air taken in through a duct in the nose, compressed and heated as it passes through the machine and ejected through a duct in the tail, the new machine eliminates the highly-complicated and expensive aero motor and propeller, substituting by comparison what is a simple and cheap mechanism.

"While the power-output of the normal internal combustion engine appears for various mechanical reasons to be limited, the jet system appears to offer an unlimited source of power," wrote Ronald Walker, the News Chronicle's air correspondent.

The authoritative magazine Aeroplane saw the introduction of jet propulsion as revolutionizing the design of flying-boats The height of a flying-boat hull hitherto has been governed by the necessity of keeping the air-screws clear of waves of spray.

Further German Attacks Near Rome Are Repulsed

3 NEW LANDINGS EXTEND HOLD ON KWAJALEIN ATOLL

Leaders Proclaim U. S. Military Gov't to Supplant Jap Rule Of Area

AIR SUPERIORITY

By WILLIAM HIPPLE
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Pearl Harbor, Feb. 5 (AP).—Invading three more islands in big Kwajalein Atoll, U.S. forces have overwhelmed the Japanese on two, pushed the resisting enemy back on a third which has seaplane bases, and brought two additional fortified bases under warship and plane attack.

Other developments listed by Admiral Chester W. Nimitz, were:

1. Leaders of the mid-Pacific offensive, foreseeing capture of all the mandated Marshalls, have proclaimed a U.S. military government to supplant the 25-year-long power of Emperor Hirohito in the areas as each is occupied.

2. There is no indication the huge naval force supporting the six-day-old invasion has been challenged or suffered losses.

3. Air forces have kept all Japanese planes out of the Marshalls' skies for four successive days.

In Sharp Contrast.

(This picture was in sharp contrast with that presented yesterday in a Japanese imperial headquarters communique and recorded in New York by the United States foreign broadcast intelligence. Tokyo claimed two destroyers had been sunk, a cruiser and a destroyer set on fire, 52 planes shot down and 24 damaged, and said Japanese garrisons on Roi and Kwajalein islands were "firmly holding the defence sector".)

Capture within less than a day of Roi and its airfield on the north end of Kwajalein Atoll Tuesday was announced by Admiral Nimitz and he said yesterday progress was being made in putting down enemy resistance at Wwajalein island, on the south end of the Atoll.

Getting Seaplane Bases.

Latest invasion moves were intended to give complete control of the Atoll's south end. While fighting continued on Kwajalein island, troops landed to the north of it on Ebeye island, where there are two seaplane bases, ramps, hangars, shops, a pier and a radio station. Already half of that important island has been won.

Between Ebeye and Kwajalein, two small, unnamed islands were occupied and the moderate enemy resistance on them was ended.

To the north of Ebeye, bombs and shells began falling on Gugegwe and Loi islands, drawing enemy fire. Gugegwe, guarding a main channel into spacious Kwajalein lagoon now used by the American Navy, is heavily fortified.

Admiral Nimitz' communique last night said "our casualties continue to re-moderate."

Eight Years May Be Required to Clear Debris in Berlin

Berne, Feb. 5—(AP)—Berliners speaking of their city no longer refer to it as the Reich's capital but as the "Reich's city of ruin," a Budapest dispatch to the Gazette De Lausanne said today.

Specialists estimate it will require at least eight years merely to clear away the debris, the dispatch said.

A German broadcast said Propaganda Minister Goebbels in his capacity as district leader visited bombed out Berlin residents Friday and announced that the rebuilding of Berlin would be carried out in a "comparatively short time" and that preparatory work is being done.

FULL NEUTRALITY OF SPAIN IS ALL BRITAIN DESIRES

Ambassador to Spain, Sir Samuel Hoare, Issues Statement

DENIES RUMORS

By CHARLES FOLTZ
(Associated Press Staff Writer.)

Madrid, Feb. 5. (AP)—Sir Samuel Hoare, British Ambassador to Spain, said yesterday "there is no cause of conflict between the Allied and Spanish governments" if Spain "is really neutral" as the Franco Cabinet affirmed two days ago.

In a Spanish-language statement published in a British Embassy information bulletin, Sir Samuel added:—

"That (full neutrality) is all we desire and that Germany not use Spain to attack the Allies. On that basis I consider that differences now existing can be settled satisfactorily".

The British ambassador also denounced what he called "fantastic rumors" circulating abroad as Axis-inspired.

"It is said abroad for example that the Allies have the intention of invading Spanish territory soon to force Spain to enter the war", the statement said. "It also is said that we have asked the use of Spanish bases for the coming campaign. Pay no attention to rumors of this kind, especially when it is evident Axis agents are spreading them".

The statement added to optimism already evident on both sides that British-American negotiations in progress with the Spanish government would result soon in agreements on subjects being discussed, including the matter of oil shipments which the United States and Britain have cut off.

Another question reliably reported near solution was the status of five of 14 Italian merchantman which were in Spanish ports at the time of the Italian armistice. Authorized Spanish sources said the nine others were released weeks ago.

The status of several Italian warships which entered Spanish ports at the time of the Armistice still is being discussed.

U.S. Negro Fighter Squadron Praised

Algiers, Feb. 5—(AP)—Praise for the exploits of a Negro fighter squadron during recent operations over the invasion beachhead in Italy has been expressed by Gen. H. H. Arnold, commander of the United States army air forces.

Noting that the squadron had shot down eight enemy planes in a single day and four on another day, Gen. Arnold wrote in a letter to Lt.-Gen. Ira C. Eaker, Allied air commander in the Mediterranean, "the results of the 99th Fighter's Squadron during the past weeks, particularly since the Nettuno landing, are very commendable. My best wishes for their continued success."

NARROW ESCAPE

A Bomber Base in England, Feb. 5 (AP) — Lieut. Jacob Kutrzburg of Philadelphia came within 200 feet of landing his heavy bomber on a German-occupied airfield but realized his mistake in time and escaped with only a few bullet holes in the bomber's tail. Engine trouble, bad weather and a faulty compass caused the crew to lose their bearings and glide toward the Nazi field thinking they were back over England.

Vichy Radio Says Battleship Dunkerque Hit During Bombing

London, Feb. 5 (CP) — The German-controlled Vichy radio said today that the French battleship Dunkerque was hit during the Allied bombing of Toulon yesterday and is still burning.

The Dunkerque, a 26,500-ton battleship launched in 1935, was scuttled by the French navy when the Germans occupied Toulon in November, 1942, and was reported later to have been dismantled by the Germans.

Toulon, naval base on the southern coast of France, was attacked by Mediterranean-based heavy bombers.

RIVAL NAZI SPY RINGS OPERATED IN ARGENTINA

Head of One Ring, Who Was Hitler's Representative, Now Under Arrest

WILL GIVE REPORT

Buenos Aires, Feb. 5 — (AP) — A government spokesman, promising a full report soon on Axis spy activities in Argentina, announced last night two rival Nazi rings had operated in this country, one headed by Adolf Hitler's personal representative and the other by the German Embassy.

The two German operations were so competitive, said Col. Enrique Gonzales, secretary to President Pedro Ramirez, that resulting antagonism often produced incidents leading to leaks that gave both away.

The man described as Hitler's representative, a manufacturer named Harnisch who is married to an Argentine, now is under arrest, Gonzales said.

These disclosures came simultaneously with Argentine action in severing diplomatic relations with four Axis satellites — Vichy France, Bulgaria, Rumania and Hungary. The Ramirez government broke with Germany and Japan Jan. 26.

Gonzales said all evidence concerning German and Japanese spy activity in the country would be made public as soon as fully documented. He promised a report on Japanese activity next week and another on the German rings in the near future.

Japanese operations, the secretary said, were conducted in a clumsy manner and there was no difficulty in obtaining evidence that it was directed by the Japanese Embassy.

A foreign office announcement yesterday classified all American nations at war with the Axis as non-belligerents, thus giving vessels flying any American flag full port privileges in Argentina.

Allied Planes Fly 12,000 Sorties In Seven-Day Period

London, Feb. 5 —(CP)— Allied planes flew 12,000 sorties from British bases in a seven-day period ending at dawn on Jan. 31, with heavy bombers alone dropping 9,000 tons of bombs on Germany, the Air Ministry announced today.

During the period, 217 Allied planes failed to return, including 163 heavy bombers and 36 fighters.

By contrast, the tonnage dropped by Allied planes during the week was more than seven times greater than that dropped by the German air force during the week of their fiercest attempt to bomb Britain from the war in 1940, and the Allied losses were less than a fifth of those suffered by the Nazis during the week of their greatest offensive.

POLICE AWAIT AUTOPSY

Hamilton, Ont., Feb. 5 (CP) — Police today awaited results of an autopsy to determine what action to take in the death of Abraham Rosenberg, 66-year-old tailor, who died in hospital late yesterday an hour after he was found lying face down under a clothes press in his shop.

The autopsy will be concluded later today.

ROOSEVELT PRAISED

London, Feb. 5 — (CP) — The Church of England newspaper praised President Roosevelt's international leadership today and declared that Governor Thomas Dewy of New York "ceased being isolationist only when events made it ridiculous.

AMERICAN HEAVY BOMBERS FOLLOW UP NIGHT RAIDS

Frankfurt Hard Hit By Large Force of American Planes on Friday Afternoon

12 PLANES DOWNED

London, Feb. 5. (CP) —Strong forces of American heavy bombers, smashing at Nazi targets for the eighth time in nine days, attacked German airfields in Central France today, United States Army headquarters here announced.

They were supported by R.C.A.F. Spitfires and U.S. Fighters.

On Even Greater Scale.

This fourth straight daylight assault by the American giant bombers, at airfields unspecified in the preliminary announcement, appeared to be on an even greater scale than those which left great fires raging in Nazi U-boat bases and war industries at Wilhelmshaven and Frankfurt during the past two days. Wilhelmshaven was hit by 1,100 bombers and fighters Thursday.

The Paris radio announced later the French capital was among targets of the daylight raiders.

Most recent Allied aerial blows at Paris have been made at war industries in the city's outskirts.

Today's attack followed a night in which R.A.F. Mosquito bombers ranged over Western Germany to dump 500-pound bombs on unannounced objectives.

The Air Ministry said no planes were missing from last night's blow, the second in as many nights by Mosquitos against Western Germany. Other night bombers laid mines in enemy waters.

Hundreds of escorted U.S. Flying Fortresses and Liberators hit Frankfurt and other targets in Western Germany yesterday.

Heavy A-A Fire.

American heavy bombers had to bore through flaming fields of anti-aircraft fire to reach Frankfurt, and 21 of the big bombers and one fighter did not return. Twelve Nazi planes were destroyed.

It was the third attack by American bombers against Frankfurt, important German industrial and communications centre, which they jolted with 1,800 tons of explosives Jan. 29 in a record daylight raid in which more than 800 heavy bombers participated. One of the great sky battles of the war took place on that raid, with 102 enemy planes shot down against a loss of 21 big bombers and 13 fighters.

The other targets in Western Germany were not specified in yesterday's communique.

1,500,000 Evacuees May Have To Be Moved

New York, Feb. 5—(AP)—A dispatch to the Stockholm newspaper Social Demokraten, reported today to the United States office of War Information, said Nazi authorities in East Prussia anticipated having to handle at least 1,500,000 evacuees from the Baltic countries and northern Poland as the Russian army advanced.

"Tens of thousands" of Germans and Estonians are in flight from Reval (Tallinn), the Swedish dispatch said, and trains can be seen moving westward with passengers even clinging precariously to the roofs of the coaches and freight cars.

In Riga, "thousands of German civilians" are competing for berths on ships bound to Germany, the newspaper also reported.

Nazis Explain Why 140,000 Persons Moved From Black Sea Into Reich

New York, Feb. 5. (AP) —The Berlin radio dipped back today to the time of Catherine the Great, some 200 years ago, for an explanation of why Germany has just moved 140,000 persons from the Black Sea region of Russia into the Reich.

Describing those shifted as "German settlers", the broadcast asserted they were "descendants of those German peasants" whom Catherine "had called to Russia".

Moscow has charged repeatedly that Russian subjetcs in German-occupied territory have been impressed and sent to Germany to work as slaves in Nazi war factories, but this Berlin broadcast asserted the 140,000 would be given land so they could continue as farmers.

Berlin said the 140,000 "covered 1,600 kilometres (about 1,000 miles) on their great trek towards the west before they reached that part of the Reich called Wartheland which is to be their new home."

(This region presumably adjoins the Warthe River in Eastern Germany.)

Crack Armored Unit Suffers Heavy Losses in Attack

Germans Continue Fierce Resistance In the Main Part Of Cassino

TAKE MANY PRISONERS

By RICHARD G. MASSOCK
(A. P. War Correspondent)

Allied Headquarters in Italy, Feb. 5 (AP) — The Germans have launched a new attack in their determined offensive to smash the Allied beachhead, this time striking at British troops in the area north of Aprilia (Carroceto) twenty miles southeast of Rome, but have been repulsed with heavy losses, it was announced today.

On the main 5th. Army front desperate fighting raged unabated in the streets of Cassino and in the mountains north of the town, with the Germans holding on despite heavy attacks by American infantry, artillery and Armor.

Bring in More Weapons

The Germans still were in possesion of the main part of Cassino and were holding the Americans to the outskirts. Positions changed hands several times. The Germans managed to get more six-barrelled mortars, tanks and big self-propelled guns into Cassino for their almost suicidal defence of the city where they had turned almost every house into a fortress from which they fired on the attackers.

Just to the north of Cassino American troops pushed farther west, dislodging the Germans from most of Mount Maiola, but fierce fighting was continuing.

The Nazis threw into the beachhead attack the 26th Division, one of their best armored outfits in Italy, which has fought on both the 5th and 8th Army fronts.

All along the northern part of the beachhead the Germans probed the Allied line in apparent search for weak spots.

A dispatch from the 5th Army's beachhead front by Reynolds Packard, representing the combined American press, said some German prisoners reported Hitler had sent a special message ordering them to fight their hardest until the Allied wedge was obliterated.

Take 10,000 Prisoners Since Sept.

The Allies took 90 prisoners in the beachhead fighting, bringing the total captured there since the landings two weeks ago to 1,500. The total number of Germans captured in Italy since the invasion of the continent started in Calabria last September 3 now is more than 10,000, headquarters announced.

TRY TO SETTLE DISPUTE

Washington, Feb. 5. (AP)— Efforts were reported under way today to settle a dispute within the United States office of War Information by a "negotiated peace" between the principals, Director Elmer Davis and his overseas director, Robert E. Sherwood.

President Roosevelt is understood to have asked the O.W.I. officials to try to iron out the conflict between themselves.

SHIP OUTPUT LOWER

Washington, Feb. 5 (AP)—Rear-Admiral Emory S. Land, chairman of the United States Maritime Commission, last night reported a steep decline in ship construction in January and cited it as an argument for enactment o fnational service legislation.

Production in merchant shipyards dropped to 124 vessels last month, compared with 208 deliveries in December, Land reported in a speech broadcast from an American Legion dinner.

Enemy Launches Series of Heavy Counter-Attacks Against Salient

LINES BECOME FLUID

(Distributed by The Canadian Pre
Distributed by The Canadian Press

With the 5th Army in Italy, Feb. 5.—The Germans launched at 11 o'clock Thursday night the first series of counter-attacks against this salient of the Allied line.

Very grim fighting continues. This fighting ranks in violence with the struggle for Cisterna Di Littoria. The enemy after several days of aggressive patrolling in this sector, struck heavily with infantry and armor.

In the darkness the Germans brought up tanks. The lines became fluid and dawn found German and Allied units engaged in most confused fighting. The Germans took 100 British prisoners, then marched them straight into friendly lines. The British not only regained their lost unit, but captured forty men of the German guard.

Soon after dawn Allied tanks engaged the German armor. A massive enemy tank smashed its way into a farmhouse and was utilizing the concrete walls as a protective outer shell when it was finally silenced by tank destroyers and another was disabled or destroyed. Medium Allied tanks were hit before the German armor withdrew. Mopping-up operations netted more than 100 prisoners.

The battlefield is farmland, open and gently-rolling. It is the sort of terrain on which the real battle of the first great war was fought. There are no great natural defensive positions such as the Germans utilized so cleverly with relatively small forces in southern Italy. To hold the line the enemy must commit masses of infantry. If this is the objective of the allied landing, it has certainly succeeded for the latium adventure has sucked into this area many enemy reserves.

In thirteen days the Germans may have assembled enough strength to assume an offensive.

There was a little action in the sector just south and west of Cisterna, where the 5th army took part in offensive fighting that began on Sunday morning and continued to Thursday. Within sight of American lines the Germans are preparing defences along the railroad skirting Cisterna on the south. The line is now entirely in German hands.

CITY AND DISTRICT NEWS

SEA CADET COMMITTEE ON INSPECTION TRIP

The heads of the local Sea Cadet Committee, together with several of the officers of the unit, made a trip on Friday to Port Hope and Peterboro to inspect the quarters and the training methods in these two cities. Some very valuable ideas and information were gathered on the trip, as these two centres also have very flourishing Sea Cadet Corps. The party consisted of Wilbur Fox, Ross Stiver, E. Zeran, and Principal W. S. Turner, chairman of the committee, as well as Lt. A. Coe, commanding officer of the local Sea Cadet Corps. The party was accompanied by Lt. Chamberlain and Leading Seaman Flowers, from H.M.C.S. "Cataraqui" at Kingston.

DOG OWNERS WARNED TO PURCHASE LICENCES

City pound-keeper Thomas Thorne today reminded householders in Belleville that 1944 dog licences are now long overdue with very little interest being taken thus far in renewal of tags for their pets. During the past year there were 838 dog licences sold at the city hall, while up to date there have been only 64 dog owners purchase tags for the current year. Licences came due on the first day of January, according to Mr. Thorne.

CHILDREN PLAYING WITH MATCHES CAUSE OF SMALL BLAZE

The danger of children playing with matches was vividly demonstrated at a Ridley Street address, during the supper hour Friday evening, when a mattress in an upstairs room became ignited with the assistance of firemen being needed to extinguish the blaze. No damage other than to the bedclothes and mattress resulted from the blaze, according to firemen, but it is expected the child responsible for the fire will remember the experience for at least two different reasons.

TINNED SALMON SOON AVAILABLE

Tinned salmon is definitely on the way. A shipment of this foodstuff is expected to arrive in the city within the next two weeks. Mr. R. E. Hachborn, manager of the National Grocers Co., Ltd., announced that there would be somewhat over a thousand cases, with a fair percentage of the better grades, made available to the general public through the local merchants. A systemized method of distribution will insure an even spread of this commodity over the city.

TWICE-A-DAY MAIL DELIVERY IN CITY CUT BY ILLNESS

Those favored few in the city who have been accustomed to two letter deliveries each day instead of the single delivery which postal regulations call for, will be missing the afternoon visit of the postman these past few days. The reason is that three of the city letter carriers have been off duty through illness and as a result the double deliveries were automatically cancelled.

"That extra delivery has just been a courtesy on the part of the local postal department," commented Postmaster J. V. C. Truaisch today, "and has been given when the full letter-carrier staff is working. When some of the staff were off through illness this service was immediately cancelled, but the regular single delivery is still being given." One of the letter carriers who was off through illness came back on duty today, it was stated.

REPORTS READ TO CONGREGATION

At the annual meeting of Bridge Street United Church congregation this week among the reports read were those from the following Societies, W.M.S., by Mrs. H. O. Trusdale; W.A., by Mrs. C. E. Meyers; Red Cross, by Mrs. Countryman; Willing Knitters, by Mrs. Hefkey.

"MAILOMAT" LATEST DEVICE TO OVERCOME MAILING DIFFICULTIES

Something new in the way of postal letters boxes came into service in Ottawa recently, it was indicated today by Mr. J. V. C. Truaisch, local postmaster, following the receipt of a communication published in commemoration of the inauguration into service of the first "Mailomat".

The "Mailomat" is an automatic letter box for use of those persons who wish to post letters but have no stamps. It is really a sel-service post office that mails letters without the need of adhesive stamps, its working consisting of only simple operations. The operator merely has to drop the correct postage in the money slot, then dial the correct postage and insert the letter in the letter slot. The machine then automatically takes the letter, prints the postage and the postmark. Postage available includes airmail and special delivery.

The machines when they come into general use are expected to be popular through convenience of mailing letters after office hours.

DUMPING ASHES IN RIVER INVESTIGATED

The throwing of ashes and other debris into the Moira River was investigated by police on Friday following complaints from the Board of Health. Investigations revealed some business establishments bordering on the east bank of the river have been making a practice of throwing their garbage and ashes over the river bank leaving unsightly scenes and in no way adding to the beauty of the surrounding district. Police warned those responsible that court actions would be taken if such practices were not discontinued.

Gnr. 'Bill' Sharpe Writes From Italy

Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Sharpe, 64 Front Street, South, have received several airgraph letters from their son, Gnr. W. C. "Bill" Sharpe, who is serving with the Canadian Army somewhere in Italy. Bill Sharpe is well known in the city and at Frankford. He enlisted with the 34th Battery three years ago and went overseas two years ago last July. He has been in the Mediterranean area since November. Gnr. Sharpe has a brother, Harry Sharpe, serving with the R.C.A.F.

Several interesting facts about the conditions under which the boys are living in Italy are revealed in the letters.

"Since we left England we've had no barracks better than these, so I feel almost satisfied with the outlook," writes Gnr. Sharpe to his parents. He asked if they had had any oranges and nuts for Christmas, like many other boys who have been away from Canada for a considerable time, living under the rigid rationing system of the British Isles, believe that we are going without these things. He goes on to say in his letter: "We had lots of oranges and nuts. For 15 lire (which is equivalent to 15 cents in Canadian money) I get my greatcoat pocket full of nuts and they're just like we always had at home at Christmas time."

Gnr. Sharpe said that he was sending a collection of snapshots taken while he has been overseas, along with pictures and snaps of his family and friends which he wants kept for him until he comes home. His stated reason was that they would be safer.

He writes flashlights are no good in Italy as they can't get batteries. He expressed a desire to get a flashlight that generates its own power through a mechanism which worked by the hand.

He said that he had not met anyone from the district since his arrival in Italy, but that several boys he had met in England had come over. The writing conditions, due to restricted lighting, made it difficult to write often. He stressed the importance of letters received from home and said that they were only permitted to write one airgraph letter per week. He ended his letters with assurance of his well-being and good health. He gives his address as C51074, Gnr. W. C. Sharpe, No. 6 Bt., No. 2 C.B.R.D. — C.A.O.. — C.M.F.

Double House On Strachan St. Gutted by Fire

Damage expected to run into several thousands of dollars resulted early Saturday morning when fire believed to have started in an outside shed gained headway and badly gutted a double frame house at 32 Strachan street, occupied by Provincial Constable R. M. O'Brien and Mr. Wallace Bell and family. Flames ate their way from the lower floor upwards into the attic on both sides of the house with furniture being damaged through smoke and water.

According to Fire Chief William Lynch the blaze is believed to have started in an outside shed adjoining the O'Brien-occupied side of the double house and ate its way through into the kitchen before being noticed. Firemen were called around 12:15 this morning and fought the blaze for two hours with two lines of hose being used to subdue the flames. At 5:30 they were called back when flames again broke out in the gutted residence.

Upon discovery of the fire the families tenanting the house quickly donned their clothes and with assistance of neighbors and firemen carried some of the furniture in the downstairs rooms to safety but were unable to save that in the upper rooms. No insurance of any kind was carried by either family on household belongings, it was stated by firemen.

The double house is owned by Mrs. Emma Mott, 43 Dunbar street.

Eggs and Apples Heavy Offerings On Local Market

The offering of eggs and apples was the predominating feature of the local produce market Saturday, the former standing out on the inside market and the latter being conspicuous on the market square. Attendance was but average.

Fresh eggs held at the ceiling of 38 cents as established here several weeks ago by the Wartime Prices and Trade Board. Overweights were quoted at 42 cents the dozen by one or two vendors while mediums brought 35 cents. The offering of fowl was small and was almost all picked up by eleven o'clock. Top price for best grade fowl was 45 cents pound with the average birds going at 40 cents. A few vendors offered dairy butter at the usual 40 cents.

One vendor had onions for sale for a very few minutes, the few baskets displayed being picked up quickly at 60 cents each. Contents of two baskets were sold separately at three for ten cents.

While there has actually been no noticeable scarcity of potatoes on the local market, several vendors sold out quickly on Saturday at the ceiling price of $2.14 per bag. Next week the price will be $2.19, it was stated, with prices board regulations permitting regular price increase until June when the ceiling will be $2.59 per bag.

Best grade Spies, McIntosh and Delicious apples sold at $3 the bushel with lesser grades of the same varieties bringing from $2.50 up. Talman Sweets and Russetts sold at $2 the bushel. Carrots and parsnips sold at 25 cents the half peck with sauerkraut bringing the usual 15 cents quart.

Two loads of cordwood were offered, vendors quoting $11 per cord for mixed elm and poplar.

GEN. McNAUGHTON BACK HOME

Lieut.-Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton back in Canada, is pictured at the Seigniory Club, Que., playing soldier with his grandson, John McDougall. The "toy" is a model 18-pound field-gun of rhodium-plated sterling silver presented to Gen. McNaughton by all ranks of his old regiment, the Royal Canadian Artillery. When interviewed, the General said "There is nothing wrong with my health."

Mortgage Discharges in County More Than Double Those Placed

Reflecting the wave of apparent prosperity which almost invariably follows as the result of a nation being at war, the discharge of mortgages against Hastings County property now more than doubles the number being placed, it was indicated here this week by R. J. S. Dewar, registrar, at the County Registry office.

As a comparison during 1938, the year prior to the outbreak of war, there were but a very few more discharges of mortgages in the county than new mortgages placed while during 1943 they more than doubled.

Although the number of mortgages discharged within the county had been considerably increased during the past few years, Mr. Dewar was unable to state the number of the discharged mortgages which were on farm property and the percentage which had been on urban property. The Registry Office has no record of mortgage payments until the mortgages are completely discharged.

The County registrar did not hold with the estimate that approximately 75 per cent of the farms throughout Ontario were mortgaged. "Possibly that holds true in other sections of the province but I do not think it true in Hastings", he said. "In the case of a county where in there is a uniformity of large and expensive farms, the percentage of mortgages may have run that high during the depression, but the 75 per cent estimate would not hold true in Hastings where throughout the north part farms are comparatively small".

It was agreed however that the financial position of county farmers had been considerably bettered since the beginning of the war as this had been reflected in the retirement of many rural mortgages.

Armed Forces Censure 20,000 Plant Strikers

Detroit, Feb. 5 — (AP) — Reproaches from spokesmen for the armed forces and government agencies today confronted more than 20,000 war plant strikers in Michigan and Ohio as well as a United States War Labor Board threat of "full sanctions and penalties."

The strike, begun yesterday, was by members of the Independent Mechanics Educational Society of America who walked out in Cleveland, Detroit and elsewhere protesting the National Labor Relations Board's handling of a jurisdictional issues.

A demand that the men return to work "as a condition of loyalty to their country" was voiced by Ralph A. Bard, acting secretary of the Navy. Referring to necessary equipment for "invasion forces," Bard said the strike was "greatly increasing the hazards of our war effort."

He telegraphed his demand to Matthew Smith, National Secretary of the M.E.S.A., as the War Labor Board threatened sanctions and ordered a hearing in Washington Monday.

Smith tacitly defied the Board to apply sanctions, asserted the strike would continue. He said it was "impossible" to have union officers at the hearing because there would be insufficient time for delegates to the M.E.S.A.'s executive board to get together for formal action.

Prepared to Meet Sanctions

"I don't know what the sanctions or penalties are, but we'll find that out. We are prepared to meet them," Smith said.

Sanctions might include reclassification of the strikers under Selective Service or withholding of union benefits.

The strike was condemned both by the Regional W.L.B. in Cleveland, and by Chairman Edwin E. Witte of the Detroit Board.

Dispute precipitating the strike hinged on action of the N.L.R.B. in calling a hearing on a petition from the United Automobile Workers (C.I.O.) for a bargaining election in the tool room of the Willys-Overland Motor Company at Toledo. The strike there affected 4,700 employees.

Japanese Warned U. S. Invasion Is 'In Dead Earnest'

New York, Feb. 5 (CP) — Japanese audiences were warned by the Tokyo radio today that the United States invasion of the Marshall Islands was "in dead earnest" and consequently the war situation "is growing more acute than ever noted heretofore."

The Tokyo domestic broadcast, recorded by United States government monitors said:

"The enemy is eagerly pressing his advance into our inner south seas with the Gilberts as a powerful strategic base in the Central Pacific and no doubt quickly carried out the Marshall operations in order to destroy the might of 'time' which is a very important strength of Japan."

Tokyo told its audiences the "Western Pacific, needless to say, is the sphere of our control and the front line of national defence."

"It goes without saying that our front line units will respond by strongly counter-attacking the enemy," the broadcast continued. "The fact that the enemy's sacrifices will increase the closer he approaches our operational bases can easily be understood."

Tokyo emphasized, however, "It is clear that the recent sorties of the enemy are being carried out with all these conditions in mind" and, with "the war in the Pacific charging along with great speed from one decisive battle to another," it was time for the Japanese to exert their greatest effort.

The Japanese Domei agency, in an English-language wireless dispatch to North America, said "The main force of our navy remains intact" and it "will select the most advantageous times and places to sally forth for the defence of Greater East Asia."

Enemy Positions Are Mopped Up

New Delhi, Feb. 5 (CP).—Allied troops, mopping up enemy positions in the upper Chindwin valley of northern Burma occupied a village 20 miles southeast of Tamu without opposition Thursday, an Allied communique said today.

Other Allied forces, operating south and southeast of Tamu, uncovered a wide belt of Japanese snipers and killed several.

R.A.F. and U.S. bombers carried out widespread raids over northern and central Burma Thursday, and yesterday, ranging from the Hukwang valley in the north down through the Chindwin hills and the Ma Yu peninsula to the vicinity of Mandalay.

These operations were carried out without loss.

RUSSIAN ACTION LIKE LIGHTNING FROM CLEAR SKY

Pres. Roosevelt Admits He Doesn't Know What Autonomy Announcement Means

OFFICIALS SPEECHLESS

By C. R. BLACKBURN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Washington, Feb. 5 (CP).—Official Washington, always inspired and elated by reports of Russian successes over the German invaders, is not so happy about the occasional diplomatic bomb shells Moscow drops on the international arena.

The latest baffler, this week's announcement that the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics would be divided into sixteen presumably sovereign states, has sent commentators running in circles and left officials speechless.

Even President Roosevelt admitted, at his press conference yesterday, that he did not know what the announcement meant, and said that he had the courage to admit that fact and remain silent until he could comment with authority.

This was taken by some observers here as proof of what has often been claimed—that Premier Stalin does not tell his war allies what is in his mind but prefers to keep them guessing.

Such an important change in Russia's domestic set-up must have been known to Stalin when he met President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill in Teheran, observers argue.

No Clarification Seen.

But the announcement obviously came with the unexpectedness of a bolt of lightning from a clear sky. And there seems no inclination on the part of Russian authorities to clarify the situation.

Reaction here has ranged from the kindest interpretation that could be placed upon the move—that it is intended to set up truly independent states based upon nationality and ideals and setting an example for European reorganization—to a deliberate reaching for world power by the Soviet.

The suggestion has been made that this move, coupled with the circumstance that the British Commonwealth of Nations may have six full British votes in any international security organization, may force the United States to give autonomy to each of its 48 states so that each may claim an equal vote in post-war planning.

This, and the further speculation that each of the independent Russian states will seek diplomatic recognition in the world capitals, are considered to approach the ridiculous but there has been no official effort on the part of Russia nor any of the powers to remove the basis for such speculation.

(CP War Correspondent)

With the Canadian Forces in Italy, Feb. 5 —(CP)— Five of the few prisoners who surrendered in Ortona were rounded up in a darkened room by Ptes. G. G. Rattray, Lavoi, Alta., T. M. Starke, Fairview, Alta., and James Galloway, Cumberland, Ont.

Rattray wasted no words in telling of the capture. But he chuckled as he recalled how the Germans, despite a superiority of arms, shouted "kamerad" when cornered.

"We went into a dark room and saw the wings of the paratroopers," he said. "They had three machine-guns and two rifles. We got them out and marched them down to battalion headquarters."

If you've wondered what pipe majors do in their spare time, George Pate of Toronto provides a good answer. When Pate's unit was holding a front line position above Ortona there was no occasion to use pipes and Pate went out at night with mule teams delivering rations to forward platoons.

His first trip brought him a shrapnel nick in the seat of the pants, but didn't prevent him from finishing the journey.

Pattee Patter.

RSM. R. O. Bowen of Edmonton decided the Germans aren't so dumb after all. He placed a booby trap in the mouth of a tunnel they were using under Ortona. When he returned next day he found that the enemy, far from being fooled, had added a booby trap of their own . . . Maj. Neil Baird of Galt, Ont., lost his Glengarry so he got an Italian milliner to make a new one. He still needed a cap badge, however, and solved this problem by having one cast by an army dentist.

Mark Anniversary Of the Founding Of Press Union

Toronto, Feb. 5 —(CP)— To mark the 35th anniversary of the founding of the Empire Press Union, the Canadian section will hold a dinner in Toronto on March 29 during "Newspaper Week" when the annual meetings of The Canadian Press and the Canadian Daily Newspapers Association also are being held.

At the gathering the Canadian section, of which Senator W. Rupert Davies, publisher of the Kingston Whig-Standard, is chairman, will honor the three surviving charter members of the union —J. E. Atkinson of the Toronto Daily Star, M. E. Nichols, of the Vancouver Province and P. D. Ross of the Ottawa Journal.

The Union was founded in 1909 to form a connecting link between the parts of the Empire. Sections were established in Canada, Australia, New Zealand, South Africa and India and conferences were held at five-year intervals. The first took place in Canada and another was to have been held here in 1940 when war forced postponement.

It is understood Senator Davies is seeking an outstanding Empire newspaperman as guest speaker.

By JOHN DAUPHINEE
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

Ottawa, Feb. 4. (CP)—Principal topic of conversation on Parliament Hill is Lt.-Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton's return to Canada and his intriguing remarks during a brief Thursday interview with reporters at Seigniory Club, Que.

Members of Parliament are agog to hear more from him—and from Defence Minister Ralston who is expected to make a statement in the House of Commons—about the reasons which led to relinquishing by Gen. McNaughton of the overseas army command.

Parliamentary correspondents are eagerly looking forward to a press conference the general is expected to hold after he comes to Ottawa to report at defence headquarters. They look to a conference as replete with news stories as two others held in Ottawa by Gen. McNaughton, one following his appointment to command the 1st Division back in 1939 when he gave his views on the role the Canadian Army should play, and another on his visit to Canada in 1942 when he gave personal attention to a closer tie-up of Canadian war industry to the needs of the army.

Gen. McNaughton's statement that he is fit and that it will be up to those who gave reasons of health for his retirement to explain them gave sufficient hint of a conflict of view with the Defence Department to make members of parliament eager for more information.

Rules Revision

When the Special House Committee submits its final report, the Commons probably will experience its most important rules changes in many years.

The most important change in several decades was the decision years ago to limit speakers to 40 minutes and to set a specific hour—11 p.m.—for the house to end night sittings. Later Wednesday was made a half day and since the present war began Friday sittings also have ended at six p.m.

Now the proposal is to have no sitting on Wednesday, with that day designated for committee work.

One of the problems which may be studies by the special committee is avoiding as much as possible "waste time" in the Members' Day. Between the end of lunch and the opening of the afternoon sitting at 3 p.m. little work can be accomplished. Similarly the six p.m., to 8 p.m. supper recess is a waste as far as work is concerned, although eating doesn't take the full two hours.

One suggestion which may be considered by the committee is to have only one sitting a day, as is the case at Washington. Three Congress convenes generally about noon and works on without interruption until adjournment for the day is called.

Idle Repartee.

Air Minister Power has the quick wit of the Irish, but has to watch his words in his seat in the house where his ministerial companions are Hon. Ian Mackenzie and Hon. Angus Macdonald who have warm sentiments for Scotland.

Explaining the problems of bringing election facilities to Canadians in the forces in remote places, Maj. Power spoke of a "lone airman, lost in the wilds of the Hebrides, or. . . . ."

Mr. Macdonald (loudly): "Order!"

Maj. Power: "I am an oasis entirely surrounded by Scotland, so that I must not talk about the Hebrides".

More Scotch.

William Bryce (C.C.F.-Selkirk) a new member, made his maiden speech with heavy Scotch accent. Then up rose Tom Reid (L— New Westminster) whose acent is just as broad.

The Members cheered happily when Mr. Reid, boggling over the pronunciation of the name of a French-Canadian newspaper, commented: "I've had enough trouble speaking the English language since coming to this house without learning another".

Living Costs in U. K. Stable in 1943, Wages Up 4 to 5 P. C.

London, Feb. 4. (CP)— Great Britain's cost of living remained stable last year, wage increases were given 6,200,000 workers and the number of working days lost through strikes and stoppages set a wartime record, said a Ministry of Labor summary today.

The cost of living index, the summary said, remained unchanged throughout the year at 99. At the start of the war it was 55.

Economic commentators pointed to the 1943 wage boosts as an indication average wage rates have risen more than the cost of living.

The Ministry of Labor estimated that at the end of 1943 the average full time weekly wage rates—exclusive or overtime—of all industries were between four and five per cent higher than at the end of 1942 and about 38 per cent higher than at the start of the war.

Industries in which there was no general change in wage rates included coal mining, which contributed nearly half of the 1943 stoppages and lost workdays. The Ministry announced there were 1,775 labor disputes involving 559,000 workers at a cost of 1,810,000 working days. During the previous year (1942) there were 1,303 stoppages which cost 1,530,000 lost days.

Letters for Soldiers

By John Steinbeck

To the G.I.'s in the field or in barracks or on manoeuvre letters are nearly the most important things that happen or don't happen. In five minutes of talk with a soldier you know whether he has heard from home or that letters do not come. It is a constant source of conversation, of worry and of gladness.

A group of men sit down together and they do not know one another, but in a very short time the wallets come out and pictures are passed about, pictures of wives and children. This is taken as a matter of course. No one is bored with it. And if a letter has been received, even a dull letter, it is usually read aloud and everyone is interested. And if the letters are worry letters the man shows it in his face and the army doctors say that often he gets sick and doesn't even know what caused it.

* * *

The private letters are from his wife. She was a whiner. Probably always had been. She was living with his parents. Things were not going well. They were spoiling the baby and the baby had been sick. She wishes she could move away but there wasn't enough money. She hadn't been feeling very well herself. Nothing you could put your finger on, but she was just run down. But she wasn't happy and she wanted the war to be over so he could go home and she could have the things she was used to.

He finished reading the letter, and his face was filled with worry. "She's very delicate," he said. He pulled out the inevitable wallet and showed a picture of her. A spoiled, pout-mouthed little blonde, who was probably strong enough to lick two men, a complete whiner. "I wish she could go to California," he said. "I wish I could send her." He turned the letter over and there was a postscript. "I don't know how long I can keep this up," the postscript said. "I have to think a little bit of myself and after all, I'm not getting any younger."

There was the threat, the thing that was putting worry in his face. She was threatening him and he knew it, yet he was holding on to this thing and arguing with himself. He was putting in tremendous days of work and at night he had to go to bed with the picture of his wife going off with another man. She had the knife in him and she knew it. And he would get no rest and after a while his stomach would go to pieces and he would be hospitalized.

* * *

Another man brought out a little book and in it were columns of dates and check marks, a year of them, a check mark for every day in the year. Every day a letter was written. It amazed him. Some times they were weeks arriving and he checked them against the postmarks. He had six of them in his pocket. They weren't terribly interesting letters, but one was written every day and, although he was late in knowing, he knew what happened every day and there was no worry in him. He wanted desperately to go home but he felt that he had not been cut off.

Another had not heard at all, no letters, no word at all. And he used all sorts of little explanations to himself. The ship that had the letters on board had been sunk. Maybe there was someone with his name who was getting his letters. Maybe the censor had taken them. He used all of those on himself. Maybe she was sick, maybe she was even dead, but what he was saying all the time to himself was that almost surely she wasn't writing.

* * *

This is a great time for wives. They will never in their lives be so beautiful as they are now. Their eyes will never be so bright, nor every kindness and every gentleness remembered the way it is now. They have great power now, and so many of them misuse it. So many use it to hurt and to worry. And a man in the army hasn't time for these things in the daytime. Only when he should be sleeping can he consider the overtones of letters or think up possible reasons why there are no letters.

And a man feels trapped. If something is wrong, there is nothing in the world that he can do about it. He cannot go to a sick wife, nor can he revenge himself on a creeper. He is here and helpless, and one good letter can make the difference between a good soldier and a sick man. A large number of the men have only one revenge for bad treatment of this kind. When it finally gets through to them that they are being ignored and forgotten, they go out for other women. Their self-respect demands it. They are a curiously faithful crowd. For all the talk about what soldiers do they want terribly to be related to one woman. They build a sort of image of perfection that couldn't possibly have been true, and they hold on to it as long as they can, and they will only abandon it when they have to.

Good food can be given to a man, and entertainment and hard work, but nothing in the world can take the place of the letters. They are the single strings and when they are cut the morale of that man is shattered.

Major G. Murray Discuss Rhodes Scholars and CCF

London, Ont. Feb. 5 —(CP)— Major Gladstone Murray, Toronto Policy Counsel, addressing London Kiwanis Club yesterday devoted some time to discussing "the crop of Rhodes Scholars that adorn the front ranks of the C.C.F."

He said they were of a generation of Oxford University graduates who accepted a resolution against bearing arms in any cause whatever. In his own day, a generation earlier, "it was believed that acceptance of the largesse of Rhodes carried with it the moral obligation to serve the Empire." Maj. Murray was Rhodes Scholar from Quebec in 1913-14.

"The British and American contemporaries of our Canadian Socialist Rhodes Scholars mellowed and recovered their poise with the impact of affairs, and it is a curious commentary that there is no trace of anti-British attitude on the part of the Americans," he said, drawing attention to what he termed "the eccentricity of a pronounced anti-British bias among the Canadian Rhodes Scholars now so prominent in the C.C.F."

New German Disaster

Another great disaster for German arms impends with ten divisions encircled in the Upper Dnieper Bend and is said to present "the same picture as Stalingrad" did just one year ago. To the Russians the trapping of the Germans must have an inspiration which can hardly be surpassed and to the enemy it must bear the significance of not only the impending disaster but also of the ultimate collapse of Germany towards which it will contribute.

Just this week the Russians have been observing the anniversary of the victory of Stalingrad, which not only removed the Hitler threat to the Caucasus but launched the Russian armies on that offensive which swept westward during winter and spring, and hurled aside the abbreviated Hitler-attempted offensive in June and carrying on through the summer has now launched into the great winter offensive of the Red armies which have already by their victories passed the bounds of success that could have been imagined.

The Germans have been retreating for a year and their outlook is gloomy. It is not only not improved but the enemy is in the worst position in which he has been since the Germans thrust their forces across the boundary of Russia two years ago last June.

From the top in the Baltic down to the Black Sea German armies are retreating after heavy defeats. But about one hundred and fifty thousand men are not retreating—the ten divisions locked up in the Bend. Here the Russians have gone to work with the process of destroying the German force as a fighting body.

Russian dispatches from the front where the trapped Germans are being pounded by the Russians are cheering. They show the capture of large amounts of enemy stores and armament. Dispatches Friday in the north told also of the precarious position of the Germans who up near the Baltic may be in a disadvantageous position and may suffer very heavy losses.

The good news of these victories of the Red armies has come at the first anniversary of Stalingrad and at the very time the "Sword of Stalingrad" was being presented from King George VI of Britain to the people of Stalingrad. At Teheran the sword was presented to Premier Stalin during the last Allied conference and this week the symbol of Russian and British co-operation was delivered into the hands of the representatives of the brave city in the celebration of its victory of one year ago, which cost the Germans hundreds of thousands of men.

Columnist is War Victim

Another newspaperman has given his life in his effort to portray the story of the offensive now being staged against the Axis. He is Raymond Clapper, the noted columnist and political writer. The war has claimed a good number of writers who have been serving the purpose of keeping the home front inspired and fortified by their presentation of the march of events in the various theatres of war. Clapper had been in Europe three times and in the Pacific area four times. He, in his own words, chose this assignment rather than the covering of the "big cross-channel show" (which he preferred) to "starting out on this somewhat neglected war in the Godforsaken wastes of the Pacific which is being fought over islands that no American will ever wish to see again" because he said there was some "unawareness" at home of the importance of the Pacific conflict.

He was a believer in the view that the only way to write a wartime column was to see some of the war at first-hand. In this he was the typical reporter in himself gathering news on the spot. He lost his life in a collision of two planes in the Pacific theatre of the struggle.

Japanese Evacuation

The Japanese are evacuating Tokyo, according to stories reaching London. Tokyo has seen the other Axis capital, Berlin, being systematically destroyed by the consistent bombing of the R.A.F. and the U. S. Army Air Force. The Nipponese who rushed into the war when they thought the time was rife for aggression, have since had time to realize that they are in for a beating that will take in Tokyo. Indeed, it is a long time since the capital of Japan was hammered by American bombers. Tokyo residents, then in in alarm, have not forgotten their jitters of that time and are only too ready to flee from Tokyo and other cities from the vengeance to come upon these barbarians. Japanese authorities realize that Tokyo is on the Allied air visiting card.

Canada's War Effort

When J. W. G. Clark, Director of Information for the Armed Forces of Canada, said that he was not sure that Canadians or British and Americans fully realized the extent of Canada's war effort, he was no doubt correct and his statement that for every Canadian fighting as aircrew in R.C.A.F. squadrons overseas there are ten other R.C.A.F. men flying with R.A.F. squadrons, must have come as a pleasant surprise to everyone.

The strength of the Allied air forces pounding the vitals of Germany's war machine through its cities, its communications and industrial plants, it is recognized, must be very great to be able to deliver so heavy blows without let-up.

Mr. Clarke's words will stir up a great deal of interest and will serve to give some impression of the almost unbelievable weight of the whole Allied air strength that is operating in Europe and in the Pacific with success on all the fronts. That is the side of the air achievement and there must also be considered the army and naval strength of the Dominion.

Needed

Dr. Colin Garfield Fink of Columbia University lists these six needed inventions:

(1) An electric light ten times as efficient as any we have.

(2) An improved automobile gas engine three or four times as efficient as the present type.

(3) A rainproof and sunproof paint for wooden structures.

(4) An alloy of aluminum as resistant to fatigue as steel.

(5) A metal or other material to take the place of our rapidly dwindling resources of copper and lead.

(6) A material as good as leather for shoes.

Manual for Hunted Humans

(New York Herald-Tribune)

The Dutch have published a manual of instructions for their people who carry on the underground struggle against the Nazi conquerors. Following are some of the pieces of advice.

Don't accept invitations. "Even the house of your best friend may turn out to be a trap."

Plan a route of escape—"across the roof or through the garden, or hide in a closet or shed."

Be silent and slow-witted when the police interrogate you. Fish for the reason of your arrest.

When in hiding, never let your wife, parent or other relation know where you are hiding.

When hunted keep calm.

Masses of Words

(St. Louis Globe-Democrat)

The story of the creation of the world is told in Genesis in 400 words.

The world's greatest moral code and Ten Commandments, contains only 400 words.

Lincoln's immortal Gettysburg Address is but 266 words in length.

The Declaration of Independence required only 1,321 words to set up a new conception of freedom.

The U. S. Office of Price Administration uses 2,500 words to announce a reduction in the price of cabbage seeds.

The intellect of the wise is like glass; it admits the light of heaven and reflects it. —Hare.

FELLOWSHIP OF STRUGGLE

After the struggle ceaseth,
After the battle ends,
A few retire to a bivouac fire
Living it over as friends.

Friends of the field and hillside,
Friends of the sea and sky
Who have battle shared with all who dared
For a righteous cause to die.

And down through the years thereafter
They will laughter and song repeat
And old ties renew, as good friends do,
Whenever they chance to meet.

When done is the need for dying,
And stilled is the world's applause,
'Til the last has gone they will carry on
The bonds of a common cause.

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BY-GONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

February, 5th., 1924.

Arrangements have been completed for the Thrift Week in Belleville to commence Feb. 7th. It is not a movement tending to promote what has become known as a "buyer's strike," nor in favor of locking up one's money and not spending anything at all, but rather an educational campaign to promote efficiency and wise expenditure both in regards to time and money. The importance of increasing one's earning power, paying bills and debts promptly, taking out life insurance, owning a home, making a will and opening a bank account, will be emphasized by the speakers who will address the students in the schools and colleges and in sermons by the local ministers. The following speakers will take part: Mr. Sidenius, General Secretary of the Y.M.C.A.; Mr. P. C. MacLaurin, Mr. John Elliott, Mayor W. C. Mikel, Mr. W. H. Merry, Mr. L. L. Moore, Col. W. N. Ponton, Rev. Dr. E. N. Baker and Rev. Father Killeen.

GUEST AT BANQUET EXPRESSES APPRECIATION

Editor Ontario Intelligencer:

May I take this opportunity, through the medium of your columns, of expressing the sentiments of the guests to Bro. Walter Fowler, the Worshipful Master of Belleville Orange Lodge for the banquet he tendered to representatives of the several lodges of South Hastings on Wednesday evening last.

One hundred per cent of its success was his, except for one reason, that he is a bachelor, but he overcame this by soliciting the assistance of members of the Ladies' Orange Association, who gave the tables and delicacies that feminine touch as only the ladies can, and a hearty vote of thanks was extended to them by the guests.

The toast list was in charge of toastmaster Bro. J. M. Carl, Grand Marshal of Ontario East, and comprised toasts to The King, The British Commonwealth of Nations and Our Allies, proposed by Rev. Bro. F. C. Beazer, Grand Chaplain of Ontario East and responded to by Bro. Roscoe Robson, M.P.P., for East Hastings and Bro. George A. Reid, Past County Master.

The Loyal Orange Association, proposed by Bro. F. Howes, County Master, responded to by Bro. W. Fowler, for the primary lodges; Bro. A. B. Charlton for county lodges, and Bro. George F. Reed, Grand Auditor, for the Grand Lodge.

The guest speaker, Bro. H. A. Graham, Past Grand Master, of Ontario East, was introduced by Bro. W. J. Hall, county secretary. Bro. Graham gave a very interesting address on the association's war efforts and its position within the Empire.

Mr. Fred Wooten, in his noted unassumed manner, gave several readings along the trend of patriotism, sentiment and humor, which was much appreciated by all.

Bro. Beazer led the community singing and also gave a solo.

The toast to the visitors was proposed by Bro. A. L. Burke, and responded to by Rev. Bro. Foreman, of Lyn, Ont.; Bro. Clarke of Kingston and Bro. H. Howes of Foxboro.

Votes of thanks were in order and the evening closed by singing Auld Lang Syne and God Save the King.

Frankford

Editor, Ontario Intelligencer:

Since you have played into the hands of the liquor interests by publishing their anti-prohibition cartoons imported from United States, we would suggest that in fairness to the temperance people in this country, you publish a talk by Sam Morris, the outstanding American lecturer.

We will furnish this literature or you can hear him each morning at 7.30 by turning to 840 on your radio.

Time's Kindness

If today you have a trouble
That is hard to bear,
If today your mind is burdened with a load of care.
Let its burden not oppress you
Look on life's bright side,
Time will roll away your burden.
So in peace abide.

If today you have a sorrow
Deep within your heart,
Trials in which a friend or loved one
Cannot bear a part,
Do not think the pain and sadness
Will forever stay.
For the bitter sting of sorrow
Time will take away.

If your heart is sore with grieving,
Harassed and oppressed,
If o'er failures you are thinking
You will yet have rest.
Time with kind and tender fingers
Will sweet healing bring
And from life's mistakes and errors
Will remove the sting.

—Helen B. Anderson.

PLEADS FOR LOYAL JAPS

San Francisco, Feb. 5 (AP)—Sgt. Ben Kuroki, Japanese-American war hero, asked the United States today to respect loyal Americans of Japanese ancestry and said despite his uniform and medals "I don't know for sure if it's safe to walk the streets of my own country." A gunner on 30 bombing missions over Europe and Africa, he holds the D.F.C. and the Air Medal.

Canadian Scene A Century Ago

By J. L. G.

Like the brave of our own time, the early settlers were always ready to lead the way in tasks requiring fortitude and courage. They have their recognition in the chronicles of colonial achievement.

* * *

"The crossing's fine today" . . . When the settlers said this they rubbed their hands and laughed happily. It meant that the ice on neighboring lake or river was 10 to 16 inches thick, that the journey over could be made without fear of a break-through. Bitter experience had taught that a horse needs at least 4 inches of ice under him. With less he is apt to come to grief, or at least to put one foot through the glistening crust over a frosty stream. . . . Fully aware of the hazards of the trip, the pioneer slipped a noose of heavy rope about his steed's neck and urged him onto the ice. The end of the rope was left to dangle close at hand in the sleigh. At the first sign of trouble the traveller would let go the traces, jump out and run to the front, there to attempt to yank the animal up out of the frigid water.

The ice-boat was invented to overcome the difficulties of "between-season" crossings — that period when the ice is too thin to carry much weight and there is little or no open water. The peculiar-looking vessel, the size of a skiff, had a flat bottom and square punt-like ends. A sail and oars gave wings to the craft in the water stretches. Upon encountering a large ice floe the crew of the boat climbed forth and hauled it up, then shoved it along on its steel-shod runners. At any moment the vessel could be expected to crash down, especially if the persons manning it were large and hefty. Naturally the crew members tended always to be slight and short.

* * *

Very different was the trip by ice-yacht. You travelled "high, wide and handsome"—literally —and you could hope for a speed up to around 70 miles an hour. Some 600 square feet of light canvas were carried in staysail and mainsail. The lengthwise plank was 30-40 feet long. To it was attached a cross plank 15-24 feet, set about 15 or 18 feet from the bow. Three skates were fastened on, one under each end of the cross-plank and a smaller one for a "rudder" skate . . . Ice-yachting is a "twosome" affair. One person lies down in the little cushioned cockpit on each side of the main length-piece of wood . . . This racer was invented in the latter part of the 19th century.

NUGGETS OF KNOWLEDGE

The phrase "boys and girls" occurs in the Bible. Zechariah 8:5 says: "And the streets of the city (Jerusalem) shall be full of boys and girls playing in the streets thereof."

Modern corn is a produce of long years of scientific breeding and culture. The American Indians of pre-Columbian times never saw any maize like that we have today.

In 1834 former President John Quincy Adams, then a Representative from Massachusetts, delivered an address before a joint session of Congress in memory of Lafayette. As the former President looked into the faces of the audience he saw present every man except two who were Presidents of the United States from the time he took office until Abraham Lincoln. They were President Andrew Jackson, Vice President Van Buren, Senator John Tyler, Representative James K. Polk, Representative Millard Fillmore, Representative Franklin Pearce, and Senator James Buchanan.

Spanish moss acts as a host for the cotton boll weevil.

The Rev. Mr. Philip Vickers Fithian, Presbyterian minister and missionary on the American frontier, wrote in his diary under date of February, 1776: "One of the Pillars and the very strongest in the whole Building too of the Presbyterian church in Berkley (Virginia), most unluckily gave way this afternoon, and lies upon the ground—It is nothing in all the World but a metaphor—The ruling Elder was drunk."

The capitals of three states of the Union are situated on the Mississippi river—Jefferson city, Missouri, Pierre, South Dakota, and Bismark, North Dakota.

"Possession is nine points of the law" is an old popular saying. An English lawyer once facetiously enumerated the nine points of the law as follows: A good deal of money, a good deal of patience, a good case, a good lawyer, a good counsel, good witnesses, a good judge, and good luck.

"Bonhomme Richard," the name of John Paul Jone's famous flagship, is merely the French form of "Goodman Richard," a pseudonym used by Benjamin Franklin in his famous almanac. Goodman Richard was Richard Saunders, a quaint character who dispensed information and advice. The Bonhomme Richard was an old ship which Franklin had gotten from France and which Jones altered and renamed for the American minister at Paris.

True Friendship Grows From Yrs. In Hospital Bed

By ENID NEMY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Winnipeg, Jan. 5 —(CP)— They don't consider themselves exceptional, but tall, blonde Ines Wollam and petite, dark Lena Barker, have the kind of courage that only faith instils.

Both infantile paralysis victims, their home is a sunny ward in Winnipeg's King George Hospital where Ines has lived in an iron lung for almost eight years and Lena for more than two.

They have created a new life for themselves — completely without pity, completely self-sufficient. They listen to the radio, read — one aloud, one listening — or just lie back and chat. They have discovered the true meaning of friendship and that friendship has brought them not only faith and courage, but happiness.

Ines, born in Fort Erie, Ont., and Lena, from Oakville, Man., were completely paralyzed when they entered the hospital. Ines now feeds herself and is able to read and write. She spends her days in bed and is transferred back to the iron lung at night.

Find New Hobbies.

"I used to be a jitterbug," smiles Lena who is the talkative one and not yet able to exert herself, "but I find my enjoyment elsewhere now." Ines said, "And I used to love skating — even the tumbles," but both added quickly, "But we've really found a lot of new hobbies."

Ines, particularly, has had letters, cards and gifts from total strangers. She pointed to a book on the bed-table. "Fred Snite, the Iron Lung boy in the States sent me that while he was still in China," she said proudly. She reached for her autograph album. The pages turned swiftly, Canadian dignitaries, civic officials, newspapermen, doctors from all over the world — all had left a cheery message.

The two girls read anything, preferably "something with something in it." Ines laughed "It just depends on the moods we're in—sometimes it's love stories, sometimes drama, and we've been known to indulge in gory murders." Another favorite pastime is eating. "We're not fond of sweets but a nice juicy steak — ooh!

They have only one bit of advice for hospital visitors. Come and come often. Candies, flowers, or books just can't take the place of a personal call.

"Visitors are like a whiff of spring," said Ines, "and like spring, they're always welcome.

Items of Interest For Women

Make Your Own Handy Aprons.

Now that pinafore fashions are coming into their own, there's nothing to stop you, with the aid of a pattern cut from newspaper, from making an assortment of aprons, all of which can be easily laundered in "extra-soapy suds". The snack apron can be a dainty affair in muslin, organdie, or voile, with pastel bindings. Or from an old fashioned crazy quilt you might borrow the idea of combining gay pieces left over from house dresses. A frivolous rainbow dirndl effect is given if you sew bright strips of different colors together and gather them into a waistband. For more practical use, try a large square of flowery chintz, with a pocket running the full length of the hem. This handy apron will keep lint and threads from sticking to your dress while you're sewing or knitting. To meet those grimmer cleaning tasks that come up from time to time, make yourself a sturdy apron of bed ticking or checked denim with capacious pockets.

How To Whiten Old Towels.

Hand towels and tea towels have a habit of becoming grey after continued use. Don't discard them merely for that grimy look. Greyed or very dirty towels (the kind Jim brings back from camp!) can be whitened by an emulsion made of equal parts of kerosene (coal oil), clear lime water and turpentine. Shake together until creamy. (To get the lime water, pour clear water on chloride of lime. Let stand for 24 hours and pour off). Add a cupful of the emulsion to the water in a boiler full of towels and keep over the fire for half an hour. Let towels stand five or ten minutes before washing them in hot water and "soapy-rich, grease-dissolving" suds. Rinse in water of the same temperature and hang out to dry. If it's winter, and the towels freeze in drying, so much the better, as freezing is one of the best ways of bleaching clothes white.

Treatment of Minor Burns

Burns are almost as frequent as falls in the list of accidents in the home. If the burn is serious, you should call a doctor. But if it is slight, here is a simple treatment used in the armed services, and in many industrial plants. Before treating the burn, wash your hands thoroughly with a mild "whipped cream lather" soap. Then cleanse the burned area gently with the same pure, mild soap and water. Do not break any blisters. Cover the area with fine sterile gauze coated with petrolatum (petroleum jelly), and bandage firmly but not tightly with a thick dressing.

To Store Wedding Dress and Veil

Months are apt to pass before the bride takes her glamorous white satin gown out of its box to wear on some very special occasion. She will avoid the disappointment of finding it yellowed past its original loveliness if she stores it carefully — folding it over several sheets of blue tissue paper and packing in its original box. Or she can make use of an old sheet, freshly-laundered in "soapy-rich" suds, and then dyed blue. To keep it crisp and white, her veil of tulle or lace should be rolled over waxed paper, then wrapped in blue tissue paper or blue sheet. It's a good idea to hang both dress and veil in fresh air and sunshine a couple of times a year before packing them away again.

Nose Can Be Beauty Asset

Laraine Day's patrician nose heightens her aristocratic beauty

By HELEN FOLLETT

WAS THERE ever a teen age girl who was satisfied with the nose on her face? We doubt it. Such tales as mothers tell about the sobbing of girl-children whose noses do not give satisfaction. Taking noses, they usually suit the type, get along harmoniously with the other features. The subject is just a pet peeve of youth.

Noses can be bobbed and remodeled, though plastic surgeons do not concern themselves with subjects who are not really afflicted. At the present time, no work of this kind is being done for civilians; it is taken for granted that an unpretty nose is not a life-or-death matter. Successful surgeons who specialize in these treatments must not only be highly skilled, but must have the eye of an artist, knowing beforehand what the new contour will do to the portrait in general.

When there are collapsed nostrils, th nose is narrow and pinched looking. Operation will not only improve appearance, but breathing will be freer, more normal.

A pronounced hump is not engaging. The saddle nose is a real affliction. The bulbous tip, wide nostrils, and the nose that twists to one side are no beauty assets.

Removing Blackheads

A red nose usually shows a circulation that is sluggish. The girl who has this blemish should have daily exercise out-of-doors, apply ointment of zinc oxide every night.

When blackheads appear they can be removed by the dry cleaning method. Dip a moistened washcloth in eau de cologne, go over the skin surface lightly.

When powdering the nose, apply only the least amount. Over powdering fills the pores, causes them to become enlarged.

French Black and Rose

A well cut straight frock of black crepe, made with a wide, shallow neckline in front, is given a peplum and long gloves of heavily embroidered black lace. Huge pink roses dramatize at the waistline.

By PRUNELLA WOOD

DU BARRY ROSES, very lifelike, highlight black more beautifully for most women, than any other familiar combination fashion uses.

Here we have a discreet but dashing black frock, composed of crepe and lace, which uses this French formula for flattery.

Notice the peplum of lace and illusion . . . a fine device which can turn the narrow silhouette into becoming choice for figures a bit too plump for an unrelieved column model . . . though detracting nothing from a naturally slim figure.

THAT BODY OF YOURS

JAMES W. BARTON, M.D.

The Cause of Rheumatism

A physician met one of his patients who had not consulted him in recent years. The patient explained that he had been reading a book which showed that it was the condition of the layers forming the body at birth that determined our illnesses and the length of time we would live so there was no use trying to do anything about it. He therefore was not visiting his physician or dentist any more because his health and life line was mapped out for him the day he was born.

The physician said, "Then you would pay no attention to a cold or an attack of appendicitis and would let your teeth, gums, and tonsils poison your blood and do nothing about it?"

"Yes", was the reply.

Now this former patient had the same amount of brains as the rest of us or he could not have fulfilled his daily duties, yet he was living by this book he had read.

I was reminded of the above on reading the explanation of the cause of acute and chronic rheumatism by Dr. W. M. Levinthal in the Edinburgh Medical Journal. Perhaps no other one city stands higher in medicine than Edinburgh.

Dr. Levinthal states that acute and chronic rheumatism is caused by oversensitiveness (anaphylaxis) to infection or to proteins which get into the tissues of the body. The body processes which should fight off infection are not strong enough in these tissues and allow the wastes from infections to remain in the tissues. And the reason that the processes cannot throw out these wastes is because of some fault in the middle layer of the three layers of tissue from which the body got its start, before birth.

Having in mind the opinion of the patient mentioned above there apparently would be no use trying to fight off rheumatism if it was already planted in the system by the time the child is born.

This is not the thought of Dr. Levinthal who makes the simple suggestion that we do not have to suffer with rheumatism even if we are born with the tendency to it. He states that it is anything and everything that interferes with our general health and the body processes such as disease, insufficient food, exposure, physical and mental exertion that act directly or indirectly in permitting this inactive rheumatism to become active.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Announcement of an Adoption

Dear Mrs. Beeckman,

My husband and I are planning to adopt a four-months-old girl, and we expect the negotiations to be concluded next week. We would like to send out announcements of our adoption of this baby, but we have never seen this kind of announcement and have no idea how it should read...or even if it is proper to do this. Is it proper, and if so, what kind of announcements should we send? We think the word "adoption" should appear on the cards if we send them, and had thought of this form:

Baby's name
By adoption
Mr. and Mrs. John Smith.

Should the tiny card be attached to our "Mr. and Mrs." card with a narrow white ribbon? We're so happy about the prospect of having this baby in our home that we want the announcements to be just right.

Sara

And that baby is a very fortunate baby to find such a warm and loving welcome in your hearts and in your lives...she'll be as happy a baby as you'll be happy "adoptive parents."

I agree with you that the word "adoption" should be used in the announcements. But you shouldn't, as in the customary formal birth-announcements attach the baby-card to your "Mr. and Mrs." card.

You may use either of two ways to announce this blessed arrival... one, in the third person, the other a note. Or you may, as many people do, write notes to your relatives and close friends, and send the formally-worded announcements to others.

On form, which includes your joyous word "happiness", and the necessary word "adoption" is:

Mr. and Mrs. John Kindly have the happiness to anounce the adoption of Cynthia aged four months

This form may be engraved or printed, but it is correct, and charming too because more personal to write these words (spaced as indicated above) on large-sized white cards.

If you prefer to write notes (and naturally in some cases they would be more appropriate), you might write something like this:

Dear Jean,

John and I want you and Bill to know that we have just adopted a baby. Her name is Cynthia, she is four months old, and our earnest prayer is that we will make her as happy to be with us as we are to have her in our lives and hearts.

Please come to see her soon... she's a darling!

Dearest love to you both...from the three of us.

Affectionately,
Sara.

The Hostess Introduces Him

A hostess invites Mr. A to come to a buffet supper party. Mr. A accepts. Later Mr. A telephones the hostess to ask if he may bring a man friend who is visiting him that weekend.

The hostess graciously welcomes the additional guest. When the two men arrive, Mr. A introduces his friend to the hostess and host. Who should have introduced the stranger to the other guests, the hostess, the host, or Mr. A?

After Mr. A has introduced his friend to the hostess and host, the hostess, in her capacity as hostess, would take over the introducing of Mr. B. to the other guests.

BEAUTY By Helen Jameson

Colors in Dress

One does not have to be an artist to appreciate beautiful colors, because they make an emotional appeal that even the dullest woman must experience. A little girl of five will rebel against wearing a certain dress. Nearly always she is right. Something wrong with cut or line or the color stirs her dislike and rebellion.

Let the prettiest girl, with warm, luscious eyes, wild rose complexion and glistening coiffure tog herself out in drab, dismal shades and her loveliness is clouded. Color is an important element in the composition of pulchritude, as women have found out since they have been tinting their cheeks and flirting with the brilliant lipstick. Also, it is a solace for the soul. It is a prop to morale.

The woman who loves gay colors who not only wears them—with discrimination, of course—but uses them in the furnishings of her home, is pretty sure to be of cheerful disposition. She enjoys a rose-red fireside chair. She has yellow draperies at the windows to impart an appearance of sunlight on days that are not bright. She believes that a bit of glowing color here and there not only adds to domestic happiness, but gives welcome to guests.

She adores red hats and red slippers. They do something for her.

Some women always wear drab tones — dull cold greys — insipid browns; they are victims of color fear, a heritage from Puritan ancestors. Raiment of that kind makes them look severe. If they'd have a grand old color spree, chuck the dismal trappings, fare forth in lovely hues, they'd not only look better, but they'd feel better, because colors have a psychological effect upon the mind and the spirit.

Blondes, accustomed in childhood to being dressed in delicate tones, have a fondness for pale pinks, delicate blues, faint greens. Lovely in youth, with the Dresden shepherdess complexion, but fatal in middle age when beauty petals have fallen and the once lovely complexion has been knife-pleated by Father Time.

We sometimes suspect that some of the light-headed gals do not realize that they have grown up, that dress must change with the years.

Black is a good selection for golden-headed girls. Dark blue is second choice. Brown dims fair hair, unless it is a rich seal, and does nothing to bring out the delicacy of her complexion.

The ashe blonde, leaning toward beige and browns, should avoid them; there is not enough contrast between beige and her skin. French blue is flattering.

The true brunette has a wide choice of colors—navy, creamy tones,—all shades of red, some shades of light blue. As for black, each case is an individual one; it ages some of the dark eyed women, is becoming to others.

The Marry-Go-Round

Shotgun Divorces

The shotgun wedding is a thing of the past; but the shotgun divorce appears to be the latest vogue among young married couples—with the lady carrying the shotgun.

By "shotgun divorce," I mean the cold-blooded act of divorcing a serviceman while he is "going through hell, sweat and blood" and risking his life around the clock as one army chaplain has dramatically expressed it. It is practically holding a gun at his back!

Yet, believe it or not, the unfaithfulness of wives and the jilting by sweethearts who think they have found new loves or infatuations are two of the greatest problems with which an army chaplain has to cope.

This is a far cry from the day when women were the torch-carriers, and men were the faithless "deceivers ever." And I must say it flattens me out like a punctured tire to find that so many young women have acquired the art of double-crossing while I've been sniping at stepping husbands and two-timing lovers. It dates me!

You may argue that a girl is as likely to have a change of heart as a man is. How precious! This is war. And the first duty of every woman on the home front is to be loyal to her man! To brace up his spirits and his morale and give him hope and faith and something to fight for. Not to point a shotgun at his back!

Loyalty is a grand old-fashioned virtue which has come back into vogue along with war and the Gay Ninety hats. It is the fashion to talk a lot about loyalty to your country these days. But how can you claim to be "loyal" to your country if you are disloyal to the man—any man—who is fighting for it? Playing fast and loose with one of these fighting men, doing anything to break down his spirit or morale is sabotage, no less!

Luckily, these weak sisters, these Good-Time-Charlies, are in the minority. The average girl is a one-man woman and there are thousands of loyal, lonely wives, sleeping with their husbands' letters under their pillows and waiting bravely, eagerly and fondly for their homecoming—there are thousands of these to one who is double-crossing a sweetheart or demanding a shotgun divorce.

THROUGH THE DIAL SIGHT

A Weekly Column Devoted to the Activities of the Members of the Armed Services at Home and Abroad

It must have been with pride the officers and men of the Argyll Light Infantry learned of the complimentary remarks made by Col. L. W. W. Slack, M.C., V.D., following Thursday night's general inspection.

Col. Slack informed the Dial Sight personally that quote "The training I saw shown by the officers and men was far better than I had even so much as anticipated." (And fellows that's something to be proud of.)

Col. Slack also mentioned the fact that Canada's reserve army, 100,000 strong, is made up of civilians who train around 720 hours a year. "It is remarkable what has been accomplished with so little training," added Col. Slack.

Another feature the inspecting officer pointed out to Lieut.-Col. Donnan in the presence of the Dial Sight was a compliment to the officers of the Argyll Light Infantry. "As I remember it the officers of this unit were pretty well depleted after war broke out, but today your officers are nearly up to strength and all have come from civilian life where they must give considerable of their private time, while the older officers are now serving on active duty," pointed out Col. Slack.

Speaking of the unit as a whole and for reserve army training in general, Col. Slack assured the Dial Sight that the personnel of the reserve army of today will be the backbone of the Canadian militia in peace time.

Officer — "Don't you know what the crack of dawn is?"

Sergt.-Maj. Walt Harden—"Sure, what my wife used to give me when I came home at 2 a.m."

The 34th Battery, R.C.A., elected its sports committee for the year Wednesday night and it is composed of 2/Lieut. H. B. Keller, Sergt. McKenzie, Bdrs. Bankier and Neal and Gnr. Chisholm.

Following Wednesday night's Muster Parade the officers and members of the 34th Battery spent the remainder of the evening on the recreation floors. A softball game was played with one team composed of members of the Battery, who are students at Albert College, opposing a nine from the remainder of the unit. The "College boys" lost, but the kids from Albert are vowing vengeance at basketball when the next Battery sports night rolls around in March. Sergt. "Nick" Nickson was the umpire of the night and he says there is no truck in the story—"the life of an umpire is one of ease."

Other members of the Battery adjougned to the bowling alleys at the Armouries where teams captained by Sergts. McLuskie and Whalen enjoyed knocking over the maples. "It was indeed a night well worth while and the Battery training will include more recreation nights in the future," assured Captain S. A. Sword, officer commanding the 34th Battery.

Cutting?

They always refer to the sergeant major as a lion when military parades are on. However, if the truth is known, they are more like lambs at home.

The other evening Sergt.-Major Charlie Tice was sitting at the tea table when he remarked:

"We had a mind-reader at the Sergeants' Mess last night."

"Did you?" replied his wife rather frigidly. "What a dull time he must have had."

Incidentally, Col. Donnan has two other sons in the R.C.A.F.

There was a decrease in the ranks of the Argylls this week when Tpr. G. Pack was struck off strength when he went active and joined the Canadian army.

The officer gave instructions to the paratroops man:

"I'll repeat what you've got to do. The parachute is an old sort of tpye. It may not open at first, but you've two cords—one on your right, one on your left. Good! Well, if it doesn't open after you've dropped a hundred feet you pull your right cord—rip! If nothing happens then, after you've dropped another hundred feet you pull your left cord—rip! Then you'll land at a road; keep on to the bend in it, and you'll find there a small motor-van with a machine-gun. Got it? Right!"

So the soldier dropped. Nothing happened. He pulled the right cord—nothing happened. Another hundred feet. He pulled the left cord—nothing happend.

Then the soldier said: "That's the army for you! I don't expect there'll be no motor-van with a machine-gun at the bend of the road neither!"

Purely Personal.

Lieut. Watts, of the Pay Corps in Kingston, was at the Armouries for the Muster Parade of the Argyll Light Infantry Tuesday night.

Capt. C. W. Blair, M.C., who has been at the Armouries temporarily as training officer, returned to his own unit, the P.W.O.R., at Kingston today.

Now that a fall of snow covers the ground north of the city, ski instructors are urgently being sought by Lieut.-Col. B. C. Donnan, officer commanding the Argylls. Here's a weekend patriotic service some of the better skiers can render the war effort and enjoy their personal diversion as well.

Members of the C.W.S.F. were in charge of the canteen during Friday night's dance at the Armouries. The Air Arm Maintenance of the Mountain View School of Bombing and Gunnery held a very fine dance at the Armouries.

Incidentally the Red Triangle Club has at last found the ideal spot for their Saturday night dances. Last Saturday some 700 enjoyed dancing on the spacious and heated Armouries' floor. However, these Saturday night Red Triangle Club dances are for members of the armed services and associates of the Red Triangle Club. There are over 300 local girls associated with the club at present.

Cpl. Lois Pilkington is keeping the local recruiting office of the C.W.A.C. open on Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday evenings until eight o'clock in order to meet any prospective recruits who might be working during the day.

Following Thursday night's inspection the N.C.O.'s were the guests of the officers in the latters' Mess. Sandwiches were served and community singing enjoyed in a jolly get-together. (Just one big happy family under Lieut.-Col. "Daddy" Donnan.)

No Man's Land . . .

Sergt. F. Bennett has taken over the orderly room duties of the C.W.S.F. and reports a new recruit this week.

The women's pipe band is increasing in strength and advancing in ability and by spring Belleville will boast of a new musical organization that will be a credit to the C.W.S.F. and the community. These girls in the pipe band are ardent pupils and never miss a practice.

Cpl. Bessie Doolittle say the girls ground the Armouries will soon have a basketball team to be proud of. They've included Cpl. Lois Pilkington, of the local C.W.A.C. unit.

The C.W.S.F. sent another shipment of cigarettes, chocolates, reading matter, etc., to their adopted "H" troop in Italy this week, reports Major Marion Harden.

57,900 Cigarettes Sent by Veterans In Month of Jan.

During the month of January the Army and Navy Veterans in Canada, unit 201, sent 57,900 cigarettes overseas to Belleville and district boys serving the various theatres of war, Secretary James Lazenby announced through the Vets' Fag Fund today. Since inception a total of 706,700 cigarettes have been safely dispatched to local lads serving overseas by the Army and Navy Veterans "Fag Fund".

During the first half of January 114 individual shipments were sent out while in the second fortnight Secretary Lazenby dispatched 79 shipments of 300 cigarettes each. Weekly replies are received from all parts of the world thanking the Veterans for smokes already received and urging the continuance of the fund. # Demand Made for More Light On Relations of Dollar-a-Year Men to Government Business

Gordon Graydon Also Requests Explanation of McNaughton's Resignation

LEADERS CLASH

By FRANK FLAHERTY
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, Feb. 5 (CP).—A demand for more light on reserves accumulated by Canadian companies in wartime and on the relations of "dollar-a-year" men to the allocation of government business has been placed before the House of Commons.

It came yesterday from J. W. Noseworthy (CCF-York South) immediately after demands from Gordon Graydon, Progressive Conservative House leader, and M. J. Coldwell, C.C.F. leader, for an immediate statement on the resignation of Lt.-Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton as Overseas Army Commander.

The latter demand was made in the light of a newspaper report quoting McNaughton at Seigniory Club, Que., as saying there was nothing wrong with his health.

Prime Minister Mackenzie King said the government wanted to give the whole picture and that could best be done when army matters were brought before the House on the War Appropriation Bill.

Amazed At Position Taken.

Mr. Graydon said he was "amazed" at the position taken by the prime minister. The whole question of Gen. McNaughton's resignation and his statement to the press Thursday had thrown into bold relief the original government statement that Gen. McNaughton had resigned because of ill-health.

The matter should be cleared up immediately, not next week. The public was "agitated" over the matter, and, Mr. Graydon said, he would not be pressing for any explanation if he did not feel it necessary.

Gen. McNaughton had told the press his health was all right.

The public morale could not help but be affected if no explanation were given.

Speaker Interrupts.

Defence Minister Ralston rose as if to reply but Speaker J. A. Glen said there could be no general debate during orders of the day.

Mr. King said he did not wish to review the rights and wrongs of Mr. Graydon's statements, but the opposition leader had made clear there were many matters on which the House would desire information, so as to have a clear view of the situation. It was not the intention to begin a debate on matters as important as the army on a question asked on orders of the day.

If the Throne Speech debate continued for some time the government would consider setting aside a day during which army matters could be discussed.

Otherwise, when the debate was concluded, the war appropriations—including those covering the army—would come under discussion at once, Mr. King said.

Mr. Graydon replied that the Prime Minister had assumed a heavy responsibility.

Mr. Coldwell asked: "Since the Prime Minister said he would set a day aside, will he set aside Monday for this discussion?"

Effort Not Impeded.

Mr. King said he could not understand why the opposition was "so keen on this matter". The war effort was not being impeded in any way because of the matters the opposition wished to discuss. If matters were urgent the government would be the first to agree to discussion. The discussion should come when the whole army picture was under review.

John Diefenbaker (PC.-Lake Centre), first speaker of the day in the continued Throne Speech debate, said Gen. McNaughton's statement to the press on his health indicated the government's previous statement on his resignation was "far removed from the facts".

Gen. McNaughton should be called before the House, if necessary in secret session, to say whether ideas "bandied about the country" had any basis in fact.

The Prime Minister, in denying an immediate opportunity for House Members to know the facts, was taking a step not in accordance with good parliamentary procedure.

House Adjourns.

Mr. Noseworthy had not finished his speech when the House adjourned and will continue Monday.

He said there was no way of determining whether munitions manufacturers were making excessive profits, since government accountants had no engineering experience and had to rely on figures submitted by the firms concerned. The House had been told last year that the Excess Profits Tax would take care of any over-high profits but the British government had found the tax did not prevent the use of profits to build up reserves.

He quoted the London economist to the effect that Canadian companies had built reserves of 700 as against 100 at the beginning of the war while 2,000 British companies had been forced to reduce reserves from 100 to 80.

Firms represented by 2157 "dollar-a-year" men in the munitions department had received contracts totalling more than $800,000,000, and the Prices Board employed another 216 "dollar-a-year" men representing firms about whose business with the government there was no information, Mr. Noseworthy said.

An advertising agency had received two government contracts for $50,000 each to advertise canned lobster shortly before all supplies went off the shelves. The same firm had a "dollar-a-year" man in the Fisheries Department.

More Means Needed Is Claim.

More adequate means of safeguarding the public interest in these things was required than a war expenditures committee meeting behind closed doors and overloaded with government supporters, said Mr. Noseworthy.

Other speakers in the House debate yesterday were Dr. M. E. McGarry (Lib. Inverness-Richmond) and Robert Fair (Ind. Battle River).

Mr. Diefenbaker was critical of selective service which, he said, had failed to improve the manpower situation despite the creation of a large organization.

Men were still being called from the farms for service in a home-defence army. This force cost from $150,000,000 to $175,000,000 a year. There was no equalization of the call-up as between military districts. Districts which had "the lowest percentage of volunteer enlistments had also the lowest percentages of call-ups."

The War Today— What Is Hitler's Strategy In Respect to Holding Rome?

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
(Associate Press War Analyst.)

Hitler's reported warning to the Pope that the Nazis intend to defend Rome step by step, irrespective of the destruction involved, tends to substantiate the idea that the Fuehrer may be preparing another of his colossal gambles—that the Allies won't go so far as to turn their guns on the city in order to oust the invaders.

The question is, what happens if Hitler installs suicide divisions in Rome and invites the Allies to oust them? Obviously it can't be done without the use of force, unless we blockade the city and starve them out, and that means starving the civilian population as well.

That certainly would hand the Allies a tactical hot potato. Undoubtedly the Allied high command has the problem figured out, for it has been dealing with a lot of hot potatoes successfully. However, the only official word we've had thus far is that the capture of Rome is the objective of the present offensive on the Italian peninsula.

There is no apparent way of clearing Rome of the Nazis without causing damage to some of the world's most cherished monuments. Such a battle also would result in the death of many civilians. Presumably by exercising extreme care Vatican City could be spared, but it would be a most unhappy position for the Pope and the other residents.

There's small doubt that the Nazi is counting on all this to help him hold the eternal city if he should decide it's worth while. What devilitry he's up to in urging the Pope to leave Rome for Germany isn't apparent. In any event his Holiness has declined to desert his post, come what may.

There are excellent reasons why Hitler should want to retain his hold on Rome. Foremost undoubtedly is the moral effect on the outside world. Nazi possession of this great city is calculated to give the impression that the Germans still have vast powers of resistance.

From the military standpoint, Rome is a strategic plum because it is hub of all the main railways of Italy, and the Allies must possess it if they wish to establish communications between north and south Italy. Into this strategic picture also enters the fact that Hitler's delaying action in Italy is providing a safe-guard for his Balkan flank on the Adriatic.

OSHAWA IDLE

(By The Canadian Press)

The second-place Toronto St. Michaels crept two points closer to the leading Oshawa Generals in Group 1 of the Junior "A" O.H.A. series Friday night in riddling the Kroehlers 10-2 at Stratford. In the junior engagement at Brantford, the Lions overcame an early Hamilton lead and went on to win 4-3 with Jeffreys getting the pay-off goal on a pass from Ray Powell with five minutes to go before the final whistle.

St. Mikes registered the only tally of period one at Stratford but stretched their lead to 7-0 in the second frame and it was not until the third that Tindall hit the twine for Kroehlers, bagging the two goals for the losers in that chapter. Two-goal scorers for the students were Bob Schnurr and Frankie Dunlap, ex-Leaf. The remainder were collected by Bauer, Melong, Lindsay, Sadler, McCormack and Mortson, one apiece.

At Brantford, Powell, the Sudbury import, was th big shot for Lions, collecting three of four counters and giving the assist for Jeffrey's winning goal. Brown was the leading scorer for Whizzers with two to his credit and Comfort secured the other.

3-WAY FIGHT FOR 2ND PLACE IN N. H. L. LOOP

Toronto Can Better Position by Taking Two From Detroit Over Weekend

HAWKS PLAY TWICE

(By The Canadian Press)

A heavy week-end program promises to shed light on the struggle for second place in the National Hockey League, a three-way conflict which now finds Toronto Maple Leafs caught in a "squeeze" between Detroit Red Wings and Chicago Black Hawks.

While Leafs have descended to an almost unprecedented level by losing three straight Saturday night home games, Detroit and Chicago have climbed from the basement with solid winning streaks. Detroit, now in second place two points ahead of Leafs, has been beaten only once in its last ten games; Chicago has five straight victories to its credit.

All three clubs swing into action twice during the weekend, Leafs and Wings playing a double date which opens in Toronto Saturday and switches to Detroit Sunday. Chicago plays the league-leading Canadiens at Montreal Saturday and tail-end Rangers at New York Sunday. The Hawks now trail Leafs by two points.

The only other weekend game sends Rangers to Boston, whose crippled Bruins have dropped from second to fifth place after losing seven straight games.

Baseball Gropes Its Way Into Post-War Future

New York, Feb. 5—(AP)— Baseball gropes into its postwar future today and nobody knows what commissioner Keneeaw M. Landis and the Major-Minor planning committee are going to find.

While peacetime problems of absorbing servicemen and shuffling league boundaries are high on the list of "musts," diamond figures here for a series of meetings running through Tuesday appear more interested in the immediate future of the game.

Although the "planners" are slated to do their job today, a series of committee meetings is likely before any solutions are found. This work for the most part, will involve some legal hocus pocus of baseball's own code which always has been a mystery to Mr. Average fan. After much talk about farm system-independent showdown, the boys have called off their dogs and no open hostilities are expected.

PRESIDENT SAYS PIRATES BETTER THAN LAST YEAR

Benswanger Thinks Team Will Again Finish in First Division

GOOD PITCHERS

Pittsburgh, Feb. 5 —(AP)— The Pittsburgh Pirates' management today looked over prospects for the coming baseball season and, in the words of President William E. Benswanger, decided that:-

"We're no worse off than any of the rest of the National League teams and a lot better off than some of them."

In fact, Benswanger seemed confident he has a first-division team again this year, and was even hopeful that the Buccaneers, with a veteran pitching staff, might better last season's accomplishment when they finished fourth.

"All the players I've talked to so far seem to have more confidence than they ever had, and if we can get some hitting to go along with the defensive play I know we'll have, should be right up there in the fight all season," he said.

Benswanger has seven veteran pitchers, headed by Truett (Rip) Sewell, a good defensive outfield and a good infield, but on the record lacks the power at bat to threaten last year's flag-winner, St. Louis, or the Brooklyn Dodgers.

"Lee Handley's arm is back in shape, and with addition of Babe Dahlgren, whom we bought from Philadelphia, we should have a good infield, despite the loss of Elbie Fletcher at first base," Benswanger continued. "With Jim Russell, Vince Dimaggio and either Frank Colman or John Barrett in the outfield, we have one of the league's best defensive trios—but we do need more hitting."

FROM BRITAIN SPORT SHORTS

By ALLAN NICKLESON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

London, Feb. 5—(CP)— No non-military activity of the Canadian Army Overseas receives more thought and care than sport.

Decisions come from the top—by the generals on the army committee—and are passed through divisional and brigade headquarters to local units and companies. At each level there is a committee in touch with the central organization.

Local units fix their schedules in such sports as hockey, boxing, track and field, and football to meet the date requirements of playoffs, so that on a given day finalists are brought together with no inconvenience to operational needs.

The arrangements are so complete that in Sicily and Italy, when the Canadians slouched into their first rest from front-line fighting they found that auxiliary services officers who had landed with them had arranged a complete sports meet. The meet included track and field completitions and a number of special features, such as an exhibition of flying.

Including many top - ranking players a Canadian Reinforcement Unit basketball team trounced a United States Air Transport Corps 42-2 in the first game of a London exhibition series with various American army groups.

Stalwarts in the Canadian triumph included Cpl. Stan Rinhard, team captain who in civilian life played with Toronto Earl Greys, Canadian intermediate champions; Pte. Jack Martin, formerly with Toronto Simpson Grads and Toronto Broadview "Y" Rascals; Cpl. Art Anderson, former centre with Simpson Grads, and Pte. Bud Dingwall, guard from Hamilton, Ont.

The team is managed by Lieut. Larry O'Connor of Toronto and Huntsville, Ont., one-time hurdling member of the Canadian Olympic team.

Canadian troops will again compete in the 1944 British Army boxing championships to be held sometime in March. Last year they won two British titles.

The Canadians will conduct their own preliminaries with winners qualifying for the British Army semi-finals Feb. 23-24, along with British teams from London district, Southern, Southeastern and Eastern Commands.

Last year L. Cpl. Tommy Falls, giant-sized Negro from Liverpool, N. S., smashed his way to the British Army heavyweight crown, while Sgt. Roddy MacDonald of Edmonton, Alta., won the middleweight title.

Tpr. Danny Webb, flashy Montreal Negro, reached the British featherweight final and was ruled out for an accidental punch while his opponent, L. Bdr. Billy Marlow, now a professional, was on the floor.

Falls, MacDonald and Webb held the Canadian Army titles in their respective classes.

CHARGES DISMISSED

Edmonton, Feb. 5 (CP)—Charges of homicide against Charles Stack, 40, and Irene Thomas, 35, in connection with the death Jan. 14 of Raymond C. Jevne of Entwistle, Alta., were dismissed in police court yesterday by Magistrate A. I. Millar. Charges of theft and vagrancy preferred against Miss Thomas, together with one count of theft against stack, were also dismissed.

CASUAL COMMENT

by K.J.C.

Simple, Isn't It?

During a question period following a lecture a man arose and put a foolish query to the speaker. The latter replied:-

"The logic of your question makes me think of another. Can you tell me why fire engines are always red? You can't. Well, fire engines have four wheels and eight men. Four and eight are twelve. Twelve inches make a foot. A foot is a ruler. Queen Elizabeth was a ruler. The Queen Elizabeth is the largest ship that sails the seven seas. Seas have fish. Fish have fins. The Finns fought the Russian. The Russians are Red. Fire engines are always rushin'. Therefore, fire engines are always red. I hope this answers your question also."

(Customers write.)

Wally Hilton, of Deloro and who is better known for his college football prowess, writes this corner protesting comments made in this column earlier in the week relative to Bill Shannon's refereeing during the Belleville-Combine game at Stirling.

Wally, an official of the Combines' executive, suggests we "definitely cast aspersions against the refereeing of one Bill Shannon." He then goes on to say that Shannon's refereeing was quote, "the best referring effort made by any official in this group of the O.H.A. this year."

Actually what appeared in this column were the opinions of Coach Toots Holway, who merely suggested Referee Shannon wasn't any too well acquainted with the present-day playing rules of hockey. (And as far as that goes, who does?).

(No reflection.)

We know Bill Shannon personally and also respect him as a honest, up-right young man. However, that does not say he is more fully acquainted with the rules than others throughout the district. As a matter of fact if Mr. Hilton's interpretation of the rules are any indication of Referee Shannon's rulings, then we say—"get a rule book boys."

It seems a Belleville player struck a Combine player in the mouth Monday night with the result blood was drawn. Quoting Mr. Hilton's letter—"This was definitely an accident." We presume he speaks for himself and not Referee Shannon. Now Wally continues to say that Shannon was wrong in meting out a minor penalty. Well, if it was accidental, as Wally asserts, he most certainly was in error because there shouldn't have been any penalty whatsoever if the injury was purely "accidental."

(Quote rules.)

According to the 1944 Canadian Amateur Hockey Association rule book the drawing blood ruling has been changed considerably.

Rule VII "B", section 2 states "no player may carry or hold a stick in such a manner to injure the head or face of an oponent."

However, in a subsequent explanatory note the following suggestion to referees is laid down by the rules committee:

"This rule shall be interpreted so that the injury to the face or head shall be presumed if blood is drawn. "Drawing blood" itself is not necessarily a foul—there are times when players are accidentally (get it) injured about the face or head when no foul has been committed."

Further down in Mr. Hilton's letter is a quotation regarding body-checking within three feet of the boards. This rule also is obsolete. Some years ago the words "five feet from the boards" were introduced in the bodychecking rules, but it was found difficult to enforce as the official had to judge when at difficult angles. In the 1944 C.A.H.A. rules the referee has a wider scope in this ruling, it reads—section 5—"Body check an opponent in such a manner that it causes the opponent to be thrown violently into the boards." This would indicate that regardless where the checking took place a penalty can be imposed if the checking results in a "violent" crash into the boards.

We agree with Mr. Hilton when he says no person desires to see young players probably permanently injured as the result of unnecessary rough play. However, if the young player of today hope to advance in the game they must be prepared to take a certain amount of "riding along the boards." If not, such players would not be prepared to play junior "A" or any higher bracket hockey. But, as Mr. Hilton requests—"hopes that no player will be seriously injured," to which all good sports add their blessing.

(The reason.)

The basis of Mr. Hilton's letter following the publishing of an interview with Coach Holway. However, if Wally had read the original comment he would have read of comments regarding Referee Bowen of Trenton and St. Louis of Belleville. Actually all that was said was that Mr. Shannon apparently wasn't too conversant with the rules. Coach Holway added that despite the fact Beleville drew down 11 penalties to the Combines' two the locals "muffed too many scoring chances."

(See you Wednesday Wally when the Combines invade the Hume Arena and when the local management hopes to give you the best hockey officiating possible.)

(Trenton leads.)

Minus the services of Billy Holway and Al Gordon the local juniors absorbed a 7-2 walloping over at Trenton last night and now Coach Stan Jackson's kids are top-notchers in the group standing. To add trouble for Skipper Holway's crowd Trenton brought in Schmidt and Kolhler from the defunct Trenton Air Force juniors, who may have been former junior "A" players, but it was the home players of Hamilton, Johnson, Stojan and Filion who really tossed the well known monkey wrench into the locals' machine. On the scoring front Hamilton, a Campbellford lad, was the chief threat with three goals, two on lone efforts.

And for comparison Belleville received but three penalties to Trenton's four. (So maybe the locals aren't as rough as Mr. Hilton suggests.)

Horse Sense Bridge

LESSON NO. 295

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

Nobody knows the troubles I've had. I mean forcing players to use chips instead of pencil and paper for scoring rubber bridge. I had to work my head to the bone to get them to try it.

But after they used chips once or twice, you'd have thought they were born with chips in their hands. From there on, they sneer at all players who still use pencil and paper.

Each player takes a stack of chips as follows: Four blues, nine reds, ten whites. A blue is 1,000 points; a red is 100 points; a white is 10 points.

Four blues at 1,000 each are 4,000 points. Nine reds at 100 each are 900 points, ten whites at 10 each are 100 points. Thus, a stack of chips consists of 5,000 bridge points.

Each player starts with an original stack of 5,000 points. When he quits the game, he merely counts his own chips. All in excess of 5,000 points are his gains; all short of 5,000 are his losses.

At the end of each deal, players settle up in chips for the net result of that deal. Each player of the losing side pays in chips to his right hand opponent.

Thus, no player is dependent upon another scorer for what is coming to him. And any player, by a glance at his chips, knows at any time how much he is ahead or behind.

Each extra player who cuts in has his own stack of chips. When a player changes his seat, he takes his chips with him. When a player leaves the game for good, he merely settles with his substitute.

On a small memo pad, mark large figures to show a part score; a large cross on the side that is vulnerable, if any. At the end of each rubber, crumple the memo and throw away.

Chips thus do away with constant balancing of figures. When the game breaks up, each loser tosses what he owes on the table; each winner picks up his portion. That's all there is to it.

South and north can bid a small slam in diamonds with this pair of partnership hands:

SOUTH
♠A J 10
♥A Q 6 4
♦A J 9 6 3
♣6

NORTH
♠K 9 6 3
♥None
♦K Q 10 4
♣A 8 5 4 2

With both sides vulnerable at the time, they take 12 tricks. They could score 120 for odd tricks, 750 for vulnerable small slam, and 500 for a three game rubber; total 1,370 points.

West gives south a blue, three reds, seven whites. East does the same to north. Just an old pinochle custom.

"The Lives of a Bengal Lancer"

For the physical equipment of the biggest outdoor spectacle since the advent of talking pictures, Paramount's "The Lives of a Bengal Lancer", coming next to the Capitol Theatre, over four thousand uniforms, two thousand horses and thousands of rifles were employed.

The picture, which features Gary Cooper, Franchot Tone, Richard Cromwell, and Sir Guy Standing, was four years in preparation for the screen and employed twenty thousand people.

"Waikiki Wedding"

With the South Sea Isles as its locale the musical "Waikiki Wedding" brings to the screen the one and only Bing Crosby who sings "Blue Hawaii", "Sweet Leilani", "In a Little Hula Heand", and "Sweet is the Word For You". Other feature players are Bob Burns, Martha Raye and Shirley Ross.

The Canadian Universal News completes the big double program.

AT THE BELLE

"A LADY TAKES A CHANCE"

One of the brightest, gayest film offerings in years is RKO Radio's "A Lady Takes a Chance", with Jean Arthur and John Wayne sharing the stellar honors.

The sparkling plot is built on the idea of a girl with matrimonial notions and a boy who prefers the state of single blessedness, but the delightful twists and turns which Producer Frank Ross and Director William Seiter have given to this straightforward theme result in an hour and a half of sheer delight for any audience.

Jean is cast as Mollie Truesdale, a New York white collar girl who has been saving her money for years to take a round-trip bus tour to the Pacific coast, and who intends to get married—as soon as she meets the right man. Wayne portrays the hard riding rodeo star Duke Hudkins, who enjoys his carefree life and has no intentions of ever getting roped into anything as hobbling as marriage.

The pair meet informally during a rodeo in a dusty little eastern Oregon town, and romance leaps into instant bloom. By turns Mollie is intrigued, delighted, shocked, angered, repentant, and finally determined—determined that she'll marry him. Duke doesn't realize what it's all about until the rope is settling over his shoulders, and then like one of his own fractious bronchos, he plunges in wild revolt. But this is no place to reveal the clever and hilarious conclusion; see it for yourselves and get a real entertainment treat.

Miss Arthur turns in a superb performance, and Wayne proves that Hollywood has been overlooking a great light comedy bet in the rangy Western star. Charles Winninger as Wayne's loyal side-kick, Phil Silvers as a tour guide and John Phillibe[r] as a country store-keeper are outstanding in the supporting cast. All in all, you'll rarely find as thoroughly amusing and satisfying a picture as "A Lady Takes a Chance".

"The Pelican and the Snipe" is the title of a funny Walt Disney color cartoon to be presented on the same program with the Canadian Paramount News and a unique and entertaining screen miniature "Age of Flight". Continuous shows will be presented today.

AT THE McCARTHY

"ALWAYS A BRIDESMAID"

Proclaimed as a jive-filled jamboree, Universal's "Always a Bridesmaid" opened today at the McCarthy Theatre. Starring the sensational Andrews Sisters, the new comedy musical takes its fun and rhythm from a combination of novel happenings which boogie-woogieze a Lonely Hearts Club.

Supporting the famous sisters is a cast of talented performers, including Patric Knowles, Grace McDonald, Charles Butterworth, Billy Gilbert and Anne Rooney. The picture also presents those extraordinary juvenile favorites "The Jivin' Jacks and Jills".

Knowles and Miss McDonald are seen in romantic portrayals and, through mistaken identities, provide several action sequences said to be strictly hilarious. Appearing respectively as an assistant district attorney and as a secret operative of the police department, the two players cross wires in a swindle investigation which involves the Lonely Hearts Club.

Comedians Butterworth and Gilbert complicate the tangle with unexpected antics while a surprising story twist unites the Jivin' Jacks and Jills with the Andrews Sisters for a rousing musical finale.

The Sisters present five songs, namely, "Ride On", "Thanks For the Buggy Ride", "Yoo-hoo", "That's My Affair" and "As Long As I Have You". "Mr. Five By Five" is delivered by the Jivin' Jacks and Jills.

AT THE CAPITOL — The picture above shows Gary Cooper succumbing to the wiles of beautiful Kathleen Burke in Paramount's "The Lives of a Bengal Lancer," which comes next to the Capitol Theatre with the added musical "Waikiki Wedding," starring Bing Crosby.

Second big hit on the same program is "Having a Wonderful Time" starring Ginger Rogers, Douglas Fairbanks Jr., Lucille Ball and (Richard) Red Skelton who incidentally is at his very best in the story of a poor working girl (Ginger Rogers who works for fifty weeks in a year to get two weeks vacation at the Kar-Free Lodge; where she meets Doug Fairbanks who plays the romantic lead in the film. All in all "Having a Wonderful Time" is a hilarious comedy-drama with Lee Bowman and Donald Meek throwing in their lot with Red Skelton to bring out the mirthful highlights in this excellent production.

In Manhattan

By PAT USSHER
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

New York, Feb. 5 —(CP)— If you want to see gorgeous girls, wearing gorgeous costumes, to hear some fetching tunes and to watch the inimitable capers of Bobby Clark, then "Mexican Hayride" is your show.

This musical staged by Michael Todd, which has just arrived on Broadway, compares favorably with those other notable successes, "Oklahoma," and "One Touch of Venus." It sparkles with songs by Cole Porter.

The story doesn't matter—it's about a crook who flees from the United States to Mexico and finds himself chosen as guest of honor in week-long festivities symbolizing friendship between the two countries.

What is more to the point is that the character is played by Bobby Clark, one of the stage's zaniest comedians. Opposite him is June Havoc, who is extremely easy to look at and who can also sing. It might be added that she is a sister of Gypsy Rose Lee.

"Mexican Hayride" has at least one song that should be a hit—"I Love You." Another song that may become popular is "Carlotta" and for humor there are two honeys—"There Must be Someone for Me" and "Count Your Blessings."

Domestic Fascism: In another vein entirely is "Decision," which opened this week at the Belasco. Its author, Edward Chodorov, tackles the problem of Fascism in America, which is engrossing but difficult to handle on the stage.

The production is sincere and vigorous—it lashes out in forthright fashion against Fascism—but as a play it is rambling and uneven.

The story deals with a gang of corrupt politicians who frame a Liberal Reformer. The solution is not what you would expect — in fact, it doesn't meet the artistic requirement that crime must be punished. However, true to life that may be, it leaves a theatre audience feeling dissatisfied.

Picton and District

Founder's Night A Gala Affair

Picton, Feb. 5 — Founder's Night at the Home and School Association here was of more than usual interest since the founder, Mrs. Courtice, was a native of the village of Bloomfield, five miles west of Picton. Mrs. E. J. Williams gave a sketch of her life.

Preceeding the meeting there was a display of work done in the various rooms at Mary Street Public School. Red Cross work done by teachers and pupils was a feature.

Mrs. Harry Carter gave a paper on the Post-War World. LAC. William Haggart contributed a piano solo and Mrs. Colin Carter conducted a Home and School quiz. During a candle-lighting ceremony, Mrs. J. Goodwin lit that in honor of the Ontario Federation, Mrs. Fletcher one for the local Association and Miss C. Hill one in memory of deceased members. Miss Florence Barber gave a solo.

Mrs. Elizabeth Haggart, Public Health Nurse, and a recent bride, was presented with a silver and crystal relish dish. Mrs. T. J. Webster spoke in appreciation of the work done by Mrs. Haggart.

It was decided members would continue knitting as their war work. A birthday cake featured the refreshments.

Licence Boards May Be Formed

Toronto, Feb. 5 —(CP)— The Evening Telegram said in a news-page story Friday that amendments to the Liquor Control Act establishing regional judiciary licence boards are reported under consideration by the Ontario government. The changes would give power to these boards to rule whether or not individual women's beverage rooms should be closed, the newspaper added.

"The boards, comprising probably three members, will include a county judge and have power to issue licences, transfers, and full power to control operations of beverage rooms in their own localities," the story added.

AT THE McCARTHY — Ginger Rogers and Doug Fairbanks, Jr., stars of "Having a Wonderful Time," now at the McCarthy Theatre. Red Skelton and Ann Miller are also featured. Second feature hit is "Always a Bridesmaid."

Little Benny's Note Book

Pop was smoking to himself in his private chair and I was trying to balance my ruler on the end of my chin, saying, Look, pop, I bet I've tried this about 50 times and I bet I'll do it yet. That proves I've got real concentration and ambition when I once make up my mind, dont it, pop? I said.

It even proves you're a genius, if genius is really the capacity for taking infinite panes, as a fellow once said, pop said. Every great success in industry, science and the arts has been reached over countless stepping stones of persistence. The man who finely discovers the germ of the common cold, and thereby earns the undying gratitude of everybody except possibly the hankerchiff manufacturers, may at this very moment be bending patiently over his millionth microscope slide and may bend just as patiently over his 2nd million before the discouraged microbe acknowledges its master and comes out of hiding with its hands up, he said, and I asid, Sure pop, and how about jugglers?

How indeed, pop said, and I said, Think how much patience it must take a juggler to learn to ballance a ruler on his chin and keep 10 bals up in the air at the same time if it's taking me all this time to learn to just do the ruler by itself.

Quite so, but have you fully decided to make juggling your life work? pop said, and I said, No, sir, not quite but if I keep on practicing till I can ballance this ruler perfect it will teach me to be a good concentrator for other things.

I see your point, and you can go right on practicing so long as you're prepared to get up an hour earlier tomorrow morning to finish your homework, because if you think I'm going to let you stay up past your bedtime to do your lessons you're even crazier than most geniuses, pop said.

The result being I did my homework whether I felt like it or not.

THANKS FOR DONATIONS

London, Ont., Feb. 5 — (CP) — The Federal Finance Department wants everyone to feel his efforts are appreciated — even anonymous contributors to the war effort. The department has acknowledged donations totalling $900 received from someone in the London district last year.

Liverpool, Feb. 5. (CP)—A Roman Catholic cathedral here capable of holding 12,000 people and with 53 altars, will stand as a monument to the memory of Sir Edwin Lutyens, one of Britain's foremost architects who died recently.

Sir Edwin, who designed the government buildings at New Delhi, the School of Art in Rome, the Somme Memorial at Theipval and the Cenotaph in Whitehall, was working on the final plans for the cathedral when he died.

The cathedral will stand on the sea front and will be visible from 14 miles at sea. To be built after the war, it will be the biggest cathedral in the world.

AT THE BELLE — First John Wayne throws Jean Arthur out of a second storey window into a load of hay, then he jumps after her, in one of the funniest scenes in the comedy-romance "A Lady Takes a Chance." But next thing you know the mood turns into one of the tenderest love scenes the screen has seen in a long time.

3 Fined for Possession Of Loose 'Gas' Coupons

Trenton, Feb. 5.—Michael Donato, Frank Doran and Harry Asowitch were all before Magistrate J. L. Lloyd in Trenton Police Court on Tuesday for being in possession of loose gasoline coupons. All pleaded guilty and Donato was fined $23.25 while Doran paid $12.25 on each of two charges and Asowitch paid $38.25 on two charges and $42.25 on the third.

Local police had, they said, upon complaints received, searched the cleaning and pressing establishment of Asowitch and found the loose coupons. Doran and Donato were both drivers for Asowitch.

A case of car theft against Ray O'Sullivan was enlarged for one week.

John McBride and Oswold Connors each paid $13 for breach of the Liquor Control Act, while a similar charge against Harry Asowitch was dismissed.

CANADIAN MEMORIAL IN SICILY

Shown here at the top of this broad gravelled path is the Memorial which has been erected near the mountain town of Agira to Canadians who were killed in action during the Sicilian campaign. The Memorial was fashioned by Italian craftsmen out of Syracusa white limestone, with a superimposed crusader's sword, and will be a part of the Canadian cemetery in Sicily. One side faces toward the battlefield near Regalbuto, the other towards Agira, in which three Western Canada infantry units distinguished themselves before its capture. — (Canadian Army Overseas Photo).

CHAPTER 3

Tony didn't perform any miracles, but he did produce a good column, and after the first few weeks he found it surprisingly easy for the contributors did much of the work. He was continually astonished at the size of his mail, at the telephone calls, at the messages that were left for him, at the people who drew him aside to murmur softly in his ear or paused beside his table at one of the night clubs to tip him off to something. There was always a tremendous lot of chaff to be winnowed away, but usually a few grains of wheat remained.

Of course he had to be careful, for his information was no better than his sources, and he had no time to check it all. But one thing at least he could do, and that was never to use anything a second time from a source which had once proved unreliable.

Herschel Schneider was surprisingly helpful, not only in keeping him out of trouble, but in giving him an inside tip now and then. He was a slender man of about forty-five, slightly under the medium height, with black eyes, a mass of black hair, and an aquiline nose, which made him look a little like a bird of prey—a very clever and intelligent one.

Only once had Tony seen him worried. That was in the famous Harrington case, where an eminent jurist had been stabbed to death on a street corner in the centre of New York in broad daylight as he waited for a bus, and Schneider's client had been caught in the vicinity apparently red-handed as he tried to throw away a blood-stained ice-pick. On the evening before the last day of the trial, Tony found Schneider pacing up and down his office.

"There's something crooked somewhere," the lawyer had explaind, "but I can't put my finger on it. My last hope is when I cross-examine Fortunio Scotti tomorrow morning."

"He's the prosecution's principal witness, isn't he?"

"Yes and he's very clever. But perhaps I'll be able to put something over. Better be there."

Tony was there and he never forgot how Schneider led the witness along with infinite gentleness through all the intricacies of his testimony, turning up a small inconsistency here and there but seemingly not noticing it, and then suddenly gathering them all together and rounding on the witness so savagely that Scotti had stammered, hesitated, contradicted himself, broke down. It was brilliant, it was dramatic, but it was also remorseless and in a way unfair and Tony had always had a little flicker of doubt as to whether Scotti was really guilty of the murder he had apparently been trying to fasten on another man. At the final moment he had shaken his fists at the ceiling of the death-chamber and shouted hoarsely in Italian, "They shall pay for it, the swine! They shall pay!" Then he sat down in the chair and a minute later was dead.

Schneider was a little troubled by that.

"My job is to save people from the chair, not send them to it," he remarked to Tony afterwards, "but what could I do? He was trying to frame my client, so I had to let him have it. One can't figure a case like that with rose-water."

Another thing which Tony soon learned was the value of routine—of being in a certain place at a certain time day after day, in order that people would know where to find him. During the cocktail hour at the Waldorf, the Pierre, the Plaza. In the evening at the Colony, Twenty-One, the Stork, or at Lindy's. And finally, at about midnight, an hour at that little table at the corner of Max's dance floor.

Almost at the outset, by what was really only a lucky guess, he had directed the attention of the police to a certain upholsterer's shop where the clue was found which resulted in solving a peculiarly revolting murder! and a chance remark overheard at the Waldorf bar had led to the arrest of a bank looter just as he was ready to embark for Europe with his loot and his mistress. All of which gave Tony a most refreshing sense of power—and also the dangerous exhilaration of skating on the icy edge of a precipice!

And he was also most careful to keep up his entente with Jim Duffy, veteran of the homicide squad.

Finally, with his newly-found affluence, he leased an apartment in one of the old red brick buildings on the north side of Washington Square. He even fitted up a small laboratory where he could work out some of the scientific technique of crime detection . . .

Having gone to bed at two o'clock in the morning, after his visit to Max's place, Tony opened his eyes about ten, stretched himself thoroughly, pulled an extra pillow up behind him, and snapped on the reading-light above his head.

On the table beside the bed was a pile of newspapers. On top was a copy of the first edition of today's Record, then a copy of each of the morning papers, and then a copy of the final edition of the afternoon papers of the day before. There was also a large glass of orange juice nested in ice. All these had been noiselessly placed there by Clarence, the colored boy who looked after the flat.

Tony picked up the glass and the Record and as he sipped the juice, read through his column carefully. It seemed to him banal and uninteresting, but there was nothing he could do about it . . .

It was 11.30 when he finally rose, took a shower, slipped into slacks, slippers and an old sweater and walked out into the dining room. His breakfast was on the table, for Clarence had started it as soon as he heard the shower going.

"Good morning, Clarence," said Tony, and sat down as Clarence pushed the chair in under him. "Anything doing?"

"Good mornin' suh. They's been foah telephone calls, suh. Here's the memo. They's also two parcels suh," he added as Tony took the memo and glanced at it.

"Let's" look at them."

Clarence brought them in from the study and opened them at a side table.

The smaller one contained an autographed book with a blatantly fulsome inscription; the larger one two bottles of fine of 1888, with a card enclosed from another admirer saying he was just back from France and wanted Tony to taste the old brandy.

"Put it away," said Tony, as he finished his breakfast and then went into his study and sat down at his desk to go through his mail.

There were twenty-five or thirty letters, but before opening any of them, he slipped on a pair of white cotton gloves which lay on the desk beside the mail. He had had an experience once with a certain letter which had taught him that all of them must be handled carefully. Then he picked up a paper-knife and slit open the first envelope. He ought really to have a secretary, he told himself for the hundredth time, but he shuddered at the thought of breaking one in to his peculiar needs.

A tap at the door and Clarence announced: "Lieut. Duffy to see you, suh," and stood aside for the visitor to enter.

Tony looked up with a smile. "Hello, Jim. I was hoping you'd come. Sit down."

Duffy drew up a chair. He was a handsome, upstanding man, whose two-score-and-ten sat lightly on his shoulders, and whose thirty years of police work had not drained the humor from his face nor the kindness from his heart, though he could be hard on occasion, and his voice sometimes took on a little purr which every criminal who knew him had learned to fear.

"Teny," he began, "you said in your column this morning that you had been tipped off that something was going to happen to Jack McKibben at Max's place last night."

"Yes—but nothing did."

"How did you get the tip?"

"In a letter."

"Still got it?"

"Sure."

Tony rose, went to a file case in one corner and after a moment's search drew out a letter. It had the envelope clipped to it.

Duffy took it gingerly by the edge and read it:

> Dear Bigelow:
> Better be at Max's place around midnight tonight. Something serious may happen to Jack McKibben.
> Well wisher.

It had been typed with a black ribbon on a small sheet of ordinary notepaper, which looked as though it had been torn from a pad. Duffy held it up to the light but there was no watermark.

"What's eating you?" Tony asked. "I told you nothing happened."

"Not at Max's," Duffy agreed, "but quite a lot happened later on. McKibben killed himself some time early this morning."

"Killed himself?" Tony echoed. "But McKibben would never do that."

"Why not?"

"Because he hadn't the courage."

"Maybe he got some out of a bottle. Was he drunk last night?"

"A little tight—not what you would call drunk. What happened to him?"

"He locked himself in his bedroom and put a bullet through his heart," Duffy answered succinctly.

"I don't believe it," said Tony. "What about that?" and he motioned toward the letter in the detective's hand. "That certainly does not fit in with suicide."

"So it must fit in with something else," Duffy agreed. "I understand quite a lot of people had it in for this fellow."

"He wasn't what you'd call widely popular. But stockbrokers seldom are when the market is slumping."

"It goes farther back than that," said Duffy. "Didn't somebody try to jump him at Max's place?"

"Somebody called him a swine and started to make a pass at him but was rushed out before he could do any damage. I had tipped Max off and he had his bouncers ready."

"Who was it?"

"I don't know. I got just a glimpse of him and nobody seemed to know him. Quite a hefty fellow."

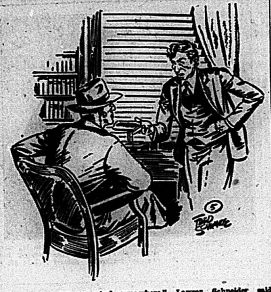
"I'll find out," said Duffy. "That is what this letter refers to.' Then after a pause, he queried. "Why did you have it in for McKibben?"

"I didn't have it in for him," Tony explained impatiently. "I just despised him."

"I see," said Duffy, drily; "on high moral grounds, of course. I'll take this letter along and have it dusted for fingerprints. Any idea who wrote it?"

"Not the faintest."

"You might look through your file," Duffy suggested, folded the letter carefully, slipped it into its envelope, and looked at the postmark. "Special delivery," he said. "Mailed at the West Sixty-ninth Street station yesterday afternoon at two o'clock. What time did you get it?"



"There's something crooked somewhere," Lawyer Schneider said.

"It was here when I came in to dress for dinner."

"That station is only a few blocks from where McKibben lives—this letter might have been mailed right in the building. Maybe McKibben mailed it himself. Maybe he was looking for a little publicity."

"That seems pretty far-fetched" Tony objected, "but the typewriting ought to give a clue. Now tell me about it."

Duffy put the envelope in his pocket, got out a long, thin panetela, lighted it, settled back in his chair and said, "Now about McKibben. He was divorced by his wife over a year ago and has been living by himself in a five-room terrace apartment on Central Park West. Quite a nifty place. He was a stockbroker, as you know, and was supposed to have a good business."

"It hasn't been so good lately, so I've heard," Tony remarked.

"I got a whiff of that too," Duffy agreed, "and am looking into it. Anyway he spent a lot of money and played around with women quite a bit. That's the reason his wife divorced him."

"So she said."

"You mean it wasn't the real reason?"

"Yes. The real reason was that she wanted to marry somebody else?"

"Who?"

"Scott McReynolds."

"The copper man?"

"Yes. She thought McKibben was going down and she wanted to be going up."

"She went up all right," said Duffy. "Quite a leap. "Is she in town now?"

"Yes, I saw her and McReynolds at Lindy's last night."

"I'll look her up. Maybe she can tell me something."

"Suppose you go ahead and tell me something," Tony suggested. "All you've told me so far is that McKibben was divorced, which I already knew."

"Okay," grinned Duffy. "As I was saying, McKibben lived over on Central Park West. He had one servant, a colored boy named George White, who looked after everything. White lives in Harlem. He goes home every night, except nights when McKibben tells him he is going to throw a party. Then he sleeps on a cot in a kind of storeroom off the pantry. Last night McKibben got home about six-thirty, had a bath, shaved, drank a couple of highballs while he looked over the paper and then got into his evening clothes and went out again about eight-thirty, telling White he wouldn't need him any more. The boy cleaned up the bath, put everything in order, and left the place a little before nine. He took the subway home and was there inside of twenty minutes. We've checked all this, you understand."

"Yes. Go ahead," Tony nodded.

"This morning White got to the apartment at eight o'clock as usual, bringing with him some fruit and some fresh rolls and butter. He put the things down in the kitchen and then went and tapped at McKibben's bedroom door, as he always did, and when there was no answer, he tried the door and found that it was bolted on the inside."

"Wait a minute," Tony interrupted. "How did he know it was bolted and not locked?"

"Because the key to the door was on the outside," Duffy explained. "It seemed that when McKibben was outside and didn't want anybody to go into his bedroom—during a party, for example—he locked it and put the key in his pocket. When he was inside and didn't want anybody to come in, he bolted it."

"In other words, he wanted to keep his bed for his own use," Tony commented.

"That's it. But he never bolted the door when he was by himself, so when his boy found it bolted this morning he went back to the kitchen. He'd had instructions to stay in the kitchen, whenever he found the door bolted, until McKibben rang for him."

"I see," said Tony. "At other times McKibben got up about eight."

"Yes. The boy would call him at eight and then get breakfast while McKibben shaved and dressed. 'He says McKibben liked to get down to the office about nine-thirty. The office staff confirms this. Well, this morning, White waited until eleven, and then he went back to the door and knocked again. There was no answer and after knocking quite a while, he called the building superintendent.

12,000 GALLONS BRANDY GONE

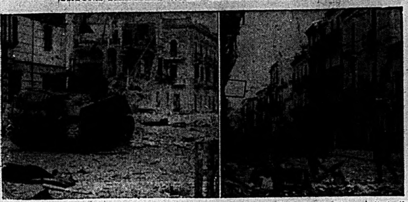
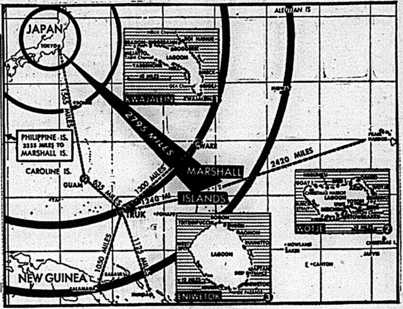
London, Feb. 5 (CP)—A Vichy broadcast heard by the Ministry of Information said fire razed a Hennessy distillery destroying 12,000 gallons of cognac.

ORTONA SHAMBLES WHEN CANADIANS MARCHED IN



Furious fighting for Ortona in Italy left the city in utter ruin and a large number of casualties with it. At the left is a scene when the slugging match was over. A Canadian tank rumbles into the main square. The shell-shocked buildings indicate the tempo of the battle. A Western Canadian unit of infantrymen are shown (at right) marching into rubble-piled streets after the Hun had departed.—(Canadian Army Overseas Photo.)

HOW PACIFIC CIRCLE DRAWS CLOSER TO JAPAN



Gradually the great Pacific battle circle draws closer to Japan, swinging in an arc from the Aleutians to the north, through the Marshalls to New Guinea and Rabaul and toward the Philippines. When the Marshalls were invaded the arc of heavy action in the South Pacific was completed and, as the map shows, Truk and Wake are on the rim of the next circle. Experts foresee a direct thrust at Truk from Kwajalein (1), in inset with (2) Wotje and (3) Einwetok, two Jap bases that are taking a severe pounding.

SWIFTER THAN AN ARROW IN ITS FLIGHT

Shooting off the edge of the flight deck of a U. S. navy aircraft carrier, like an eagle in its flight, a Grumman Avenger torpedo bomber heads out on a mission. The sharp bow of the flat-top kicks up a high spray as the ship speeds through the water.

Germans Believe Preparations For Invasion Under-Way

London, Feb. 5 (CP) — By German account, preliminaries for the Allied invasion of western Europe already are under way—including "reconnaissance attacks by English units along various points of the Atlantic wall."

A spokesman for the German general staff was quoted in a Budapest broadcast recorded today by the Ministry of Information as declaring:

"The English have begun their attack from the air first of all against sectors of the west wall. In these air attacks American Flying Fortresses also are frequently employed.

"English units have attempted attacks against various points along the Atlantic wall, but these never have been more than reconnaissance operations.

"Early spring will be the most favorable time for an attempt at invasion and it will probably be then that the British reconnaissance activity will reach its climax."

DAMAGE SUIT FILED

San Diego, Calif., Feb. 5 (AP) — A $15,000 damage suit is on file in Superior Court against Maj.-Gen. Holland Smith, leader of United States marine assault troops in the Marshall Islands invasion, brought by Alvin J. Walters, 23, Burlington, Ia. Walters claims he suffered permanent injuries last Feb. 4 when he was struck by an automobile driven by the general. Walters was a navy machinist's mate.

COMMEMORATE VICTORY

Kirk Bramieth, England (CP) — A stained glass window has been unveiled in the old Norman church in this Yorkshire village to commemorate North African victories. For the occasion, all the Dominions sent their flags which will have a permanent place in the church.

EIGHT PASSENGERS MORE

Miami, Fla., Feb. 5 (AP)—An air transport comamnd plane arrived in Miami Thursday with eight passengers that were not aboard when the ship took off for an Atlantic crossing. At 10,000 feet just south of the equator, Tilly, an English terrier, gave birth to nine puppies.

Astronomer Finds Flat-Poled Star

Capetown, South Africa — A new celestial phenomenon, a star flattened at its poles, was reported today by Dr. J. S. Paraskevopoulos, director of the Harvard Observatory at Bloemfontein.

He said the discovery might throw some light on the mystery of the origin of solar system, like that including the earth and our other planets.

This is the first time in astronomical records that a star has been flattened at its poles or, to be more exact, having an elongated, elliptical shape.

The star is Nova Pictoris. It is one of a comparatively rare type of stars, the novae or new stars. Novae are not actually new, but are the result of celestial explosions bigger than the whole solar system, which brings them up from faint or even invisible stars to great brightness.

Nova Pictoris flared in 1925. Three years later it had four companions. These were luminous bodies of light, presumably flaming matter that had been ejected or cold matter shining in reflected light. The quartet gradually moved away from Nova Pictoris.

This was the first unusual thing about Nova Pictoris. It was still an apparently round star then, but its ejected matter had acted in a somewhat different manner than that of most novae. Usually the procedure is ejection of flaming shells that travel outward at tremendous speeds but do not break up into patches.

Dr. Paraskevopoulos has been observing Nova Pictoris for fifteen years. The flattening or elongation appears on some recent photographic plates. Interpreting the flattening he said:

"It may show that celestial catastrophies or cataclysms in reality are a cause of the creation of solar systems."

Two Theories on Flattening

There are two interpretations of the flattening, both fitting into theories of the creation of solar systems. One is real flattening of the poles by the speed of rotation. Such speed might be enough to eject matter from the star's sides.

The other interpretation is elongation, the opposite of flattening. This elongation would precede what astronomers call fission, the division of Nova Pictoris into two stars. This phenomenon can be demonstrated in laboratories, where the elongation passes into the shape of a dumbbell and then into separation, the two halves becoming spheres.

In fission there would be trailing matter to move out into near-by space and roll itself up in the form of earths and other planets.

No telescope has seen fission, flattening or elongation. All are known from calculation and other evidence. For fission there are paired and triplet star systems that can be explained in no other way. For flattening due to rotation there is the behaviour of light when one star of a pair eclipses the other. The eclipsed star has to be flattened to explain the light curve but no one can see the flattening.

The sun is supposed to be flattened at its poles but that cannot be seen clearly.

USE HOSE ON STARLINGS

Springfield, Ill., Feb. 5 (AP)—This city has used fire hoses and shotgun blasts in vain attempts to drive away thousands of starling and sparrows which roost nightly in the business area. Robert C. Sparks of the state department on conservation, is working on a gas attack plan.

MAKE RECORD HOP

Santa Monica, Calif., Feb. 5 — (AP)—Douglas Aircraft Corporation announced yesterday a fleet of 35 twin-engined American transports has successfully negotiated a 1,970-mile hop in the South Atlantic from Natal to Africa, carrying five tons of cargo each.

Five of Eight Escapees Held After Jail Break

Buffalo, N.Y., Feb. 5 (AP).—Five of eight prisoners who fled last night from Erie County jail were captured early today in one of the greatest manhunts in Buffalo's history. The three at large included two youths charged with first degree murder.

Floyd Philip Heckler, 18, of Buffalo, and Charles Balone, 17, of Lackawanna, surrendered to two Cattaraugus County deputy sheriffs near West Valley, about 30 miles west of Buffalo.

Charles Walter Dent, 17, Kenmore; Louis John Kupniewski, 18, Erie, Pa., and Robert Paul McLean, 20, Buffalo, were captured by Livingston County officers one mile west of Lester, 60 miles east of Buffalo.

Still at large are Joseph V. Augello, 20, of Buffalo, and Bernard Berman, of New York, indicted on first degree murder charges in the shooting Dec. 29 of Michael Martis, 50, manager of a tavern in Buffalo, during a holdup that netted $118, and Norman E. Curry of Williamsport, Pa.

Two guards were overpowered, one of them thrown into a solitary confinement cell, and a charwoman forced to unlock the front door leading to freedom. The daring escape, first to take place from the six-year-old building in downtown Buffalo, was initiated by four trustees in the second-floor cell block.

Sheriff Arthur D. Britt temporarily suspended Jailer Jacob P. Obenauer and two guards, Arthur Wofford, 50, a negro, and William Stephen, 60. District Attorney Leo J. Hagerty explained, "It was thought best to relieve the men from their official duties until an investigation is completed."

"Have a Mink to Match Your Hair"

From "Time" Magazine, New York

For over a year, the U.S. fur industry has speculated about a strange new fur, a lustrous platinum mink with a soft blue overtone. Many a furrier was not certain whether it was a worthless freak or a Comstock lode for U.S. fur breeders.

Recently, weather-beaten, rawboned ranchers and plumpish, pale-faced fur buyers jampacked a downtown Manhattan show room to find the answer at the first auction of the new fur. After two tense hours, the answer was in. The new fur (trade name "Silverblu" platinum) had edged out Russian sable to become, for the nonce, the rarest, highest-priced fur in the world. The 2,500 pelts at auction had sold for $375,000. Cost of a silverblu coat: $20,000 and up.

To the $500,000,000 U.S. fur industry, now booming as seldom before, the prime significance of the auction was its evidence that the use of genetics to produce mink mutations had opened up a new and fantastically profitable line of business.

One of the men who blazed the new fur trail is the short, chunky president of the two-year-old Silverblu Platinum Mink Breeders' Association, Larry Moore. Still in his 30's, Larry Moore has been breeding mink for 18 years. He used it to pay his way through an engineering course at Iowa State College at Ames. Soon he became more interested in mink than in engineering, switched to an animal husbandry course. Then he gave up college altogether; taking care of his mink left him little time for study. Having located an ideal U. S. mink-raising area by study of rainfall and temperature charts, he took his bride to a two-room shack on Wisconsin's Suamico river in 1934 and set up in business with 100 mink and $383. Soon he was experimenting with mutations.

Wild silverblu mink are exceedingly rare. One furrier tried for ten years to collect enough for a single jacket. Domestic breeders, in whose litters they occasionally turn up, had been experimenting with them since 1931. But progress was small because furriers considered them worthless freaks and ranchers were ignorant of Mendel's laws of heredity. Larry Moore, who understood Mendel, persuaded other ranchers that the laws could be used to breed silverblus and dollars. Recently one bundle of Moore's furs brought the auction's top prices, $265 a skin, netting him over $50,000 for his 337 pelts. But he regretfully foresees a fall in price as silverblus become more numerous.

But silverblus are just a start. Already mink ranchers have developed six more varieties, ranging from pure white to black and white, and lilac. Fur men are already quipping: "Have a mink to match your hair."

The prospect of a good market for the new furs is bright. Prices plummeted after Pearl Harbor, but early last year luxury buying began sending them up again. Now they are bumping against OPA ceilings. Thus, with dark mink pelts selling up to $35, 50-60 per cent higher than a year ago, platinum fox at $270, all other furs up from 25 per cent to 100 per cent, the furriers' problem is not price but supply. Many an auction has been delayed recently for lack of furs to sell. Recently OPA gave furriers another pat on the pocketbook; it abolished price ceilings on fur coats costing over $8,000.

Must Scrutinize Letters to Editor

(From The Financial Post, Toronto)

There is a mistaken impression in some quarters that a newspaper is morally obligated to print every open letter addressed to the editor. The newspaper that attempted to observe such a practice would soon find itself out of readers, and out of business. Recently the Ottawa Journal summed up the case very well as follows:

"Our 'Letters to the Editor' column is not a public forum in the sense that it can be used freely by cranks, propagandists, politicians and bigots. It is a public platform where the reader has privileges, but not rights, and the editors of the newspaper feel their responsibility goes much farther than the elimination of libel. Thus we do not print letters attacking any church or any race, letters indulging in offensive personalities, or letters aimed primarily at self-glorification.

"Within these restrictions there is abundant scope for literary activity there is scope for the intelligent discussion of public affairs."

That outlines a sound policy for any newspaper.

But to it should be added a rigid ban on letters making wild and inaccurate charges. In the last Victory Loan campaign, for instance, there were frequent cases of this sort of thing, some letter writers asserting the old lie that loan salesmen were paid exorbitant salaries.

No matter how fast corrections were printed a great deal of harm was done. Had the editors responsible made the most cursory check they could have found the complete fallacy to the charges made.

With the task of editing goes great responsibility. Publications of untruths, malicious and venomous rumors, is not proper exercise of that responsibility.

Selling Eggs By Weight

(Fort William Times-Journal)

Members of the Northern Poultry Association believe that the fairest way to sell eggs is by their weight—and the facts support their contention. All eggs are not of similar size and weight. Some flocks yield eggs of large size and other flocks eggs of smaller size. In selling by the dozen the vendor of large eggs gives materially greater value than the man who sells small eggs. Yet the cash proceeds are the same. In buying the fortunate purchaser who gets large eggs receives better value than the purchaser who receives small eggs. It is a case, always, of someone getting too much or someone getting too little. As eggs are not of uniform size, and as it is not to be expected that poultry flocks ever will be so standardized that size uniformity will be the rule, it would seem that the only absolutely fair way would be to sell eggs by weight.

It is possible that the long prevailing custom of selling eggs by the dozen is the result of the obvious convenience of such a method. It may take a little longer to weigh eggs but once all concerned get accustomed to it the extra time and trouble will not be so very great. One of the principal benefits will be that the poultry man who takes a pride in keeping a flock that produces large, fine eggs will feel that he is getting value and, what is more, encouragement.

Grading of eggs, according to size and freshness has helped egg producers to a large extent but it appears that absolute fairness to both producer and consumer justifies the request for sale by weight.

Earthquakes Unpredictable

(New York Times)

The sleeping mountains have brought death and destruction to the Andean province of San Juan in Argentina.

Why should western South America be thus visited? Mountains line the shores of the entire Pacific, and they project from Caribbean Islands. It is not Japan that holds the record for tremulousness, but Chile. The reason is that the Andes are comparatively young as chains of mountains go. Far down in the earth there is a shift of rock. It may be only inches, it may be feet. But the jar, when transmitted, is enough to devastate hundreds of square miles. It is not because the earth is sinking but because the mountains are being pushed up, contrary to popular supposition. Our Atlantic Seaboard is an old part of the earth. It is stable. Hence it is subjected to few shocks, and these are usually so slight that most of us are unaware of them. Western Argentina is paying the price of geological youth.

This latest catastrophe makes us wonder again what the prospect may be for predicting earthquakes and thus saving lives and homes. It is not bright. So far as the record goes salvation lies more in the engineer than in the seismic prophet. For the engineer can at least build structures that will not topple when the ground shakes. Will men ever learn that lesson? It seems not. A few earthquake-proof structures have been erected, but the custom is still to clear away the rubble, to build more flimsy structures and to take the chance that the next earthquake is not due for years.

PRELUDE TO DRIVE ON TOKYO

American bombers based in the Aleutians, recently raided Paramushiro, big Jap base in the Kurile Islands. In the meantime the drive toward Tokyo from the South Pacific gains ground.

"FORTRESS EUROPE" IS HIS BUSINESS

A study of Gen. Dwight Eisenhower, supreme commander of Allied forces for the invasion of western Europe, at his desk in Allied headquarters in London, England.

Eisenhower's Talents As the Unifying Force

(By William Bayles, in the London Sunday Graphic)

General "Ike" Eisenhower, the Allied invasion general, works on a stiff tactical problem like a Canadian woodcutter felling a tree. First he clears away the undergrowth, then he tackles the tree.

"The job I've taken to my heart," General Eisenhower said, "is getting the British and Americans together. Not forcing them, but trying to establish a basis of mutual respect and understanding."

His success has amazed most observers, one of whom recently remarked: "In Eisenhower's headquarters it takes you five minutes to figure out who's an Englishman and who's an American."

On the other hand, he is adamant about each nationality retaining its own character to the extent that he discourages American officers from adopting British swagger sticks or Guardsman moustaches, and has placed a "penalty box" in his office into which any American staff officer detected in the act of using such blatant Anglicisms as "ecktuelleh" or "cheerio" is required to deposit a fine.

* * *

When subordinates bring him plans which are not clearly set out and defined, he is likely to sigh and comment: "I'm too thick-headed to understand this d . . . . thing. You'll have to make it a lot simpler."

That is how he worked in North Africa, where the problems that confronted him would have stumped a League of Nations.

His outstanding talent, and undoubtedly the one that led to his choice as supreme commander of the British and U. S. armies organizing in Great Britain for the liberation of Europe, is his ability to get on with other generals, some of whom possess decidedly prima donna temperaments.

Under his genial, unobtrusive leadership a fighting partnership such as has never before existed in military history developed in North Africa.

American warships sailed under a British admiral, a British air marshal directed Anglo-American air operations, and British troops obeyed commands given with accents never heard at Sandhurst.

* * *

The Eisenhower technique, as described by a British staff officer, "is typically mid-western and very American." He uses complete candor combined with friendly informality to create an atmosphere of mutual confidence.

"He never gives the impression," the same officer remarked, "that he is holding back anything, and before you know it you are telling him everything you know."

He believes that the men who do the work should receive all the credit, and since the first landings in North Africa, only the field commanders and soldiers have figured in the awards.

His own name was seldom mentioned in connection with specific operations, but those on the inside of Allied strategy say that his influence affected every decision of any importance.

He is no traditionalist, but in every sense a modern strategist, convinced that politics and economics, no less than military operations, can be employed to win battles.

* * *

His management of the French question in North Africa was widely criticized at the time, but the fact remains that he defeated Vichy without a fight, at the same time keeping the French liberation movement alive and even reinforcing it by unifying factions whose whole past history had been one of mutual antagonism.

British staff officers in London recall his presence here mostly because of his disconcerting habit of calling inter-staff conferences on Sunday mornings.

They recall his preference for quick interviews with key men to lengthy staff conferences, and the amazing amount of detailed, accurate work he is able to cram into his usual 12-hour working day.

Snowflakes On a Wafer

(Minneapolis Star-Journal)

Snowflakes (remember those tiny white particles which used to come floating down to earth during a Minnesota winter) are curious phenomena. One photomicrographer of snow crystals has made more than 4,800 pictures of snowflakes and has yet to develop a duplicate.

That is not so hard to understand when you know that snowflakes are formed by millions of water molecules which gather upon a microscopic grain of dust or a salt chip in a hexagonal pattern. In low altitudes, where it is warm and moist, snowflakes are feathery, soft and delicate. Those formed at higher altitudes are simpler, more sculptured in appearance. Snowflakes aren't always formed in clouds, either. Light snowfalls have occurred on a completely cloudless day.

Photomicrographers of snow crystals won't need to freeze at their chilly work from now on. To get a perfect impression of a little snowflake all the naturalist has to do is to let it fall on a thin plastic wafer, where it melts, leaving a permanent record of its beautiful shape in the hardened plastic.

Hospital Up in the Clouds

How British and American Service Men Are Being Brought Back to Health on the Slopes of the Himalayas—Getting Ready for the Real Assault on Japan

(By Graham Stanford in London Daily Mail)

On the slopes of the Himalayas, with Mount Everest and mysterious Tibet hard by, hundreds of British and American officers and men are nursing themselves back to health for the time when the real assault on Japan begins. Up here we literally live in the clouds—7,00 ft. above those scorching Indian plains and the malarial mosquito, dysentry, dengue fever, prickly heat, and all the other diseases which sooner or later come to most men who live and fight or fly in the jungle.

By day, wrapped in mackintoshes and sheltered by gaily colored umbrellas, we tramp in drenching rain along mountain roads. At night we curl up in bed with sheets and two blankets and almost gloat that 7,000 ft. below, in the plains, the fans are whirling and people are sweating.

It is like a load off the mind to be rid of that searing heat. To people in England this would be the dreariest holiday weather — mist, rain and visibility so poor that often you can see only a few yards in front of you. To us it represents a dream we have dreamed many times in bamboo huts in the jungle, with mosquitoes buzzing around the nets. We are sick of the sun of cloudless skies and of nights so still that you can hear even the lizards as they play on the walls. Let it rain, let it thunder over these majestic Himalayan heights. Let lightning strike this strange and lovely roof of the world.

Since I arrived here I have caught one quick glimpse of the snow-capped twin peaks of Kanchenjunga, and I have been told every day that I shall be lucky if I see Mount Everest. But I and all of us here scarcely care. We did not come as sightseers. We came to be cool, to shake off that prickly heat which makes the night agony, and to escape—if only for a short while—from the malarial mosquito.

Most officers and men here have been in action in Burma. Some have been wounded, but most are convalescents suffering from one of the scores of complaints which have given India the title of "The World's Reservoir of Disease." I am one of the lucky ones. In eighteen months of tropical weather on land and sea I have registered only one slight attack of fever, a chill and a poisonous spider bite. Some men here have had three or four attacks of malaria, dysentry, or the perpetual prickly heat.

Medical science will play a great part in the Far East campaign. The doctor is becoming an increasingly important member of every Army unit, and I look forward to the day when a special panel of the most highly trained physicians, biologists and tropical disease experts will be attached to every Army corps and R.A.F. group. To beat the Japs we must also defeat the disease which infests the battlefields of the East, for already it has been shown that disease brings a far heavier toll than battle casualties.

We are a strangely assorted holiday population in this little township, which was a base for Everest expeditions and intrepid adventurers who wanted to walk on the "Roof of the World," as Tibet is called. This was also the summer seat of the Bengal Government, who used to come here to cool off after the humid heat of Calcutta. Here now are British officers and other ranks who have been fighting the Japs in Arakan; R.A.F. flyers and crews taking a monsoon rest from the growing blitz on Burma; American Army and commercial pilots who have been flying to China; technical experts; and members of the cosmopolitan army of refugees who tramped out of Burma.

We are a little aghast that women here should act as our porters, that grey-haired mothers and lissom young girls with flowers in their hair should carry our tin trunks on their backs. But that has been the custom for centuries, and you do not question custom in this part of the world.

We dance and roller-skate at the Gymkhana Club, we ride mountain ponies or are pulled in rickshaws, and it is all great fun, especially to the American boys. They swear they will see Mount Everest before they leave because "that's certainly something to write home about."

In peace time Darjeeling bore the title of "Queen of Hill Stations." Today it is a leave centre, a cold refuge on the slopes of the Himalayas where those, who have grown tired and ill in the service of their country, come to get fit so that they can continue fighting.

The mountain mist is lifting and the sun may soon shine down on those lovely peaks of Kanchenjunga. I am told that there is just a chance that if I rise soon after midnight and trek to distant hill before dawn, I may even see Mount Everest.

USED IN EMERGENCY

When the head of an ordinary worm is cut off, he simply grows another.

They Also Serve

(Ottawa Journal's London Bureau)

Though our Indian Army has been almost entirely mechanized, animals still play an important part in it. Indeed, as actual experience reveals the limitations of mechanized transport, animals are coming into extended use. Russia is making vital use of horses, both as cavalry and transport, and the Indian Army is employing camels, mules and elephants. Allenby used camels in the last war, and camels played an important role in our recent North African campaign. They were used both for patrolling and as pack animals.

But the mule is the army's most useful animal, and its utility on the North West Frontier has been greatly extended in this war, including the Italian campaign. With drivers as tough as themselves, mules are trained for battle use. It begins by rattling pebbles in tins in their ears and finally ends with exploding gelignite and firing tommy-guns close to them. Hundreds of mules went with the Wingate Expedition into Burma, some ending up by providing meat rations for the troops.

Hannibal's Tanks.

After a lapse of 40 years moreover, an era of mechanized war sees the elephant back in army use, thus linking up 1944 with Hannibal's B.C. tanks. Elephants carrying from 500 to 800 pounds ten miles a day can go through jungle too thick even for a mule. Wingate had a few elephants in Burma too, and one carried a printing press for propaganda leaflets for villagers. They are useful also in road and bridge building work. A large number are engaged on the new strategic roads into Burma and China under officers with long experience in handling elephants in the timber trade.

A mule's pack load is only about half what an elephant can cheerfully shoulder. The intelligence of the elephant, quite apart from its proverbial memory power, is something only the initiated can quite believe. Our London bus horses of a vanished traffic era, who used to accompany gallant Yeomanry to camp and pick up all the bugle calls, were almost slow-witted compared with the elephant. Kipling insisted that the latter even absorbed esprit de corps, and he was probably correct.

NOTHING LIKE MAKING SURE

Knoxville, Tenn., Feb. 5 — (CP)—The 66-year-old mother of six children asked Domestic Relations Judge H. B. Webster for a second divorce from her husband, also 66.

"He told me if I would give him $900 he'd marry me again," she said. "And, that if we didn't get along he'd pay back the $900. They were divorced three years ago.

"Did he pay you back the $900?" the court asked.

"No, he did not," she said. "If I get loose this time it's for quits."

U. S. WARSHIPS BOMBARD PARAMUSHIRO ISLAND

Nipponese Base Northernmost of Jap Home Islands

No Ship of Attack Force Is Damaged By Enemy Shore Batteries

TAKEN BY SURPRISE

By NORMAN BELL
Associated Press War Correspondent

Aboard a U. S. destroyer in the North Pacific, Feb. 4—(delayed)—(AP)—United States warships bombarded Japan at home for the first time today and caught the enemy by surprise.

(Paramushiro, which now has had a taste of naval bombardment, is the northernmost of the home islands of Japan.

It is about 190 miles southwest of the American base on Attu island in the Aleutians and is more than 1,600 miles from Dutch harbor, the United States Navy's Northernmost Pacific Base.)

Attack Lasted 20 Minutes

A bombardment lasting about 20 minutes battered the harbor and land installations of Kurabu point on the southern tip of Paramushiro island.

Enemy gunners, either surprised or attempting to put out star shells which preceded the heavy blasting, fired into the air when the attack first started. Then they fired along their own beaches and at the Pacific ocean and sea of Ohkotsk.

No ship of the attacking force, which steamed under bright moonlight within five miles of the shore batteries, was hit.

The force was commanded by Rear Admiral Wilder D. Baker.

The Navy Department at Washington, verbally confirming the bombardment by American Navy ships of Japanese installations at Kurabu point on the southern tip of Paramushiro island, also disclosed that an attack was made on the east coast of the island.

First eye witness stories from the scene spoke only of the bombardment at Kurabu point.

Low Lying Point

The few records here regarding uthat spot described it as a low lying point with shoal water extending eastward and northeastward. Reefs and rocks stretching nearly two miles off the point suggest that the ships certainly approached their target no closer than that.

Kurabu Point is at the north side of a 30-mile strait separating Paramushiro from the next island of the south.

It was assumed here that the Naval Force would not have steamed far into that strait.

The U. S. Army was represented aboard Admiral Baker's flagship by Maj.-Gen. Davenport Johnson of the Air Force, and Brig.-Gen. E. D. Post, chief of staff to Lt.-Gen. Simon Bolivar Buckner, commander of the Alaskan department. The presence of General Post came while troops of the Alaskan department engaged in assault manoeuvres which possibly will be aimed at Paramushiro.

Wild Enemy Firing

The wild nature of the Japanese gunnery indicated they feared an invasion was underway. Tracer bullets from some of their guns spurted along the shoreline, apparently aimed at shadows or imaginary landing barges.

This destroyer on which I rode as the only war correspondent accompanying the task force was skippered by Cmdr. Harry Smith.

Two weeks ago I became the first war correspondent over Japanese home soil when I made a bombing mission with navy planes over the same port of Paramushiro.

Planes of the fleet air wing were back last night, the second consecutive night of their resumed "Tokyo short line express." They hit shortly after the bombardment.

A division of destroyers led heavier ships of the force into shelling position along the eastern side of Kurabu Point. The remainder of the force swung westward toward the Sea of Ohkotsk and bombarded from that side.

The "open fire" order came at 2.30 a.m. by our watcher which was 9.30 p.m. Japan time.

Buildings Blasted

Star shells made the snow-white shore bright. The bombardment got underway in earnest. It was centred on buildings or other shore objects and one small merchant ship.

This vessel, silhouetted against the white shore light, had a high plume of black smoke pouring from its stack. It apparently was trying to move out of danger. The bombarding ships took turns banging away at it with a gun or two as they fell into position. It apparently was hit a number of times and left beached or badly crippled. No other shipping was seen in the harbor.

Part of the force continued up the shore for some distance searching for other targets before turning out to sea.

Behind us several fires were blazing. One in particular continued to burn with what appeared to be periodic explosions as if of gasoline or ammunition until finally it faded below the horizon.

People's Cathedral For Coventry

London, Feb. 7—(CP)—In a move believed to be unprecedented in British ecclesiastical history, coventry cathedral "—shattered during the battle of Britain—will be replaced by a "people's cathedral" in which free churches will join the Anglican congregation, it was announced today.

One of the main features of the design of the new church will be its altar, which will be placed in the centre of the cathedral, in the early Christian and medieval manner.

The new structure, to be erected immediately after the war, will include a Christian service centre "for the whole community in full partnership with the free churches," the announcement said. A "special chapel of unity" belonging to both.

An endowment fund is planned to staff both the cathedral and the centre.

Dr. N. V. Gorton, Bishop of Coventry, said it was aimed to make a place for the "flood of strangers which the war has brought to Coventry. 80 per cent of whom are without church membership."

The new building has been designed by Sir Giles Scott—a Roman Catholic who planned the Anglican Cathedral of Liverpool — to putilize the existing tower and apse which survived the bombing.

The altar has been planned for the middle of the church, Dr. Gorton said, because "it belongs to the people as well as to the clergy . . . Let the people gather around it."

Japan Speculates On New Landings

New York, Feb. 7—(AP)—A Tokyo dispatch broadcast by Berlin speculated today that American forces might attempt a landing "in the Spring" on the Kurile islands, the guardian chain stretching northeast of the Japanese homeland.

The newspaper Yomiuri Hochi said U. S. Naval units in the northern Pacific had "been reinforced lately," and the American forces include "strong formations of airborne troops."

Paramushiro, enemy base on the Kuriles, has been bombed frequently by planes flying from the Aleutians.

Shortly after this broadcast was recorded, it was announced that an American Naval Force had bombard Kurabu point on the southern tip of Paramushiro island, Feb. 4.

WILLKIE IN PRIMARIES

New York, Feb. 7 —(AP)— The New York Times says in a special dispatch from Nebraska that Wendell L. Willkie announced today he would enter the Nebraska preferencial primary as a candidate for the republican presidential nomination.

Canadians Pay Tribute to German Paratroopers in Battle at Ortona

BY DOUGLAS AMARON
(CP War Correspondent.)

With the Canadian Forces in Italy, Feb. 7. (CP) —First persons to pay tribute to the German paratrooper as a soldier are the men who suffered most from him, the Canadian regiments of the Seaforth Highlanders and the Loyal Edmontons.

The Canadians are still talking about the foe they had to defeat to capture Ortona last December 27. There the Canadian found an adversary who showed no mercy, who knew and used every trick of warfare and whose courage was surpassed only by that of the Canadians themselves.

Methods used by the Germans are not condoned by the Canadians but they do respect the courage which kept him fighting even when defeat was inevitable.

Paratroopers are Germany's shock troops. They are used where other soldiers fail and on this front they came into action half way through the Moro River battle after the Canadians had severely mauled a regiment of the Panzer Grenadiers.

The Canadians ran up against some paratroopers in Sicily, but so far as is known this is the first time they have been used as an independent regiment. The Canadians consider it a tribute to their own ability that the Germans saved their best for them.

For the most part, the Germans are young men and are ardent Nazis, brought up in the tradition of Hitlerism. They all carry pictures of the Fuehrer and although most of them no longer believe a German victory is inevitable, they fight fanatically.

For the most part, the Germans appear to respect international conventions. There have been incidents where Canadian stretcher bearers have been shot deliberately, but these are the exception, and in some cases German first aid men have come out under fire to bandage the wounds of Canadians.

However, Cpl. Milton Spiegelberg of Kitchener, Ont., met two Germans who told him outright "we paratroopers don't recognize the Red Cross". These same paratroopers, however, were the first persons to take cover under it when the occasion arose.

MOSCOW HINTS PLAN FOR NEW POLISH STATE

Government Would Be Independent of the Polish Government Now in London

CRITICIZES BULGARIA

London, Feb. 7. (CP)— Russian intimations yesterday created belief here that the U.S.S.R. is planning to give official blessing to the establishment of a new Polish State, independent of the Polish government in London, as a basis for settling Polish territorial problems.

This development coincided with a bitter Soviet verbal attack on Bulgaria and a sharp air raid on the Finnish capital of Helsinki—events which were generally interpreted here as warnings to those two countries to sever their connections with Germany.

The tipoff on Russia's intentions toward Poland came in a Moscow broadcast, recorded by the Soviet Monitor here, saying that as Red Army troops drive out the German invaders "a new democratic Poland will arise and all conditions for friendly co-operation of the Ukrainian and Polish people will be created".

The broadcast added the establishment of a separate Foreign Office in the Ukrainian Soviet Republic would create stimulus for "a friendly rapprochement of these states and may require conclusion of special agreements for strengthening these friendly connections between them".

This statement, hinting at possible future treaty negotiations, gave added significance to action taken at Moscow last week extending to each of the 16 separate Soviet republics the right to handle their own foreign affairs.

Slated For Key Role.

It appeared here the strategically-located Ukraine was slated for a key role in a Soviet plan to settle boundary issues and at the same time build a powerful Slav Bloc against future German aggression. There also was a hint of the role which other individual Soviet republics may be expected to play in the settlement of important frontier problems.

Indicating the Polish government in London was to be ignored entirely in this plan, the Moscow broadcast said "the Emigre Polish government not infrequently displays imperialistic, pro-Fascist tendencies in its politics" and added: "It is obvious that such tendencies preclude even the possibility of a friendly agreement".

Significantly, perhaps, it was disclosed that Alexander E. Korneichuk had been named commissar of foreign affairs for the Ukrainian Soviet republic. Korneichuk, who resigned only last week as national vice-commissar of foreign affairs, has strongly opposed Poland's claims to her pre-war eastern borders.

McNaughton Enjoyed Great Popularity Among Canadian Military Men in Britain

(Special Cable to Ottawa Journal and Ontario Intelligencer)

London, Feb. 4 — Very keen interest is being displayed in Canadian military circles in this country over the statement by Gen. McNaughton, denying ill-health forced him to relinquish command of the Canadian forces.

From all a visitor can gather, McNaughton enjoyed great popularity among the rank and file and higher quarters, and our troops had looked forward to the invasion of the continent under his leadership.

Thus there will be keen resentment if McNaughton can prove, as some suggest, that he was forced to relinquish his command through political machination or because it was decided irreconcilable difference between McNaughton and ranking generals in command, notably General Montgomery if rumor has any foundation, could be solved by his resignation.

On the other hand, the argument is heard that McNaughton really had over-tried his strength and endurance. It is argued also that McNaughton's great and memorable job for Canada was in organization of the Canadian forces into a highly trained efficient fighting boy, but that different qualities are needed in high command for actual operations.

The same quarters point out that General Simonds more than any other senior Canadian military leader has actual battle experience and in discussion of the future leadership of our army this point is weighted against Lt. Gen. Crerar's great administrative experience.

Naturally nobody here will let his name be used in connection with this subject, but it is clear that no news from home in a long time has so interested military circles as the McNaughton incident.

There will be much feeling over any appearance of unfairness toward this distinguished officer.

PREPARE TO USE DROMES AGAINST THEIR BUILDERS

Navy Technicians Busily Clearing Fields on Roi and Namur Islands

OTHER ISLANDS TAKEN

Pearl Harbor, Feb. 7 (AP)—While mopping-up operations were being continued by United States marines and soldiers on certain sections of Kwajalein Atoll, U.S. navy technicians were already busy clearing former Japanese air installations on Roi and Namur islands in preparation for turning them against their builders.

Admiral Chester W. Nimitz announced in a communique Sunday, that three more islands—Guegegwe, Bigej and Ebler—had been captured, and several others of the Marshalls group which had not been defended by the Japanese had been occupied, and that the conquest of Kwajalein Atoll was almost complete.

Meanwhile huge bulldozers rumbled over the rubble of what was left of Japanese air bases at Roi and Namur after they had been subjected to the heavy aerial and naval bombardment which preceded invasion. A powerful Allied air and naval base was taking shape here at the northeast tip of the Atoll.

Capture of Gugegwe, Bigej and Ebler Islands gave the Americans control of two more channels in the huge lagoon, which already is the anchorage for units of the United States fleet.

The Americans now have overrun 21 of the 32 principal islands of the Atoll, and in addition have overrun numerous other inlets which are unnamed.

Tokyo radio was not in agreement with Admiral Nimitz' announcement that the conquest of Kwajalein Atoll was practically complete. An enemy broadcast heard by NBC in New York said intense fighting was "still in progress on Kwajalein Island." The Japanese also said, without confirmation, that two American destroyers had been sunk and another destroyer and a cruiser set afire.

SHOWDOWN WITH SPAIN PREDICTED WITHIN 2 WEEKS

British Press Calls for 'Strong Action' to Ensure Neutrality

CRISIS IS NEAR

London, Feb. 7. (CP)—A showdown with Spain within two weeks was predicted by some diplomats in London today as the British Press called for "strong action" to ensure that General Franco abides by the principles of neutrality.

The next move is up to Franco, the diplomats said.

Madrid dispatches said the Spanish Flange press referred to the stiffening Anglo-American attitude as "threats" against Spain's "neutrality".

Falangist editorials in Spain admitted a crisis had been reached, but did not explain the reasons for it to the people.

The London Observer said "it is being widely suggested that the right thing to do would be to demand from Franco not a diplomatic realignment, but release of his prisoners and free elections with the promise to abide by their results. The right sanction in case of refusal would appear to be full moral, political and military support for a Spanish movement of national liberation on the French and Yugoslav model".

McLean Answers C.C.F. Leader

Toronto, Feb. 7. (CP)—J. S. McLean, president of Canada Packers, Ltd., said in a statement last night C.C.F. Leader M. J. Coldwell was guilty of "fantastic misrepresentation" in statements on the company made in an address here Friday.

(Mr. Coldwell told the Workers' Educational Association of Canada the company paid dividends of $3 a share annually from 1935 to 1939, a rate of more than 41 per cent; $4 during 1939 and 1940 and $3.50 in 1941.)

In reply, McLean said dividends paid on common stock were the equivalent of less than five per cent of the stockholders' equity from 1935 to 1939.

In the past 11 years the highest net profit made by Canada Packers was equivalent to 2.6 per cent on its sales, said McLean, and the lowest net profit was .95 per cent. For eight years, until April 1, 1935, no dividends were paid on common stock.

SENIOR OFFICERS PROMOTED

Brig. R. M. Luton, C.B.E., M.C., 52, of Halifax, director of Medical Services, Canadian Army overseas, to be Acting Major-General, effective February 7.

Partisans Cut Railway Lines

London, Feb. 7—(CP)— Yugoslav Partisans have cut two strategic railway lines running east and west of the Bosnian capital of Sarajevo, Marshal Josip Broz (Tito) announced today, as the Germans rushed more reinforcements into Eastern Bosnia.

The Sarajevo-Visegrad line, which serves southeastern Bosnia and which recently had been repaired by the Germans, again was destroyed at several points, Tito's bulletin said, while the line running west to mostar from Sarajevo was severed at the town of Garcin and an enemy troop train destroyed.

TERRITORY PROCLAIMED

New York, Feb. 7. (AP)—The Soviet-sponsored union of Polish patriots declared in a broadcast over the Moscow radio Saturday night that Post-War Poland must include German East Prussia, Silesia and Western Pomerania because "without them the peace will not be won".

ANZIO BEACHHEAD FIRMLY HELD BY AMERICAN TROOPS

Original Positions Are Restored After Strong New German Attack

CASSINO BATTLE RAGES

(By EDWARD KENNEDY)
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Algiers, Feb. 7 (AP) — American troops in the Anzio beachhead have repulsed a strong new German attack which broke through the Allied perimeter, three miles west of the vital road and rail hub of Cisterna, and have restored their original positions, it was announced today.

Cisterna is astride the Appian Way and an electrified railway 26 miles southeast of Rome, and about ten miles east of Carroceto (Aprilia), where previous German counter-blows were turned aside.

The Germans began the new assault Saturday night with infantry, tanks and artillery. Fighting raged through the night and into yesterday, before the Nazis were pushed back to the starting point with losses.

The Nazis, reinforced along the beachhead perimter to at least four divisions and an S.S. brigade by the arrival of the 715th. Infantry Division from Southern France, made lesser attacks along the line. Some German elements were spotted forming for another attack against the British north of Carroceto, but the formation was broken up by accurate artillery fire and the British captured 300 of the enemy.

House-to-House Fighting

Grim house-to-house fighting continued in Cassino on the main 5th. Army front, but the Americans battled up Mount Cassino just west of the town, already nearly encircled and reached a point within a few hundred yards of the famous Benedictine Monastery at the crest.

Troops of the British 8th. Army along the Adriatic drove into the villages of Pizzoferrato, 2½ miles northwest of Sant Angelo, and Montenerodomo, four miles south of Torricella.

These gains were scored by British troops operating on the left flank of the 8th. Army, deep in the mountains of Italy, 15 to 20 miles south of Orsogna. There was no report of action other than patrolling on the 8th. Army's right flank where a Canadian corps is in the line along the Adriatic.

As fleets of fighters maintained patrols over the Anzio beachhead, medium bombers struck at railyards and a bridge at Orte, north of Rome, and at Frascati, near the capital, while light bombers also lashed at communications north and south of Rome. Medium bombers blasted shipping in Pimobino harbor.

Thirteen Allied planes failed to return and ten Nazi aircraft were destroyed, headquarters said.

ONE-THIRD IN QUEBEC

Montreal, Feb. 7 (CP) — Lionel Chevrier, Liberal member of Parliament for Stormont and parliamentary assistant to Munitions Minister Howe, said here yesterday that "about one-third of Canadian war workers are located in Quebec where hundreds of war industries have been opened since the war started."

U.S. Troops Climb Steep Heights Within 500 Yards of Famous Abbey

Allied Headquarters in Italy, Feb. 7 (AP) — United States troops clinging to precipitous heights to the north of Cassino under intense artillery and mortar fire have climbed within 500 yards of the famous Abbey of Mt. Cassino.

Founded by St. Benedict in 529, the monastery was the cradle of the Benedictine Order, and had a collection of some 12,000 old manuscripts and records. The Germans recently said their troops had taken these books away.

(By LYNN HEINZERLING)
(A.P. War Correspondent)

With the 5th. Army at Cassino, Feb. 7 (AP). — A lone church bell tolled out the hours in Cassino while this old town writhed in battle. Nestled up in a junction of mountain peaks just south of the centuries-old Abbey of Monte Cassino, a Roman Catholic shrine. Cassino was going through the final hours so many other towns and cities have experienced in this war.

Tough American tankmen who fought in the city were struck by the weird tolling of bells amid explosions and gun flashes, some of them in the neighborhood of the old church of Santa Maria with its eight towers, built by the Abbot Theodinard centuries ago.

Six weeks ago, I saw the city of Ortona on the Adriatic coast tramped to death in an almost identical struggle between Canadians and Germans. Like Ortona, whose death agonies lasted nine days, Cassino will be only a pile of black and gray rubble when the last German there retreats or dies.

Cassino, a larger town with more material for the German talent for destruction, now is in the fifth day of its final trial. Already much of the city is a common grave with blackened walls as markers.

175,000 of Enemy Face Annihilation In Southern Russia

Loss of Nikopol, Manganese Centre, Would Be Crippling Blow to Germans

NEAR PRE-WAR BORDER

Moscow, Feb. 7. (AP)—The Russian army is less than 45 miles at some points from the lines where Adolf Hitler launched his invasion of the Soviet Union in 1941 and all along the 1,200-mile-long Eastern Front the German army is suffering some of the war's worst defeats, field dispatches said to-day.

Gaining the upper hand along the lower reaches of the Dnieper River with advances up to 40 miles through a 1000-mile gap, General Rodion Y. Maolinovsky's 3rd Ukrainian Army ruthlessly went about the job of destroying five trapped German divisions (normally 75,000 men) in the Nikopol sector. Meanwhile, 150 miles to the north, more Nazi corpses littered the thawing Ukrainian earth as the armies of Generals Nikolai F. Vatutin and Ivan S. Konev drew ever tigher a ring of death around the remnants of ten divisions near Cherkasy.

Nikopol Mining Centre.

Loss of Nikopol, which is said to have been furnishing German industries the major amount of Manganese used in the Reich's production of war equipment, probably would be the hardest industrial blow to be suffered by the Germans during the entire Russian offensive.

A year after the Stalingrad disaster, which cost the Germans 330,000 men of the 6th Army killed or captured, the Russians in the Dnieper area had achieved within a week a potential bag of 175,000 German troops in a carefully-coordinated series of blows foreshadowing the liberation of all Southern Russia.

In a four-day period, Moscow said, tank-supported Soviet infantrymen, aided by low-flying planes, rolled over the bodies of 12,000 Germans, captured 2,000 more and routed seven German divisions which abandoned thousands of trucks, guns, tanks and other equipment.

Unlikely Many Escape.

Seizure of Apostolovo, 34 miles west of Nikopol, cut the German rail escape route and late Moscow dispatches said it was unlikely that the Germans could escape in any large numbers.

In the north the Russians sped on in Estonia, hurling the Germans across the Narova river and south of Narva, eight miles inside Estonia.

In pre-war Poland, 430 miles west of the new Dnieper Bend triumph, other Red armies rolled across the plains to take Mizoch, only 55 miles from the vital Odessa-Warsaw railway lifeline of all Germany's shattered Dnieper Bend forces.

A Pravda dispatch said the point where Malinovsky cut off the five enemy divisions was on the Dnieper river near the mouth of the Buzuluk river, which flows into the Dnieper three miles from Nikopol.

The Nazis appeared to have lost Krivoi Rog along with Nikopol.

Hitler placed such value on the two mining cities that, said Pravda, orders were ready to every company in each battalion to hold, and officers gave oaths to fight to the last on their sectors.

The Germans' long-held springboard immediately across the Dnieper from Nikopol was an area roughly 25 miles long and 15 miles deep.

Roads Almost Unuseable.

Many days of continuous rain have melted the Ukraine's snows, and roads are almost unuseable. Every stream, creek and river is in flood, and airfields are soft with clinging mud.

A Pravda report from the encirclement ring in the Cherkasy Kanev area said the Germans were trying to break out north of the Zvenigorodka area on a good gravel road leading westward. But the Russian ring is holding "firm, strong, and dense."

Guerillas were reported to have risen within the 'death ring," seizing forests and ravines and every night making life hell for the trapped Nazis. Pravda decared the ring "is blockaded from the air now," although some German planes were getting out with officers while others were dropping food and ammunition.

Italian Senator, General Arrested By Puppet Gov't

Berne, Feb. 7 —(AP)— A Swiss-Italian frontier dispatch to the Swiss newspaper Der Bund reported today the arrest of Senator Giovanni Agnelli, founder of the Fiat Automobile Works and owner of Turin's newspaper, Stampa.

Others reported arrested by the puppet Italian government included Gen. Ambrogio Clerici, former aide-de-camp of King Victor Emmanuel, and a former boxing champion named Fiermonte.

There was no specific indication why the Mussolini government had arrested these persons, but the dispatch, from Chaisso, also spoke of Partisan activity in the northern Italian province of Como. A number of hostages were shot in reprisal for the shooting of Cebare Giardini, a Fascist leader there, the dispatch added.

Fiermonte was not further identified. The boxer Enzo Fiermonte, divorced husband of the late Madeline Force Astor Dick Fiermonte, was last reported in Italy in 1941.

$22,500 Fire In Finnish Hall

Sudbury, Feb. 7 (CP) — Damage estimated at $22,500 was caused here early today by fire which gutter the Finnish Hall, recently returned to the Finnish Association of Canada by the custodian of alien property. The building was seized in 1940.

Equipment owned by the Sudbury Boy Scouts and Sea Cadets, whose headquarters were in the hall, was lost in the blaze. Signal lamps, band equipment and records valued at about $1,000 were included in articles lost by the Sea Cadets.

The fire was thought to have originated in the basement near the furnace and the building was a mass of flames when firemen arrived.

ALLEGED MURDERERS CAPTURED

Buffalo, N. Y., Feb. 7—(AP)—Two alleged murderers who escaped with six other prisoners from Erie County Jail Friday night, surrendered meekly to policemen early today.

Joseph V. Augello, 22, of Buffalo, and Bernard Berman, 20, of New York City, were captured as they boarded an Eastbound freight train in the Gardenville railroad yards east of here.

Of the eight who escaped, one man is still at large.

J. A. Jackson, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Earl Jackson, 28 Purdy Street, was among the class of Canadian soldiers to graduate from the Canadian Parachute Training Centre, Camp Shilo, Manitoba, last Thursday. Paratrooper Jackson was born in Belleville and attended local school prior to his enlistment in the Canadian Army.

Wings were presented the Camp Shilo graduates by Squadron Leader J. C. Kilkenny, chief instructor of an English parachute training school, who inspected the class.

BELLEVILLE DEP'T. FIGHTS GRASS FIRE

Belleville Fire Department maintained their record of fighting a grass fire at least every month since last spring when they were called to the Bull Street district on Sunday where on the Bert Docter property three or four acres of long dried grass and weeds burned over. Firemen watched the blaze to make sure it did not spread to nearby building.

The only other call over the weekend was a stove pipe alarm on the east hill, with no damage of any nature being reported.

RESIDENTS WARNED TO BE CAUTIOUS

The public is asked to beware of hidden danger lying unseen beneath the covering of newly fallen snow. The exceptionally mild weekend caused snow and ice to melt on the sidewalks throughout the city which froze to a glassy surface before the fall of snow last night. Walking on the loose snow under which there is an icy sheet might easily result in a serious injury if pedestrians are not cautious. Householders are urged to clear away the snow from in front of their property at the earliest moment and help to remove this hazzard and risk of accident. It is impossible to sand the streets as they are and the warning to be careful is issued for the protection of everyone.

INTOXICATED MAN COLLAPSES ON STREET

When Wilbert J. Lee, Deseronto, collapsed upon the Front Street sidewalk Saturday afternoon he was carried into nearby Pappas' billiard room while an ambulance and doctor were summonsed.

The doctor and the ambulance arrived about the same time and the man, who was still in a semi-conscious condition, was hastened to the Belleville General Hospital, where it was discovered the only trouble with Lee was a case of too much "wobble water." As soon as it was discovered the man's condition came about as the result of intoxication he was loaded into the ambulance and driven to the police station where he was placed in the cell block to "sober up." A charge of intoxication, as well as an ambulance and doctor's expense account confront Lee before he can hope to be liberated.

GARBAGE PAIL THROWN THROUGH WINDOW

Why would some person hurl a garbage can through your front window for no particular reason whatsoever?

Well, that is the question that is confronting Charles Fitzgibbons, 99½ Pinnacle St. Sometime after midnight Saturday when Mr. Fitzgibbon returned home he was surprised to find a garbage pail in the front living room. Subsequent investigations revealed the garbage container had been hurled through Mr. Fitzgibbon's front window. Later police were notified but they could find no clues that might lead to the solution of the problem.

Large Shipment 'Smokes' Disappears From Transport Truck

Complete mystery surrounds the disappearance of $4,000 worth of cigarettes that seemingly vanquished into the thin air enroute from Cornwall to Toronto late last week. Provincial Police here were informed of the disappearance of the cigarettes over the weekend. The cartons of smokes were in transit from Cornwall to Toronto being transported in a large Smith Transportation truck. Known to have been aboard the transport at Cornwall the consignment had completely vanquished when the transport arrived at the Toronto transportation terminal early Saturday morning. Provincial Police are investigating the matter.

CANADIAN MINESWEEPER DECLARED A LOSS

Loss of H.M.C.S. Chedabucto, Bangor class minesweeper, was announced today by Hon. Angus L. Macdonald, Minister of National Defence for Naval Services. Seriously damaged in a collision in the St. Lawrence, the ship was taken in tow and beached but is considered a complete loss. Chedabucto, 750 tons and 200 feet long, was built in Vancouver in 1941. She is the 14th Canadian warship lost in this war.

Two City and Picton Boys Were Crew Members on Lost Minesweeper

Garnet Hicks and Harold Wright Among Those Rescued

CAUSED BY COLLISION

Two Bay of Quinte district boys, S.B.A. Garnet Hicks, son of Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Hicks, 83 Moira Street, East, and Harold Wright, son of Mr. Fred Wright of Picton, were crew members aboard the Canadian minesweeper Chedabucto when she was sunk in the St. Lawrence river through collision, it has been learned. Announcement of the sinking, with the loss of one of the ship's crew members, was made by the Navy Department today.

The Belleville boy, a sick bay attendant, with other crew members, made a valiant attempt to rescue the body of Sub.-Lt. D. W. Tuke of Haileybury, following the collision. The ship's officer was in his cabin at the time of the collision, the other ship's bow ripping into the room he occupied and is believed to have been killed almost instantly. Rapid rise of water in the ship's hold did not permit time to force entrance through the jammed cabin door.

Listing of the ship with rapid rise of water in her hold resulted in the loss of S.B.A. Hicks' belongings, it was stated. He enlisted in the Navy in August, 1942, and is now a crew member of a Canadian corvette. He has a brother in R.C.A.F. ground crew services at Camp Borden, and a wife and two children.

One Man Lost.

Ottawa, Feb. 7 —(CP)— Loss of the minesweeper Chedabucto, the ship which saved Halifax from a possibly disastrous explosion some months ago, was announced today by Navy Minister Macdonald.

Chedabucto was beached after a St. Lawrence collision, and is considered a total loss, the Minister said. One man was killed—Engineer Sub.-Lt. Donald William Tuke of Haileybury—but the rest of the crew of about 70 escaped unhurt.

A Bangor-class minesweeper, Chedabucto was the 14th Canadian naval craft loss in this war. She was 200 feet long, with a displacement of 750 tons.

The collision occurred at night, the navy said, without giving the date. The other ship—not named in the statement—suffered only slight damage when she hit Chedabucto on the port side.

Sub.-Lt. Tuke's cabin was at the point of the collision, accounting for his death.

Lieut. J. H. B. Davies of New York, Chedabucto's commander, signalled for assistance when his ship began to list. Her decks canting at more than 30 degrees, she was taken in tow by a United States Coast Guard cutter. It was intended to take her to a beach where salvage operations could be carried out, but when she was listed at more than 40 degrees it was decided to go to land at the nearest point.

A sister sweeper, H.M.C.S. Swift Current, sent a whaler ashore with a kedge anchor to drag Chedabucto the last lap to shore, and then took off the crew.

Chedabucto was built in Vancouver by Burrard Dry Dock Co. Lt., and commissioned in 1941.

Prevented Harbor Explosion.

Some months ago, just after she returned to Halifax from a patrol in which she engaged a submarine with what the navy terms "promising results," Chedabucto was ordered to sink a blazing ammunition ship in the harbor.

With every man at action stations her four-inch forward gun was trained on the burning ship. The engine room was picked as the target and Chedabucto closed into point-blank range. She could not afford even one miss. The ammunition ship was quickly sunk, averting the danger of a serious explosion. Then Chedabucto went out on patrol again.

Chedabucto carried out several attacks on submarines during her career. On one occasion she sent away a sea-boat during a gale in an attempt to save life from a tanker wrecked on the shoals of Sable Island. So great was the sea her boat could not come alongside the tanker and Chedabucto's boat crew was eventually picked up by a British destroyer which also saved the tanker's men when the sea moderated.

Other Canadian naval ships lost since the war began are the destroyers Fraser, Margee, Ottawa and St. Croix; the corvettes Levis, Windflower, Spikenard, Charlottetown, Louisburg and Weyburn; the minesweeper Bras d'Or; and the patrol ships Otter and Raccoon.

POLICE BLOTTER

Complaint Investigated.

After complaints had been received from the management of the Belleville Dried Foods, Pinnacle St., to that certain equipment had been damaged Frank Duby, of this city, is being held for investigation, police stated today. Company management allege that a bolt was tossed into the machine, that is used to cut vegetables, with the result the machine knives were damaged beyond repair. Duby, an employee, claims no knowledge of the damaged machine. He is being held in custody, however.

Fender Damage.

Fender damage resulted to two motor cars on Front Street Saturday afternoon when, one vehicle being backed out from the street curb by E. K. Simpson, 175 Charles Street, collided with a motor car driven by R. M. Robinson, R. R. No. 4, Belleville.

Cars Lock Bumper.

Prior to this crash cars driven by Douglas Wellbanks, 190 James St., and Maurice Fitzgerald, R.R. No. 3 Madoc, locked bumpers near the intersection of Bridge and Front Streets, but no particular damage resulted. However, Wellbanks was detained at the police station after police had investigated the crash.

Nearly 9,000 in the City Using Library Says Report

W. G. Anderson Elected President at Recent Annual Meeting

FINANCES SOUND

The annual report of the Corby Public Library, submitted by Miss Olive Delaney, Librarian, to the Library Board, at their recent meeting contains information of definite interest to the ratepayers of the city, in that it is revealed that the library is being used to good advantage by almost 9,000 persons. The Public Library Board will be headed by Mr. W. G. Anderson, who succeeds Dr. J. W. Kinnear as chairman. Other members of the Board are: His Worship Mayor Rollins, Ex. Officio; H. J. Clarke, B.A., Treasurer Olive Delaney, Secretary; C. L. Walters, Chairman of Finance; J. E. Bateman, Chairman of Property; the Book Committee is composed of Miss S. Masson, Chairman, Mr. A. J. Black and Mr. L. A. Kells; and members of the Board are Mr. Joseph Imlah and Miss B. Rierdon.

During the year there were 961 new members added to the library's register of borrowers, making the total membership for the city 8,988 which means that more than half the population of the city is registered.

Circulation figures for the year were 102,662, showing a slight decrease compared to the total for 1942. The library was closed during the first ten days of March for redecorating, and March is usually one of the busiest months with an average circulation of 290 books per day.

Thirst For Knowledge.

The disturbing times we live in have created a thirst for knowledge. People demand more and more books dealing with the social, economic and spiritual problems of the day. The library has tried to meet this demand by diligently studying reviews and criticisms of books and so provide, as far as our limited budget permits, the best books available on these topics for the Belleville reading public. Miss Delaney reports that there were three meetings held during the year of the Book Committee, and that orders were carefully checked and many helpful suggestions for suitable books were put forth by the committee. Requests from borrowers are kept and books are bought if it is felt there will be sufficient demand to justify the expense involved.

To acquaint the readers with books in the library, lists were prepared and distributed, displays with attractive posters were arranged, and some of the newer books were reviewed in "The Library Corner," a space made available by The Ontario Intelligencer to keep the services of the library before the public. Books for displays were loaned the Home and School Club in an effort to show the parents the variety and scope of boys' and girls' books today.

Reference Library Up-To-Date.

The reference library has been kept up-to-date by the addition of maps, pamphlets and newspaper clippings. This has proven a valuable source of material for study groups and individuals. For books on specialized subjects, the vast resources of Queen's and Toronto University libraries are available to Belleville through inter-library loan, and the borrower has only to pay the postage involved. One book was borrowed from the library of Congress, Washington, D.C., through inter-library loan.

Discarded books and magazines are donated to the Air Stations, the Navy League, and the Guelph Reformatory. Miss Delaney extended the thanks of the staff to the many friends who donated books and flowers during the year, and to the Horticultural Society for the plants they donated for the library window boxes.

Improvements have been made to the interior of the library building, and a number of suggestions were put forth by Miss Delaney, one was that the chairs in the reading room on the main floor be replaced, another that the fixtures of the room in the basement be removed and the room be painted and used as a stack room. This suggestion was made to relieve the pressure of overstacked shelves on the main floor and the inadviseability of removing them to the upper floor.

Shortage of Staff.

A shortage of staff has been a considerable problem during the year and the appreciation of the librarian is extended to Miss Moore and Miss Wright for their splendid co-operation. Miss Shirley Jackson was appointed Assistant Librarian during the year and, with her added presence the library is looking forward to a smoother running year in 1944.

The thanks and appreciation of the staff, Librarian and the Board were given to Mr. and Mrs. Kent for their generous help throughout the year, Mr. Kent for his care of the building and the many carpentry jobs he has undertaken for improving the library, and to Mrs. Kent who so kindly made the special paste used in the library.

The report of the Boys' and Girls' Library, submitted by Miss Irene Moore, stated that there are great possibilities of service lying ahead in the varied activities of the library.

During the year, 39 new members were added to the roll, and 355 new books added to the shelves. The circulation for the year has been 22,401. In the early part of the year, Mr. Kirk's class from Albert College visited the library to see a display of books arranged by Miss Delaney. The students appreciated this opportunity to see the books. They have been taking out about 12 books each week for their reading.

Children's Department Heavy.

October and November were the busiest months for this department of the library. Children's Book Week was held November 12 to 20th, the purpose of which was to interest teachers, parents and the children in good books and assist parents in making gift selections. In December, the Boys' and Girls' Room was decorated for Christmas, and stories were given each Saturday morning. More interest is being shown each week in this story hour. It is held each Saturday morning from 10.00 to 10.30, and all boys and girls of the city are made welcome.

Books on philosophy, religion, social sciences, pure science, useful arts, fine arts, literature, history, travel, biography, and fiction were issued for home use in 1943. Travel books lead the list with a total circulation of 2,379 books borrowed, with books on history coming a close second with 2,263. 61,606 fiction books led the list with a total cir-library in the year, bringing the adult book circulation to a grand total of 75,456 books of all natures. Fairy stories headed the list in the children's department and literature, plays and poetry, was second, with 15,067 fiction books making the total 22,401. There were 17,405 books in the library on December 31st., 1943.

POINT TRAVERSE

Sixty Hunters In Wolf Hunt

Point Traverse, Feb. 7—In appreciation of his lengthy service with the Black River Cheese Company, Mr. Ernest Henderson, and Mrs. Henderson and family were tendered a farewell party by a host of neighbors, friends and associates at Black Creek, Friday evening.

Mr. Henderson, who has been associated with the Black River Cheese Company for some five years, is one of Prince Edward County's top ranking cheese makers, and his entries at the annual dairy show at Belleville have carried off high scoring marks.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Grimmon opened their home for the occasion, and a large gathering of neighbors presented Mr. and Mrs. Henderson with a suitable gift, before bidding them a farewell.

Mr. and Mrs. Henderson and three children will reside in Picton.

Attend Hunt

Some sixty hunters who participated in the wolf hunt organized by Athol and South Marysburgh townships, returned to their respective homes late Friday afternoon, minus their quarry. A blanket of snow over the district made conditions favorable, but a lack of the proper number of hunting dogs to chase the wolves from the woodlands, were said to be repsonsible for the failure of the hunt. Some hunters reported being in close rangs of a fox, while other hunters stated seeing two wolves in Athol township, which eluded the posse.

Mr. Alton Wineman and Mr. Nelson Moore, Point Petre hunters, shot a large brush wolf in that vicinity on Wednesday last. Mr. Wineman shot the first wolf taken in South Marysbough township this winter.

Two unlicenced dogs, which are believed to be responsible for some o fthe sheep killings in the area, were killed by a Royal Street farmer, when they attacked some lambs in his farmyard.

Japanese Take Town But Are Repulsed Attempting Advance

New Delhi, Feb. 7 —(CP)— Japanese troops striking back on the Arkan front in southwestern Burma captured the town of Taung Bazaar Feb. 4, an Allied communique reported today.

Enemy attempts to advance southwest of Taung Bazaar the next day, however, were repulsed by the Allies who inflicted heavy casualties on the Japanese and threw them back into the town.

American-trained Chinese troops held the initiative in northern Burma and routed several Japanese patrols east and west of Taipha Ga. Other Chinese forces operating west of Taro in the Hukawng valley defeated infiltrating Japanese units.

In the air, R.A.F. fighter-bombers ranged over the Chin Hills, blasting a Japanese camp and supply dump at Sitsawk, 30 miles east of Imphal, and an enemy headquarters unit at Palam, south of Tiddim. Other fighters patrolled waterways on the Mayu peninsula and destroyed 11 small enemy river boats.

CHEMISTRY is the taking of a relatively small group of basic substances, and, by the apparent magic of Chemistry, so changing them that they take on new forms and new properties that render them of great value to man in his many activities.

A few examples: Cellulose Chemistry brings us such products as "Cellophane", as plastics, as "Fabrikoid", and as certain highly valuable lacquers. From abundantly available coal tar derivatives, air and water, comes nylon yarn from which, after the war, nylon hosiery will once again be made.

Sulphuric acid, made in Canada to supply an essential ingredient of manufacture for many widely distributed industries, works for the farmer also, because, when chemically combined with phosphate rock, the result is the super-phosphate so essential to mixed fertilizers. Again, there are the salt wells at Windsor, Ontario, from which, in addition to your table salt, Chemistry produces chlorine and caustic soda, both indispensable in many different industries.

Throughout the war Chemistry has served Canada well—just as in the years before the war. When peace comes, Chemistry will take its place among the factors helping to build a great nation. Present-day services to humanity of the products of Industrial Chemistry are but an indication of future services in providing new products, new materials, new processes, to meet the demands of a restless, progressive post-war world.

Paper Salvage

"There is no such thing as waste paper," Donald Nelson, chairman of the War Production Board of the United States, said at a meeting in New York last week of the salvage committee of the American Newspaper Publishers Association. "Instead, paper is a raw material for many things."

That is a fact that should be remembered everytime one is removing or disposing of paper wrappings, newspapers, cardboard boxes, corrugated board, in fact every kind of paper. On these sources of paper for salvage for the war effort a great demand depends.

The magnitude of the need for collection of salvage paper in Canada and the United States cannot be stressed too much. In the latter country there are 700,000 items for the armed forces that require paper packaging. This stupendous total of articles or items should not fail to impress on everyone the critical need of the time.

Paper is one of the most common things in human experience. Donald Nelson said "that one reason for failure to realize its importance and to reach the total requirement may be that paper is such a common commodity in everyday life. We live on paper. It is almost as important to us as air and water. Our job is to try to teach people that paper is not to be wasted after it comes into the home."

Admiral Brinser of the U. S. said at this meeting that "it is no exaggeration that saving waste paper may be as deciding a fact in this war as mobilizing of the fleet of pleasure craft" at Dunkirk.

The appeal is to business men and to the average citizens, the former because they are in a position to collect salvage on a fairly large scale and to the latter because if everyone helps the collection will reach very large proportions. Recent collections in Belleville have been good, that of three weeks ago reaching 7,100 pounds and that of two weeks ago no less than 6,900 pounds of salvage.

The Province of Ontario seeks alone to collect 16,000 tons of salvage paper up to the month of July.

It is a work for everyone to assist in, an easy job, a job that inculcates carefulness and thoughtfulness. Too much attention cannot be given this branch of the war effort.

Malta's Future

The suggestion that Malta, "the unsinkable aircraft carrier, great in peace and impregnable in war," as she described it, should become the greatest of Britain's air-sea bases of the future, was made by Miss Mabel Strickland, editor of The Times of Malta, in a paper she gave before the Dominions and Colonies section of the Royal Society of Arts recently.

Malta, she said, is within three and a half hours' flying time from Britain by Mosquito airplane, and could be made the first air station on the way to the Far East, with feeder lines going to Gabraltar, Rome, Cairo, Greece, Tunis and the Cape. It is within easy seaborne distance for the carriage of Russian and Anglo-Persian oil, and could offer magnificent oil fuel storage in its underground rock tunnels, thirteen miles of which were cut during the war.

Malta of the future is sure to be a great tourist centre. She must take steps to safeguard her honorable scars, rebuild the city of Valetta as like as possible to that of the knights which Byron described as "a city built by gentlemen for gentlemen," while outside its precincts on the great southwestern bay of Marsa Sorico, Miss Strickland would like to see a modern city arise, centre of the air junction of the Mediterranean.

Enslavement by Nazis

Germany has "explained" the taking of 140,000 persons out of the Black Sea section into the German Reich into a district to be known as Wartheland by saying they were descendants of German peasants who had been "called" two hundred years ago to Russia by Catherine the Great of Russia.

Russia has claimed that these people were impressed as men of old used to be impressed and spirited away to Germany to work for the German war machine. The Russian claim everyone believes is the truth.

The trek of these folk over a thousand miles could not be looked upon as anything but German enslavement.

The Germans in this war have committed many inhumanities, the dislocation of populations among them. In the time of Mussolini's glory, Hitler and Mussolini saw many residents of Italian descent, then living in Tyrol, transported to eastern Germany. Germany had a scheme for moving people at the will of the Nazi government from one part of overrun Europe to a distant part of Germany.

The enforcement of labor in the overrun countries to work in German plants has been ruthlessly carried on, according to reports. Germany's bitterest pill is now being forced to yield these overrun lands, which will come with the Allied victory. Germany's plan would have meant the systematic destruction of the various races which have fallen under her sway. Allied victories are foiling that plan and the unconditional surrender of the Germans which must come before the war with Germany will end will see that Germany is made to restore those citizens she has transported to work as slaves to bolster up Hitler's war machine.

It was a great crime for the Germans to invade Russia and this fresh deed adds further crime in uprooting 140,000 persons from the Russian Black Sea territory. It is an inhuman act for which the followers of Nazism and Adolf Hitler will have to pay in deadly earnest.

Classic Ground

If history sometimes seems like a dream, what part of it is more dream-like than the march on Rome of the armies of a nation that wasn't discovered until Rome was more than 22 centuries old? asks The New York Times. Every day the map of the route looks like an extract from the classical atlas. Minturno is the old Latin town in whose marshes Marius was taken prisoner. He was to be put to death. A barbarian soldier was to be his executioner, but fled before the fire in the general's eyes. Velletri is the ancient Volscian settlement where Augustus was born. In "Lays of Ancient Rome" "the footmen of Velitrae threw shield and spear away" at the Battle of Lake Regillus.

At Terracina, Anxur that was, are the remains of a temple of Venus, and the cathedral rests on antique columns with recumbent animals at their bases. Anzio is Horace's "lovely Antium," the city of Fortune, once a colony of pirates, a favorite residence of Roman swells and emperors, the birthplace of Nero, in whose palace the Apollo Belvedere was found. In the Middle Ages, Cisterna di Roma was called Cisterna Neronis. It is supposed to be the site of Tres Tabernae, where St. Paul met his friends from Rome.

These Italian journeys in the easy chair would be equally fruitful if they followed medieval history and Dante's footsteps instead of Virgil's. For instance, Anagni, where Cicero had a villa, was the birthplace of one of the greatest of Popes, Boniface VIII.

Wounds

When a tissue is injured it bleeds. Eventually the blood clots. Fibres of a material called collagen are then formed in the blood clot, probably by the action of carious cells. If an injured man or a guinea pig does not take enough vitamin C, formation of these collagen fibres is delayed. Dr. A. H. Hunt shows in the British Journal of Surgery that immature collagen may form in animals deprived of vitamin C, and that when it fails to mature there will be only a partial healing, so that wounds may break open again when subjected to strain. The formation of the fibrous matrix of bone is also delayed if there is insufficient vitamin C in the diet.

Is Tuberculosis Disappearing

"The death rate from tuberculosis was cut in half during the first twenty years and then halved again by 1940; that is the 1940 death rate was less than one-fourth that at 1900, the beginning of the century".

I am quoting from an editorial in the Journal of the American Medical Association. However, there is one statement in the editorial that should make us do some thinking. The statement is that while the decrease in the death rate is general for all ages, the decrease in the death rate in the productive years 20 to 25 has been slower than at other ages. "The remarkable decrease in the death rate in tuberculosis which resulted in lowering tuberculosis from its position at top of list of diseases causing death to seventh place conceals the fact that this favorable situation does not hold for all age groups; from early adulthood to age 35 tuberculosis is still the 'first killer'."

"Many factors have contributed to the extraordinary achievements in the control of tuberculosis as reflected in the reduction of the death rate from around 200 per hundred thousand at the beginning of the century to less than 45 per hundred thousand at present. These factors are in the main the result of man's endeavor to control his environment".

Why has the death rate in young people from early adulthood to age 35 not been reduced more rapidly?

One of the reasons is the craze of teen age girls and young women to keep themselves slim and have a boyish figure. It is at this very age when girls are developing into women and boys into men that boys eat more than their parents, because they need food for the very rapid growth at this age. Girls, on the other hand, because Nature tries to give them "roundness" of figure with natural curves, try to prevent this by actually starving themselves. Just a few years ago when tuberculosis was being investigated, it was found that in every age group and for both sexes, the only age group in which the death rate was not being reduced was in teen age girls. This was partly because this group was trying to prevent gain in weight and partly because the emerging from girlhood into womanhood puts more strain on girls than on boys emerging into manhood.

Resolutions adopted included one calling for unity among all those "who believe in the principles enunciated by Mr. Raymond."

UNICAMERAL LEGISLATURES

The legislative committee of the constitutional convention of Missouri recently rejected a plan for a unicameral legislature in the state.

So far Nebraska has been the only state in the Union in modern times to try the experiment of a unicameral legislature.

This experiment apparently has not been sufficiently successful to induce other states to try it.

"Unicameral" is derived from two Latin words meaning "one chamber."

In the early days of American history several of the Colonies and States had unicameral legislatures; Delaware until 1776; Pennsylvania until 1790; Georgia until 1789; and Vermont until 1836.

Oddly enough, in Canada the tendency has been in the other direction.

Most of the older provinces of Canada have discarded the two-chamber legislative principle and the newer ones have not adopted it. At present all the provinces except Quebec and Nova Scotia have a single legislative chamber.

In Australia all the states have two-chamber legislatures except Queensland, which abolished its upper house or senate in 1922.

The two-chamber legislature prevails in Latin America. In all South and Central America only Costa Rica, El Salvador, Guatemala, Honduras and Panama have the unicameral system, and they are among the smaller countries in area and population.

There is a common impression that the bi-cameral principle of the U. S. Congress was copied directly after the British parliament.

That is not entirely correct.

The framers of the federal constitution no doubt were influenced to some extent by the fact that the British parliament was divided into a House of Lords and a House of Commons.

But most of the delegates at the constitutional convention of 1787 came from states that already had an established bi-cameral system and the Congress they created was suggested largely by these state legislatures.

The two-chamber state legislatures themselves were suggested only indirectly by the mother of parliaments.

The upper house or senate in the various colonies and states was not so much a copy of the House of Lords as might be supposed. It gradually evolved from the group of provincial advisers known as the governor's council.

Canadian Scene A Century Ago

By J. L. G.

Like the brave of our own time, the early settlers were always ready to lead the way in tasks requiring fortitude and courage. They have their recognition in the chronicles of colonial achievement.

Long before Canada's first settlers began the felling of trees and hewing of wood, the native Indians had found a novel use for tall timbers. They cut and carved polles to exhibit wooden totem figures, animals of things held sacred by trible or individual Indian. Weird as something out of a nightmare, these brightly painted symbols that were part-human, part-bird, part-animal in charteter gazed down upon a changing world. Today they still send shivers down the spines of West Canada sightseers .... The superstitution of the totem figures has its counterpart in ymbols of civilized countries. England has its rose, the U.S.A. its eagle, Scotland its thistle, Ireland its shamrock.

• •

The beaver, too, has done its share of tree-felling. The trees began to disappear...but so did the animals! Trappers everywhere feverishly hunted these valuable animals. The pelts were precious as gold, in fact, each beaver pelt ranked as a unit of trade....The beaver coat, warm and luxurious-looking, began to appear in the best circles. Gradually as more and more beavers were trapped, the fur became accessible to all with enough money for fripperies. A century ago, beaver coats cost approximately $50. in Upper Canada, as against the $400, or so one pays today. Beaver skins were popular also for hats both men's and women's.

500 Attend Dance Of Red Triangle Hostess Club

The second in a series of Saturday night dances was held in the Armouries by the Red Triangle Hostess Club of the Y.M.C.A. Despite the rainy weather, about five hundred turned out to make the evening a fine success. The dance was arranged under the color group system with Jean Henry in charge of the green, Shirley Johnston, orange, Winis Kiser, white and Cecelia Rolland, red, who saw to it that everyone became acquainted. A number of novelty dances was conducted, including a conga line led by LAC. Fielding, stationed at No. 5 I.T.S., from Jamaica, who proved himself right at home in that particular field. Jack Wilson, of the "Y" board of directors, tended to the juke box which gave out with both "hot and swing" numbers. Helping with the supervision of the dance was Mr. Albert Jones, not to forget the Air Cadets who looked after the checking and the C.W.S.F. who were in charge of the canteen.

The manner in which these affairs are being conducted and managed has been commented on as being "excellent" and it is to be hoped that their popularity with the airmen of the district ports continues with as much enthusiasm as it has begun.

DR. SEMPLE COMMENTS ON 'FOUR FREEDOMS'

On Sunday evening the Friendship Group of Bridge Street United Church opened with a short singsong led by the president, LAC. Allan Thompson. Four slides, drawn by the noted Norman Rockwell, illustrating the "Four Freedoms" were shown and commented upon by Dr. Semple. The first, "Freedom of Speech," showed the common man depicted by Abraham Lincoln, speaking to his fellow men. The second, "Freedom of Religion," showed a group of people representing all the nations of the world worshipping together. The third, "Freedom from Want," illustrated a family sitting down to a good old-fashioned turkey dinner. The fourth, "Freedom from Fear," was a scene in an English home. The father and mother were tucking their children in bed. The headlines of the paper in his hands were of the bombings of Berlin. Dr. Semple also stated that more freedoms could be named, the chief one being "Freedom from Self." After the recreational period a dainty lunch was served. The singing of "Abide With Me," closed the meeting. All young people, especially those in uniform are invited to attend these meetings at the close of the regular church service on Sunday evening.

Green Woolen Coat

By VERA WINSTON

COLOR IS very much in the late Winter sartorial scene, lending its cheer to tired wardrobes. This casual but so very useful coat is of lime green woolen buttoned all the way down the front with large brown buttons. It has a convertible neck, shown here with collar buttoned down. Wide brown leather belt slips through self loops. The sleeves with buttoned straps at wrists have flared cuffs and reveal a brown lining.

BREAD AND THE FIGURE

It is all a woman's life is worth to push her way into a bakery, stand in line at a counter, get her purchases and fight her way out again. But it has to be done. Kids demanding pastries, needing them to chug up energy. With rationing of fats, what chance has the dear lady to turn out nice, crumbling pie crust and frosted cakes?

She buys white bread, always thinking that as she is a bit overweight she should eat rye instead. She doesn't like rye. Her conscience hurts her. A dietitian once told her that every slice of white bread she ate helped to put panniers of fat on her hips. She has read time and again that she shouldn't touch it. And the bakers of this country have read those items, too and—some time ago—got pretty mad about it. An association of bakers in Chicago issued a pamphlet in the defence of white bread; it was properly endorsed by the committee of foods of the American Medical Association. Nobody wants any higher authority than that. What the doctor says goes.

Many times, associations of wheat growers have taken a slam at preachers of pulchritude who have included white bread among forbidden foods for plumpies who yearn for the slender shapes. But that was in the interest of their business.

White bread, it is claimed, is an energy carbohydrate food. A chemical analysis will show that it contains only about two per cent of fat, the champion of all builders of adipose tissue. It contains protein factors and other elements that are good for the human system.

Here is the argument; energy foods as well as other foods are capable of producing fat in a normal person if more is eaten or ingested than is converted into energy. White bread is no more fattening than any other similar energy food, provided equivalent quantities in energy value are eaten or ingested.

The bakers say that white bread, essentially an energy food may well be included in all diets, including reducing diets, to maintain proper carbohydrate balance.

The bakers have nothing to say about starch content, the bogey that scares the heavyweight when she starts on a campaign of slenderizing. Some starch she must have, so if she is free with the intake of bread, she should cut down on cereals, macaroni, spaghetti, potatoes. She also needs a small allotment of fats and sweets.

The woman of excess weight usually has an appetite that demands more of these food elements than she needs for the day's activities. She puts up an alibi, says she eats practically nothing, but the fact remains that fat is caused by overeating. That has been definitely determined by the medical profession.

The Marry-Go-Round

WHEN THEY MARRY "JUST BECAUSE",

You never can be sure when you see a pair of starry-eyed lovers standing at the altar just what they see in each other — particulary what SHE sees in him!

In these war-times most girls are so filled with patriotic zeal and excitement and dazzled by uniforms and brass buttons that a girl is not sure, herself, what she sees in the man she is marrying.

It may be that she sees a glittering hero—a knight in shining armor; or it may be only that she sees a chance to stage a glamorous military wedding or a romantic elopement with a dashing-looking boy in uniform.

It may be that she sees her Dream Man—and it may be merely that she sees someone for whom to make a "home," someone to mother, to coddle, to nurse and to call possessively "MY Husband."

It may be that she sees a devastating "man about town", the Perfect Escort and ideal dinner companion; or it may be that she sees just a man-about-the-house, to punctuate the day and make the dinner worth getting. Or the future father of her future children —someone to name her first boy after.

It may be that she sees in him a combination of all the manly virtues and accomplishments, someone to admire and be proud of—or it may be that she sees in him an "escape", — someone to "take her out of it all." A release from parental restriction or from the office desk or the daily grind.

It may be that she sees in him her heart's desire, a life-companion, someone to wait for and dream about while he's away and plan and live for when he comes back. Or it may be that she sees only an exciting adventure, a war-time romance or a temporary blind infatuation.

You never can TELL when you see a girl standing at the altar and gazing into a man's eyes just what she may be seeing in him—or in the life ahead with him. Sometimes it is hard for the girl herself to be sure of her own emotions and impulses and the reason for her decision to marry.

And that's one of the vital things that make these war-time marriages such a dangerous gamble. A little more self-analysis and a little less glamour and impulse would make such marriages a safer bet.

A man usually has only one reason for marrying; because he is in love—or THINKS he is in love. But a girl may have half a dozen reasons—yet she could not tell you what they are. They are so scrambled.

The truth is that in war-times lots of girls marry "just because." Just because romance, adventure and marriage are in the air!

SULFA DRUGS AND SKIN DISORDERS.

Many skin disorders develop because the skin has been infected with staphylococcus and streptococcus germs. Sometimes a skin disorder occurs and then infection with these germs follow.

In disorders of this kind, according to Doctor Arne Ely Ingeles, of San Francisco, certain of the sulfa drugs, particularly sulfathiazole and sulfadiazine, can be used with great benefit. These drugs are put up in the form of an ointment which is applied directly to the affected skin. The strength of the ointment, of course, must be decided upon by the physician, depending on the severity of the disease and the kind of disorder present.

Among the diseases treated were fever blisters, ringworm of the skin, seborrhea dermatitis, and a condition known as perleche, in which there is tracking around the corners of the mouth. An infection of the beard, known as sycosis barba, and an infection of the hair follicles, known as folliculitis, also were treated.

In many cases, the use of these preparation brought dramatic results. It was found that in the treatment of impetigo the course of the disorder was shortened materially. Folliculitis and sycosis barba cleared up especially quickly after treatment with the sulfa drugs. Before the use of these drugs, the above conditions often would last for months in spite of any treatment employed. With the sulfa drugs, no new rash appeared after a period of seven days, and within several more the disorder cleared up completely.

Inflammation of the skin develops quite frequently among workers who handle various types of chemicals. This type of skin disorder cleared up rapidly when the sulfa drugs were used, but in other instances they were not found especially valuable.

Seborrhea dermatitis does not respond to ordinary types of treatment. However great improvement resulted in most cases after seven days, when sulfathiazole or sulfadiazine ointment was used. Seborrhea dermatitis of the scalp was not benefited by this form of treatment.

Doctor Ingels thinks that certain cases of ringworm of the skin may be helped by the sulfa drugs, particularly ringworm of the feet in which infection with streptococcus germs has occurred. The sulfa drugs will not kill the parasite which causes the ringworm, but since in many cases infection with staphylococcus or streptococcus germs is also present, the sulfa drugs are found beneficial.

It was noticed that some sensitivity to the sulfa drugs occurred in about one out of every thirty patients. However, this is no reason why the drugs should not be employed in these types of skin disorders. Of course, the drugs should be used only as the physician prescribes, so that the strength can be altered from time to time or their use stopped altogether, should sensitivity to the drugs develop.

Brickman, Mrs. C. MacMullen and Mrs. S. Marshall who explained how the missionaries and some of the people of India, China and Africa strive to Christianize their families and villages. If the white people would realize that they are not in any way superior to the colored races, then it would be a long step toward harmony. During the business period, a letter was read by Mrs. S. Westover asking for donations for the famine areas in Asia. The branch asked the auxiliary to have as a missionary for special prayer, Miss Eleanor Graham of West China. The society also chose Miss Elsie Hunt, Peace River district, Battle River Hospital. A ballot disclosed that the ladies were in favor of doing without lunches for the coming year. ## Versatile Apples!

Apples have place at either head or tail of a meal

Whether they come from B.C.'s Okanagan Valley, Ontario's vast orchards or the Maritime's Annapolis Valley, Canada's apples are tops. Practically every grocery or fruit store shows shiny Mackintosh Reds, golden Russets or Jonathons. It's common kitchen sense to use our own backyard fruit, especially when it is so thrifty and versatile.

You can use apples anywhere in a meal; as the base of a fruit cocktail; as a mixer for salad with celery; a pepper-upper as apple rings with the meat course; or made into clear, tangy applesauce for dessert.

For a perfect husband-winning meat dish try this Lamb Apple Topper:

- ¾ pound diced lamb
- 5 whole cloves
- 3 cups sliced tart apples
- 3 tbsps. water
- 1 tbsp. fat
- 1 tsp. grated lemon rind
- ½ cup dry bread crumbs
- ⅓ cup brown sugar

Pan fry lamb until brown in hot fat. Place in shallow baking dish, season, add cloves, and cover with sliced apples. Sprinkle with water. Top with mixture of lemon rind, bread crumbs and brown sugar. Cover. Bake in moderate oven (350° F.) for 30 minutes, then bake uncovered 15 minutes.

Montreal Canadiens Establish League Record by Playing 18 Home Games Without Loss

Toronto and Detroit Play Doubleheader Over Week-end and Split on Points

BRUINS BEAT RANGERS

(By The Canadian Press.)

National Hockey League standings were unchanged today after a crowded weekend program which saw Montreal Canadiens establish a league record of 18 home games without defeat.

Some cold water was spilled on the sizzling streaks of Detroit Red Wings and Chicago Black Hawks, Chicago gaining only one point in two engagements while Detroit broke even in a double date with Toronto Maple Leafs, losing 3-1 at Toronto Saturday and winning 3-2 at home on a three-goal, third-period rally.

The result was that Detroit remained in second place two points ahead of Leafs. Chicago dropped a point to slip a game and a half behind Leafs but retained a two-point edge on the fifth-place Boston Bruins, who snapped a seven-game losing streak by trouncing New York Rangers 7-2 at Boston Saturday. Rangers came back Sunday to tie Chicago 4-4 and crack their five-game slump.

At Montreal Saturday, Canadiens went to the front early on a goal by Toe Blake, back after a long idleness through injuries. Murph Chamberlain, Maurice Richard and Gerry Heffernan tallied before Art Wiebe golfed a long one for Chicago's lone score. Ray Getliffe and Richard added the remaining Montreal goals as the Habitants stretched their league lead to 7 1-2 games. The final score was 6-1.

Upset Triumph.

The Detroit-Toronto series saw the team which scored the first goal wind up on the short end of the score. Syd Howe sent Detroit into the lead at Toronto, but goals by Reg Hamilton, Babe Pratt and Windy O'Neill gave Leafs an upset triumph—their second in seven games against Detroit.

Jackie Hamilton opened the scoring for Leafs at Detroit, then Wings took over as Howe, Joe Carveth and Mud Bruneteau fired third-period salutes. Don Webster, carried off with a minor injury late in the frame, scored the other Toronto goal. Howe's goal was his eighth in three games and his 209th in N.H.L. competition. Carveth, whose wife Saturday night presented him with two daughters, celebrated by scoring on a 55-foot screened shot.

At Boston, two third-period goals by Russ Kopak paced the crippled Bruins, who faced an opponent equally smitten (Rangers dressed only 11 regulars). Bep Guidolin, Clarence Schmidt, Al Palazzari, Herb Cain and Norm Calladien also counted for Bruins, while Johnny Mahaffy and Ab Demarco scored for Rangers.

At New York Sunday the Rangers suddenly organized an attack good for three goals in four minutes and 33 seconds and a 4-2 lead, but two scores by Doug Bentley gave Chicago the deadlock. Bill Moisenko and Fido Pupur also scored for Chicago. Bucko McDonald, Kilby Macdonald, Bryann Hextall and Ossie Aubuchon were New York marksmen.

GEN. SOMERVELL ASKS BASEBALL TO CONTINUE

Says Sandlots and Big League Parks Contribute Share to Successes

New York, Feb. 7 — (AP)—Baseball glowed with added self-esteem today after robust verbal pats on the back received at the 21st annual dinner of the New York baseball writers last night.

The serious note of the dinner was found in the utterances and communications of such esteemed citizens as Lt.-Gen. Brehon Somervell, Lt.-Col. Larry S. MacPhail, Senator Scott Lucas of Illinois and baseball's own old man of the mountain — Commissioner K. M. Landis.

Gen. Somervell, scheduled as a leading speaker, was unable to attend, but he voiced his sentiments in a telegram read by Col. MacPhail in which the General urged baseball to help in the maintenance of morale both at home and among the troops.

"In the winning of the war," the telegram read in part, "it has been said that the successes of the British army can be traced to the cricket fields of Eton, and I say that the sandlots and big league ball parks of America have contributed their share to our military success. Nearly 70 per cent of all major league players at the time of Pearl Harbor are wearing the uniform today and giving a splendid account of themselves."

Commissioner Landis reiterated his statement of a year ago that baseball would continue as long as teams made up of players subject to the same war-time responsibilities as 130,000,000 other Americans could be put on the field. Baseball asks no special deferments or exemptions, he said.

Toronto, Feb. 7 — (CP) — Selection of names for hockey's hall of fame has been wisely placed in capable hands. The Board of Governors is composed largely of men of long experience. Governors are Lester Patrick, Red Dutton, Art Ross, Frank Sargent, W. A. Hewitt, J. P. Fitzgerald, Toronto, Wes McKnight, Toronto, Abbie Coo, Winnipeg, and Baz O'Meara, Montreal. Patrick and Ross need no introduction — men with probably more hockey experience than any others. Fitzgerald, O'Meara and Coo are newspapermen with experience in sport dating back nearly to the turn of the century. Hewitt is a former newspaperman of similar experience. McKnight is a student of hockey history. Dutton and Sargent represent the two great hockey organizations, the N.H.L. and C.A.H.A.

Bill Gaynon of the Niagara Falls Review comments: "Hockey hall of fame heads can benefit by the mistakes of their baseball brethren who erred badly in not giving more consideration to outstanding diamond figures of other days when electing candidates for their Cooper Town, N. Y., dream spot.

"The selection of immortals was left to a committee of sport writers, the majority of whom knew very little about the greats of earlier ball years."

This corner agrees great names of an earlier era should be considered first — men like Tommy Phillips, Hod Stuart, Cyclone Taylor, Dan Bain.

Not many still interested in sport remember Phillips, Stuart, Bain or players of their era. Baz O'Meara suggests interested fans should write to one of the governors and adds: "Their views will be accorded respectful attention."

Incidentally:

Winnipeg reports indicate Manitoba is unlikely to enter interprovincial men's basketball this year . . . the Ontario Minor Hockey Association already has 113 entries this season, breaking the former record of 112 . . . with the rink in Laura, Ont., used to store wool, Harold Dunk, long-time promoter of sport among youngsters, has built an outdoor rink on his own to make sure the Laura children have a place to play . . . Jimmy Freeman, Canadian bantam boxing champion 40 years ago, now operates a hotel in St. Boniface, Man., and in his spare time is a volunteer boxing coach at an infantry training centre. "A boxer will beat a non-boxer just as easily in a bayonet scrap as he would in the ring" says Jimmy.

ST. CATHARINES HAS POINT LEAD OVER HAMILTON

Senior Squad Takes Majors Into Camp by 5-3 Count

JUNIORS LOSE

(By The Canadian Press.)

The Saints of St. Catharines rose to a one point lead in the senior O.H.A. standing once more with a 5-3 victory on home ice Saturday night over the second place Hamilton Majors.

It was St. Kitts all the way, leading 3-0 in the first period, 4-1 in the second and 5-1 well into the final chapter when Doug Runions and Johnny Conick added one each for Majors. Setting the scoring pace for the winners was Paul Mundrick who gathered three goals. Blink Bellinger and Mason getting the others. Runions, for Hamilton, scored two one each in the second and third period.

Oshawa Generals, leaders in group 1 of the junior "A" series, administered a 7-5 setback to St. Catharines Falcons at Oshawa, but the visitors still retained leadership in group 2 with a two-point margin over Galt Kists. Johnny Chenier, with three goals, and Bill Ezinicki with two, headed the scoring for Generals while Pete Long registered two of the Falcon's counters, Peterson, Phillips and Warecki dividing the rest.

McSpaden Birdies Last Two Holes To Gain a Tie

Phoenix, Ariz. Feb. 7 — (AP)—The chips were down when Harold (Jug) McSpaden of Philadelphia reached the 16th green yesterday in the afternoon round of the Phoenix Open golf tournament finals.

It was there someone told him that Byron Nelson had finished the 72 holes of play with a 273, nine under par, and appeared to be the winner. That meant McSpaden would have to birdie the last two holes to gain a tie.

With the pressure on, he rammed down a 40-foot putt from the edge of the 17th green, then dropped a six-footer on the 18th for the birdies which delayed first prize presentation.

They will tee off late today in an 18-hole playoff for the first prize of a $1,000 war bond. The loser will receive a $750 bond.

Players' Interests Being Safeguarded

New York, Feb. 7. (AP)—Baseball's National Defence list players, numbering more than 3,500 can thank the Major-Minor League Planning Committee for safeguarding their interests iwth an apparently fool-proof plan for reassignment.

The committee yesterday popped up with several recommendations based on the theory that the servicemen players will be regarded in baseball law as if they had been in the game for the duration.

As approximately 88 per cent of the men concerned are on minor league lists, the bulk of the proposals concern steps by which those returning to the game will be assured of a fair trial with their own clubs or one of equal rank and be protected against indiscriminate shuffling around from Class AA to D.

It is always wise, when mixing liquor and gasoline, to put both in the same tank.

A drunk boarded one of those two-storey busses they have in Chicago; it was crowded, but he finally found a seat by the driver. He talked and talked, and finally the driver tactfully suggested that he go up on the top deck and enjoy the fresh air and wonderful view. The drunk amiably lurched through the crowd and disappeared upstairs. But in a few minutes he was back.

Driver (resignedly) — What's the matter? Didn't you like the fresh air or the view?

Drunk—Yep, nice air, nice view But tain't safe. No driver.

In the Stretch.

When Stan Jackson's group-leading Trenton kids move into Stirling for a junior O. H. A. match with the Combines much depends on the outcome. If Trenton can take this one then the Jackson-led sextette can't be headed for first place in the final group standing. However, if Ralph Neal's Combines can come down in front then the big game of the schedule will be played here Wednesday night with the Combines meeting Holway's locals. In their last meeting at Stirling the Combines came from behind to beat Trenton 5-4, while Trenton won 6-3 on their home ice. Skipper Jackson's Trenton team is about the hottest sextette in the group today and with the addition of Schmidt and Krohler, two former junior "A" players now stationed at Trenton, Skipper Stan Jackson says he isn't worrying about the final outcome. Sometime this week the final answer as to the decision of Jerry Quinn's Tweed Juniors will also be forthcoming, as the junior play-offs are slated to commence Friday night.

Juveniles Active.

While over at Trenton watching the local juniors absorb a 7-2 shellacking Coach Bill Dennis made arrangements for the first round Juvenile playdowns versus the Trenton entry. The first game of this series will be played in Trenton on Wednesday night, with no definite date set for the return game in Belleville. In the event there is no junior play-off game at the Hume Arena this Friday night it is possible the Juveniles will make their debut. Otherwise the return game will be played on Feb. 15th. In the meantime Coach Dennis announced a juvenile practice for tomorrow night

In the meantime the Girls' Basketball loop is holding forth with a dual bill at the "Y" tonight.

Here They Go.

The district Air Force league swings into action with another of their thrillers at the Market St. ice igloo tonight when Mountain View "Bombers" and No. 6 "Ardee" tangle.

At the head of the Bombers is Sergt. "Dutch" Cain formerly with the Montreal Maroons in the N. H. L. Cain has such puck celebrities as Pat McReavey, ex-Boston Bruin starlett, Lou Boudreaux, last year with the Quebec Aces, Aube from the Montreal Royals, the veteran Dan Cowley, who is the steadying influence with the Bombers and other former senior players to toss in against Flight Sergt. Dickens' second place Repair Depot sextette.

The "Six-Ardee" pucksters haven't lost a start and added to their prowess by holding Coach Padre Malka's strong Trenton team to a one-all draw. Although they do not boast of any former pros. or individual stars, Coach Dickens' Repair lads have team work and play together as a unit. These Air Force games are attracting larger crowds each Monday and Thursday night and tonight's Bomber-Repair Depot game should give the fans something to shout about. This is the style of hockey the fans like, all out and no quarter asked or expected.

New Baseballs.

As a result of recent releases of materials by the United States War Porduction Board, the manufacturers of cushion cork centres—which is the center used in league baseballs—announces that it is now possible to produce these centers from synthetic rubber and new cork.

Lou Coleman of A. G. Spalding & Bros., the manufacturers of the official National League and American League baseballs, reports that this new center is as lively as the one made prior to the war, in which crude rubber and cork was used.

"With these new materials, we will be in a position to produce balls that will have a degree of liveliness to meet league requirements," said Coleman. "At this time, all other materials needed in the production of balls are available."

Spalding is now in production of these new balls and will have them ready in time for play in the new season.

Remember When—

LESSON NO. 296

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

Tweedle-de-din always leads with her chin. Tweedle-de-dum leads from nearest her thumb. Tweedle-de-die always leads with a sigh. A heckuva partner for you and for I.

Millions of players have started billions of leads during the past 400 years of whist, bridge, auction, and contract. Each lead was based upon rule, judgment, faith, hope, or imbecility.

Thousands of different books have tried to teach opening leads. Not one of those books ever reduced that subject to the quick needs of a dub. They could not produce it in pill form.

Along comes The Kibitzer to show posterity how to decide the correct lead from any hand. Not in pages. In three brief lines to cover the 635,013,599,600 hands in a pack.

They are: (1) Don't lead a suit bid by opponents; (2) against a suit contract, don't lead away from an ace or a king; (3) from what's left, choose the lead from the order in tops, longies, shorts.

Tops refer to highest cards in sequence groups; or an ace for special purpose. Longies refer to long suits. Shorts refer to suits of three cards or less.

After bidding clubs, diamonds and hearts, south and north ended at a contract of seven hearts. It is your opening lead from this hand:

♠ J 10 9 7 3
♥ None
♦ Q J 9 6 5
♣ 9 5 2

You should not lead a suit bid by opponents. So, don't lead a club or diamond or heart. That makes it easy for you to decide that your lead must be a spade.

This is a suit contract and you should not lead away from an ace or a king. Your spade suit has no ace or king. So, there is no objection to a spade lead. Your choice starts with tops. When you have a sequence, the correct lead is the top. So, your opening lead is the spade jack.

All you can do is lead that and pray.

AT THE BELLE

"A Lady Takes a Chance"

It's easy to predict plenty of attendance for "A Lady Takes a Chance," with the cuddlesome Miss Arthur and the husky John Wayne co-starring in the sprightliest, funniest and most romantic comedy to come this way in a long, long time.

It's all about a New York bank clerk who finds that her cherished dream of making a 17-day all-expenses-paid bus trip to the Pacific Coast and back isn't what it's cracked up to be—at least until she reaches Oregon and a bucking broncho hurls a tall rodeo rider on top of her and knocks her flat. The rider, by way of apology, shows her the sights of Fairfield. She misses her bus, quarrels with her bewildered new acquaintance, hitch-hikes across a lot of desert and has varied and hilarious experiences that will delight everybody right up to the sparkling ending.

It's a great picture and besides giving Miss Arthur new stature as the screen's finest comedienne, it offers a swell surprise in the emergence of John Wayne from his western roles to delight us with a brilliant comic portrayal of the anti-marrying hero. Charles Winninger is excellent in a picturesque supporting role. William A. Seiter's skilful direction of the Robert Ardrey screen play, and the convincing production, mounting Frank Ross has given the RKO Radio release, all help to make the film a cinematic treat for whole family. And don't mention this to a soul, but—there's a romantic sequence that will make any woman coo with joy.

"A Lady Takes a Chance" will be presented at the Belle Theatre tonight and Tuesday, matinee daily with the Canadian Paramount News, "Pelican and the Snipe," a funny Walt Disney color cartoon and a unique and entertaining multiple-reel featurette, "Age of Flight."

AT THE McCARTHY

"Always a Bridesmaid"

All-new, amazing jitterbug routines are performed by the Jivin' Jacks and Jills, favorite movie dance group, in Universal's "Always a Bridesmaid" starring the Andrews Sisters now playing at the McCarthy Theatre.

The group of eight youthful dancers—four boys and four girls has already been seen in such musical hits as "What's Cookin' " and "Strictly In The Groove".

In "Always a Bridesmaid", the Jacks and Jills perform their whirlwinds routines to the tune of the novelty song hit, "Mr. Five" By Five."

The Andrews Sisters sing five numbers in the feature, which deals with their adventures as hostesses in a Lonely Hearts Club under investigation because it is suspected of being a "front" for racketeers preying on lovelorn folk.

Patric Knowles, Grace McDonald, Charles Butterworth, Billy Gilbert and Anne Rooney have other leading roles.

2nd feature on the same program is "Having Wonderful Time" starring Ginger Rogers, Douglas Fairbanks Jr., Red Skelton, and Donald Meek.

AT THE CAPITOL

"The Lives of a Bengal Lancer"

The average height of the featured male players in Paramount's stirring adventure drama, "The Lives of a Bengal Lancer," now at the Capitol Theatre, is six feet, one and a half inches.

Gary Cooper, Sir Guy Standing and Monte Blue helped to bring up the average by their six feet two inches, each, while Franchot Tone and Richard Cromwell fell slightly below the towering height.

"Waikiki Wedding"
(Bing Crosby)

"Waikiki Wedding," the added attraction, is a musical comedy set in the South Sea Isles, features Bing Crosby, who sings "Blue Hawaii," "Sweet Leilani," "In a Little Hula Heaven" and "Sweet is the Word For You." Other featured players are Bob Burns, Martha Raye and Shirley Ross. The Canadian Universal News completes the bill.

Two Families Left Homeless As Result Of Fire Gutting House

Trenton —(Special)— Two families are left homeless as the result of a fire which completely gutted a brick residence at the extreme north end of Front Street on Sunday afternoon. The house is owned by the estate of the late John Long and is occupied by two families, that of Carmen Pacey and one other.

The fire is thought to have started from an overheated chimney and swept through the entire building completely gutting it and destroying the entire roof.

Though firemen were quickly on the scene shortly after one p.m., they worked for several hours before the blaze could be entirely extinguished. More than 1,700 feet of hose had to be laid to reach the nearest hydrant at the foot of Canal Street, near the St. James Hotel.

Fire Damages Storage Building.

What might have been a most serious fire was promptly brought under control late Saturday afternoon by Trenton firemen who were quickly on the scene as a building at the rear of the Ireland apartments on Marmora Street burst into flames.

Five families, Captain and Mrs. A. Greenfield, Mr. and Mrs. Geo. MacElwaine, Squadron Leader and Mrs. K. Madsen, Flt.-Lt. and Mrs. Thompson and Mrs Marion Hewson and daughter, Donna, were resident in the building at the time and it was fortunate that the door between the rear building and the apartments was closed at the time, and that there was a brick wall separating the two. Firemen were able to confine the blaze and prevent it from spreading into the apartments although much damage was done by smoke and soot.

In the outer building, however, were stored trunks and other valuables belonging to each family as well as an automobile owned by Squadron Leader Madsen. The car and all the other articles were a complete loss.

Cause of the fire is said to be unknown.

Personals.

Miss Jean Freeman, 136 Charles Street, Belleville, spent the weekend at the home of Sergeant and Mrs. F. J. Taylor, Henry Street.

Mrs. E. Shiere and daughter, Sheila, are visiting relatives in Toronto.

200 Buildings Hit As Red Bombers Raid Helsinki

Stockholm, Feb. 7 (AP)—Fires still were burning in Helsinki at noon today from two Russian bombings Sunday which hit 200 buildings and killed 38 persons, the Finnish legation in Stockholm said.

The attacking bombers dropped mine bombs and incendiaries, it was officially announced at the Finnish capital. The announcement listed 232 persons as wounded.

(Advices reaching London said telephone communication between Helsinki and Stockholm had been cut again today, suggesting the possibility of a third raid in what apparently is a concentrated effort to drive Finland out of the war.)

Tallinn Also Bombed.

A Moscow radio announcement said the Estonian capital of Reval (Tallinn) also had been bombed, adding to the growing uneasiness in Sweden.

Swedish aircraft roared over Stockholm in extensive manoeuvres early today despite generally poor weather.

Helsinki traffic was reported disrupted as the Russians dropped many high explosives and incendiaries starting fires which were difficult to control. The sky above the Finnish capital was red with the glow.

The first raid was the worst the capital experienced since 1941.

Swedish press accounts said the first assault caused heavy damage to the central railway station, the Finnish National Bank, the Technical University, the Toeloe residential district and the Brunnsparken diplomatic quarter.

Political Interest At High Pitch

London, Feb. 7 — (CP Cable)— Political interest in Britain has shifted from the Brighton by-election to West Derbyshire where a youthful Marquess is opposing a shoemaker's son in the Feb. 17 by-election in that conservative seat.

The close call of the Brighton victor, Flt. Lt. William Teeling, conservative, who defeated Bruce Briant, independent, by 14,594 to 12,636 votes in a constituency that normally returned huge conservative majorities, worries party chiefs. As a result, the conservative machine will wage a stiffer campaign in West Derbyshire, with some cabinet ministers possibly taking part.

The 26-year-old Marquess of Hartington, a captain in the coldstream guards, heir to the Duke of Devonshire and future head of the Cavednish family, is the conservative candidate seeking to retain the West Derbyshire seat held almost without a break by members of his family for 300 years.

Little Benny's Note Book

Pop was reading his paper and ma was reading hers, saying, P. Willis Hinkle has quite an interesting thought in his collum today, Willam. He claims if the same lanquage was spoken all over the world regardless of race or color, it would be the best thing to make people understand each other and appriciate each other's viewpoints instead of starting more wars, ma said.

That's a thought and it's been thought before, but there's a serious bottleneck in the way of its successful execution, pop said. If the meeting of the races was finely arranged in order to tecide which language to make universal, the English speaking people would quite rightly insist on English, the language of Shakesbeer, and the French would most naturally insist on French the language of Voltaire, and the Chinese would justifiably insist on Chinese, the language of Confucius, and that's the way it would go all the way down the line, even the Germans for their own gutteral reasons holding out for German, the language of Heiny. The whole argument might even start another war, pop said.

Giving me an idea, and quick wrote something down sounding like a rime, saying, Listen to this pop, does this mean anything to you?

And I read it to him, being, Ittzy wittzy winderhoff, Ging a dindy spoo, Fittzy dittzy dinderboff, Sing a lindy boo, and pop said, Why yes, by gollies, it definitely gives me the idea that otherwise speaking, as it were, the contrary minded excepted.

There you see, pop, that proves it, I mean it proves somebody could make up a brand new language and everybody could understand it, I said, and pop said, I advise you to keep it under you hat, because judging by the present rate of progress it'll take a few more hundred years before people can be trusted to understand each other better without running the risk that it'll only give them still more reasons to object to each other.

And he got in back of the sporting page and I started to do my homework feeling against it.

The War Today—
Military and Political Aspects Of Russian Developments

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
Associated Press War Analyst

Stalin's Red armies continue to carve their way into the Hitlerite front—further consolidation of their position about the strategic fortified centre of Narva up north in the Baltic state of Estonia, another great thrust into pre-war Poland, and down in the Dnieper bend the encirclement of five more Nazi divisions to add to the 10 division surrounded last week.

Military Aspect

Militarily the situation on the whole in the European theatre looks good for the Allies. Still, it seems to me that, taking the long view, the political developments which are flooding out of Moscow are even more important than the fresh gains on the battle-fields. Actually, of course, it's because of the victories that we are getting the surge of political developments.

The European conflict is rapidly becoming a politico-military affair. And the whole trend seems to be in the direction of extending Russian influence westward across the continent—eastward into Asia also for that matter.

The big break came last week when he had Moscow's startling announcement extending the sovereignty of the 16 states of the Soviet union to include the right to establish independent diplomatic relations abroad and maintain armies. The world is still trying to figure that out. However, one thing seems clear, and this is that Moscow has created a flexible commonwealth of nations which can absorb as many foreign countries as decide they would like to join.

New Polish State

Today we get a follow-up. Russia intimates strongly she plans to give the stamp of approval to the establishment of a Polish state independent of the Polish government in London as a basis for settling the Russo-Polish territorial dispute.

But that's only half the story. Moscow radio says the first move of the new foreign office in the Ukraine—one of the republics of the Soviet union—will be to make a treaty with the "new" Polish government. Then, says the radio, " a new democratic Poland will raise." The broadcast didn't suggest that this new Polish government might apply for admission to the Soviet Commonwealth of Nations, but who says it won't? We should know the answer before long, if the Red armies continue their westward rush into Poland.

Likely to Unhorse Bulgarian Gov't

Coincident with these significant developments, Moscow landed with both feet on the Bulgarian government.

This Soviet move would seem calculated to unhorse the Bulgarian government and bring the country into the Red camp.

Of course, the winning over of Bulgaria would be a grand gain for the Allies. It might be the thing which would blow the Nazis out of the Balkan peninsula their right wing in Russia in still further jeopardy. However, I think we are entitled to interpret Moscow's manoeuvre as fitting perfectly into the picture of Soviet extension of influence.

Japanese Aviation Production Leans To Fighter Planes

By OLEN CLEMENTS
Associated Press War Correspondent

Somewhere in New Guinea, Feb. 7—(AP)— Japan may have turned her aviation production almost entirely to the manufacture of fighter planes, for one purpose: defence.

Japan's bombers in the southwest and South Pacific are becoming fewer. Bombing raids on American, Australian and New Zealand positions are diminishing in size and number.

While Japan's bombers become more scarce in the southwest theatre, her fighter strength seems to be inexhaustible. Swarms of fighters rise to meet Allied bombers and fighters in daily sweeps over numerous enemy-held airdromes. They are knocked down in swarms by the Allies—sometimes two squadrons at a time.

Despite heavy losses, more enemy fighters are coming down from Truk, their big base in the Carolines, and even from Japan to meet the next Allied attack. Many Japanese fighters are flown in stages from the factories in Japan direct to Rabaul and Wewak.

Japan has been experimenting with new fighter planes, introducing the fast, manoeuvrable "Tojo" plane only recently. Maybe she hopes to stave off defeat by putting up an unbrella of fighter planes over her entire empire.

Canadian Wrens Go to Washington

Ottawa, Feb. 7—(CP)—Canadian Wrens interviewed and selected for the job some time ago soon will go to the United States for duty with the Royal Navy.

Naval headquarters said today that the Wrens will tave over jobs previously handled by British seamen so as to release the men for sea duty. The girls will be the first Canadian Wrens on loan to the Royal Navy and the first to release seamen of the Royal Navy for more active duties.

Since no W. R. C. N. S. quarters are available, the girls will "live out" on lodging allowances, and will leave Canada as soon as they can be released from their present duties. A number of Canadian Wrens have been stationed in Washington since last Spring on the staff of the naval member of the Canadian joint staff.

Five Are Killed Over Weekend

By the Canadian Press

There were five weekend fatalities reported in Eastern Canada, all of them occurring in Ontario and all of them the result of traffic accidents. Two were killed in Toronto, two in Windsor and one near Chatham.

William Taggart, 43, died in a Toronto hospital Sunday from injuries received Friday night when struck by an automobile at a West Central intersection. Mrs. Wilma Potter, 21, died Sunday in Toronto from injuries suffered Friday in an automobile collision.

Windsor traffic accidents claimed the lives of a woman and a seven-year-old boy. Mrs. Nellie Podolsky, 52, died in hospital Sunday from injuries suffered Saturday night when struck by a bus at a downtown intersection. William Toop, seven, suffered a fractured skull Saturday when struck by a truck near his home and died in hospital shortly afterward.

Mrs. Olive L. Thomas, 57, Goderich, died Saturday night a short time after the car in which she was driving crashed into a ditch eight miles east of Chatham to avoid hitting another automobile.

CHAPTER FOUR

"The house superintendent did some knocking himself, then he sent for a wrecking tool and forced open the door. McKibben was lying on his back on the floor, dead. He still had on his evening clothes. There was an automatic on the floor beside him and a black scorched spot on his shirt front. We found afterwards that he had been shot through the heart. There hadn't been much blood. Rigor Mortis had got down as far as his knees. The medical examiner said he had been dead nine or ten hours. We took photographs, of course, and went over the room. It hadn't been disturbed and the bed hadn't been slept in. The rest of the apartment was absolutely in order."

"Was the light on or off?" Tony asked.

"It was on."

"Fingerprints?"

"McKibben's here and there where you'd naturally expect to find them."

"On the gun?"

"We won't get much there. It's got a checked grip. But I sent it to the laboratory."

"Was it McKibben's gun?"

"His boy said he thought it was. McKibben kept it in the drawer of a table by his bed. He had a permit—I'll check with that. It had only been fired once. There were eight cartridges in the magazine and one in the breach."

"How about shells?"

"One on the floor in front of him. One bullet. It had gone clear through him and was on the floor under the body. Our ballistics bureau is checking it."

"How about the hand? Any powder stains?"

"I haven't had a report yet," Duffy answered. "You see, I read your column this morning just to find out who I ought to arrest," he added wryly. "So I thought I'd better come around and find out about that tip. Who was with McKibben at Max's place last night?"

"Lily Edgerton and a girl I didn't know."

"Your column says Lily is starting for Reno today.

"Yes, McKibben told me."

"He and Lily been palsies?"

"I think so."

"What was the other woman like?"

"Quite young—under twenty, I should say; slender, innocent-looking, no make-up. I couldn't understand why she'd be with McKibben. She looked sort of scared."

"Maybe she had reason to look scared," said Duffy grimly. "What time did they leave?"

"About twelve-thirty."

"As early as that?"

"Yes. I'd called McKibben over to my table and told him about the tip, and he left right away."

"Hum!" said Duffy. "Looks like he might have believed it. Maybe that's why he bolted himself in when he got home."

"Why should he do that, if he was going to shoot himself?" Tony objected. "Where did he go after he left Max's?"

"Don't know yet. Doorman says he came in about one-forty-five."

"It would probably take him that long to take the two women home."

"He only took one of them home. The other one came back with him."

"Lily wanted a last flutter, I suppose."

"It wasn't Lily," said Duffy. "It was the other one—young, innocent-looking. That's just what the doorman said."

Tony stared at him with a queer sinking feeling.

"Furthermore," Duffy went on, "she had met McKibben as he was coming out at eight-thirty or thereabouts and they had driven off in a taxi together. Maybe she wasn't as innocent as she looked. A lot of them aren't."

Tony filled his pipe with fingers not quite steady. Duffy watched him with a smile.

"Seems to be quite a shock to you," he remarked. "Was she as wonderful as all that?"

Tony took a long puff and relaxed in his chair.

"I couldn't be mistaken about her Jim," he said quietly. She wasn't that sort at all."

"Not the sort to kill a man, eh? Just the same she interests me."

"Not the sort to go to a man's apartment. Not the sort to be with Jack McKibben at all. How long did she stay when she came back with him?"

"I don't know. I haven't found anyone who saw her leave. Maybe she sneaked down by the stairs. It would have been easy enough at that hour of the night."

"But look here," said Tony, "if McKibben had been dead nine or ten hours when he was found, he must have been shot before two o'clock."

"Yes—right after he got in," Duffy agreed. He sat for a moment longer turning the case over in his mind, then got to his feet. "I must be getting along. First thing I'll run down the Edgerton dame. She can tell me who this innocent nymph is."

"Lily told me she didn't know."

"Didn't know?" echoed Duffy. "And you believed her? Not that it matters so much, since McKibben just bolted his door and shot himself. But maybe she can tell us what happened."

"I still don't believe he shot himself," said Tony.

"Don't you? I suppose you think that little Miss Innocence popped him off."

"That's absurd, Jim. But I can't see McKibben shooting himself. It's all out of character. Besides, why should he?"

"We'll find the motive—give us time," said Duffy cheerfully. "Maybe it was remorse."

"Remorse!" Tony snorted. "He didn't know the word. Look here, Jim, I'd like to look over his apartment."

"Okay. I'll tell the guard to let you in. The body is over at the mortuary, if you want to see it. If you turn up anything, let me know."

Tony nodded and turned back to his mail, but he read it without really seeing it.

Why had that lovely girl gone up to McKibben's place with him? Why had she looked so frightened?

He finished his mail and ran through his file, but he could find no other letter signed "Wellwisher."

And just then Clarence came in with another parcel in his hand.

"What is it this time?" Tony asked.

"Looks like flowers, suh," Clarence grinned.

"Flowers?" Well, open it."

Clarence did so and disclosed a bunch of magnificent white carnations with a single red one in the centre, standing out like a spot of blood.

"Heah's the card, suh," Clarence added, and passed it over.

McKibben's name, John Derwent McKibben, was engraved across it face. On the back was written:

> Dear Tony:
>
> Try a carnation—the badge of innocence—with my compliments.
>
> Jack McKibben.

Tony examined the box in which the carnations had come. It bore the address of a well-known Fifth Avenue florist. And then he remembered the jibe he had launched at McKibben about the white carnation in his buttonhole. Evidently "Mack" was just getting back at him, but it was macabre getting the flowers, hours after he was dead.

The columnist slipped the card into his billfold, and phoned the Record. He asked the city editor to tell Garrity "to see me here at my place around four-thirty."

"All right, Tony. Say, Hadley's pleased pink about that little forecast in your column today."

"I'm glad he's pleased about something!"

"So am I," said the city editor, and hung up.

Fifteen minutes later, Tony was rolling up Fifth Avenue in a taxi. He got out in front of the florist's shop, went in, and asked to see the manager.

"I'm Antony Bigelow," he said. "You sent a bunch of carnations down to my place a while ago with John McKibben's card. I suppose you know he's dead."

"Yes, I just saw it in the paper," said the manager. "It was quite a shock. He has been a customer for years."

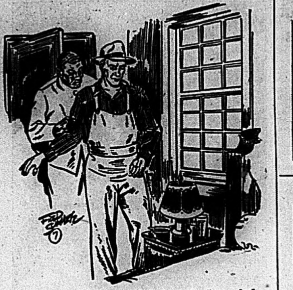
"Always carnations?"

"Always white carnations for himself. Other things, of course, for other people."

"I wonder if you'd mind telling me when you got the order for the carnations? Here's the card that came with them," and Tony produced it.

The other glanced at it. "Come back to the office," he said, and led the way to a glassed-in cubicle at the rear of the store. He looked through some papers on a hook, and took off one of them. "Here it is," he said, and handed it to Tony. "It came by special delivery at ten-fifteen this morning."

It was a sheet of letter paper with McKibben's name and address engraved at the top. Across it was scribbled:



Jack McKibben was lying on his back on the floor — dead

> Dear Bailey:
>
> Please send a dozen of my special white carnations, with a single red one in the middle, down to Antony Bigelow, Washington Square, North, about noon today. Charge to me.
>
> John McKibben.

Tony compared the writing with that on the card. They were the same.

"You recognize McKibben's writing?" he asked.

"Oh, yes. No doubt about it."

"Have you got the envelope?"

"It's probably in the wastebasket," and after a moment he fished it out. It was addressed in the same hand, had "Special Delivery" written across it, with four three-cent stamps. The postmark showed it had reached the West Sixty-ninth Street office at 9.30 a.m.

"I think it would be a good thing if you kept the envelope clipped to the letter," Tony suggested.

"I get you," Bailey agreed, and clipped the two together.

Tony thanked him, called another taxi, and was soon at the Central Park West address. It was a large and ornate apartment house, built in the setback fashion, with the set-backs used as terraces by the apartments opening on them. It was fifteen stories high and occupied half the block.

"Which floor is Mr. McKibben's apartment on?" Tony asked the doorman.

"Sixth—but it's no use to go up. He's dead."

"I know it," said Tony, and then he noticed the doorman's harassed appearance. "You look sort of worn out."

"Who wouldn't be worn out with the mob that's been here?" and the man took off his cap and wiped a shining forehead. "All the reporters and cameramen in town."

"Have they gone?"

"Yes, thank heavens!"

"Were you here when McKibben came in this morning?"

"No, that was the night man. He'll be on at six."

Tony nodded, stepped into the nearest elevator, and got out at the sixth floor. It was easy enough to tell which was McKibben's apartment, for there was a policeman sitting in front of the closed door. A good-looking colored boy was squatted beside him on the floor.

"My name's Bigelow," Tony began. "Lieut. Duffy said . . ."

"Okay. He's inside," and the policeman motioned over his shoulder.

Tony opened the door and found himself in a good-sized entry from which a corridor to his right ran toward the front of the apartment. He started along it, and as he passed the first open door, saw Duffy inside and stopped on the threshold.

"Oh, hullo, Tony," said the detective. "Come in. I was just giving the place another once-over, on the chance I might have missed something. That letter of yours has got me sort of worried."

Tony stepped through the doorway and found himself in a good-sized, well-furnished bedroom, and lighted by two large windows opening on the side street.

"Is this the room?" he asked.

"Yes," Duffy nodded. "Everything is just like it was except that the body and pistol have been taken away. The body lay right there on its back, the feet toward the bathroom door, and shoulders where you see that bloodstain on the rug. The pistol was here by the right hand."

"The hand wasn't clutching it?"

"No. The pistol usually drops out of a suicide's hand."

"Have you had the fingerprint report?"

"It doesn't help us much. The checked stock made it impossible to get any prints there, but there were some of McKibben's on the barrel, and on the clip, too."

"That only proves that he loaded it, not that he fired it," Tony pointed out. "It was his pistol, I suppose?"

"Yes — a Colt thirty-eight automatic. The number checked with his permit."

"How long has he had a permit?"

"Only about a month. He said in his application that there had been an attempt to break into this place and that he needed it for protection."

TO BE CONTINUED.

Want Palestine To Remain Open To Jew Migration

Washington, Feb. 7 (AP)—A formal effort to dissuade Great Britain from closing the door to further immigration of Jews to Palestine will be started in the United States House of Representatives Foreign Affairs Committee this week.

The committee, which begins hearings tomorrow, will be asked to approve a resolution under which the United States would use its good offices "to the end that the doors of Palestine be opened for free entry of Jews into that country and that there shall be full opportunity for colonization so that the Jewish people may ultimately reconstitute Palestine as a free and democratic Jewish commonwealth."

Under terms of a British white paper issued in 1939, immigration of Jews into Palestine would be banned after March 31, 1944.

Los Angeles, Feb. 7 (AP)—Dr. Stephen S. Wise, President of the American Jewish Congress, urged last night that Jews appeal to Prime Minister Churchill to rescind the British white paper of 1939 which certails Jewish immigration to Palestine beginning March 31.

Wise said there would be no place for thousands of European Jewish refugees to go if the British continue with their plan to create an Arab - dominated state in in Palestine.

Heavy, Medium Bombers Plaster French Coast

London, Feb. 7 (CP)—United States heavy and medium bombers plastered the French invasion coast and Nazi airfields in northern France for the second straight day yesterday on the heels of another R.A.F. Mosquito stab against devastated Berlin and targets in western Germany Saturday night.

A joint Anglo-American communique said 11 Allied planes, including four heavy bombers, failed to return from the missions against France in which R.A.F. and R.C.A.F. Mosquito and Typhoons also participated. Seventeen German planes were destroyed.

Maintaining the most intensive period of daylight bombing of the war, one formation of bombers struck at the Nazis' forward positions in the Pas-De-Calais area while other waves pounded airfields at Evreau-Fauville, St. Andrew De L'Eure, Caen, Chateaudun and St. Aubin. Fleets of Allied fighters escorted the bombers.

Reconnaissance photographs showed Saturday's American attacks on France had caused severe damage to six German airfields, with at least 37 Nazi aircraft destroyed or damaged on the ground.

The Vichy radio said bombs fell in the southwesteurn district of Paris yesterday, causing damage and casualties.

Prime Function Of R. C. N. Is Escort Duty, Sub Hunting

Buy Your Share in "Our" Corvette "Belleville"

One of the most interesting stories of achievement in this war has been the rise of Canada as a naval power. To appreciate this let us first of all recall this purchase from the United Kingdom of the two over-age and obsolete cruisers Niobe and Rainbow by the Canadian Government in 1910, and which ships, used for training purposes only, formed the nucleus of the Royal Canadian Navy.

Must Useful Purpose

While it is true that Canada has no capital ships, (battle cruisers or battleships), our Navy has been purposely developed along the lines considered most useful in concert with the general world-wide naval strategy adopted by the Allied High Command.

The prime function of H. M. Canadian Navy is escort duty and sub hunting, which are pretty much the same thing.

An illustration of this is the case of 17 corvettes on service in the Mediterranean of which 2 were lost in action, but only after 3 enemy subs were sunk, 1 damaged and 1 probably sunk.

Corvettes' Fine Performance.

Apart from our share of the convoy duty required in the safe convoy of hundreds of ships transporting men and war material of every conceivable sort to strategic ports in the Mediterranean, the performance of our seventeen corvettes at the time of disembarkation opened a new chapter in the proud history our navy is writing for itself in this war.

One must not forget to mention the many enemy aircraft shot down or damaged by anti-aircraft batteries mounted on these corvettes. This was a very considerable contribution to the success of the entire operation. It is important to remember the part played by every man aboard one of these ships, and it is just as important that the people at home remember that these ships are theirs, these men their own men.

H.M.C.S. "Belleville" Fund.

The H.M.C.S. "Belleville" Fund, which opened on February 2nd. and will continue to run until February 19th., with $3,500 as their objective, will equip and furnish comforts for men like those who manned these other corvettes. Their acts of bravery, their unthinking efforts on the behalf of not only the citizens of Belleville for the sponsoring, but on behalf of every man, woman and child from one coast to another in this fair land, will reflect in the glorious future when the whole history of the war is told.

Contributions Needed.

Your contribution, whether it is large or small, will be given in a manner which will bring to those, who forsake the comforts you are enjoying, those very comforts. Your contribution will remain, in its entirety in the minds of men for as long as they live. What an opportunity. What a glorious opportunity to share in the fame that will resound to the name of "Belleville".

Two Belleville Men Buried by Almost Direct Shell Hit at Front in Italy

The place of tremendous importance which communications play in the modern game of war and the heroic job which men of such units are doing in keeping these same communications going is vividly portrayed in a recent story in the Toronto Evening Telegram, written by Major Bert S. Wemp, D.F.C., Telegram war correspondent at the front with the Canadians in Italy.

The story deals particularly with the job which three members of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment are doing of the job which they have done and the dangers braved. Two of the boys, Lance Corporal Kenneth Butler and Pte. John Coxton are from Belleville, while the third who is narrator of the story is Pte. Richard Wright of Bowmanville.

These boys advanced with the infantry in the face of thousands of bursting shells, six-barrel rocket mortar bombs coming down like hail and with machine gun and rifle fire adding to their problems. Once they were buried by an almost direct hit but they carried on and are carrying on.

Grim While it Lasted.

"They laugh about it today," reads the Telegram story, "but it was grim while it lasted. And due to such acts of heroism the Canadian advance up the Adriatic has been made possible. These lads are no exceptions, but represent what all our boys have been and are doing in the battles against the Germans in Italy."

The two Belleville boys enlisted in the H. & P. E. Regiment at the same time early in the war and went overseas in the summer of 1940. Cpl. Butler is the son of Mrs. Florence Butler of Trenton but has lived practically all his life with his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. E. G. Weeks, 5 Sandford Street, Belleville. Pte. Coxton is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Coxton, 300 Charles Street and has one other brother Roy, with the R.C.A.S.C. in Italy. A second brother Thomas was with the R.C.N. and was killed three years ago during the explosion of the Canadian ship Margee.

Pte. Wright's Story.

Here is part of Pte. Wright's story as told to the Telegram correspondent:

"We carry the radio and equipment on our backs and keep in communication with battalion headquarters when the ground cable goes out. Incidentally the radio set alone weighs about thirty-five pounds.

"Well, in that last big show the cable kept going out, sometimes cut by shells and bombs in ten and fifteen places at once. That meant the RCCS lads had to do all that repairing and while they were mending the lines we kept the radio going.

"In the first advance the battalion went down a long slope and found its way across a river. They withdrew again to the other side and waited for the attack, which came just at dusk.

Terrific Barrage.

"The artillery laid down a terrific barrage and away we went down and over the river. We gained our objective, but the tanks were unable to follow until a bridge was built. We gained the top of the first ridge and dug in. Protected to some extent by a row of machine guns, the engineers built a bridge and dawn saw the tanks on their way across to support us.

"The artillery and mortar fire was terrific, one shell landing just a few feet away, burying us in our slit trench. My rifle was broken. The mud and muck didn't make much difference, for we had crawled through plenty, including that mountain stream, but getting buried was a different matter.

"We helped each other dig out and then tried the radio. It was dead. One of the battalion lads, I don't know his name, but from Belleville way acted as a runner to battalion headquarters in the meantime. He did some fancy hopping, but got through on his trips okay.

"When we got straightened away we found we were all right and so was the radio with the exception of the valve. We asked the runner to get us a spare, which he did, and in short order we had our set working again.

"Between the lads operating the ground communications and ourselves we kept the companies in touch with headquarters."

"What happened then?" I asked.

"When daybreak came all hell broke loose, or that was the way it seemed to us," continued Wright.

Dead Cover Hill.

"We were dug in on top of the long slope and Huns were coming up the hill. Our boys laid into them in grand fashion and the whole hillside was covered with dead. Despite this, the enemy counterattacked, our lads mowing them down again. We held all the ground gained and the next night continued to advance, making some two miles altogether.

"A few nights later we again advanced and continued fighting for nearly five weeks, and going through almost the same conditions that I have described."

"How far do you think you crawled altogether?" I couldn't resist asking.

"Miles, brother, miles, and I'm not kidding when I say that—miles. I could be an expert farmer in this country after the war, for I know the soil so well, but Canada will look good to me when we finish here!"

No Excuse for Strikes Or Work Stoppage Says Green of A.F. of L.

Kansas City, Feb. 7 —(AP)— With the lives of fighting men at stake and victory hanging in the balance, there cannot be any justification or excuse for any strike or stoppage of work, William Green, American Federation of Labor President, today told delegates to the International Boilermakers' Union Convention.

"At this moment," Green said, "vast military movements are in progress and even greater drives are in preparation. Millions of American boys will be called upon to risk their lives in action against the enemy. Our soldiers, sailors and marines will fight courageously, unyielding and incessantly.

Workers Must Work in Same Spirit.

"The workers of America must work in the same spirit. When the lives of our sons and brothers and loved ones are at stake, when victory in this war against hated tyranny hangs in the balance, there cannot be any justification or excuse for any strike or stoppage of work.

"No matter how unjust conditions may become, no matter how sharp an aggravation may be, the members of the American Federation of Labor should realize that they must stay on the job and keep producing to the limit of their ability until final victory is won."

Some Concern Felt in London Over Bridgehead

By ROSS MUNRO
(CP War Correspondent)

London, Feb. 7. (CP Cable) — There is some concern here about the bridgehead battle south of Rome. Extremely strong German opposition has developed rapidly during the last few days and five enemy divisions are trying to break the Allied grip on the Anzio-Nettuno bridgehead.

The enemy force pressing on the Perimeter with infantry and tanks may be stronger than Allied formations which have been able to get into the battleline so far.

The Germans have thrown in some of the best troops they have in Italy and the battle may develop into one of touch and go such as developed at Salerno south of Naples last September.

By making the landing the Allies appear to have drawn off some opposition from the main 5th Army front, but it is still slow going in the Cassino area and a sudden breakthrough is not to be expected.

The whole operation does not seem to be going as well as anticipated and you get some worried looks in London when you ask about it. There is always a chance though that wily Marshal Kesslring may draw off and fight defensively again if his next few attempts to break the bridgehead fail.

He probably can not keep up the offensive on the bridgehead for long in view of commitments on the main 5th Army front and also on the Adriatic front where the British 8th Army is stirring again.

The Allied follow up of the easy surprise landing at Nettuno appears to have been too slow. Failure to make full use of the advantage of the complete surprise achieved and thrust right to Rome or at least well over the Appian way now is causing difficulties.

GEN. McNAUGHTON MAKES REPORT

Drives to Laurier House to See Canada's Prime Minister

Ottawa, Feb. 7—(CP)— Lt.-Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton, former commander of the Canadian Army Overseas, arrived in Ottawa late this morning by car and drove immediately to Laurier house to see Prime Minister Mackenzie King. Mrs. McNaughton accompanied him on the drive from the Seigniory Club, Montebello, Que., where he had been resting after his trip back from England.

Gen. McNaughton immediately made a report to the Prime Minister. After completion of their discussions Mrs. McNaughton was to join them for luncheon.

The General slipped quietly away from the club at about 9 a.m. and none of the staff saw him leave in an army staff car by a side entrance. It was known he would make an early report to the Prime Minister but the date had not been announced.

Gordon Graydon, Progressive House Leader, and M. J. Coldwell, C. C. F. Leader, made demands in the House of Commons Friday for an immediate statement on Gen. McNaughton.

The demand was made in the light of a newspaper report quoting Gen. McNaughton as saying there was nothing wrong with his health.

Prime Minister King said the government wanted to give the whole picture and that could best be done when army matters were before the House on the war appropriation bill. If the bill was not reached soon because of length of the throne speech debate, he promised to set aside a day for discussion of the matter.

B.W.I. DOMINION IS ADVOCATED

Extension of Democratic Rights to Peoples of Africa Urged at Conference

Toronto, Feb. 7. (CP)—Development of a Federation of the British West Indian Islands as a self-governing Dominion within the Commonwealth and the extension of democratic rights to the peoples of Africa were recommended at a weekend conference here under the auspices of the Fellowship for Christian Social Order.

The recommendations are to be forwarded to leaders of the Federal political parties, with a statement urging support in Canada's external affairs of the implementation of the Atlantic charter in relation to the Colonial areas of the world, particularly within the British Empire.

The conference also asked the extension of economic aid through an international agency to colonial areas for the purpose of raising the living standard of their peoples

Son's Letter Sent From Tokyo Says 'Not to Worry'

Geoffrey Marston, with the Royal Rifles at Hong Kong when it was captured by the Japanese on Christmas Day, 1941. It was the first message they had received from him.

During last summer Mr. and Mrs. Marston were officially notified he had been transferred from an internment camp at Hong Kong to Tokyo.

Praises Canada's National Health Plan

Toronto, Feb. 7 —(CP)— Dr. Henry Sigerist, Professor of the History of Medicine at Johns Hopkins University in Baltimore, said in an interview here today that the Canadian plan for national health insurance "is a great step forward, and progressive doctors in the United States welcome it because it will help us in our fight for organized services there."

Visiting Toronto to address a meeting tonight under the auspices of the Health League of Canada, Dr. Sigerist said "medical care should be free, just as education . . . the present situation of a person getting sick and then paying the doctor must be reversed; the doctor must be paid to see the man before he gets sick."

Man Tries to Pass Bogus $20 Bill At Local Theatre

Something of a new method of attempting to pass a bogus bill was tried in Belleville on Saturday evening, when one half of a twenty dollar bill was presented for admission to a local theatre. However, the alertness of the cashier thwarted the attempt.

A $20 bill had been split or sliced so that the party had both halves and if successful could have procured change for two twenty dollar bills, had the theatre cashier not have turned over the half tendered for a theatre admission.

The man, who was described as being about 40 years of age, standing about five feet seven inches and was wearing a green fedora hat. He merely placed the split bill down for admission with the engraving showing and the figures 20 quite predominate in each corner. However, the cashier happened to turn the bill over and was surprised to find it was blank on the reverse side. The man immediately seized the split bill and mumbled something about being "sorry" and hastened out of the theatre lobby. "Maybe he was sorry his attempt to pass the half bill had not been successful," commented police after being notified of the attempt.

The bill was a regular bank of Canada twenty dollar note and perfectly legal tender until the man split or sliced it sideways. Of course once tampered with, the bill immediately became bogus or without value.

Noted Dance Band Makes Return Visit

Returning to the Belleville district after an absence of several months which took him as far west as Vancouver, Mart Kenney and His Western Gentlemen, will broadcast their radio program for the Coca Cola Company from Deseronto R.C.A.F. Station tonight. The orchestra will come into Belleville following the broadcast and will play at a dance in the Belleville Armouries. Accompanying the band will be their featured singers, Veronica Foster and the popular baritone, Art Newman.

This popular Canadian orchestra has won recognition which has moved them up to a position in the music world next to many of the top ranking bands across the border, and the sponsors of their radio broadcast is to be complimented on their arrangement to have the band take to the air from army and air force stations, thus serving a double purpose. There are numerous difficulties encountered in these remote-control broadcasts quite unknown to the ordinary listener, but the members of the orchestra, the leader, Mart Kenney himself, and the technical staff which accompanies them on their tour, work smoothly and efficiently to ensure an even presentation to their unseen audience as well as to make the visual program of distinctive entertainment value wherever they play.

Stirring Tribute Paid to Memory Of Pte. Jos. Rowland by Rev. Eastman

A large congregation attended the Sunday morning service in Victoria Avenue Baptist Church, dedicated to the memory of Pte. Joseph Rowland, who was killed in action in Italy on December 16th, 1943.

"To many of you Joe was well known," said Rev. H. O. Eastman in his eulogy. "He grew up in the Sunday School and had made for himself a real place in the young life of the church. I hear Joe spoken of in kindly terms for his kindliness and happy disposition. His letters often expressed longing to get back home to friends in Canada. As we pay our tribute of memory this morning, we also desire to express our sympathy to Mrs. Rowland in England. We shall send her this meeting's expression of sympathy, and to Mr. Arthur Rowland and his friends here with us."

Reviewing the nerve-wracking years leading up to 1939, when the world's peace was menaced by great powers who were ready to unloose frightful cruelty upon small nations, the pastor continued:

"The honest endeavors of Britain's prime minister ended in betrayal and when Hitler marched his men into Poland the war was on, laying waste the loveliest cities on earth and costing the blood of millions of the finest this world has produced in manhood.

"In that awful hour of need stepped young men like Joe Rowland. They who were free and often carefree, by the signing of their names, gave up their freedom for the duration. They were not their own after that. They were men of the King's forces. They were under orders. It must have been a hard and lonely business at times. But they were soldiers and at last, in the supreme hour of testing, Joe gave up forever his chance of home and loved ones.

'I do not know how Joe made it all fit into his philosophy but you and I know all this was not that we might go on in self-indulgence and selfish sabotage; rather that we might have right and privilege to live our lives and make our contribution to the healing of the world's wounds, under the freedom which is ours by right.

"You and I have enlisted in the service of the King of Kings. We are not our own. We realize that Jesus only is able to meet the need of this hour. He has left to us the task of bringing the men and women round about us to a knowledge of the only one who is adequate for the healing of the nations. We must put on the whole armour of God and fight the good fight, looking unto Jesus, the Captain of our salvation. Really busy soldiers are always co-operative. It is only when we are not doing our Lord's commands that we have time for negative action that sabotages the influence of the Christian church and weakens the offensive. Sometimes it's lonely and discouraging. What do we need, if we are to let Jesus meet our world's need through us?

"I see a vision of a group of men gathered on the hillside. They, too, are discouraged. One is gone. His going was a tragic affair. It was concerned with a cross-crowned hill top. And then the circle is completed. They hear Him issue words of reassurance and command: "Lo, I am with you all the days." In His presence their hearts are lifted up. That little band has multiplied many times until millions have girdled the earth. Yet the task is unfinished. There await us many discouragements and many vacant chairs. What we need is the realization of Christ's presence. If He is with us we can not fail.

"This morning Joe has been in our memory. Perhaps you have seen him in his accustomed place. You are aware that he has paid the supreme sacrifice for the cause of liberty and freedom. Oh, that we may gather courage to go on with the task, to finish it or die. We may see Jesus in our midst and find a burning passion which will carry us on to victory."

A fine solo was given by Miss Phyllis May and the choir was heard in the anthem "O Valiant Hearts." The pulpit was decorated with the Union Jack and a magnificent array of lilies, donated by Mr. W. G. Rowland.

Argyll Chapter Re-elects Officers, Past Year One of Great Activity

The regular annual business meeting of Argyll Chapter I.O.D.E., was held in the Officers' Mess of the Armouries on Thursday at which the annual report of the year's activities was given.

Mrs. B. C. Donnan, regent of the Chapter, was in the chair.

A motion was passed that the slate of officers remain the same as last year with the addition of Mrs. H. R. Gibson as co-convener and Mrs. Shiels on war work.

The report of the year's activities showed a very active and successful year. Two tag days were held, one in May, one in October. There were also a rummage sale in May and one in September at which the receipts were very gratifying.

Weekly sewing meetings were held and many garments completed and sent to I.O.D.E. headquarters. Thanks are due to the Auxiliary Group for their assistance in this work. Many knitted articles were turned in and used clothing was sent to victims of war in Britain.

Boxes containing food and field comforts were sent to the officers from the Argylls overseas in April and again at Christmas. Numerous ditty bags were filled by the Chapter at Christmas time as well.

On three occasions fish dinners were provided for the Old Folks' Home and they were remembered at Christmas time.

The Chapter's donations during the year were generous and widely distributed. They included contributions to The Chinese Relief, The Kinsmen's Fag Fund, The Prisoners of War Fund, Polish Relief, Russian Relief Service Centre Fund, The Salvation Army, The Victorian Order of Nurses, The Endowment Fund, The Sailors' and Minesweepers' Fund and the Blanket Fund.

Chapter members served in the canteen of the Blood Clinic in February and again in August with donations to the Clinic of a toaster, dishes and tea towels.

In August the Chapter took a collection at a band concert on the Armouries lawn. The Annual Argyll I.O.D.E. scholarship was presented at the Belleville Collegiate. A wreath was placed on the Cenotaph on Remembrance Day as is the custom.

The annual bridge tea and sale of homecooking proved very successful.

In April the Chapter decided to "adopt a ship" and was allotted the H.M.C.S. "Snowberry", a corvette which has recently seen gallant action in the Bay of Biscay. Magazines, books, and comforts as well as some clothing, have been sent to the "Snowberry" and a cablegram of congratulations has been sent from the Chapter to the members of the crew for their brave and gallant recent encounter.

The slate of officers returned to office for 1944 is as follows:

Hon. Regent—Mrs. P. H. Wills; Regent, Mrs. B. C. Donnan; 1st Vice Regent, Mrs. H. Alford; Secretary, Mrs. K. Scott; Treasurer, Mrs. G. Miller; War Work Convener, Mrs. L. Shiels; Co-convener, Mrs. H. P. Gibson; Wool Convener, Mrs. J. A. Lazier; Social Secretary, Mrs. H. Holway; Assistants Secretary, Mrs. Morgan and Mrs. Keeler; Standard Bearer, Mrs. Keel; Flower Convener, Mrs. Joyce.

Fistic Encounter Lands Man in Jail

Following complaints regarding a fistic encounter at the Bell Billiards, Front Street, Saturday night one Melbourne Barriage, College Street, was subsequently arrested by police and originally held on a nominal holding charge. However, later police discovered four cartons of cigarettes in a basket near the scene where the original fight took place. Billiard room proprietors knew nothing of the cartons of cigarettes and today Chief Probert announced Barriage was being held on a theft count. "The entire matter is being more thoroughly probed," added police authorities.

At the scene of the original fight the plate glass door window was shattered after it is alleged by police that Barriage became uncontrollable and after attacking one or two of the pool room customers left the premises before police could arrive and broke the door glass while slamming the door going out. When police arrived at Barriage's home he was engaged in difficulties with his family.

Police are holding both the cigarettes and Barriage for further investigations.

The women both are workers at the John Inglis plant in Western Toronto—Patricia Brand and Mrs. Edith Harper. Police said the motive of the attacks is obscure, as there apparently was no attempt at rape.

Miss Brand was attacked first, as she crossed railroad tracks near the Inglis plant about 7.20 a.m. Police said she ran, but was overtaken thrown to the ground, her glasses broken, eyes blackened, and body bruised by repeated kicks. About 20 minutes later Mrs. Harper was attacked in approximately the same spot, and was punched in the face so hard that police said she may lose the sight of an eye.

CIRCLES OF DEATH FACE TRAPPED GERMANS

Russians Narrow Pockets, Cut Down Thousands of Foe

Stormovick Planes Rake Streets of Nikopol Where Nazis Are Bottled-Up

NO QUARTER GIVEN

By EDDY GILMORE
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

London, Feb. 8 (CP)—The Red Army has liquidated the German bridgehead at Nikopol, manganese centre in the Dnieper Bend, Moscow announced tonight.

The Nikopol bridgehead was the last place held by the Germans on the east bank of the Dnieper.

In a four-day offensive the Russians "inflicted heavy defeat on seven enemy infantry divisions," said an order of the day by Marshal Stalin, broadcast from Moscow and recorded by the Soviet Monitor.

Moscow, Feb. 8 (AP) — The situation confronting 15 German divisions trapped in the Dnieper Bend grew steadily more desperate today as the Red army cut down thousands of the Axis troops and narrowed the circles of death around the enemy forces at Nikopol and Cherkasy.

At the same time Russian and German troops fought without quarter in the outskirts of the rich manganese centre of Nikopol into which the Red army penetrated yesterday. As the bewildered Germans fell back before the fierceness of the Soviet onslaught, other troops of Gen. Rodio Y. Malinovsky's 3rd. Ukrainian army came to grips with the remnants of five fast-firing divisions effectively trapped in the Dnieper marshlands outside the city.

5 Fortified Towns Taken

One hundred miles north of Nikopol, the 1st. and 2nd. Ukrainian armies under Gen. Nikolai Vatutin and Gen. Ivan. S. Konev reduced the Nazi-held Cherkasy pocket to approximately 40 square miles by capturing five fortified towns within its outer fringe, among them Novo-Pavlovka, three miles from Nikopol's centre.

The Russians planted their artillery within shelling range of German airfields which heretofore had offered the sole means of escape to survivors of the 100,000 troops originally penned in the Russian death trap.

Nikopol's defenders resorted to every trick they knew to stop the Soviet onslaught. They were fighting with dug-in tanks and self propelled guns at the city's approaches, but were outflanked and crushed at every point, a Russian communique said. Rail escape routes are in the hands of the Russians, and Red army artillery is shelling main highways to the west, the communique said.

Great Disorder.

A front line dispatch said great disorder prevailed in bottled-up Nikopol, with the streets clogged with loaded trucks and the cars of German officers as the Russians cut off the garrison from escape to the west while on the east other Red army units battered their way into the city.

The dispatch reported the "slaughter" of German troops who tried to escape across the mud flats of the Dnieper south and southwest of Nikopol.

Low-flying Stormoviks continuously raked the streets of the city with deadly fire. Izvesta said there were 22 wrecked German tanks and 1,600 dead at the gates of the city.

Giving the first detailed information on the Germans in the bridgehead on the southern side of the Dnieper opposite Nikopol, the newspaper Izvesta said these forces sought to retreat into the city across muddy roads but failed as Soviet artillery blasted communications day and night.

Nazi Command in Panic.

Captives said the German command in Nikopol was in panic as it was cut off in the same manner as the five divisions to the east.

Izvestia told of the plight of the Germans in the Upper Bend of the Dnieper Bend where the Russians are closing their steel ring around what remains of 10 divisions and at the same time handing heavy defeats to German forces trying to reach them from the outside.

Captives Oscar Apellt and Fritz Reiter told of a scene of horror within the ring where the ground is littered with corpses and the night full of the cries of wounded and dying. Apellt said his regiment had been reduced to a battalion and Reiter said his regiment was made up of the remnants of three regiments.

They said their former basis of one meal a day had been reduced to whatever could be dropped from the air.

8,122 JAPANESE DEAD IN INVASION OF THE MARSHALLS

U. S. Uses Most Powerful Fleet Ever Thrown Into Battle

FINE AIR SUPPORT

By WILLIAM HIPPLE
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Pearl Harbor, Feb. 8. (AP)—The most powerful American fleet ever thrown into battle, an air force which drove the enemy from the skies and deadly accurate artillery fire struck with such co-ordinated fury in the Marshalls invasion that only 286 invaders were slain, against 8,122 Japanese.

Admiral Chester W. Nimitz announced the figures yesterday. From all sources, in explanation of this success, the stress was on the preparatory attacks.

"I've never seen anything like that air and sea bombardment", said Commander Anthony Kimmins, British Royal Navy Observer who has been through the African and Sicilian campaigns.

The first observer to return from the invasion scene, Commander Kimmins said the first was so deadly that the ground troops had little to do but mop up.

RELAYS OF ALLIED PLANES LASH OUT AT WEST GERMANY

Daylight Assaults Are Apparently Aimed at Invasion Coast of Northern France

AIRFIELDS ATTACKED

London, Feb. 8. (CP)—Relays of Allied planes including R.A.F. Typhoons and Hurricanes and U.S. Marauders lashed out at continental targets early today after R.A.F. Mosquito bombers struck at unspecified objectives in Western Germany last night for the sixth time in seven nights.

The daylight raids apparently were aimed at the invasion coast of Northern France.

In addition to bombing Western Germany, the R.A.F. night raiders attacked enemy airfields in Northern France, an Air Ministry communique said. The overnight operations were carried out without loss.

Residents on the English coast saw strong formations streaking out toward Northern France early in the day and planes were observed returning from the direction of Calais an hour later.

Shortly before their return another strong force, apparently composed of fighters, crossed the Channel at high altitude.

Perfect bombing weather prevailed in the Channel area.

Dogs Form Chain And Rescue Mate From St. Lawrence

Ottawa, Feb. 8—(CP)—Alderman Harold Haylor said at city council's meeting last night that on a visit to a Beauharnois, Que., paper mill he noticed four dogs playing on the ice of the St. Lawrence River.

One fell into open water. The largest of his playmates crawled toward him. Another one grabbed the big dog's tail and pulled. The big dog grabbed the smaller dog by and ear, flipped it out of the water on to the ice.

"The wet dog picked a spot in the full sunshine," he said. "The two other small dogs lay down close beside him and the big dog covered him. They stayed this way for about eight or 10 minutes, drying him off and they all got up and ran away."

Belleville Boys Attend N.C.O. School Within Shelling Distance of Front

By DOUGLAS AMARON
(CP War Correspondent)

With Canadian Forces in Italy, Feb. 8—(CP)—A school for non-commissioned officers where soldiers come down from the line for two weeks' freshening up and training is being run by a Canadian infantry brigade within shelling distance of the Adriatic front. Commanded by Maj. A. F. Mitchell, a permanent force soldier from Scotland who joined the Canadian army in St. John, Que., the school handles about 100 men a course, most of them privates whom their officers believe are prospective N.C.O.'s and the others lance corporals and corporals.

Maj. Mitchell said one of the main purposes of the school is to teach the soldiers management of men. They have proved themselves good soldiers in the field, but they lack the necessary training to command men on the barracks square.

"A man may be a hero on the battlefield and still not be a good N.C.O.," Mitchell said. The school builds self confidence, emphasizes drill, spit and polish, regimental traditions, alertness and other qualities from which emerge leadership.

Courses on Weapons

There are elementary and advanced courses on weapons, use of ground, first-aid, map reading, concealment and camouflage, field cookery. They are "old stuff" to most of the men but there are many points they may have forgotten.

Lectures freshen their memories and lessons of the recent fighting bring the teaching right up-to-date. About one quarter of the course is devoted to drills and principles and another quarter to applying them.

There are lectures from officers in other branches of the service, artillery, tanks, engineers, and on one recent course a tank was brought to the school and the men learned from the crew about the tank itself and armored warfare generally.

At the end of the course, the soldiers return to their units, not necessarily as N.C.O.'s but to whatever post they held before. The school is not intended to train N.C.O.'s for immediate use, but to provide a sound background for men who later may be called upon to lead.

Soldiers Enjoy Break

The soldiers enjoy the break from front line life and the opportunity to brush up on things they have forgotten and to gain more knowledge.

Cpl. S. G. Seruby, Belleville, Ont., liked it because he learned something new about map reading. Other men who have been to the school include Ptes. E. H. Brown, Guelph, Ont., T. J. Holland, Belleville, Cpls. Robert Wright, Marmora, Ont., Steve Moore, Sudbury, Ont., Paul Boulaine, Brantford, Ont. L. Cpls. Alex Devitt, Toronto and Bobcaygeon, Ont., Aurel Mercier, Cornwall, Ont.

26 Killed, 43 Wounded When Nazi Plane Bombs U. S. Hospital in Italy

(BY REYNOLDS PACKARD, DISTRIBUTED BY CP)

On the Anzio Beachhead, Feb. 8 — A German plane dive-bombed an American evacuation hospital at 3:30 p.m. yesterday, killing 26 and wounding 43, including a number of American nurses.

The killed included two women nurses, four doctors, four wounded soldiers who had just been carried in from the front, and 16 men attached to the hospital unit.

Among the 43 wounded were 12 women nurses, three of whom were in grave condition last night.

The German dive-bomber, which eye-witnesses said came in as low as 500 feet, dropped eight small anti-personnel bombs which sent shrapnel whistling through two hospital receiving tents, one evacuation tent, two ward tents, an X-ray tent and an operating tent where operations even then were under way.

Shrapnel also perforated tents where a number of women nurses were sleeping on cots after doing night duty. Three ambulances were struck.

(A dispatch from John Lardner, another American war correspondent in Italy, estimated the number of wounded at "at least 64" and emphasized that the hospital was "on a naked plain a full mile from any military installations." The hospital tents were clearly marked with red crosses, Lardner said.)

Expect Nettuno Beachhead To Weather Attacks Though Some Uneasiness Is Felt

By WILLIAM FRYE
Associated Press Staff Writer

Washington, Feb. 8 — (AP) — The Nettuno beachhead in Italy is sure to be hit by a savage and powerful German counter-attack, military observers here said today, but it probably will weather the storm.

But there is a certain amount of uneasiness here about the situation, although no evidence of alarm.

This attitude raises the question: Why didn't the troops who achieved tactical surprise and brilliant success in their landings thrust quickly into the interior, slashing German communications and occupying the heights — why are they now in the position of merely consolidating their beachhead against expected counter-attacks?

The answers, from various quarters, reach into the whole campaign in Italy, but can be fairly well pinned down to one word — supply.

Anzio and Nettuno provide no port facilities worthy of the name —the supply is by barge and landing-boat literally across the beaches, a complicated job at best, and particularly so when the weather is bad, as it has been part of the time.

What of suggestions that rapid thrusts by armored columns could have cut the Appian Way, perhaps driven the Germans from the heights around the beachhead, possibly have reached to the Casilini Way?

When tanks have been put ashore with their crews, getting enough drum gasoline rolling through the surf and stored in fuel drums is another matter. Setting up and operating the truck lines to follow the tanks and carry their gasoline from the dumps is still another.

The armored columns alone could not have held any gains they might have made.

London, Feb. 8. (CP)— Growing disappointment over the situation developing around the Anzio beachhead in Italy was reflected today in London newspaper editorials suggesting that perhaps the Allies may have been over-cautious about pushing forward after their initial landings.

"By contrast with the breath-taking Russian successes", the Daily Herald said. "Italy is a disappointment. . . .The initiative for a time has passed to the enemy. We do not yet know enough to criticize or account for this state of affairs. Yet the feeling cannot be resisted that prudence weighted too heavily in the scale and that greater boldness might have been rewarded".

The Times of London commented:—

"It has been asked whether opportunities have ben missed during the first phase of the Italian operation. The real question raised has been concerned with the possibility, at the first onset, of ranging the country inland with light and mobile forces which might eventually have been pushed back into the beachhead but not— it would at least seem credible—until they had sown destruction and confusion over miles of vital German communications".

The Daily Express said that "in the Battle for Rome it is now clear that things are not going as well as could be hoped", but added:

"Anyone who can read a map will make no comparison between the Russian sweeps through flat and undulating country and the tight 'setpiece' fighting in the Italian Alps and flooded river valleys.

"Our success in Italy depends almost entirely upon the number of Germans killed and not the miles covered".

12-Year-Old Boy Drunk in School

Windsor, Feb. 8 — (CP) — Windsor police were faced today with one of the most startling juvenile delinquency problems within their recollection when they found, upon investigation of a 12-year-old boy found by his school principal to be drunk in a classroom, that the boy had used liquor often previously.

Police said the boy had part of a bottle of whisky with him in the classroom when his condition was discovered by the principal. The case was turned over to juvenile court after police, on further investigation, reported that the boy's mother is a war-worker in adjacent Detroit and his sister and father have criminal records.

SPAIN RELEASES 6 OF 7 ITALIAN MERCHANT SHIPS

One Held Because Of Dispute — Seven In Balearic Ports Under Negotiations

DEMANDS OF ALLIES

London, Feb. 8—(CP)—It was announced here today that six of the seven Italian merchantships in continental Spanish ports have been released by the Madrid government and that three of them have sailed. The seventh is still held because of a dispute over ownership.

Negotiations are in progress concerning seven others in ports of the Spanish Balearic islands.

Negotiations on Italian warships are reported being handled separately and so far none have been released.

Demands for release of the ships, interned at the time of the Italian capitulation, had been made by the British and United States governments.

Negotiations concerning the seven ships in the Balearics concerns their ownership. It is understood that Spain claims she bought them but the validity of the sale have been questioned.

The release of the six ships which had been in Spanish ports occurred after the Duke of Alba, Spanish Ambassador to London, returned to Madrid a week ago. The action was regarded here as an indication that Anglo-American pressure on Spain for strict neutrality was bringing results.

Ordnance Plant At Bangkok Hit

Chungking, Feb. 8—(AP)—United States heavy bombers poured three tons of bombs on an ordnance plant at Bangkok Saturday night, starting many fires, Allied headquarters announced today.

Medium bombers flew into French Indo-China Sunday, destroyed railroad bridges and trains, strafing industrial buildings, and blowing up a locomotive at Dong Hoi, a communique added.

Revised reports on Saturday's sea sweep off the southeast coast of China by heavy and medium bombers indicate five freighters were sunk, two probably sunk and two others damaged, for a record one day's bag. Two planes were missing from the operations.

Consolidate Gains

New Delhi, Feb. 8—(CP)— Allied troops have consolidated their gains near Tiddim in the Chin Hills sector of Burma, and twice have ambushed Japanese troops, inflicting considerable casualties, a communique from Admiral Lord Louis Mountbatten's Southeast Asia command said today.

Allied heavy and medium bombers staged damaging raids Saturday on the Heho and Aungban airfields 90 miles southeast of Mandalay, the bulletin said, and attacked other Japanese airdromes.

Modern 'Charge of Light Brigade' Sealed Fate of Nazis at El Alamein

London, Feb. 8 — (CP) — The War Office has released the official story of the modern "Charge of the Light Brigade" — the drive through massed German artillery by tanks of the Royal Wiltshire Yeomanry, at Tel El Aqaquir in November, 1942.

The charge is credited with sealing the Germans' defeat at El Alamein, historic turning point for the Eighth Army.

Lined up along a narrow front of about 500 yards, the tanks, with the 3rd King's Own Hussars on their right, waited the signal to charge less than three quarters of a mile from the screen of German 77mm. anti-tank guns manned by fresh troops of the 90th Light Division.

When a mighty artillery barrage lifted, the tanks went into the charge "with all the dash and spirit of the Light Brigade at Calaclava." They roared on through the German fire, not stopping once until the German guns were overrun. As one Yeomanary major said with an air of finality: "We drove straight through them and that's about all we did."

Before the situation had cleared, the Wiltshires threw back a counter-attack by the 15th Panzer division — then the march to Tripoli was on.

Heavy Artillery Duel Is Prelude To Major Battle

British, U.S. Troops Consolidate Posts, Nazis Strengthen Their Forces

BATTLE AT CASSINO

By EDWARD KENNEDY
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Algiers, Feb. 8 (AP) — Waves of German planes struck in heavy attack yesterday at the Allied invasion beachhead south of Rome, Allied headquarters here announced today, and thunderous artillery shelling continued in prelude to an impending major battle.

One Nazi dive-bomber hit an American evacuation hospital, killing 26 and wounding 43 persons, including United States nurses, front dispatches said. The hospital was plainly marked and lay a mile from any military target.

British and United States troops further consolidated their positions in the bridgehead, and the Germans strengthened their force thrown around the invasion area. Patrols were active, but there were no major land attacks by either side, headquarters added.

Grim fighting continued in the streets of Cassino and southeast, and the mountains around the town. Despite fierce attacks by Americans who have nearly surrounded the town, the Nazis still held three-quarters of it, and kept open a corridor to their rear lines.

(Infantry units have pushed to within 100 yards of the summit of Mount Cassino west of the town, the Algiers radio said. The famous Benedictine Monastery is on the crest of the hill.)

Five hundred Germans have been captured by United States troops in the Cassino area.

Formations Broken Up

The Germans threw strong relays of bomb-carrying Focke-Wulfs over the Rome area beachhead, and fighters intercepted them. Some dropped bombs on Allied troops, but most of the formations were broken up before reaching their objectives.

Headquarters disclosed the Germans had used flame-throwers, tanks, and other weapons in their last major effort against the beach head—an attack Saturday night west of Cisterna.

Twenty-four German planes and two gliders were shot down during the day in all Italian operations, against loss of five Allied aircraft. Nineteen of the German planes were destroyed over the bridgehead.

Heavy artillery barrages continued in the Cassino area, but field reports said the intensity of street fighting in the town itself slackened yesterday, with troops of both sides wearied by battle.

Americans Make New Gains

Americans made new gains on Mount Cassino, fighting up its northern slopes against numerous German pillboes and machine-gun nests. The Germans resisted fiercely because the hill dominates Cassino and their corridor in it. There was no indication here as to whether the Germans were using the famous monastery there as part of their defences.

1,458 DIE IN EARTHQUAKE

Over 20 Million Chinese Reported Facing Starvation

Chungking, Feb. 8—(AP)— More than 20,000,000 Chinese are facing starvation as the result of Japanese oppression in enemy-held areas of once thriving Hopei province in North China, Chinese reports said today.

Many areas have become Wasteland through Japanese destruction of irrigation works, forced purchase of crops at low prices and the intensified conscription of the Chinese population for labor service.

FIRE DESTROYS 27 SMALL R.C.A.F. TRAINING PLANES

Two Hangars, Repair Shops at Barker Airfield Are Burned

$370,000 DAMAGE

Toronto, Feb. 8 —(CP)— L. J. Tripp, manager of Fireswept Barker Airfield in suburban Toronto, said today the blaze which levelled two hangars and repair shops at the field this morning destroyed 27 R. C. A. F. Tiger Moths, training aircraft being repaired at Barker field on government contract.

He said an earlier damage estimate of about $370,000 "may be a little high." The aircraft cost about $7,000 each, he said, which would be a total of about $189,000. The balance of the heavy damage was done to buildings and equipment. Mr. Tripp said he could not give a clear estimate of the damage yet.

While he spoke, Royal Canadian Mounted Police and officials of the Ontario Fire Marshal's Department began their investigation of the disastrous blaze, which first was noticed in a woodworking section of the repair plant. Firemen from three Toronto suburbs, York Township, North York and Weston, fought the fire for five hours before bringing it under control.

Housed for Repair

Most of the planes destroyed had been housed for repair in a shed at the north end of the repair plant, and the flames were carried there rapidly by a strong wind. District residents helped airfield employees remove some of the planes to safety, but the rapidity with which the fire spread cut short these rescue operations.

Discovered by Watchman

The fire was discovered by a night watchman, but by the time he had called the North York Fire Department the entire woodworking section was a mass of flames. North York firemen, joined rapidly by those from the other two suburbs, failed in attempts to confine the fire to the woodworking section because of the strong wind.

An official at the Patterson and Hill airfield, adjacent to Barker Field, said that one of the Patterson and Hill planes was set ablaze by flying sparks and that all planes in his firm's hangars were threatened for a time before the blaze finally was controlled.

PARTIES AMICABLY SETTLE DAMAGES

As a coal truck driven by Arthur Bourette, 92 East Moira Street, was emerging from the Conger Coal yard on Pinnacle Street, George Duesberry, 49 Dundas St. E, was driving his motor car past yesterday afternoon with the result the two vehicles collided. The only material damage resulting was to the rear fender of Mr. Duesberry's car and the matter was settled between the parties concerned, police learned.

MAY ORDER PARENTS TO MAKE RESTITUTION

Boys of adolesent age broke and entered the premises of the W. Black and Son, wholesale fish market, South Front Street, some time Sunday and caused considerable malicious damage. Today city police procured the names of seven small boys, who are believed responsible. They were instructed to report to the Chief Constable after school hours today.

Entrance was made by forcing a rear door. Once inside the building the boys literally damaged practically everything that was movable on the premises. Doors were battered down, windows shattered and other articles on the premises damaged in general. Restitution may be ordered from the boys' parents, police added.

TRUCK HIT TWICE IN 30-MINUTE PERIOD

Walter Mink, of Brighton, has reasons to fear driving his truck in Belleville anytime in the future. Yesterday his truck was struck twice within a 30-minute period and on neither occasion was Mr. Mink at fault, police reported.

First he had parked his truck near the National Grocers on Pinnacle Street when a Canada Packers transport backed into the front of his vehicle. As he left the parking spot and proceeded homeward a truck driven by Morley Smith, city, skidded slightly on Front Street and sideswiped Mr. Mink's truck. In both cases the other drivers assumed the blame for the minor damage resulting, but Mr. Mink was quite skeptical regarding a third crack-up.

Child Is Injured When Sleigh Hit By Skidding Car

While enjoying a sleigh riding party with other children, 13-year-old Joan Knox, 20 Parker St., sustained head bruises and general shock, when the horse-drawn sleigh on which she was riding was struck by an automobile on West Moira St., early Monday evening. Fortunately no other child on the sleigh riding party was injured, despite the fact a motor car driven by Kenneth R. Bush, Trenton, skidded nearly 200 feet on the icy pavement before the vehicle collided with the rear of the sleigh.

Bush told investigating police he was driving his car easterly on Moira Street, when he observed several children run across the street. He immediately applied the brakes of the vehicle, but as the street was quite icy at that particular spot the car skidded into the rear of the sleigh resulting in over $100 damage to the headlights, knee action, radiator and front of the car.

The sleigh and team of horses were being driven along the side of the street by James Archer, 88 Purdy Street., who kept his team under control despite the heavy impact. The harness was damaged when the horses bolted, however.

Ceilings Set On Imported Fruit And Vegetables

Ottawa, Feb. 8 —(CP)— The Prices Board today announced establishment of price ceilings on 49 kinds of imported fruits and vegetables—based on the United States price ceiling if one exists or on the price paid by the importer.

The main group affected by today's order includes artichokes, asparagus, broccoli, brussels sprouts, beans, cauliflower, celery, cucumbers, egg-plant, endive, lettuce, parsley, peas, peppers, radishes, rhubarb, shallots, spinach, sweet potatoes, watercress, yams, apricots, cranberries, nectarines, pomegranates, persimmons, quince, canteloupes, cherries, limes, melons, pineapples, tomatoes, raspberries, strawberries and tangerines.

"On each of these items, when imported by a wholesale distributor, a maximum mark-up of 17 per cent of his selling price is permitted," the Board said.

"When they are imported by a retailer buying directly in carlots, a maximum mark-up of 41 per cent of his selling price is allowed, while other retailers are permitted to add a mark-up of 35 per cent of their selling price."

On tomatoes and watermelons the mark-up is not to exceed 25 per cent, 44 per cent and 35 per cent respectively.

Board officials said the mark-ups were computed to make allowances for shrinkage, wastage and other factors.

R. T. Norridge Struck by Car; Leg Fractured

Yesterday 40-year-old R. T. Norrige, R.R. No. 3, Belleville, was engaged as a chef at the Belleville General Hospital. Today Mr. Norridge is a patient in the same institution and he's suffering from a fractured right leg and painful internal injuries sustained, when struck by a motor car on the Rednersville Road early Monday evening.

It seems yesterday afternoon Mr. Norridge's motor car ran out of petrol, while he was driving to his work at the hospital. Leaving his car alongside of the road two miles west of Rossmore, Mr. Norridge procured a ride to Belleville. After six o'clock he procured a gallon can of gasoline and was given a ride to the scene of his stalled car by a neighbor, Mrs. Teney, R.R. No. 1, Belleville.

However, as Mr. Norridge was alighting from Mrs. Teney's car another automobile, being driven westerly on the Rednersville Road by John Goodman, Carrying Place, collided with the rear of Mrs. Teney's car and then skidded with such force, that Goodman's car continued through to strike Norridge and hurl him into the ditch, where he sustained his injuries.

Provincial Constable J. J. Hatch investigated the matter and today stated that a charge of dangerous driving had been preferred against Mr. Goodman.

Pte. D. F. Thomas Dies of Wounds

Bancroft, Feb. 8 — Private Donald Frederick Thomas, 18-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. William Thomas of Bancroft died of wounds January 29th of this year as a result of action with the Canadian forces now in Italy.

Donald enlisted with the Prince of Wales Own Rifles on April 20, 1942, only training in Canada six months, going overseas in September of the same year.

The family had received a letter just prior to receiving a telegram of Donald's death, from their other son, Eddy, who informed the parents at that time that Donald was fine. Eddy enlisted with the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment and has been overseas three years ago last August and is now twenty-two years of age.

The father is also a war seasoned soldier having fought through the First Great War and also tried to go overseas in the present conflict but was turned down medically. He was not contented with his failure to go overseas with his sons so he enlisted in "A" Company 2nd (R) Bn. of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment spending nearly two years with the unit before he transferred into the Veterans Guard being in service with that unit for ten months after which he was honorably discharged, medically unfit.

J. G. Sills Honored By Friends on His 75th Birthday

Foxboro, Feb. 8—On February 5, Mr. J. G. Sills, of Foxboro, saw the seventy-fifth anniversary of his birth. The occasion was celebrated by a large company of invited guests and relatives, and the more immediate members of his family in the form of a surprise party.

The early part of the evening was spent in social intercourse and later a lunch was served by Mr. Sills' daughters and granddaughters and this followed by congratulatory speeches. At the request of Mr. Roy Sills, Col. Roscoe Vanderwater acted as master-of-ceremonies. Short speeches were made by Dr. Demorest, Charles Vanderwater, Everett Sills, W. E. Tummon, Rev. E. M. Cook, Earl Denyes, Roy Sills and Frank Parkes. These were fittingly and feelingly replied to by Mr. Sills. He was the recipient of many useful presents and also of many others that are perhaps more pleasing, even to two large boxes of matches. Mr. Sills is a past warden of Hastings County and pleasant recollections were recalled of the time when W. E. Tummon, Chas. Vanderwater and J. G. Sills sat on the council together. He has lived retired in Foxboro for some years but maintains a keen interest in current affairs, especially political movements and agriculture. His son, Roy and grandsons still carry on the Sills' tradition in farming on the homestead in the Zion Hill district. Mr. Sills apparently enjoys good health and commands the loyalty of a wide circle of friends as well as the affection of his immediate family who, besides other gifts, presented him with a beautiful occasional chair.

Mr. and Mrs. E. Sills Congratulated

Mention was made and congratulations tendered to Mr. and Mrs. Everett Sills who, as the party broke up, saw the dawn of the fifty-fifth anniversary of their wedding day.

It was also the pleasure of the gathering to wish Mr. E. Tummon happy felicitations on his birthday which was the 6th of the month.

His return is due to the fact that he has been permitted to carry out his old ambition—to train for an air crew. In the meantime he is spending a month's furlough at his home here. He has put on weight since residing in England, which he says is a fine land with only the fog and rain proving at times disagreeable. ## Japanese Warned War Is Reaching 'An Acute Stage'

New York, Feb. 8 — (AP) — The Tokyo radio informed the Japanese people today that swift American blows had plunged the Central Pacific war "into an acute phase" that is moving with amazing speed toward "a battle on which the world hangs in the balance."

"Enemy America is impatiently eager for a speedy, decisive battle in the Pacific," the broadcast, recorded by United States government monitors, said.

"The broadcast claimed that "bitter fighting" continued in the Marshalls, but gave no specific information.

The broadcast added:

"We must not overlook the fact, too, that the enemy is active also in the North Pacific, the South Pacific and the Indian Ocean as well as in the continental areas of India, Burma and China with a plan of attack based on large-scale strategic aims."

The broadcast concluded with a plea to the Japanese home front for a speedy increase in "all material fighting strength, whether it be planes or ships."

Referring to United States war production, the radio declared that "if the enemy's war production expands further and reaches a state of being able to overwhelm us, it is inevitable that srtategic air battles will take place on all fronts, including the Japanese mainland.

"Air power is a power exceeding any other power which seeks to capture other sea or land regions."

8,122 JAPANESE,

Both Commander Kimmins and William L. Worden, Associated Press War Correspondent, observed the preparatory firing was so complete that the shore was lined with dead fish. Worden couldn't even be sure there had been grass on the ground.

May Be Driven Off Marshalls.

Capture of Kwajalein may go far toward driving the Japanese from all the Marshalls.

Maj.-Gen. Holland Smith, who directed all marine and army ground troops in the Kwajalein operations, told Leif Erickson, Associated Press war correspondent aboard a warship in the Atoll lagoon, that the invaders have severed supply arteries of the Japanese in the Marshalls.

Kwajalein affords both excellent airfield and harbor facilities. Using it as a base and possibly expanding to any other desirable islands nearby, the Allies can prepare for a large-scale blow at the Carolines, in the centre of which the enemy's naval bastion, Truk, is located.

The whole Marshall group, which the Japanese held for more than 20 years, is a major factor in opening a sea line westward and eventually separating Japan from her rich, stolen empire in the Dutch East Indies.

JAP ADMIRAL KILLED

Rotary Speaker Pessimistic As to India Being Able To Govern Under Own Rule

Dr. A. E. Armstrong, Mission Secretary of the United Church, States India Not Ready for Home Rule

CHINA PRAISED

Speaking before members of the local Rotary Club on present day problems confronting the people of India and China, Dr. A. E. Armstrong, foreign mission secretary for the United Church, on Monday expressed a pessimistic opinion that the 400 millions of people in India could successfully govern themselves despite the fact they have been promised their political freedom following the war.

"The first essentiality of self-rule is unity and loyality to the same cause," stated Dr. Armstrong, "and such conditions simply do not exist in India."

He described India as a sub-continent of the world rather than a country of continental Asia. In it live one-fifth of the people of the world; there are almost countless numbers of individual races; over 200 languages and more religions than there are in Europe. "Conditions such as these present a real problem," he assured. As an illustration he pointed to those of the Hindoo faith numbering more than 250 millions. These are divided into over 2,000 different castes with intermarriage or other social contact being forbidden.

Three Conditions Would Follow.

The speaker presented three conditions which would almost inevitably be the result if British rule were suddenly to be withdrawn from the India of today. First there would be an immediate uprising of the Afghans and other tribes in the northwest; secondly the Moslem and Hindoo religious factions would be at each others' throats and thirdly the larger independent states would engulf the smaller states. These independent states were described as each having their own separate princes as rulers and were not included in British controlled India.

Admitting there had been mistakes made in the rule of India, Dr. Armstrong nevertheless maintained that British rule there had been a creditable one. To illustrate he pointed out the fact there had been no rebellion in 150 years; the former debt of one and one half billions of dollars was now down to 50 millions and was due to be discharged, while British investments in India now totalled only about 800 millions of dollars.

Britain Has Not Bled India.

"So you can readily see," indicated the speaker, "that contrary to a general belief, Britain has not bled India white. Mistatements often cause misunderstandings."

In brief reference to the part India has played in the present war it was indicated by Dr. Armstrong that there are now over 2,000,000 men in the Indian army; 300,000 of them serving outside the country. The Indian navy had increased 12 times in size and the air force 10 times its pre-war magnitude. All members of the armed forces are volunteers with the country having more sons fighting for the cause of freedom than all other British colonies combined. Industrial expansion had kept pace. Indian railroads now totalled more than 41,000 miles.

A prophecy that someday China might well be the greatest nation in the world was expressed by the speaker as he referred briefly to this nation which has done so much to combat Japanese domination. "China has the population, the resources, the honor and integrity to make herself a great nation," he said.

Canada, U. S. Criticized.

Dr. Armstrong strongly criticized Canada and the United States for continuing to supply Japan with scrap metal when it could be plainly seen she was arming for an attempt at world domination.

"We, as Canadians, were participants in the Japanese attack on China," he said. "We would not build war machines for ourselves but we did assist in arming powers that were out to conquer the world. How stupid it was!"

China today has every right to look to the outside world for help in her fight against Japan. In the words of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek she had been "abandoned and victimized by her friends." Present Allies had assisted to form an economic noose to strangle China.

"Canada can well be proud of China's resistance against the Japanese. Had she capitulated in her dark hour Japan would have had the resources for earlier conquest of the territory she ultimately conquered in the Pacific in 1942. We can never estimate what we owe China."

Chiang Unifies Country.

Reason for China's refusal to capitulate to the Japanese was held by the speaker to be because of the Christian leadership in her army and in her government. Chiang had unified the country until today it is bound together by the common enemy. Eighty percent of her government heads are Christian, the result of the establishment of foreign missions by Canadian contributions.

Club appreciation to the guest speaker was expressed by Dr. James Semple who intimated that Canadians must develop a new state of mind if they are to accept the challenge for the future post-war world.

Past President Lloyd Hicks presided over the meeting in the absence of President Jack Deacon. The business session was brief, the chief item being the voting of $100 Rotary Club funds to assist in affording comforts for the corvette "Belleville" which is being adopted by this city. Prior to the passing of the motion Dr. Bert Howard quoted figures of the relative strength of the Canadian navy in the First Great War and in the present conflict. Over 40 percent of the escort duty for Atlantic convoys is done by Canadian ships, he said. Rotarian Bill Turner moved the club vote the money to the cause with members giving unanimous support. "Sandy" Burrows led in club singing with Leo Riggs at his accustomed place at the piano.

More than the usual number of visitors were in attendance at the meeting, one of the guests being Mr. Ed. Simmons of Trenton who came to the meeting in a wheel chair from his hospital bed in order to keep his 22-year attendance record intact.

UNIFORM IS TOPS

In a U. S. nation-wide poll, the WAVE uniform was voted tops among the various branches of the military services. Ensign Miriam Murray of Boston, Mass., certainly wears hers to advantage, don't you agree?

Wolf Hunt

Though a large number of men took part in the wolf hunt in Athol and South Marysburgh townships last weekend, no animals were shot. One was sighted by a party in Athol but it eluded them.

Lawrence Hineman and Nelson Moore, hunting together later, trailed a wolf six hours before their dog finally killed it is Athol township. It was a female weighing 35 pounds and had a beautiful hide. They receive $75, of which $10 is a provincial bounty, $40 given by Prince Edward County and $25. by Athol Township.

Named Agent

He has been assistant agent for the past year and carried on during Mr. Collier's illness. He has been with the company for ten years. The local territory extends from Bowmanville to Napanee, making Picton the chief part in the district. A native of Bath, Mr. Covert served overseas four years in the last Great War and later spent two years in the Pay Office at Kingston. He represented a Hamilton firm for 11 years and for a few years was associated with Canadian Canners. He is a member of Town Council.

Nurse Home

Nursing Sister Lieut. Jean Snelgrove is a guest of Mr. and Mrs. Maxwell here. She is a graduate of Prince Edward County hospital. In 1942 she volunteered to work in South Africa military hospitals. She stated nurses were badly needed then but now casualties from the North African theatre are not brought to Cape Town where she was stationed, and there was little to do at the Union Military Hospital there. With 150 other Canadian Nursing Sisters, she decided to return to Canada, planning to enlist in the Canadian Army.

Lieut. Snelgrove left Africa in December aboard a British hospital ship where she was assigned to special duty. She spent several days' leave in England before returning to Canada.

"Sunny Africa is just a myth. I was as cold there as I have ever been here", she declared. Though glad to be home, she said she and other nurses had a marvellous time and the South Africa people gave fine co-operation.

Snow Welcome

Snow which fell on Sunday and Monday is welcomed by farmers. A large quantity of wood has been cut and snow enables it to be hauled by sleigh. It will also afford protection to fall grains and meadows.

Car Accident

Clifford Wilkes, who resides near Bloomfield, was seriously injured, when the car he was driving was demolished when it crashed into a tree on the Bloomfield road. He suffered broken ribs, a possible injury of the spine and lacerations. Curtis Hubbs, who was riding in the front seat, was hurled into the back seat as a result of the impact and escaped with a severe shaking up. Both were lucky to have escaped with their lives since the car was practically wrapped around the tree.

Armed Fascists Violate Rights Of Vatican

London, Feb. 8. (CP) — Armed Fascist guards forced their way into historic St. Paul's Basilica, about a mile outside the wall of Rome, last Thursday, thereby violating the Vatican's extra-territoriality rights, the Vatican radio last night.

The broadcast, quoting the Vatican newspaper Osservatore Romano, said a "formal strong protests" has been filed over the violation of these rights, "guaranteed by solemn treaties". Thirteen buildings in Rome, besides Vatican City, enjoy the rights, placing them out of the jurisdiction of local and state authorities.

Describing the forced entry into St. Paul's, one of the four major basilicas in the world, the Swiss newspaper Basler Nachrichten said the Fascist police, ignoring protests of the rector, searched the church from cellar to roof and arrested 64 persons.

The police were under the command of Pietro Caruso, old-line Fascist recently appointed as new police prefect in the capital, the Vatican broadcast said.

The Vatican announcement did not say why the Fascists forced their way into the basilica. Reports reaching London from neutral countries, however, have said that the Fascists were looking for Italian officers and Jews reported hiding in the vicinity.

The Nazi-controlled Rome radio said that among those found hiding in a "college" in Rome was an air force general named Monti, who was reported to have been arrested with four officers, nine Jews, two policemen and 48 young Italians trying to evade German labor conscription.

WILSON CHIEF

YOU SEE, SON, IT'S PEOPLE RUSHING IN TO GET THINGS THAT ARE SCARCE THAT MAKES EVERYTHING SCARCER. BESIDES...
...CANADA NEEDS OUR MONEY NOW AND IT WILL BUY MUCH BETTER THINGS AFTER THE WAR.

WHEN YOU BUY, GET YOUR MONEY'S WORTH

When goods are plentiful, you get better value for your money. After the war, when our factories are turning out the very latest radios, washing machines and automobiles, is the time to buy. In the meanwhile, lend your money to help bring that day nearer. By doing this you help the government keep prices down, too!

The Year 1944

This year 1944 is looked upon as a year of great decisions and of destiny which will leave its influence upon ages to come, a year which may see the final breakdown and end of the German ambition to tyrannize over humanity. This would leave the United Nations the task of launching the era of world reconstruction and security and of finishing the job of cracking Japanese imperialism, so that it will forever be prevented from rearing its brutal head against the safety and peace of the world.
